Unless there is a sudden crash in January's weather programme, there'll be ice enough for next summer to make up for the coal shortage this winter in Danielson.

Motorists who have been over the route to Providence this week say the hardest part of the journey is between the city line and Olneyville square. The state highway plows have kept the state highways in comparatively good condition.

A publication of nation-wide circulation in treating in its current issue of some of the amazing stock dividends declared by corporations lists that by the Davis and Brown company, with mills at East Killingly and Uxbridge, as the third largest in the country—3,233 per cent. However, the concern heading the list has declared a stock dividend of 19,000 per cent.

Storm warnings are issued against uttering anything about "Beautiful Snow," the risk is too great now to be assumed by any but the most reckless.

Fishing through the ice temporarily has gone into the discard. It now rates as labor instead of sport. The weather isn't right, the ice is too thick and the snow too deep. Reading baseball forecasts is a more comfortable occupation.

Speaking of baseball, there appears to be an opportunity of developing Wildwood park as a real baseball center during the coming season. The park is midway between Danielson and Putnam, beautifully situated and good teams should draw big attendance there.

Although Captain Delage lost 52 pounds in weight, he is looking and says he is feeling fit and expects to go back on duty next Monday morning.

Prosper Viegard past exalted ruler of Putnam lodge of Elks who was injured by being hit by an automobile as he was crossing Union street some weeks ago, has so far recovered from his wounds as to be discharged from the Day Kimball hospital. He is now at his home on Woodstock avenue regaining his strength.

In a memorandum of decision which Judge N. Waldo Marvin of the superior court handed down some time ago in the case of Oscar Rich vs. his father, Jesse E. Rich, which was an action to determine whether the concern of J. E. Rich & Son was a partnership and if so that an accounting be made by the defendant Judge Marvin found that partnership relations did exist and ordered that an accounting be made.

In accordance with the court's finding, Rich, Sr., has filed with the clerk of the superior court a tentative accounting covering the period between Feb. 1, 1916, and Jan. 1, 1922, showing net profits of $8,871.64. The report on file shows the assets of the business liabilities during the several years. The net worth as of Jan. 1, 1922, is stated to be $2,896.64, from which is deducted $1 000 cash added to the investment made. To the remainder is added $4 0 which was in an automobile venture $1,425 represents an automobile transaction, $1,000 for personal investments and $1,750 for exchanging of automobiles for father and son, the total making the $8,871.64. The court has appointed Judge Milton A. Shumway state referee, as a committee to hear the case on appeal.

At the Congregational parsonage in Putnam Thursday evening Miss Jessie Riddell, for a number of years an assistant at the Windham county temporary home and Joseph Bodo, a barber in Putnam, were joined in marriage by Rev. Simeon Cozad. Following the ceremony, they went to the home where they were given a reception by the matron, Mrs. Addie Park, before they left on their wedding trip. After they return to Putnam Mrs. Bodo will resume her duties at the home as she has been there for a number of years and her services are highly valued.

Clarence E. Pierce, first selectman of the town of Putnam, for 17 successive years superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Baptist church, has tendered his resignation as superintendent. While there is regret at his decision to resign, it is realized that he has performed a long and faithful service and is entitled to be relieved of the responsibilities as he desires.

At a special session of the city court two Putnam young men were arraigned Friday afternoon charged with a serious offense with two young girls, aged 15 and 17. The girls testified that they drank liquor with the young men, but aside from this nothing improper happened. Both young fellows were held in $500 bonds each for the superior court.

A representative gathering of Putnam citizens, including several women, attended the meeting of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce in Odd Fellows' hall on Thursday evening. Putnam is one of the five towns in the state that has failed to comply with the law for a revaluation to real property for taxation purposes, and it was intimated that if the town did not perform this duty that the state would step in and do the revaluing at the expense of the town. Many citizens attended the meeting expecting to hear some severe criticism from State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, who was the honor guest of the evening.

When the tax commissioner told the gathering that he had no authority to do anything but make the town comply with the law and intimated that, while as tax commissioner he was in duty bound to enforce all laws, he was not in sympathy to any great degree with the laws regarding reassessment as they now stand on the statute books, for under the present law assessors are required to inspect each place of property and make a reassessment each year, and there is another law which requires a reassessment every ten years. It is the latter statute that Putnam is one of the five towns which have not complied with.

The meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by Newton A. Vaughan, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and in a short introductory speech he introduced the state tax commissioner. The commissioner gave an excellent talk on taxation and held the close attention of his audience. Not once did he mention the fact that Putnam had failed to obey the statute on revaluation. He did tell those present that he had made an investigation of what the assessors were doing in every town in the state toward complying with the law that reclares that a valuation of 100 per cent. 'should' be placed on all real property. His investigation consisted of getting a record of what from 25 to 50 pieces of property in each town had been sold for in the market and taking their assessed valuation. By striking an average he could find at what per cent. of the market value the property was assessed for. On this basis the towns in the state ranged from 23 per cent. to between 80 and 85 per cent Putnam showed 49.62 per cent.

While this shows little effort on the part of the assessors to comply with the law to assess property at 100 per cent., it in no way affects the state, as Putnam's grand list is five million or more and therefore no state aid of any description is received by the town which state aid is based on the grand list. Back of 1915 towns paid a state tax based on the valuation of taxable property of the town as it stood in relation to all of the property in the state, but in 1915 this was changed so that now the state tax is computed on the amount of tax a town pays as it stands in proportion to the total tax of the state. The only injury done is to the town itself and this is only an indirect injury. The town and city tax amounts to 32 mills. As the property is assessed, according to the tax commissioner's figures, at a little less than 50 per cent., if it was assessed at 100 per cent valuation this would reduce the tax rate one-half or to 16 mills. The effect would be the same as far as the taxpayer is concerned perhaps, but to industries seeking a place to locate it would look much better to point to a 16 mill tax than to a 32 mill tax.

Mr. Blodgett told of the sales investigated, 28 in all, in Putnam. The largest was of a piece of property that sold for $27,750 which he found to be assessed for only $11 750. Other sales investigated were in like proportion.

It was not until the commissioner concluded his address that he was asked what the town's status was in not having complied with the law and what he intended doing about it. He said that he had no authority to do anything about it. He said that the taxing power of towns was derived from the sovereign state and that the state had passed laws as to how the taxing power should be carried into effect and it was the duty of the towns to follow the law. He said that the assessors in many towns were underpaid and that therefore they did not give the time necessary to make an equitable and fair assessment. Asked how much assessors in a town the size of Putnam should be paid, he said they ought to receive at least $1,000 a year each. Putnam pays its assessors but $200 a year.

Asked regarding manufacturing properties, the commissioner said that it was almost impossible to arrive at a fair and just valuation on such properties, as business conditions entered into such values. Asked if he thought the spindle plan of valuation was a good one, he said he did not.

The commissioner made a most excellent impression on his audience and it was 10 o'clock before the meeting adjourned. After giving Mr. Blodgett a rising vote of thanks for appearing before the Putnam Chamber of Commerce to talk on the subject of taxation.

LIFE IS NOT SO SHORT BUT THERE IS ALWAYS TIME FOR COURTESY.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The World's Great Peace

saw the navies of the Allied world
Riding at ease within a sheltered bay;
In peace and quiet, side by side they lay,
or, all the battle-flags at last were furled.

he angry cannon stood, all still and grim,
Like dogs in leash, straining to find a foe!
Yet all the ports were closed and to and fro he ships swayed lightly on the ocean's rim.

over again their thunder shall declare
Ruin and death for helpless shore and land;
They kept the peace of seas from strand to strand, ad bandit cruisers feared to leave their lair.

thed in peace, each nation claimed their aid
Only again the energies of all;
No guardian fortress from their fire shall fall
d only crime hides from them, sore afraid.

hat! The dawning, with its golden gleam,
Awoke me to a world where wars increase:
The keepers of the Allied world's great peace
ished with my dream—ah, was it but a dream?

For the New Year

ccasion so reads where young feet should dance lightly
I went a darkened and a quiet way, ith none to lift for me a torch of laughter.
her young faces turn to me hereafter, will be gay.

Because I groped my way through tangled shadows,
Searching the gloom with scared, unopened eyes,
d those I asked for light were all unseeing, any turn to me for light and leading,
I will be wise.

ecause a friend I loved forsook her loving Upon a time when other griefs were new,
n I who know how bitter is forsaking, all the more if other faith are breaking,
I will be true.

ause I reached for hands once to uphold me,
And found no helper, though the road was long,
n hands stretch out to me forlorn and clinging, ause of what that weary year was bringing,
will be strong.

ause the old year brought me gifts of sorrow,
Teaching me wisdom with the griefs it bore, coming year shall give all light and gladness—
I, once sad, have learned to help all sadness, ask no more!

Answers and Inquiries

KITTY LOU: Many thanks. Letters forwarded as requested.

WHITE CLOVER: There as a letter going out if you will forward address.

BOTTLE: Correct address having received matter will get immediate action.

A GOOD MOTTO TO FOLLOW

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I began a letter to you on New Year's day but not finish it. Now I'll try again d if not too late wish you all a happy r all through 1923.

When I was a small girl my school cher used to write the copy for us to ow in our writing books. One copy remember was "If at first you don't ceed, try, try again," and I think it a good motto for us to follow. Even we fail it is better than not trying all. I hope I shall be more prompt writing for the Corner page, as you each one must do her bit.

First, I wish to thank the sister who me the lovely calendar. I am g she did not sign her name so I d write to her. Somehow I don't nalize the handwriting. The calendar very nice and I appreciate the gift. is so pleasant to be remembered.

We had such a lovely Thanksgiving, our family was here with us, an unken band, for which we were very nkful. Christmas soon followed with songs of "Peace on earth, good will to men, and it was a joyful occasion bringing gifts and good cheer from far and near.

Now we are bound in stern winter's ice chains and those who venture out must watch their steps.

When we see the children coasting it reminds us of our own childhood days and how we enjoyed the sled rides and skating on the ponds. It revives the wish to try it again in spite of our three score and ten. How the grandchildren would laugh to see grandma steering a sled down the icy hill! But, I guess I could do it all right!

I enjoyed reading Balsam Fir and North Dakota's letters telling us of conditions around them. It makes us feel contented here in Connecticut with the thermometer only occasionally at 10 above zero.

It is just the time now for roaring fires and to rush our sewing along this week I am piecing bed quilts and I hope to keep the sewing machine running every day this month.

One sister spoke of album quilts. I have one album quilt my father's sister gave me when she was 90 years old. There are names of cousins and friends written on the blocks from New York state, Wisconsin and other distant places. I never saw many of them but I read them over occassionally to refresh my memory on my many relatives.

My sympathy goes out to those who have lost dear friends and I hope the sick ones will soon be restored to health, so they may get out doors again. It is such a pleasure to get out in the sunshine after being shut in, for it is a beautiful world after all and a dear Heavenly Father to watch over and care for us all.

GRANDMA GRAT

WEAR APPAREL IN KEEPING WITH WINTER

Cornerites: A happy New Year one and all. Have read the very interesting letter of North Dakota. She is right about people nowadays wearing their summer clothing in cold, bleak wintry weather. Many a poor soul is in a tubercular institution some where by changing from thicker clothes in midwinter to attend a dance of some party in thin clothes and catching cold after the events are over. If people would just put on a little more and warmer wearing apparel in winter than they do in summer I really believe lots of sickness could be avoided.

Jim: I read your nice letter and know nearly every one of those hymns by heart. I once played the organ on Sundays for a few trained singers and many a time those were the hymns they sang. Very nice all of them.

Calla Lilly: Are you out of town or ill? I haven't heard from you.

Delian Deal: Believe I got a card from you some time ago and was glad to hear from you. I must hunt up your address some time soon. Hope some of the cornerites enjoy a sleigh ride.

DEARIE.

MORE INTERESTING THINGS IN WASHINGTON.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Wish you all good health during the new year.

To the dear member who so kindly remembered me with the very pretty calendar to beautify my room I extend my thanks, and appreciation for the sweet little verse thereon, and the scene with the old fashioned well sweep that I always felt afraid to use (do not think I ever did) and the well portioned house with two chimneys of a cheerful color—reminding me of "how dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood."

For an instant I wondered if the occupants have plenty of coal, but conclude if "the good old summer time" as the grass is so green around the house.

Pleased with greetings from O. E. S. and Social Corner sister. Remember your visit to Radiant chapter No. 11 also at the lake—but did not get or cannot now recall your name. The card will be kept in loving remembrance of Primrose for which accept my thanks.

I really want to finish telling you sisters about the rest of my Washington trip last September. After crossing the Potomac from Arlingtonton we drove around the "Speedway" which is along the river.

We tried to get into and up the monument but so many were in line ahead of us we gave up after a few trials.

We went into Lincoln's monument, ascending forty steps which brings you to his statue in a sitting position and over his head is the following:

"In this temple, as in the hearts of the people for whom he saved the Union, the memory of Abraham Lincoln is enshrined forever."

A picture of this monument on some almanac thrown into the house lately is very good. The whole memorial is of white marble and a watchman who sees that people and children as they walk around, reading his Gettysburg speech on the right side and something equally on the left side concerning the great man, keep their feet where they should and not soil the pillars of which there is one for every state.

We went into the capitol at a side door—the front entrance being filled with staging as the front was undergoing repairs. We sat down for a little time in both houses. The bonus bill was being discussed and would have liked to have heard more they were such fine speakers who adhered strictly to parliamentary rules. As we passed through Statuary hall we noticed Frances E. Willard's statue.

From here we went into a building similar to Smithsonian Institute and right here, it is well to say that probably there are a great many excellent Americans, exceedingly proud of the country's advantages, who do not know that the Smithsonian Institution in Washington was founded by a man who never saw the United States.

Smithson was an Englishman, the natural son of the first Duke of Northumberland. For a long time he bore his mother's name, being known as James Lewis Macie. Years after his graduation at Oxford, in the Pembroke college, class of 1786, he took the family name of his father. The circumstances of his birth militated against a social career for him in England. In science, which he took up as a pursuit, he made a name.

When Smithson died at Genoa in 1829, he was found to have left his entire fortune to "the United States of America" to promote "the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The Smithsonian Institution is the outcome of this bequest. The will was drawn, perhaps, in bitterness over the testator's rejection by society at home. But it carried across the water a very beneficence of "light and learning." It will be a poetic return in gratitude if a resting place for the body of the institution's founder is afforded in the shadow of its walls." Have spoken of being in this building in 1892 and it is certainly interesting and instructive. The new building is fine. A few things we saw were Morstalled monkey from East Africa, East African buffaloes with short hair, polar fox, milk white, totem pole from Queen Charlotte Islands. Beginning at the bottom and carved on the pole were a beaver, whale, deep sea, grizzly bear, cormorant and eagle. The beaver was the corner's crest; the eagle, cormorant and whale had been used by his uncle and here served as a monument to him. It was carved from a giant cedar trunk, 42 feet high. There were life-sized figures of Indians making arrow heads from stone. When we first bought our home in 1906 as I was out to the clothesline near the hencoop I saw a rat hole and on the very edge of the hole an arrowhead, gray in color, medium sized, and as always wished we possessed one I hastened to secure it, fearing the least jar would send it back into the hole. Upon showing it to the man of the house he admired it as it was perfect, and said, "I'd like to see the fellow who fired it." I've been told the Indians used to make them at a certain location beside the river here.

To return to Washington, I saw a bird of good size called the rhinoceros hornbill of India. It was jet black with white under the body, had a large white bill with fire red here on top of its head. While the female is setting in a hole in the trunk of a tree the male plasters her in, leaving just room for her bill to be out as he feeds her during incarceration. Otherwise snakes get in and destroy. One never forgets this specimen.

We went into the basement where we saw a model of the trenches where the boys of the World war slept, quite a distance down in, with a ladder of steps to go to the top and peer out under a covering to see how business was going on outside. It was a queer place for men not used to roughing it the least bit. How little we at home realized their true conditions or really ever can.

In my next letter I intend to tell you of going to the "Great Falls of Virginia."

GRETIA.

WASHING MACHINE TRICKS.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: As I don't take any vacations or trips of any sort, I don't know of much of interest to write about, but wonder if any of you have your washing machine play tricks like mine. One day several years ago, when I washed some trousers for a young son, he forgot to take a nickel from the pocket, and I forgot to turn the pockets inside out as I usually do, but the machine turned the pocket, and put the nickel back in it.

Another time I did turn the pockets out and found a pair of socks in one of the pockets.

The last trick was to turn a pillow case inside out, and put a napkin in it.

The poem, Beautiful Hands, printed last week, is a song I knew years ago, buf I noticed the first four lines were missing. They are as follows:

Such beautiful, beautiful hands!
They're neither white nor small.
And you, I know, would scarcely think
That they were fair at all.

Now, does anyone know the words of a song for children beginning like this:

When folks begin to whisper
And act so very queer,
We know that Merry Christmas
Is coming very near.

Wish the editor and members a happy and prosperous new year.

SILENT PARTNER.

PAINTED FLOORS.

Dear Sisters of The Corner: Even though we do not have nice oak floors there are many of us who are no-doubt anxious to get rid of carpets and rugs in different rooms. Some would do it if they thought the floors could be made to look good, but in most cases they can with a little work, as I have found out.

Floors can be painted, and the beautiful part about a painted floor is that almost any kind of wood at all may lie beneath the paint. Soft woods are close grained and therefo e do not require a "filler" as some of the open grained hardwoods do, so they are not as difficult to finish as the hardwood floors.

After you remove the carpet from your floor, proceed as follows: First apply a coat of "ground color" paint to all holes and cracks; let this paint dry, then apply a regular crack filler. There is a special crack filler now made for filling cracks, crevices and knotholes, and this is much more satisfactory than putty would be if used for the same purpose, for the crack filler will not shrink and dry out. Next apply a coat of ground color paint to the entire floor, let it dry thoroughly, and apply a coat or two of varnish (a good spar varnish will wear best). If one does not care for a shiny varnished surface, she may rub down the high polish, 48 hours after it has been put on, with powdered pumice and water; then, when dry, apply linseed oil and turpentine in equal quantities, mixed.

Many housekeepers of my acquaintance who have attempted to do over their old floors in this way have tried "graining" them. This gives an artificial grain to the wood and is done as follows: Buy a can of graining paint and apply it directly over the ground color paint while the ground color paint is still wet; then proceed to grain at once, with a graining tool, to suit your fancy. Of course, only a small space can be grained at once, and for this reason only a small portion at a time should be painted with the graining paint. After the graining is finished, the entire floor is varnished when dry.

A pretty luster is given a varnished floor by mixing oil and turpentine in equal proportions and applying this with a cloth, then rubbing down with a dry cloth just before it is dry; this rubbing down while the oil and turpentine is still wet removes the scum from the oil, and if it is not done the result will be a dirty, dull floor. Floors treated in this way are not as dangerous to walk upon (elderly people and children particularly will be benefited) as a waxed floor.

A floor that is merely painted and has no coat of varnish over the paint will not wear as well as though the varnish had been applied, the paint will crack and peel in time, and experience has taught housekeepers that only in bedrooms, where there is not much traffic, a painted floor surface is in the least satisfactory.

Best wishes for the New Year to the editor and all the members.

SHORT PASTRY AND NUT BREAD.

Dear Corner Folk: I know it is a bit late, but better late than never, to wish The Corner sisters a year of happiness and prosperity.

How many of the sisters are having the good luck they desire with short pastry? Some get so discouraged they give up making it, because it is so hard and tough. One friend says, "Oh, the flour isn't so good as it used to be," and another pleads, "Well, of course, we cannot use butter now."

This is merely the cry of the bad workman who blames his tools. Out of present-day flour and lard and margarine delicious pastry of the shortbread type is most easily made. The fault of most amateur cooks is that they won't pay attention to detail, and in cookery it is the little things that count. Try this method carefully if you wish to succeed:

Take one-half pound of flour, mix with it one small teaspoon of baking powder and half that quantity of salt. Cut into pieces two ounces of lard and two ounces of margarine; rub this into the flour with the fingertips—do not use the palm of the hand. As you rub, lift up the flour from over the basin and let it fall; this allows air to enter, and makes the pastry light. Now comes the critical moment when you mix in the water; if you add too much your pastry will be tough; if, to rectify this mistake, you add more flour after the water, your pastry will be hard. Add liquid gradually, and mix with a knife until it all looks separated but not adhesive; then knead together with the fingertips, place on a floured board, and continue kneading until free from cracks and quite pliable. Roll out and use. Never turn the pastry over; it should be so dry that it will only just roll out.

Some time ago a sister inquired for directions to make nut bread. I delayed a reply at the time but if not too late will send the following:

Nut Bread: Two breakfast cups of wholemeal, one breakfast cup of household flour, two-thirds of a breakfast cup of brown sugar, three level teaspoons of baking powder, two level teaspoons of carbonate of soda, one breakfast cup of chopped walnuts, one-fourth level teaspoon of salt, about one pint of milk or sour milk, if possible.

Sieve the flour, salt, baking powder and carbonate of soda, mix in the wholemeal, add the sugar and nuts, and mix well. Make a hollow in the center, and pour in some of the milk, stirring the flour in gradually, and adding more milk until a fairly stiff dough is formed. Turn into one or two greased bread tins and bake in a fairly hot oven for about one hour. Test with a skewer to see if the bread is done. When cooked, turn into a sieve to cool.

Any nuts may be used in place of walnuts. Grease the tins before making the bread, and see that the oven is ready before adding the milk, as soda begins to work as soon as it is wet.

MAKE THE CORNER BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I would like to know how to join the Social Corner. What do you have to do to join, just have your name added to the list or how? I think we all should make the Corner bright and cheerful as we can because there are times in each life when we are called to pass through trials and afflictions but we have the promise that He will never forsake us if we trust Him. I have been helped many times in different ways from what I have read in the Corner. Have found some good recipes that I have tried. I will send a recipe for molasses cookies which always comes out good.

Molasses Cookies: One pint each of molasses and lard, two cups sugar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon ginger, one cup of cold water, four teaspoons of baking powder and flour enough to handle. This is a large batch and will keep any length of time.

Best wishes to all.

RURAL AUNTY.

(Rural Aunty's name was added to the Social Corner list following her first letter. Writing to the Corner page is all that is required to become a member, the expectation being, however, that there will be more letters than the one requesting enrollment. The various Social Corner clubs are open to those who write to the Corner if they desire, each one doing her part to maintain the club as well as keep the Corner page well filled with timely, interesting and helpful letters.—S. C. Editor.)

GREETINGS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

To the Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: Here's hoping that the editor, as well as all the Cornerites, enjoyed a merry Christmas and I wish you all a new year that will bring you health, wealth and happiness. May your best resolutions be kept, and your wishes realized.

To the Social Corner member who sent me such a lovely calendar again this year I send my best wishes and thanks. I think you are the same one as last year. The writing on both look somewhat alike.

Rural Delivery: I envy your delightful evenings with your radio. Quite a difference from waiting for papers or letters.

Mandy: Your letter on Christmas giving was fine. I will tell you of an incident I heard of not long ago. A lady was heard to say, "Well, I always wait till after Christmas to send my presents, so I can send one of equal value." But all the same she was insulted on receiving a box of a half dozen handkerchiefs. So that is the way a good many look at Christmas gifts.

Now for the old French customs of going to all the older relatives to call on New Year's. They are almost gone, like the hair albums and the like.

I went out in the rain and wind on New Year's just the same, and the greetings I got repaid the wet feet and turned over umbrella. But wasn't that rainbow a brait we had about half past three or quarter of four? I stood and watched it with a friend of mine for five minutes or more. It made us forget the rest of the storm we had had all day. But I don't suppose that the ones who live out in the open country will forget that quick on account of the roads.

Remembering what one of the sisters wrote on wifey's allowance I will send in the following:

The minister was admonishing a village lively one. "You ought not to spend all your wages, George," George admitted he did not. "No?" asked the minister suppleiously. "No, sir," said George. "I make it a rule not to spend over two-thirds of my wages on no account." "Well, well," said the minister, "I suppose you bank the rest." "Oh, no," said George, "I put it to better use than that; I give the rest to my wife to keep house on."

No doubt this wife of his must have found her allowance very small some weeks.

I hope that the more fortunate sisters who were able to attend the January third meeting were not snowed in before reaching home. I think the weather man must have been wrong by three days for that 6th to the 9th blizzard. This afternoon and tonight look like the start. I pity the poor linemen that are worked so hard nowadays to keep our lights, telephones and power lines going.

Again I wish you all a happy New Year.

THE ART OF SMOCKING.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I wish you all a happy New Year.

A Social Corner Member: Please accept my warmest thanks for your kind thought in sending me the calendar.

Smocking has been revived again and is once more the very height of fashion. This decoration is simple and easy to make and is remarkably effective for children's frocks and provides a welcome novelty to take the place of stitching of which we have all gotten very tired.

If you are going to use smocking it must be cut exactly as full as if it was going to be shirred. Then it must be marked off in a space exactly three-quarters of an inch apart. Take great care to have the spaces even. Then catch corresponding markings in first and second row together lengthwise with two or three small stitches, using only a single thread. Do not break your section and since mosting you have often wondered if we had ever passed near you as I some times went with him.

We certainly have had a real snow storm. I for one like the winter.

How many of you keep an account of your expenses for the year? I used to but have not for some time. Am trying to this year. Some time ago one sister wrote about Lantern Hill. I found it very interesting as I used to go there on picnics. We have had some very interesting letters on places both far and near I think. For those who can go and see it is fine and for those who can not go it is fine to read about them. Here's good wishes to the editor and members for a bright, happy and prosperous year.

OLD WRITERS SHOULD GET BUSY

Dear Social Corner: Here I am again. Get busy old writers and help the new ones fill our page.

Trula: I was glad to hear from you. Just as soon as the ice is gone we will come and see you.

Kitty Lou: Such a pleasant surprise the post man brought me. Thank you. If I wrote your name as often as I thought of you the page would be all your name. I will never forget your kindness to me when I was a shut-in, and the many times your telephone message helped the weary minutes along.

I was surprised to have a relative of mine living in Rochester, N. Y., tell me how she looked over the Social Corner page first when her paper came, and now disappointed she felt when she did not see a letter from me. I did not know she knew I wrote or what my pen name was. So you see it is not all Norwich people that watch our page. So let all of us keep it full and interesting.

If you have a friend worth loving love them. Yes and let them know that you love them. It makes many a dark day brighter if you do. Do not wait until they have passed on and then tell others. Tell them while they are here.

CELIA LOUISE.

A WELL TRAINED DOG

Dear Sisters: Here is a true story for mothers who belong to the Corner to read to their children.

One of our best friends was a big St. Bernard dog named Lion. He lived in the country and his master owned some four miles a mile from the village. Every day Lion would go to the post office for the letters and papers and bring them home safely to his master.

The post office was in one of those dear old fashioned country shops where all sorts of things are sold, needles, cottons, groceries, shoes, toys and candy.

If the postmistress was busy when Lion entered the shop, he would lie down on the floor and wait patiently till she had leisure to attend to him; but if he was kept waiting longer than he thought right, he would rap gently on the floor with his tail, and if that had not the desired effect, he would rise giving a loud yawn, which seldom failed to draw attention to himself.

"Well, Lion, have you come for the letters?" the postmistress would say, and when she had securely tied them into a packet, he would take them into his mouth and at once trot off for home and it would not be well for anyone who tried to take them from him.

I have often met him, and he seemed always so very friendly and willing to accompany me in my rambles. But one day I thought it was not gentlemanly of him to let me carry my basket. I told him so, and offered him the basket. He took it, wagged his tail politely and then turned around in the direction of the mill and trotted off. "No, no, Lion," I said. "You are not to take it home. Give it to me, sir!" and I tried to get hold of it, but a low growl warned me that he did not intend to be interfered with. There was nothing to do but to follow him all the way to the mill, where we were met by the foreman, who took it from him and explained that people often gave him notes and he had been trained never to give them up to anybody except to him or his master.

But going for the mail is not all that Lion could do by any means.

"He feeds the cat every day at just 12 o'clock." I was told "Won't you stay and see him do it now? It is nearly the time for it." I said I should like to see him do it, and I waited till the clock struck twelve. Then without being told to do it, Lion took up a jar by a string handle, which had been put on for the purpose and trotted away to the farm nearby. The farmer's wife filled the jar with milk for him and he presently returned, carrying it so carefully that not a drop was spilled. Pussy was waiting for him. She rubbed her soft sides against his legs, purring loudly to express her pleasure. He put down the jar and lay down quietly for her to enjoy her repast.

When she had finished the milk she sat down in a pussy cat fashion and proceeded to lick her paws, but Lion made a sudden spring at her and rolled her over in the flour with which the floor was thickly covered. And then such a game of romp and play that followed. Helter, skelter all over the place they raced, playing "hide and seek" and "catch me" till pussy was tired out and ran to the top of a pile of corn sacks to rest and clean her be-floured coat in peace.

I want to send many thanks for my calendar to a Corner member.

KITTY LOU

A CHRISTMAS VISIT.

Mr. Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As there has been a number of letters in regard to Christmas experiences, I will add one more and help to keep our Corner page out.

Having had an invitation to spend Christmas in East Hampton, Conn., I left South Coventry on Dec. 22 by the 9:40 trolley for Willimantic. The car was somewhat late but I had some errands to do and did not hurry as the train was slated to leave at 10.52. I had heard much about it being late and the last time I had taken that train I had to wait till 12:30 before it started. Having finished my errands, I went to the station expecting to have some time to wait but I found the train ready to start. I asked the conductor if I had time to get a ticket and he said one minute, so I got aboard and got my ticket on the train. I was much surprised to find that it left on time. We arrived in East Hampton but a few minutes late, where my friends met me, and we were soon at the home. We passed that afternoon in visiting and Saturday morning we trimmed a Christmas tree. In the afternoon my granddaughter and I went to spend the afternoon with a friend, and her father and mother went to Middletown on a shopping expedition. That evening we had the tree—just for the family. We received some nice presents with the best of the folks. Sunday we had a Christmas dinner with roast turkey, cranberry sauce, and all the fixings. A poor neighbor who had recently lost her husband and was alone was invited and in the afternoon there was a number of callers to see the presents, also to see the daughter. Doris as she had to return to Yonkers on Monday to be at work Tuesday morning.

Monday, Christmas day, was fair and we had an early dinner with the poor neighbor invited, and at 1:30 we left for Middletown to take Doris to the train. After she left we all went to the movies.

RUPTURE EXPERTS

COMING TO NORWICH, CONN.

Demonstrate the Famous Rice Method Free to Callers at Hotel

If you are ruptured, your big opportunity has now arrived. If you want to be free from the slavery of gouging, pinching, chafing trusses that make life a burden and misery, then HERE and NOW is the time to act.

J. M. HORTON,

expert in rupture cases, trained under the personal direction of W. S. Rice of Adams, N. Y., the originator of the Rice Non-Surgical Rupture Method, will be at the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, Conn., Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, and the Crocker House, New London, Conn., Friday and Saturday, January 19 and 20.

J. M. Horton is coming to personally demonstrate to all ruptured men, women and children what the Rice Rupture Method can accomplish. You have, no doubt, heard and read much about this famous Method and the thankful cures which thousands have reported from it. Now, you have the chance to find out all about it—what it is, how it acts and why it cures by having it applied to your own rupture so you can experience and know its marvelous influence and effect before you decide to adopt it. Just call at the Hotel and these experts will give you their personal attention, best advice and complete demonstration absolutely without charge.

Are you tired of that binding, hampering, uncomfortable truss? Would you like to be done with truss-wearing forever? Then investigate this Rice Method and learn the splendid possibilities of help and cure it holds out for you. Surely a Method that could enable so many thousands of former rupture sufferers—men, women and children—to report easy and painless home cures must be worthy of your fullest confidence. If the Rice Method can free you forever of every sign and trace of rupture infirmity without operation, pain or danger or losing a single hour from work or pleasure, as thousands of others say it has done for them, you should make it the most important business you have to attend to on the dates given to come to the hotel and determine that fact for yourself.

No matter if your rupture is one that has returned following an operation for rupture or has become enormous in size, no matter if it is 50 years standing or has assumed the more dangerous irreducible form or for any other reason you consider your case beyond help, this is the one great free demonstration and free help offer you must not fail to accept. Remember, the Rice Method is different from anything else, and is accomplishing results where all other treatments, even operations, have failed. It is modern, up-to-date, abreast of the latest scientific developments. It is the one Method that you are not asked to take on faith alone—the one Method that is positively demonstrated to you, right on your own person, without any charge whatever. You do not spend a penny unless, after having a full and complete demonstration, you decide that this is the Method for you. And you—you alone—are the sole judge of that.

In justice to yourself, come in and see these experts. Remember, they will be here only two days, then your opportunity will be gone. Grasp it NOW. It is sure to prove one of the wisest things you ever did, and anyway, it costs you nothing to find out all about the Rice Method and just what it can do for you. Remember, there is no man or woman too old or child too young, nor is there any case, including the large Navel and Operation Ruptures too difficult to be helped by the Rice Method. So don't fail to come to the hotel on the date given and determine if this great home self-treatment is not the long hoped for means of help and cure you have been seeking.

Remember, come to the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, Conn., Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, or to the Crocker House, New London, Conn., Friday and Saturday, January 19 and 20, any time from 9 to 12 forenoons, 2 to 5 afternoons and 7 to 9 evenings. Just ask at the hotel desk for the Rice representatives and you will be directed to their private apartments. Your only regret following the visit will be that you have not learned of the Rice Method sooner.

IF YOU CANNOT CALL, WRITE FOR FREE TRIAL.

If you are unable to call then don't fail to write W. S. Rice, Inc., 550 Main St., Adams, N. Y., tell where rupture is located and a DEMONSTRATING TRIAL with full instructions for using at home will be mailed you free of charge.

WESTERLY

Arnone was charged with the larceny of a quantity of cloth from the Bradford Dyeing Association of Bradford. The cloth was valued at $38.53. Dunn appeared for Arnone and said that he had known him for a number of years, that he not never been before the court before and up to this time had a very good record in town. JEWETT CITY

The Ku Klux scare has got a little hold in Jewett City, showing mostly in unconfirmed reports that were in common circulation on the streets all day Friday. The only real trouble is at the Riverside school among the smaller children, who have become obsessed with the idea that while they are at school that there will be damage of some horrible sort done at home. It is believed that the scare got its hold among the children as the result of a letter that a Polish man claimed to have received, which investigation fails to locate. The teachers at Riverside were considerably disturbed Friday by the groundless stories that caused some of the younger pupils to appear frightened.

Representative and Mrs. Michael E. Shea of Griswold were among the guests at the governor's ball in Hartford.

Mrs. Frank Moriarty's aunt, Miss Mary Doyle, has among a collection of old currency an eight dollar Continental currency certificate, No. 32,383, issued by the Colonies. It was printed by Hale and Sellers, May 9, 1776, and is finely preserved. Upon its face it is stated, in still legible characters, that "This bill entitles the bearer to receive 8 Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to the resolution of congress at t Philadelphia in May, 1776."

The Harmony club was entertained by Mrs. B. R. Gardner, Friday afternoon.

All this section is covered with twice the depth of snow of the two preceding winters put together. Twenty inches have fallen on the level since the storm, which began Wednesday afternoon Jan. 3. It was estimated Friday that a greater depth of snow covers the Pachaug and Quinebaug water sheds than at the time of the freshet of 1886. At that time there was about a foot. In the event of rain, with rising temperature, the present great body of millions of tons, would not be converted into water at dangerous speed, because of the continued reinforcement of sleet layers, as was proven Friday on the Dorrville ice fields that would hold up rapid melting.

At the time of the great freshet in 1886, the hillsides of the great water sheds that were covered with a foot of snow, were bared in less than 24 hours thus contributing to freshet conditions, such as were never known in the Quinebaug and Pachaug valleys. The character of the snow layer today would make like conditions impossible.

Shea Brothers were up at their ice fields at Dorrville after the storm of Thursday night, looking over the possible chances of getting in a harvest. Conditions were found that never have been known to exist before. Reckoning from the top down, there is first 8 inches of snow, then a sleet layer of an inch, under that is an inch or more of water, with still another strata of sleet and snow ice two or three inches thick; then at last, there are 10 to 12 inches of good ice. James Shea stated Friday afternoon that he knew of no surface scraping devise that would remove the sleet, snow and water layers, from the good ice, so that marking and plowing could be accomplished.

Sherman Waters of Lisbon, who had a bad fall two weeks ago is still confined to his bed with no prospect of going to work again for another week.

Miss Delphine Beauregard is at home after a two weeks' visit in New Bedford and Danielson.

Old Cluey Watson, the Mount Misery weather prophet has come into his own and stands to the fore. Cluey's mother was an Ojibway squaw and his father was a Canadian trapper. He was born in Oldtown, Maine. He has laid sort of low in face of the mild winter caterpillar prophets. Now he has trapped a skunk, with dark, blue hair on its breast bone. He says "that settles it, one snow will follow for the next two months, just as it has for the last 10 days." Ojibs don't generally hand out and single cylinder stuff. Men that know his skill say "Watch out."

Hetherington; vice president, Miss Lucy Wilcox; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Rana Barber, and Rev. W. D. Hetherington as corresponding secretary. The committees will soon be appointed. The society has been a help to the church, and its reports indicate progress and success.

The Baptist church at its annual meeting heard the reports of its pastor and officials. They showed the condition of affairs. Progress was made, and the treasurer holds a balance to the credit of the church. W. W. Bentley, treasurer, and W. H. Thompson, janitor, were re-elected. Nelson Stark was elected clerk. Mrs. W. H. Thompson retiring against the wish of the church. Alpheus Nye was re-elected collector. George A. Kahn was elected auditor.

The annual Sunday school meeting showed a work of encouragement. The home department under Mrs. Rana Barber has shown advancement. The cradle roll under Mrs Nelson Stark is doing a good work. The Sunday school seems to be growing in influence and numbers. Its officers and teachers have been faithful and the scholars have been ready in their response. The balance is in favor of the school. The Ladies' Benevolent union had one of its most prosperous years. They had given for the church $100, and many acts of kindness at different times marked its usefulness during the year. Thompson, who has been president for two years and so ably conducted its affairs, refused to serve longer as she did not wish to monopolize the office. Mrs. N. L. Stark was elected to fill her place. Mrs. W. H. Thompson was elected vice president; Mrs. W. D. Hetherington, secretary; Mrs. Alpheus Nye, treasurer.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Jan. 13.—Pool operations in special stocks induced by the huge sums of money available for loaning purposes at low rates again furnished the basis for most of the gains in today's stock market. Except for some scattered buying in the rubber, motor and oil groups, the standard shares generally moved irregularly within narrow limits.

The apparently peaceful effect of the French invasion of the Ruhr served to lessen the restraint to which the market has been subjected since the failure of the recent premiers' conference to reach reparations agreement, the day's sales running over a million shares for the first time this week. Public interest in the market has increased but the volume of this outside trading is still a relatively negligible factor.

California Petroleum again led the oil shares, establishing another new record price for all time at 32 1-2 but dropping back to 31 1-2, where it was up 1 5-8 on the day. Standard Oil of California moved up 1 1-8; New Jersey 7-8; Houston, 2, and Tidewater, 5 5-8, while Associated Oil broke 5 points on a turnover of less than 5,000 shares.

The rapid recovery of Delaware & Hudson on the overnight announcement of President Loree that the $9 annual dividend rate would be maintained was the feature of the railroad list. The stock, which had fallen to 103 yesterday on rumors that the dividend was in danger, snapped back to 113 today, closing at 112 7-8, or 7 3-8 points above yesterday's close. Lackawanna climbed 3 1-4 points and Lehigh Valley, 1 2-4, but the other standard issues showed few material changes. New Haven sold as low as 18 5-8, closing at 19, or 1 1-4 below yesterday's final quotation.

Another increase in crude rubber prices to above 32 cents a pound resulted in some active buying of those shares, U. S. Rubber advancing 3 1-4 points and Kelly-Springfield, Ajax, Lee and Goodrich Preferred, 1 to 2 points. Studebaker was again active, touching 127 5-8 and then falling back to 116, or up 1 3-8 on the day, buying of the stock being influenced by the report that the company was making plans for the construction of 35,000 cars during the first quarter of this year. Chandler moved up 1 1-4 and Stewart Warner Speedometer, 1 5-8.

Reports of high earnings were reasonable for the activity in some of the chain store issues, Associated Dry Goods jumping 5 1-2 points and May Department Stores, 1 5-8. Speculative expectation of an early announcement of a 20-per cent. stock dividend was reflected in a 3 1-8 point gain in Endicott-Johnson.

U. S. Steel was unchanged on the day, but some of the independent shares, notably Gulf States, Crucible and Republic, advanced 1 to 2 points on the belief that the large volume of new business is likely to result in higher prices and more profitable operations. American Brake Shoe, Barnet Leather and Steel & Tube Preferred, all up 3 to 5 points, were some of the other strong spots, buying of the last named being influenced by reports of an early retirement of the stock last 110.

Call money opened at 4 per cent but softened later to 3 1-2, which rate was maintained until the close. Most of the 45 and 90 day time loans are made on a 4 1-2 per cent basis with the longer maturities commanding 4 3-4.

Demand sterling got as high as $4.67 7-8, or within 1-8 cents of the recent high level, but eased off later to $4.67 5-16. French francs again rose above the 7.00 cent mark. Other rates were irregular.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 13.—Award of the $50,000,000 Cuban 5 1-2 per cent bond issue to a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Company with a bid of 96.77, or more than 3 points above its nearest competitor; marked strength of Brooklyn Rapid Transit securities; lower prices for U. S. government bonds and irregularly higher prices in the general list were the chief features of today's bond market.

The relatively high bid of the Morgan firm for the Cuban loan was construed as an indication of greatly improved conditions in that country and was reflected in a sharp 3 1-2 point gain in the old Cuban government 4 1-2 per cent bonds. Gains of 1 to 1 1-3 points were also registered by Dominican republic 5 1-2s, Queensland 7s, Zurich 8s and Mexican 5s while the French bonds improved fractionally. Serbian 8s dropped to 62 1-2, another new low record. United States of Brazil 7 1-2s touched 97 5-8, their highest price in over a year, and United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 duplicated their previous high record.

U. S. government bonds, with the exception of the new 4 1-4s which advanced 4 cents on $100, were reactionary. The first 4s dropped 36 cents and the third and fourth 4 1-4s, 16 cents each, while the other active issues registered losses of 6 to 10 cents.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit securities were active and stronger on the supposition that the reorganization plan was favorable to note and security holders. The 4s jumped 7 points, the 5s 5 1-2, and the certificate 5s, 6 1-2, while the 7s, certificate 7s and certificate 7s stamped gained 3 1-2 to 3 1-2 points. Other public utilities also were in good demand.

Chile Copper 7s and 8s each soared to new high records, the former gaining a point and the latter 3 1-2. International Cement 8s, which are convertible into Stock at 33 1-3, were pushed up 3 1-2 points, the stock closing today at 38 1-2. Winchester Arms, 7 1-2s, Republic Steel 5s and Union Tank 7s all moved up 1 to 1 1-2 points. Bethlehem Steel 5s, Remington Arms 6s and General Electric 5s each yielded a point.

A break of 2 points in New Haven 6s was founded on publication of statistics showing that not only had the road failed to earn fixed charges last year but that the profit and loss deficit had been run up to $46,000,000.

Rio Grande 4s dropped 2 1-4 points and Delaware & Hudson Convertible 5s, 1. St. Paul issues yielded fractionally. West Shore 4s, Seaboard Air Line Consolidated 6s and St. Louis & Iron Mountain 4s were among the few strong spots.

New offerings today were in excess of $30,000,000, the largest of which was the $17,500,000 issue of first mortgage collateral and refunding 30 year 5 1-2 per cent gold bonds, series C of the LaClede Gas Company, all of which were reported sold. They were offered at 96.45 to yield about 5.75 per cent. Good absorption also was reported of the early maturities of the $10,000,000 State of North Carolina 4 1-2 per cent bonds.

Total sales (par value) were $13,482,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Despite increasing complaints of dry weather in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska and notwithstanding that green bugs were reported in Texas, wheat underwent a setback in price today largely as a result of profit-taking sales. The close was unsettled, 3-8 to 1 7-8 net lower with May 1.19 to 1.19 1-8 and July 1.12 5-8 to 1.12 3-4. Corn lost 3-4@7-8c to 1 and oats 5-8 to 7-8c@1c. Provisions finished unchanged to 20c lower.

With no indications of any important export business going on, and with chances apparently waning that the invasion of Germany by France would lead to serious further military developments, holders of wheat showed a decided tendency to get rid of ownership risks, as to May wheat in particular. This disposition became evident at the outset and frequently thereafter, but was most pronounced in the last half hour of trading, when number two hard wheat was reported as being obtainable at the Eastern Seaboard 4 1-2c under the cost of May wheat in storage here.

July and September wheat displayed relative strength as compared with May, and at one time advanced slightly above yesterday's final quotations. The advance was due to commission house buying of nearly 1,000,000 bushels of July. This purchasing was generally assumed to be for shorts and to be caused by adverse crop conditions west and southwest. The effect, however, was more than offset later by the heavy liquidating sales of May and by some talk of delay in rural credits legislation.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. Cash deman dfor corn was said to be poor by contrast with what has been the rule of late.

Weakening of hog values eased the provision market.

NEGROES PROTEST ACTION OF PRESIDENT OF HARVARD

New York, Jan. 12—Publication of a letter by President Lowell of Harvard, defending the university's policy of refusing to permit negro students to room in freshmen dormitories, was followed today with a protest by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, asserting that Harvard "is putting into effect the program proclaimed by the infamous Ku Klux Klan and its apologists."

The association's protest came from the pen of its secretary, James Weldon Johnson, in which he referred to the letter written by President Lowell to Roscoe Conkling Bruce, prominent negro graduate, whose son has been excluded from the freshman dormitories. The protest, taking the form of a letter to President Lowell, said in part:

"One of the most liberalizing influences on the southern racial situation has been that the traditional stand of Harvard has afforded to southern white students the opportunity of coming to know as human beings their fellow colored students with whom they were associated. Deprive those southern students of their last opportunity to learn the otherness that comes of living with and understanding men of all races, men with whom they will have perforce to live and mingle in the United States, and Harvard University helps mightily to darken the future of the United States."

POLICE TARDY IN REPORTING SUICIDE OF REV. GORDON

New York, Jan. 12.—Medical Examiner Norris announced today that he intended to conduct an investigation into the tardiness of the police in notifying him of the suicide yesterday of Rev. Dr. Percy Gordon, former assistant rector of fashionable St. Bartholomew's church.

Dr. Norris indicated that on Monday he would call before him the manager of the Hotel Wolcott, where the clergyman was found, shot through the head, in the bathroom of his suite, the first patrolman who worked on the case, and his lieutenant.

According to the medical examiner, he was not notified until nearly five hours after death had occurred. Dr. Norris was unable to advance a motive for the suicide, asserting that he had turned over to the police, unopened, two letters found in the suite. One was addressed to Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of the Episcopal church which Dr. Gordon had served, and the other to the clergyman's son, George Gordon under-secretary at the American embassy in Paris.

Dr. Parks showed a decided disinclination to discuss the case. After he had denied himself to newspapermen, it was announced that he had gone away for a few days.

As mysterious as the motive leading to suicide was the cause of Dr. Gordon's recent resignation. None of the vestry would comment upon it, nor could anything be learned regarding a letter he was reported to have received in the lobby of the hotel shortly before he went to his suite and shot himself.

Dr. Gordon was separated from his wife for several years. She now was reported to be living in Florida.

Dr. Gordon's body was shipped to his old home in Savannah, Ga., tonight.

LEGISLATION FOR PROTECTION OF WOMEN IN INDUSTRY

Washington, Jan. 12.—While speakers at today's session of women's industrial conference generally agreed that special legislation was needed to safeguard women in industry, a difference of opinion was expressed as to whether it should take the form of protecting them, or of limiting in certain respect their activities in factories.

Ridiculing the theory that welfare legislation for women aggravates social differences between the sexes, Miss Mary Gibson of Cleveland declared that many women are forced to do home work before and after factory hours, and consequently shorter hours and better working conditions were a necessity for them. Her solution of the problem was to make the case of each employed woman a special one to be decided upon its merits.

Miss Sophonisba P. Breckenridge, assistant dean of women, University of Chicago, discussing "women's wages," declared that mothers with young children must be kept out of industry, and that they must be supported out of the husband's earnings.

In this connection she said that two schools of thought were developing—one that would provide adequate wages for married men who can and will work, and another that would provide disciplinary measures for married men who can and will not work.

Mrs. Maud Swarts, president of the National Women's Trade Union League, made a plea for adequate minimum wage laws for women.

Dr. R. A. Spaeth of Johns Hopkins University, urging exclusion of mothers with small children from industry, advocated better education among employed married women in birth control methods.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, executive secretary of the National Consumers' league, denounced industrial work done at home as a growing parasite upon American industry, and advocated minimum wage laws as a restrictive measure against the practice.

NOTED ARCTIC EXPLORER EXPLOITED OIL STOCKS

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 12.—The vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World is pressing for federa indictments against a noted Arctic explorer, whose name is not disclosed; through evidence of alleged wholesale frauds in Texas oil stock operations it was learned today from the executive committee in conference here. The evidence gathered by Edward Schwab, a former postal inspector, is in the hands of the federal grand jury at Fort Worth, Texas.

Nearly three hundred defunct oil stock concerns were "reorganized" by the explorer, it is charged, and he collected a twenty-five per cent bonus from the original stockholders.

The executive committee today urged all members to lend their advertising and sales management training to the churches in their respective communities as a means of spreading the gospel.

MISSIONS TO COOPERATE IN DEVELOPING MESOPOTAMIA

Bethlehem, Pa., Jan. 12.—Five missions, Presbyterian and Reformed, have decided to co-operate in developing Mesopotamia, Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York, announced today at the closing session of the foreign missions conference of North America. The speaker said this was a new departure in the missionary field and that the work would be started in the near future.

Most of the closing session was devoted to discussion of missions in Moslem countries. Dr. Ernest W. Riggs, a former missionary in Turkey, declared that as a result of alleged persecutions in Turkey none of the eight Christian colleges there were active, and that two-thirds of the trained native leaders and approximately ninety-five per cent of the students had been killed.

Bastard.—A proposal to buy a site suitable for the erection of a new armory, as submitted by a building committee of which Major Clifford D. Perkins is chairman, and a method of financing the building program, mentioned were unanimously accepted at a meeting of the Putnam Phalanx.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The year 1873 was evidently a wet year for some weather observer reported that it had either rained or snowed on 157 days during that year.

Other items of interest are taken from the files of the Bulletin as follows:

Monday, January 6, 1873—As Edward Murphy, shoemaker, was returning from supper in Preston, Friday night he was overtaken by a sleigh and double team, run over, and badly bruised. Murphy was walking in the middle of the road and as he is slightly deaf did not hear the sleigh approaching. The driver saw Murphy in the road and tried to stop but the grade was too great and Murphy was dragged about a rod.

In the new court house there are about 16,000 square yards of plastering to be done, the most of it in three coats. About one third of the plastering has been done and the rest will be finished as fast as the men can do the work.

The steamer City of Norwich succeeded in reaching Allyn's point yesterday, something that has been impossible for several days, the ice in the river closing it to all traffic far below that point.

William Tubbs while running a carriage up a staging yesterday fell and fractured his collar bone.

Tuesday, January 7, 1873—The fact was elicited at the meeting of the civil authorities Monday that the records of the town board of health, which were carefully kept for a number of years and covering a period of half a century were carried away from here by Dr. J. V. Wilson when he removed from Norwich. As the records constitute an important part of the town's public records every effort will be made to regain possession of the reports.

The freshet which was expected to reach this city Monday afternoon failed to appear in the Thames or its tributaries, though there is an abortive attempt at an ice gorge in the Shetucket.

An instance of superfine honesty has been found in the Norwich gentleman who recently found a horseshoe and advertised for the owner.

Capt. F. G. Bixby formerly of Putnam has been chosen adjutant of the First Massachusetts regiment—the crack regiment of the state.

In the annual report of the Thames National bank it is shown that the resources are $2,573,322.83. The capital is one million dollars, the surplus 225,000.

Wednesday, January 8, 1873—At the annual meeting of the Thames Towboat company the following men were elected directors—John Mitchell, Edward Chappell, David H. Seamon, Enoch F. Chapman and Jedediah Huntington.

The reception of Uncas Lodge, No. 111, I. O. O. F., last night was one of the most successful of the winter. The Philharmonic society furnished the music, and the hall was beautifully decorated in colors of the order.

An icicle, estimated to weigh nearly forty pounds dropped from the Rockwell building Tuesday fortunately at a time when no one was passing beneath.

Orders for pickerel may be left at the police station, a number of the officers having set out their tilts last night.

The Thames for a mile below the city was lively with skaters last evening, a number of ladies tripping the steel-clad toe without regard to the mercury or the weak puns inflicted on them regarding the steel winged feet of mercury.

Thursday, January 9, 1873—The annual meeting of the Norwich & Worcester railroad company was held Wednesday with President Smith presiding. The following directors were unanimously elected: A. F. Smith, J. F. Slater, F. H. Dewey, George H. Gill, Charles W. Smith, Robert Bayard, William F. Weld, B. F. Stevens and Edward L. Davis. At a subsequent meeting of the directors the officers were re-elected as follows—president Alba F. Smith treasurer, George L. Perkins, secretary, Edward T. Clapp.

It was reported that the net income of the road for the year had been $245,656.16 or 10 1-2 per cent. The debt of the road was reported as $771,603.36, and the assets, $1,103,693.34.

At the annual meeting of Independence Hose, No. 6 held Wednesday evening, Roscoe Huntington was elected foreman; William H. Frink, first assistant; Alex Drew, second assistant and A. W. Gibbs secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Butterfield instructor in music in the public schools, is about to establish a private class of singing in Grand Army hall.

The local freight on the New London Northern road going north ran off the track at South Willington, Wednesday the road being blocked for about an hour.

Friday, January 10, 1873—J. V. Wilson has written that he has made every possible search for the record book of the board of health but can not find it. He had it in his home in Norwich but when he moved away believed he might have sold it with other old books to a paper collector and thus the records are lost. The loss of the book will cause regret not only on the part of Mr. Wilson but also on the part of town officials as the records were important.

The veterans of the Hartford City guard held their annual meeting and festivities Wednesday night. Among the speeches made was one by General William A. Aiken of Norwich.

The court house clock was on time again last night after a long period of inactivity. The illuminating apparatus which is not altogether satisfactory is to be altered.

A class of instruction in light gymnastics is to be formed at Mrs. Platt's school, by Miss Juliet, who is an accomplished teacher herself.

Saturday, January 11, 1873—The band attached to the Wallace Sisters Troupe while making a tour of the city in a four horse sleigh yesterday, were upset in Greeneville near St. Mary's church. The passengers were uninjured but the sleigh, owned by E. H. Reynolds was somewhat damaged.

The report of the Massachusetts commissions of the sinking fund of the Norwich and Worcester railroad, gives as the amount of the fund on January 1, 1873 $337,447.11.

During the year ending on the 31st day of December, 1872, rain fell on 112 different days, viz; four in January, three in February, three in March, six in April, eleven in May, fourteen in June, fourteen in July, sixteen in August, eleven in September, fifteen in October, eleven in November and four in December. Within the same period there was thunder on 22 days.

The new badges for the fire-police have been received, and are a work of the art as well as beauty.

FEED IS BIG FACTOR IN EGG PRODUCTION

Almost everyone will admit without question that the health of a family depends upon the kind of food it receives, and to a considerable extent on the way in which this food is served.

Why poultrymen do not always apply this same knowledge to their flocks is a mystery. To get the best results out of a flock they must be supplied with food of good quality, the feed must be of the right kind and it must not be tainted in any way.

One safe way to insure this is avoid feeding perishable food in larger quantities than the fowls can consume at one feeding.

Tainted meat that is not fit for human food should not be fed to fowls. The taint is sometimes removed from such food by boiling it in water containing baking soda. Even then the poultryman is taking a chance with such food.

The heavy feeding of fowls for egg production should be carefully watched. This applies especially to pullets that are being forced in cold weather to produce as many high priced eggs as possible. Should any individual show signs of becoming over fat and threatening to break down it is a good plan to take this fowl out of the general pen and feed her in a separate place more lightly. In fact, the occurrence of several such hens in a flock may be a good warning that the poultryman is feeding them all too heavily and should slow up some. An over fat pullet makes no better a layer than an overfed hen and will soon become a drone.

An occasional tonic or appetizer such as a pint of air slaked lime to one quart of feed soaked in cold water over night is sometimes good. A tonic of this kind once a week will for a few weeks, especially during the fall and winter, tend to neutralize any poisonous matter that has accumulated in the system. It may also give the flock the lime that is so often lacking in their feed.

Many poultry raisers feel that an extensive and costly house is the only thing necessary to keep the flock going for profit, but more often than not the stock kept therein is no better than the average. Sometimes an owner is more proud of his house and surroundings than he is of his poultry. Although good houses are important for good stock, the keeping of the house in good condition is more important.

Furthermore, if farmers and poultry raisers in general would give half the time and attention to cleaning the'r poultry houses and the ground around them that they do to doctoring sick fowls with quack nostrums, they would have fewer sick fowls to doctor and would get much better results from their flocks.

A little prevention in feeding and care and management is worth more than all the doctoring that can be done after the trouble has been started.—Seth W. Shoemaker.

COW-TESTING ASSOCIATIONS TELL TRUTH TO DAIRYMEN

The study of production records of large cows, made possible by the work of the many cow-testing associations that have been organized in almost every part of the country, has brought out a grist of information on the possibilities of dairy-cow improvement and on the efficiency of various methods and practices. The records of many thousands of cows have been gone over in the last few years by the United States department of agriculture.

From the lowest-producing group of cows to the highest-producing group every jump of 50 pounds in annual butterfat production was accompanied by an increase of about $16 in income over cost of feed. The more fat produced, the bigger this income. A few heavy producers are better than a larger number of light yielders.

The average production of the 21,234 cows whose 12-month records have been studied was 6,077 pounds of milk and 248 pounds of butterfat, or about 50 per cent more than the average of all the dairy cows in this country. The records show that selection of animals and better methods of feeding raise average production rapidly during the first year or two that the cow-testing association is in operation, but the figures for subsequent years show small gains. This is proof enough that there is still much room for improvement in the breeding of cow-testing association cows.

Each year more farmers realize the value of the testing association as a basis for herd improvement. On July 1, 1922, there were in operation 513 associations, including 12,458 herds and 215,321 cows, as compared with 452 associations the previous year. Wisconsin and Minnesota, two of the greatest dairy states, showed great gains in testing associations. During the year the number in Wisconsin grew from 103 to 137, and in Minnesota from 33 to 37.

PLAN TO IMPROVE QUALITY OF APPLES

One county agent announces that in cooperation with the leading fruit growers and the fruit specialist at Massachusetts Agricultural College, an intensive campaign in Hampden county, that state, will be undertaken next year for the production of better quality apples. The aim will be to bring this about mainly through additional spraying. Five or six summer or foliage sprays are advocated in the new spray calendar which is to be issued from the league office soon after Jan. 1. It has been shown by demonstrations in the county this year and experiments and demonstrations carried on elsewhere in Massachusetts and New England, that it is thoroughly practical to produce a crop of apples as high as 98 per cent perfect.

The new spray calendar will be mailed to all fruit growers on the league's mailing list and additional copies will be mailed to all others who request it. A new feature this year will be advice to broadcast fertilizer under the trees in a wide circle at the time of the swelling of buds, that is, two or three weeks before blossoming. The fertilizer advocated is nitrate of soda 225 lbs. at the rate of five pounds for large bearing trees. This early application of nitrate of soda has been proved to help materially of the setting of fruit and to produce heavy and regular bearing in apple trees. Poultry manure or suinha of ammonium may be substituted for nitrate of soda, but the action of stable manure is too slow to produce as good results.

"PROFITABLE PIGS NEVER STOP GROWING"—SLOGAN

In an exhibit entitled "Pork Production," shown by the United States Department of Agriculture at the International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, December 2 to 9, the department says the essential points for raising swine economically.

Good breeding stock, proper mating and careful feeding of the brood sows are all important, but a point in pig raising that should receive more attention, because it is often neglected is the necessity of keeping the young pigs growing continuously from the moment of birth to maturity.

Even before the pigs are weaned they should have access to corn in self-feeders as a supplement to the sow's milk. As soon as they are weaned the pigs should be kept on full feed, either by self-feeder or by hand. Approved types of self-feeders, hayracks, troughs, and watering fountains are shown in the exhibit. Proper feeds and exercise furnished to vigorous pigs of proper type result in hogs of market weight at about 8 months of age.

"The profitable pig is the one that never stops growing from farrowing to market" is a good slogan for every hog raiser.

WEEVILS IN PEAS AND BEANS CAN BE PREVENTED BY CARE

If farmers will plant weevil-free seeds, harvest beans, peas and cowpeas as soon as possible, treat the crop to kill weevils and store it where weevils can be protected from reinfestation by weevils spreading from infested seeds, a large part of the loss from these insects can be prevented according to Farmers' Bulletin 1232. Weevils in Beans and Peas, by E. A. Back, entomologist, just issued by the United States department of agriculture. Copies may be obtained upon application to the department at Washington, D. C.

These weevils, which never attack corn and wheat, and but rarely infest velvet beans, soy beans or vetches, are particularly injurious because they can breed generation after generation in dried seeds in storage. During the hottest summer weather one generation requires only 18 to 20 days for development. The average total number of eggs laid by an individual during her life is about 100. Infested seeds in bulk usually heat—thus producing temperature and moisture conditions most favorable for the rapid development and vigorous breeding of weevils.

The belief that adult weevils have "developed from the germ" inside the seed is erroneous. The small round holes often observed in seeds are made by the grubs of the weevil which upon hatching from eggs laid in or on the pods, burrow into the seeds by gnawing a hole no larger than a pin prick. Later the adults emerge from the seeds.

Infestations in beans and peas can be quickly and effectively stamped out by fumigation with carbon disulphid, carbon tetrach lorid, or hydrocyanic gas, and by means of heat or cold storage. Weevils can be prevented from breeding in storage by mixing dust or air-slaked lime with the seeds. Concerted action by a community of growers has been known greatly to reduce weevil infestations and is recommended unreservedly for consideration in commercial bean-growing areas.

Watertown.—The road to Guernseytown is in almost impassable condition, the snow having drifted to such an extent that the regular road is completely closed and the only way out is a detour through the fields.

KIDNEY TROUBLE CAUSES LAMENESS.

"A lameness followed me for some time, and I felt that it was caused from kidney trouble. One bottle of Foley Kidney Pills had the desired effect," writes H. H. Arbuckle, South Barre, Vermont. Backache, rheumatism, dull headache, too frequent or burning urination are symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. Disordered kidneys require prompt treatment. TAFTVILLE

Arrangements are beginning to be made for the annual banquet which is to become one of the game feasts of the week now out disappear soon. In the words of the snow goose as though it has come to stay and the ground is covered with the under growth the leaders of men it appears that it will be a struggle for existence for many some years. More than one year ago there was a big case of birds as they were unable to find food. Many people are taking to the woods at this season of the year and help them out. Henry Pelletier has resigned his position in the Norwich weaving department of the Ponemah company.

One of the new fake stock and bond schemes which have been practiced in the vicinity came to light Wednesday, when it became known that some of the town residents had been approached by a stranger from New York who was offering for sale bonds of the Warsaw Potash Syndicate. Warsaw was one of the royal cities of Poland and not until beautiful parks and auto buildings and the stranger assured the purchasers of the bonds that peaceful contracts had been let for rail and trolley service, telegraph and telephone lines. It was not at all averse to accepting liberty bonds in payment of the bonds. Since he disappeared, no other scheme has been forthcoming and the bondholders content themselves swinging another coupon that took a large amount of money from local Polish people was a tailoring company, which was organized to furnish uniforms to the Polish army. Whether the company got the contract for the uniforms or not, has not been learned, but it is certain that they sold a lot of nice looking stock claiming that the purpose of the issue was to enlarge their buildings to take care of increased business.

The Weavers' union met Friday evening in the St. Louis hall on Dion street.

Miss Mary Ann Yates of Norwich avenue, who has been ill for a short time, was taken to Backus hospital, Friday.

After being ill for some time with sugar diabetes, Henry Cartier, aged 3, son of William and Rosanna Beaudoin Cartier, died Tuesday at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beaudoin of Providence street. Everything possible was done for the little fellow, but he grew weaker each day. The sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Cartier in their loss.

REV. JOSEPH SILVERMAN

KEREN HAYESOD LEADER WRITES TO NORWICH COMMITTEE

Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El of New York city, who is considered the leading reform rabbi in the United States, and who will be the principal speaker here on Sunday, Jan. 21, at the Community house at the meeting which is given by the Palestine Foundation Fund (Keren Hayesod) has written to the Norwich committee as follows: "I am coming to Norwich on January 21 in order to be of service to what I consider the greatest undertaking on which the Jews of the world have embarked in modern times, namely: the re-establishment of the Jewish Homeland in Palestine as a place of refuge for our stricken people in the lands of eastern Europe, and as a source of Jewish religious and spiritual revival.

"Without committing ourselves to any theory of Jewish nationality, we may heartily endorse the necessity and the value of redeeming Palestine, the cradle of Judaism, the Bible land of Israel, from the ruins and ignominy into which it has fallen in the past two thousand years. The world stands ready to right the wrong of two thousand years ago when Israel was ruthlessly expelled from Palestine. The World has given the Jews the opportunity of restoring their ancient patrimony and of making Palestine again a center for religion, learning and civilization. Can we stand aside and say we will have no part in such restoration?

"It is high time that the many differences in theories, beliefs, and practices that obtain in Jewry to laid aside; and that all classes and groups unite upon the main proposition, of making Palestine a home land for Jews and a center for its religion and culture."

Dr. Joseph Silverman was born in Cincinnati, August 26, 1860. He was graduated from the University of Cincinnati in 1882, and got the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Hebrew Union college in 1887. He was called to the leadership of Temple Emanu-El of New York in 1888, and remained in this position until his recent election for life as Rabbi Emeritus. Dr. Silverman has been associated with a large number of communal activities and uplift movements, both Jewish and general. Dr. Silverman was president of the Eastern Council of Reform Rabbis from 1917 to 1919. He has written on many subjects of a theological and general Jewish character, and is the author of the article on "Reform Judaism in America" in the Encyclopedia Americana. He also wrote on "The Principles of Judaism" in Nelson's Loose Leaf Encyclopedia, and was a consulting editor of the Jewish Encyclopedia.

Though holding the title of Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Emanu-El, he has by no means retired from the ministry, but is still active in his own Temple, preaching occasionally on Sabbaths and holidays, and lecturing at all the Sunday services, and performing other duties. As president of the Emanu-El Brotherhood, as a member of the National Civic Federation, and in various other capacities especially in Masonic and B'nai B'rith circles, he is still very active. He is heart and soul in the movement for the restoration of Palestine and hopes to see Palestine a member of the League of Nations.

Dr. Silverman's interest in the restoration of the Jewish Homeland came to him late in his life, but he has already achieved a commanding position in the government through his addresses, in which he emphasizes the promise of spiritual regeneration which the Jewish restoration contains both for the Jews and the world at large, and through his work on behalf of the Palestine Foundation Fund (Keren Hayesod).

GIVES WARNING IN PRESENT SNOW CONDITIONS

Chief Howard L. Stanton has given warning to the residents of Norwich to use extreme care in their homes and places of business to prevent any possible chance of fire. In making the warning public Chief Stanton calls the attention of the public to the road conditions. Deep snow covers the city and many locations at present would be difficult to reach at present in time to prevent a fire gaining a good headway and causing much damage or perhaps total destruction before the apparatus could be sent out and water turned on.

Conditions this year are even worse than those of several years ago when snow piled deep throughout the city. Then coal was used almost entirely, being of anthracite. This year with the scarcity of coal, many families are burning wood, or almost any kind of fuel, some highly inflammable.

Every person should have 139 the central fire station telephone call written where it can quickly be seen in case of fire and the minute fire is discovered either call this number by telephone or better yet ring in the alarm. Another factor is the hydrant, and house owners would be using good sense if the hydrant near their house was cleared of snow and space made for the apparatus to run up to the hydrant in case of a fire.

The firemen are on the alert and the department ready to serve to the best of its ability but a great deal depends on the work of the people to prevent any conflagration that in these days of difficult travel for the fire apparatus would spell disaster to many a home. Chief Stanton urges care to prevent fire, but wants the people to remember to get in the alarm first thing if a fire should start. The whole matter is up to the citizens themselves.

RUBY WEDDING ANNIVERSARY FOR CANTERBURY COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Gosselin of Canterbury, formerly of New Haven, were very pleasantly surprised New Years eve at their present home. It was the fortieth anniversary of their marriage. They were settled down for a quiet evening when about 8.30 a number of friends came to the door and surprised them. All friends were heartily welcomed.

The evening was spent in entertaining the guests with music vocal selections and recitations by Mr. Goodrich, vocal and piano selections by Miss G. A. Gosselin, witty remarks and jokes by H. Ragain of Bridgeport, whistling selections by L. Holbourg, vocal by A. Lachapelle were on the programme. Violin selections by Master Arthur Dusenbury, a remarkable and gifted violinist, whose birthday anniversary was also on New Year's eve, were features and there was quartette singing by the Graff brothers and others.

M. J. Gosselin was called upon to render some new old fashioned melodies, which were greatly enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served and each guest received a generous slice of the large and beautiful wedding cake which was made by Mrs. Louis Lachapelle, sister of Mrs. Gosselin.

Other gifts were a lovely fruit dish and greeting card, by Miss F. Olney, a beautiful cake with trimmings of red jelly, an excellent imitation of large rubies made by Mrs. H. Neff. A box of oranges was given by Mrs. Gosselin's youngest daughter, Eva, also a gold lavallier pendant set with rubies for mother, and a gold ruby set scarf pin for father was given by the youngest daughter. Other gifts were a beautiful silver flowered crystal bon-bon basket from F. I. Sackett, solid silver cuff links for Mr. Gosselin and an eight pieces silverware ten set for Mrs. Gosselin by Mrs. J. Olson of New Haven, a beautiful pair of gold ear rings set with rubies for mother and silver match box for father was given by their son, Leonard. A solid silver thimble and poppies, with gold decorated cake plate in ruby colored gift box for mother and lovely shaving mug in gift box for father, by their oldest daughter, Goldie. L. Holbourg's gift for both was a handsome forty-eight piece dinner set decorated with bluebirds and apple blossoms.

The rooms were prettily decorated with evergreens, wreaths and laurel.

The New Year was ushered in by an old fashioned dance.

Congratulations and greetings for the New Year were exchanged as the guests departed for their homes.

SEEKING "SONS OF NORWICH" WHO LIVE IN NEW YORK

The dinner will be a particularly enjoyable and memorable affair and the Society wants no one to miss it.

The Bulletin is glad to aid the Norwich Society of New York and will print once a week between now and the dinner a list of all names and addresses sent to it of former Norwich residents now resident in New York and vicinity.

SPEAKS ON WORK OF TRAVELER'S AID SOCIETY

An interesting open meeting was held Friday afternoon at the Community House under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church, at which the members and their friends heard a most interesting talk on the work of the Travelers' Aid Society in New York City, by Miss Faith Wilcox of Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Miss Wilcox told of the many aids extended by the Travellers' Aid society and with a few stories to illustrate her point brought the subject home to her audience.

"Some people think", said Miss Wilcox, "that the Travellers' Aid society works mostly for runaway girls. This is not so for the work is far more reaching than this, and includes aid to children, girls and old people, either men or women.

Not long ago, she said, we had in charge two small children and when they left our care to return to their homes they wrote their experiences and left them to be read by other runaway girls whom we might find in New York. Their story told of starving, not being able to find work, and ended by telling of being found by the Travellers' Aid society and cared for until sent home. Their message to other girls who might think of leaving home was: "If you've got a home, for God's sake stay there".

In our work in New York we also have child cases. We have found that many children are sent out alone by their parents to distant points. These children reach New York and there have to change trains. They become lost and we find them, and take them to the trains and see that they reach their destination. Letters to mothers of these children often disclose the fact that the mother in sending the child really believed that when she placed her child on the train at home, the conductor would see that the child reached its destination, not knowing that the home train went only to New York.

We had a case just before Christmas of a child that was sent to her grandmother in Berlin, Conn. The grandmother was supposedly notified to meet the child at Grand Central Station, but did not arrive. We found the child and telegraphed to the grandmother and found that she knew nothing of the child's coming to spend Christmas. Asking the child if her mother had written to her grandmother we received the reply: "Of course grandma knew I was coming. I mailed that letter to her but before I got on the train at home."

Child cases are not all, we recently had an old Civil War veteran, blind come to Grand Central Station. His wife had recently died and he came to New York because he did not know what else to do. Within three days he was in the Old Soldiers Home in Virginia, under care assured.

Our duties also include planned work. Someone writes us that they are coming and we aid them while in New York see that they reach their boat, that their goods pass through the customs house, find work for them, good boarding places, recreation and friends. This is only a part of the vast work undertaken by the Travellers' Aid society, but it gives an idea of what we are trying to do for the thousands of people who come into New York weekly and find themselves lost in the rush of that big busy city.

Following the talk by Miss Wilcox a social hour was enjoyed, during which a reception was held to give the members and their friends opportunity to meet Miss Wilcox. Refreshments were served, ending a most enjoyable and successful meeting.

PARK CHURCH MISSIONS DEPARTMENT HELD MEETINGS

At the meeting of the mission department of Park Congregational church which was held on Friday afternoon, those present responded to the roll call with a verse of Scripture, after which Mrs. Allan Latham offered prayer. Mrs. Nelson Mc. and Mrs. Fielding from the Chandler Normal school were read by Mrs. George D. Colt and Mrs. William B. Birge.

Announcements were made of the meeting of the McCall Mission to be held in the Parish House next Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Berry will be present and speak about the 50th anniversary of the founding of mission.

As one method of raising money to meet the appointment, holiday calendars were distributed.

Announcements were made of a food sale and it was voted to hold a utility sale the last of March.

Miss Hannah Crowel gave an entertaining review of the study book missions entitled Building With India, by Daniel Johnson Fleming. A resume of the modern methods of carrying Christianity to India and different societies were mentioned which have been established for the betterment of the people. From one-third to one-half of the money given for missions is expended for educational work and some idea of what we are doing may be gained from the statement that 34 colleges, 740 secondary schools, 91 industrial schools and 12,000 of elementary grades have already been established.

Miss Crowell mentioned having heard Dr. Vail, a missionary physician, commend the spendid work which had been accomplished at Madeira, by the late Rev. Dr. Zumbro and Mrs. Zumbro, and added that Norwich might feel a just pride in having had such splendid representatives in the field.

SAYS STATES SHOULD BACK 18TH AMENDMENT ENFORCEMENT

The Men's Club of Park Congregational church held its regular meeting Friday evening in the Osgood Memorial parish hall, with a good attendance. The president, Allan Latham, presided and routine business was transacted. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. George H. Coffin, Jr., of Hartford, his topic being The Creed of America. Dr. Coffin told of the action of the federal government in 1861 when some states believed that state rights were supreme over federal laws, and said that with the 18th amendment the various states in the Union should get back of the law and see that it is enforced.

Following the meeting light refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

Trolley Hit Sleigh at Yantic.

There was a slight accident just above the Yantic bridge Friday evening when the 7 o'clock trolley from Franklin square for Yantic sideswiped a sleigh in which a party of girls from the Falls were taking a ride. The motorman swinging around the curve saw some men walking on the tracks ahead and blew the whistle to warn of the approach of the trolley. Watching to see that the men left the track, he failed to see a sleigh just ahead running close to the tracks until it was too late to stop. He applied the brakes and sideswiped the sleigh, doing little damage. The trolley suffered a broken glass in the rear door and the sleigh was slightly damaged but was driven back to the city. The girls were taken aboard the trolley and brought back to the city.

Perhaps nothing makes a girl so angry as the thought that a young man thinks she would not resent being kissed.

"Since taking Tanlac I am a new and different person. I eat anything I want, my nerves are perfectly calm, and I sleep like a child every night. Words can't express my gratitude to Tanlac."

POETRY

FREEDOM ON THE HEIGHTS

Of old sat Freedom on the heights,
The thunders breaking at her feet;
Above her shook the starry lights,
She heard the torrents meet.

There in her place she did rejoice,
Self-gathered in her prophet-mind,
But fragments of her mighty voice
Came rolling on the wind.

Then stepped she down through town and field
To mingle with the human race,
And part by part to men revealed
Her fullness of her face—

Grave mother of majestic works,
From her isle-altar gazing down,
Who, godlike, grasps her triple-forks,
And, kinglike, wears the crown.

Her open eyes desire the truth.
The wisdom of a thousand years
Is in them. May perpetual youth
Keep dry their light from tears;

That her fair form may stand and shine,
Make bright our days and light our dreams,
Turning to scorn with lips divine
The falsehood of extremes.

—Tennyson.

MUSIC

Let me go where'er I will,
I hear a sky-born music still:
It sounds from all things old,
It sounds from all things young,
From all that's fair, from all that's foul,
Peals out a cheerful song.

It is not only in the rose,
It is not only in the bird,
Not only where the rainbow glows,
Nor in the song of woman heard,
But in the darkest, meanest things
There alway, alway something sings.

'Tis not in the high stars alone
Nor in the cup of budding flowers
Nor in the red-breast's mellow tone,
Nor in the hum of insect swarms
But in the mud and scum of things
There always, always something sings.

GERMANY IS TO SUSPEND ITS PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS

Reparations Commission Has Received a Note From the German Government—Germany Considers the Occupation of the Ruhr a Violation of the Versailles Treaty—French May Move Into the Center of the Stinness Industries as a Coercive Measure—Sunday Passed Quietly in German Territory Occupied by the French—Great Demonstrations Were Held in Berlin as a Protest Against French Occupation of the Ruhr District.

Paris, Jan. 14—(By the A. P.)—The reparations commission has received a note from the German government signifying its intention to suspend payments of money and in kind because of the occupation of the Ruhr, which it says it considers a violation of the Versailles treaty.

FRENCH TO MOVE TO CENTER OF STINNESS INDUSTRIES

Dusseldorf, Jan. 14—(By The A. P.)—Bochum, the great center of the Stinness industries will be occupied a few days hence, the French have decided unless the German government undergoes a change of heart and abandons its policy of interference and opposition, which the French consider it has been following for the past week. The French authorities do not announce the date of the advance, but make no secret of the fact that they have decided to extend the occupation further eastward for the purpose of coercing Germany into paying the Ruhr industrials for coal reparations deliveries and as penalties for what they term the willful failure of Berlin to fulfil its undertakings.

Concerning coal deliveries, which the Ruhr industrials have agreed to resume, France undertakes to pay the cost of labor and the salaries of the employes and miners; only the owners must look to Berlin for other than overhead expenses and the items which make the price of the coal deliveries F. O. B. at the French frontier.

The French are prepared to assist the owners in collecting from Berlin to the extent of occupation of the Bochum region and also further territory eastward later, should Germany fail to come to terms. They will pay the miners' salaries from the proceeds of the tax on coal, formerly assessed by the Reich government, which the French have decided to collect for themselves. They still levy a tax on every ton of coal shipped from the Ruhr into Germany, Bavaria and neutral countries. The percentage representing the tax has not yet been fixed. No tax will be assessed on coal shipped to the allied countries.

The occupation of Bochum also is intended as a penalty for what the French consider the wilful depletion by the Germans of food stocks, especially cereals, always kept in the Ruhr for feeding the industrial population, which the French assert they have found at such a low ebb that arrangements must be made immediately to import wheat and other foodstuffs into this area.

Above all the French are desirous of warding off unemployment and famine, if such conditions arise they would be certain to cause much trouble, but they can be kept away if labor has work and food.

The problem of currency is giving the French much concern, as Berlin is no longer sending paper marks into the Ruhr occupied area, and the present supply will become inadequate very soon. Experts are studying a plan whereby special Ruhr paper notes, guaranteed by the mines, plants and other real estate security in the Ruhr valley would be issued and would be accepted as currency in the Ruhr valley. The Krupp and Thyssen works yesterday withdrew from the Essen banks two million marks for their payrolls. they were informed that the banks would be unable to supply them similarly next week, thus forcing the French to resort to the issuance of special currency.

GERMANS PLACED ORDERS FOR ENGLISH COAL

Berlin, Jan. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Anticipating French occupation of the Ruhr region, German industrial and manufacturing interests ten days ago began placing orders for English coal and the coming week will see a still further increase in the purchases of foreign coal.

Evidence of this was supplied in the late official trading in foreign money Saturday, when the dollar touched 110,900 marks. Bourse circles are predicting a further rise Monday.

The present orders for English coal are viewed as emergency purchases as there still is a pronounced feeling in industrial circles that the Ruhr situation will result in some arrangement by which the normal output will be definitely safeguarded. There seems to be a strong belief that the French hardly will risk the labor trouble which would inevitably result from a closing down of the mines.

"In another day or so the French probably will take an hour off to figure out just where the present game is worth the candle" said one of the leading German industrialists today. "As French industry is seriously in need of coke, this product can be vouchsafed only through the unobstructed operation of the Ruhr plants."

The leader said he was voicing the sentiment prevailing among the German leaders of industry, who apparently still hope the French either will evacuate the Ruhr area or permit the Germans to remain in full control.

"The French are making desperate efforts to win over the mine workers in the Ruhr, says a special despatch to Vorwaerts, the socialist organ, which reports that army secret agents and officers in civilian attire are approaching the workers with promises of improved living conditions and other emoluments. The same conciliatory attitude, however, is not being shown the operators and mine owners. The correspondent of Vorwaerts declares. He interprets the opposing methods as an indication of French embarrassment, due to realization of the vastly different economic and technical conditions confronting them in the Ruhr from those with which they had to deal in the Saar basin and Upper Silesia.

Labor leaders in Berlin are more concerned over the question of how long France will agree to pay cash down for the million or more tons of coal per month which heretofore have been supplied her on the reparations account without any monetary equivalent. It is roughly estimated that it will require 100,000,000 French francs to pay for the previous monthly quota, and unless France agrees to the plan of cash payments discussed at Saturday's meeting with the operators the mine owners the latter declare there is no alternative left them but to shut down all their plants, as they are not in a position to meet their payrolls.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF PROTEST THROUGHOUT GERMANY

Berlin, Jan. 14—(By The A. P.)—Great demonstrations of protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr took place today. There were no untoward incidents.

There were striking displays of patriotic fervor. Bright, but frosty, weather prevailed.

The principal meeting, called by the non-socialist parties, was held on the Koeningsplatz, opposite the Reichstag. This proved to be the most imposing manifestation in Berlin. Before noon an immense crowd had assembled about the great monument to "Victory" erected after the Franco-Prussian war. Flags were half-masted on government buildings and for the first time since the republic was established the republican colors were prominently displayed at many of the fashionable hotels.

The crowd was composed of middle class people, dressed in their Sunday best. The speeches were punctuated with proletarian enthusiasm. "Wacht Am Rhine" and "Deutschland Uber Allies" were repeatedly sung, amid cries of "Down With France."

Chancellor Cuno had been invited to attend the Koenigsplatz demonstration, but he excused himself by pleading pressure of business.

The gathering dispersed in orderly fashion, singing patriotic songs.

SOVIET RUSSIA PROTESTS OCCUPATION OF THE RUHR

Moscow, Jan. 14—(By the A. P.)—Russia's first official pronouncement on the occupation of the Ruhr by the French was made by the all-Russian central executive committee tonight, in the form of a message addressed to "all the peoples of the world" It sharply protests against the action of France and her allies and calls attention to its belief that war threatens, but makes no statement of what Russia's attitude would be if war ensued.

Declaring that the army of imperialistic France has invaded the industrial heart of Germany, the manifesto asserts: "in this critical moment labor and peasant Russia cannot remain silent."

It charges that France has gone even beyond "shameful Versailles," and that England, Italy and Japan, by washing their hands, or only feebly protesting, are equally guilty of breaking the sovereignty of the German people and trampling upon their rights of self-determination.

STRANGLED TO DEATH BY WHEEL OF HIS AUTOMOBILE

Winsted, Conn., Jan. 14—Strangled to death by the rear wheel of his automobile which slipped from a jack, George Hungerford, of this town, was found pinned by his neck between the wheel and the side of his garage by a neighbor today. Medical Examiner William S. Hulbert, reported that the weight of the car had fractured several vertebrae in the man's neck.

Hungerford had jacked up the rear of his car and had raised the front on blocks. He was lying on his side next to the garage wall and was reaching under the car to release one of the jacks when the front blocks toppled. The rear of the car slipped from its jacks and lurched over, the wheel falling on Hungerford's neck and pinning him to the wall.

Hungerford leaves his widow, two sisters and two brothers, one of them is Judge William Hungerford, of Naugatuck.

"OUTLAW" STRIKES DELAY THE MINING OF COAL

New York, Jan. 14—The general committee of anthracite operators today made public a statement declaring that "with an indicated shortage of approximately 40 per cent. in the supply of anthracite, there has been a further heavy loss of production due to 'outlaw strikes' since September 11, when the mines reopened."

"According to a compilation by the anthracite bureau of information," the statement adds, "the operations of thirteen companies were shut down for a total of 56 days between September 11 and December 15, and more than 18,500 men were involved in the the suspensions."

The statement places the total loss of production in this period at 37,665 tons as a result of delays caused by various labor defficulties.

NEW TREASURY OFFERING OVERSUBSCRIBED $200,000,000

Washington, Jan. 14.—The recent treasury offering of $300,000,000 in 4 1-2 per cent. treasury notes, maturing December 15, 1927, has been oversubscribed by about $200,000,000, according to an announcement tonight by Secretary Mellon.

The usual first-of-the-year reinvestment demands appear to have accounted for the heavy oversubscription but figures available showed, it was said that the bulk of the amount offered had been taken by smaller investors. Approximately $235,000,000 originally offered was covered in subscriptions of less than $100,000 which is unusual in the sale of such securities, according to officials.

Although the subscription books closed last night, the treasury announcement said that unregistered war saving certificates of the 1918 series and four per cent. victory notes, three-quarters per cent victory notes, maturing in May, still will be accepted in exchange for the new notes up to the close of business tomorrow. This time limit includes exchange subscriptions actually in the mails at that time.

By the flotation of the 1927 notes at this time, the treasury will not be required to issue new securities in any form for several months, it is believed. Heavy exchanges in both 1918 war savings certificates and Victory notes into this issue of notes and previous short term securities permit sufficient balances to remain in the treasury to meet current requirements for cash in running the government.

FATALITIES AND DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE STORM

New York, Jan. 14.—Warm winds from the southwest late today turned into rain a heavy snowstorm that began covering the city this morning, and tonight the streets were rivers of slush with 6,000 shovellers and hundreds of motor trucks striving to clear the way.

The weather bureau issued a storm warning to ships, predicting gales off the coast from the Virginia Capes to Eastport, Maine, by Monday morning. In the lists of two passenger steamers which started today were entered the names of two seamen, killed by great waves in recent storms.

James Jenett, was buried at sea today, before the United Fruit Company's Lenor Tenna, on which he was steward, reached port from Costa Rica and Havana. The other, Boatswains Mate Maloney, was buried at Bremen near Christmas time. His ship was the America, of the United States Line from Southampton and Cherbourg.

Just off Cape Hatteras yesterday morning, Jenette was caught in a gigantic wave. It tossed him against the anchor winch, killing him instantly.

Maloney met death on the eastbound voyage in the same way. A wave swirled him about a tangle of lifeboats. When the water washed back, Maloney was crippled on the deck. He died in the ship's hospital.

FARM CREDITS COME BEFORE SENATE TODAY

Washington, Jan. 14.—Farm credits legislation comes to the fore tomorrow in the senate with prospects of indefinite discussion.

With two bills—the Capper and the Lenfoot-Anderson measure—on the program, the former is to be taken up first with general support promised. Strong opposition for the Lenroot-Anderson bill, because of its government aid plan, is predicted.

The administration shipping bill will give way to the farm credits bills. Technically, however, the shipping measure will be held before the senate as its "unfinished business" but it is planned by unanimous consent to lay it aside daily for consideration of the agricultural proposals.

This parliamentary plan has been agreed upon by administration leaders to safeguard the shipping bill's position, but indications are that it will not be discussed again for several weeks. Its opponents still are determined to prevent a vote before adjournment of congress, but administration leaders likewise are determined to press the bill vigorously after disposal of the farm credits and appropriation bills.

Chairman McLean, of the senate banking committee, which reported the two revised farm credits bills, is expected to open the agricultural relief debate tomorrow.

SUIT AGAINST GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER CO.

Akron, O., Jan. 14.—Suit petitioning for adjustment of $493,062, net profits for the year ending May 1, 1922, was filed yesterday by Francis Seiberling and Russell L. Robinson, as stockholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, again the the Leonard Kennedy company of New York, joint tenants of the 10,000 shares of Goodyear management stock, and the Goodyear company. This petition pots forth the same complaints as in the pending suit of Laura L. T. Wiss of Cleveland, who attacked the $80,000,000 refinancing plan of the Goodyear company through which the Leonard Kennedy company acquired control.

The money at issue in the new suit was paid the Kennedy company on its contract to furnish a president and other officers to the Goodyear company in return for which it was to receive $250,000 and five per cent. of profits between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Seiberling and Robinson are heavy Goodyear stockholders.

Mexico to Expel Apostolic Delegate

For Participating in Religious Ceremonies Contrary to Federal Law.

Mexico City, Jan. 14.—(By the A. P.)—The executive order issued Saturday night directing the expulsion from Mexico within three days of Monsignor Ernesto Filippi, the apostolic delegate in Mexico, for participating in religious ceremonies contrary to federal law, was interpreted in many quarters hee today as President Obregon's first important move against alleged Catholic aggressiveness.

The instructions contained in Article 33 of the constitution are to be applied to Monsignor Filippi, and he must leave the republic within seventy-two hours. The notice of expulsion was issued after telegraphic communications between the central government and the authorities of the state of Guanajuato. The officials at Guanajuato described the apostolic delegate as having been the directing head of huge outdoor services near Silao on the occasion of the dedication of a monument to Christ last Thursday.

The constitution is specific in its prohibition of open air religious processions or services. The president's oder of expulsion is declared to be supported by the members of his cabinet.

High churchmen in Mexico City insist that there was no intentional violation or any attempt to contravene the Mexican laws on the part of Monsignor Filippi. They say the ceremonies near Silao were held on private ground for private purposes.

On the other hand the laying of the cornerstone for the monument is held by the government as having been a direct and definite violation of the federal laws. Inasmuch as Monsignor Filippi is an Italian, he and all other foreign clergymen connected with the ceremonies are to be expelled as pernicious foreigners.

"Mr. Filippi, of Italian nationality, has violated an article of the constitution," the executive order stated, "by presiding over ceremonies held publicly at Cerro El Cubilite, state of Guanajuato, and although the executive has profound respect for all religions, as indicated by the freedom enjoyed in Mexico by religious organizations, the executive finds himself obliged to issue an order for the expulsion of Filippi within three days, dating from the hour of his notification."

Monsignor Filippi arrived in Mexico City this morning. He was met at the station by Count Nani De Monenigo, the Italian minister, and numerous friends. Shortly before noon he was officially notified of the order expelling him from Mexico. He plans to leave Wednesday night by way of Laredo for New York and Washington. In the latter city he will await instructions from Rome.

The prelate will be accompanied to Laredo by the Italian minister, who, it is understood, is awaiting specific instructions from his government before proceeding to make a formal protest to the Mexican foreign office.

Beyond expressing surprise at his expulsion and describing it as "an incredible proceeding" Monsignor Filippi had little comment to make when he received the correspondents of The Associated Press today.

"There was no violation either of the article or the letter of the law in the Cerro El Cubilite ceremony, for which the Mexican government has taken offense," said the prelate. "It was an outdoor service in no sense of the word. I merely blessed the cornerstone, and the entire ceremony took less than twenty minutes.

"I have presided at similar functions numerous times in Mexico, and certainly I have no idea in this instance of setting myself against any federal law. I cannot understand the government's attitude, but I shall accede to its request, and depart without protest."

FOUR LIVES LOST WHEN SEAPLANE WAS WRECKED

Key West, Fla., Jan. 14.—With the exception of Mrs. Edwin F. Atkins, Jr., the condition of the five survivors of the seaplane Columbus, which was wrecked and sunk in the ocean 21 miles northwest of Havana yesterday afternoon with the loss of four lives, was reported as not serious tonight.

Mrs. Atkins, whose husband, a New York capitalist, and their two children, Edward F, 3d, four years old, and David, 3, perished in the wreck, is suffering from exposure and fears were expressed lest pneumonia might develop. However, it was stated there was no immediate danger. She is staying at the home of a friend here and apparently has not yet realized the full extent of the tragedy, it was said. Miss Grace McDonald of New York was the other victim of the accident.

Otto Abraham of New York, Miss Julia Haverty, of New York, W. E. Miller, pilot, and Harold Thompson, mechanician of the seaplane, were all out of the hospital today.

A search lasting the entire day was made today for the wreckage of the seaplane and the bodies of the victims, but without avail. The search will be continued, although since the sea in the vicinity of the wreck is inested with sharks, little hope of recovering the bodies is held.

The Columbus, which left Key West at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was wrecked an hour later was making its regular daily trip to Havana. Four hundred pounds of mail were lost with it.

WESTERLY GALES ARE FORECAST FOR TODAY

"Advisory storm warning displayed 9.30 a. m., Virginia Capes to Eastport, Maine. Disturbance of marked intensity central over Lake Michigan, moving rapidly eastward. Increasing south winds probably reaching gale force and shifting to westerly by Monday morning."

Sudden Death of Alexandre Ribot

Former Premier and a Minister in Many French Cabinets.

Paris, Jan. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Alexandre Ribot, former premier and a minister in many French cabinets, died suddenly Saturday night.

Death came two hours after his one day's illness had been diagnosed as not being of a serious character. M. Ribot's widow was Minnie Burch of Chicago.

M. Ribot went to Arras last Sunday to take part in the senatorial bye-election. He felt fatigued on his return to Paris, but refused to follow the advice of his son, Dr. Alexandre Eugene Ribot, and rest, and continued at work until Tuesday, when he decided to ask the senate for leave of absence until the end of the month.

M. Ribot had been under treatment for stomach trouble for more than forty years.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS BY LAUSANNE DELEGATES

Lausanne, Jan. 14 (By the A. P.)—Lord Curzon called tonight on M. Barrere, of the French delegation, and Ismet Pasha to discuss the general position of the Near Eastern conference, which, according to the idea of the British spokesmen, may last three weeks more. New difficulties have arisen above the horizon this week and the leaders are anxious that they should not be permitted to continue as danger points. Hence these private consultations utside the official meetings in an attempt to reach an understanding.

Turkey has refused to bear any of the expenses incurred by the allies during their occupation of Turkish territory; she insists on freedom to fix her tariff on a specific basis in accordance with her own views for a five-year period, during which she will negotiate individual commercial teaties with the powers, and declares that her "lost provinces" should proportionately return the burden of the entire Ottoman debt.

No one has solved the riddle of capitulations. The French delegation is framing a formula providing legal guarantees for foreigners in Turkey, but the Turks say they will not discuss the subject of special courts for foreigners any further. Everybody is worried about capitulations, because it is one of the chief issues of the conference.

Persia has protested that she was not invited to the conference despite her immediate interest in Near Eastern affairs. Russia has supported the rightedusness of the Persian claim, declaring that Persia has far more reason to be here than Japan, which is allowed to participate in all the discussions, or the Scandinavian countries and Holland and Spain, which have been permitted to take part in many of the meetings.

THREE SUDDEN DEATHS IN A JERSEY CITY SALOON

Jersey City, Jan. 14.—Jersey City police are investigating the sudden deaths in a local saloon today of three men, James Boris, proprietor of the saloon, William Bizza, and Joan Hofsky.

Medical Examiner Dr. A. E. Hasenflug will conduct an autopsy and an inquest tomorrow.

Mrs. Joan Hofsky, of Jersey City, a brother-in-law of Boris, told the police that he entered the place about 3 o'clock, Hofsky began jumping up and down and asked in a husky voice: "What was in that stuff? It is burning me."

Hardly had he said the words, Kasena said, then he fell over. Bizza, who was standing a few feet away, also toppled over and Boris a moment later.

Kasena said he ran to the street and called the police. An ambulance and doctor arrived shortly after. The three men were dead.

Policeman Hanley said a test by the police revealed four cases of brown liquor, looking like beer and a jug of brown liquor smelling like alcohol; four one gallon bottles of red liquor and a case of three ounce bottles filled with a brown powder. DESPITE POLITICAL CHAOS ALL MARKETS REMAIN FIRM

Financial Observers Find Ground for Reassurance in the Calm Spirit in Which Germany Accepted French Occupation of the Ruhr—Profit-Making Ability is Said to be Returning to European Nations—Domestic Industry Continues Active, With Railroads Maintaining Traffic at a Rate Without Precedent at This Season of the Year.

New York, Jan. 14.—(By the A. P.)—In a week during which the European situation has held an unusual degree of attention, our domestic markets have remained remarkably firm. France's decision to take independent action against Germany, and the actual movement of French troops into the Ruhr valley, are events which have been long awaited and whose effect upon the various markets has long been debated in financial circles. Under these circumstances many observers profess to find ground for reassurance in the calm spirit in which the actual event has been received. Securities have maintained a steady tone, both at New York and London, and the foreign exchanges have shown a quick recovery from apprehensions which developed at the close of the previous week.

In attempting to explain this steadiness, leading bankers point to a curious complex of factors. On this side of the Atlantic it is considered that our own industrial situation is strong enough to discourage bearish attacks on values, while abroad emphasis is laid on such influences as easy money and the reinvestment demand following the year-end. It also seems to be the case that profit-making ability is returning on the other as well as on this side of the Atlantic. This the London Economist's analysis of the earnings of British industrial companies shows an increase in net earnings during the last quarter of the past year, the comparison being made with the comparable period of the year before. The increase follows a series of declines.

Any explanation of market firmness which did not take account of the philosophical attitude taken with regard to France's action would be, however, incomplete. In good quarters there is a feeling that it may be just as well to let France try out her policy and thus dispose of this long-standing threat. Most bankers appear to agree with the British view that the occupation is economically and politically unwise; but they also take the ground that with the experiment going on, it is only reasonable to watch developments and await results. The difficulties which are bound to arise may, according to this view, bring both parties to a more reasonable frame of mind.

Domestic industry meanwhile continues to give a good account of itself. Railroad traffic is being maintained at a rate which is without precedent at this season of the year, and November earnings for class one roads, which amounted to 4 1-2 per cent. on valuation, were an improvement in this respect over both October of 1922 and the previous November. The steel industry is still working at approximately 89 per cent. of capacity, which is the best rate attained last year, and the mills are well booked ahead.

Cotton prices have touched new highs for the present crop. The May future rising close to 28 cents. This movement has reflected pronounced strength at Liverpool and the absence of pressure on the spot markets in this country. With the rate of consumption high and with the crop short, bullish traders still hold the ascendency. The census bureau's ginning report as of January 1, which shows a total of 9,600,000 bales, is taken as substantially confirming the department of agriculture's final crop estimate of 9,964,000 bales.

Banking returns and the money market meanwhile testify to the passage of special demands incident to the holidays and the year-end. Note circulation of the federal reserve system has fallen off $152,000,000 during the last two weeks and reserves have increased substantially. Interest rates have remained easy. Call money on the New York stock exchange touching 3 1-2 per cent.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF FINANCE AND INDUSTRY

New York, Jan. 14.—Strength of the financial, foreign exchange and commodity markets this week in the face of the French invasion of the Ruhr and the withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine was construed as an indication that the financial community did not regard the European situation as serious as had been feared and that the domestic outlook was sufficiently encouraging to counteract any unfavorable eventuality abroad.

The upward movement in the stock market received only a temporary set-back by developments abroad, being renewed with fresh confidence in the middle of the week. Principal interest, however, was centered in specialties in which there is an early possibility of favorable dividend action. Listed bonds suffered from the competition, afforded by the new issues. Cotton prices moved to new high records since the spring of 1921 and wheat rallied from its recent slump but became unsteady again in final week-end dealings.

The price tendency is still upward. Higher prices were announced during the week for crude rubber, lead and mid-continent crude oil. A stiffening tendency also has been noted in the prices of steel products, operations in the industry continuing at about 89 per cent. of capacity. Railroad car loadings are still running at record high levels for this season of the year, and railroad shares have been inclined to weakness because of the vast sums railroads have had to expend for new equipment and the possibility of unfavorable legislation unveiling forced reduction of freight rates.

Money for leading purposes has been in free supply the call rate getting as low as 3 1-2 per cent. with predictions in some quarters that it will go lower within the next few weeks. New bond offerings this week were the highest in the history of the local market, barring periods of U. S. government financing.

TAUGHT THIEVERY AT AN INSTITUTE FOR BOYS

New York, Jan. 14.—A twentieth century Fagin was captured tonight by boys of St. Philip's home, a Roman Catholic institution, and was handed over to the police by Brother Reginius, who charged that the man enticed his charges to a school of thievery with promises of "$50 a week easy money."

TO TEACH THE PEOPLE OF FRANCE TO DRINK WINE

Paris, Jan. 14.—Henri Cheron, minister of agriculture, has undertaker to teach the people of France to drink wine, instead of liquors of high alcoholic content. The minister has issued a circular to his staff throughout the country to encourage the people "to drink a glass of good French wine," asserting that the government laboratory tests show that wine contains vitamines necessary to health and that wine not only does not develop alcoholism, but "it has been established that alcoholism is prevalent where too little wine is used." M. Cheron particularly encourages wine drinking because the yield this year is double that of last year, and also because the vintage is good.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
31 Church Street Telephone 1248

Judgment for the plaintiff was given by Judge Foss Saturday in the civil suit of Louis W. Ives against Louis Albert Girouard to recover a bill of $72.32. The men in question are rival ice dealers in this city. The former has the contract to cut, harvest and sell the city ice and Girouard was receiving his supply of ice from the Ayer ice house at the Willimantic river cove but when that house became empty the dealer gave his hired man permission to arrange with Ives to supply him with city ice for the remainder of the season.

It developed at the hearing that Ives and Girouard had never had any personal talk on the matter but that the deal had been made between Ives and Adelard Brousseau, Girouard's employe, who testified that Ives had agreed to sell ice to Girouard for 35 cents per ton the same price as charged Ives by the city. Ives alleged that this was not so and that his price to Girouard was made at $1.50 a ton. The plaintiff claimed that for 169 1-2 tons of ice bought he had been paid $91.85 at the rate of 85 cents per ton, and that at the price of $1.50 a ton there was still a balance of $72.32 to be paid.

The plaintiff was allowed to recover the remainder of the balance plus costs making a total of $81.72.

The special meeting before Judge Hinman of the superior court which was scheduled for Saturday morning to set aside the verdict in the Kelley vs. Beach case heard in Hartford last November, was postponed as the counsel for the defense was ill. The alleged assaults took place on Chapman street late Sunday evening, January 7. The case was tried on January 8 at which Rusko pleaded guilty but it was continued until Saturday as Kaschure was not present in court. A warrant was made out during the week for Kaschure's arrest.

According to Rusko, Kaschure had been linking his (Rusko's) name with that of a married woman, not his wife, and when Rusko asked Kaschure what the idea was he was threatened with a knife. On one occasion they were in someone else's house and the owner intervened but later on when they got out on the street and the knife was again brought into view, Rusko applied a sound blow on Kaschure's jaw and the latter ran away.

Aleck Dubina and his wife both testified to having seen Kazchure pull a knife and threaten Rusko at a picnic last summer and again in the house at No. 32 Ives street.

Kaschure stated that he had never told any stories about Rusko and had never had any words with him but when he left the house on the Sunday night in question he was waylaid by Rusko, who struck him several blows. He answered that he had been arrested before.

Kaschure's case was nolled upon payment of the costs of $9.15 and Rusko was fined $1 and costs totalling $10.15.

WESTERLY

The general assembly of Rhode Island will meet in grand committee Wednesday or Thursday of this week for the purpose of electing the judges and clerks of the district courts of Rhode Island. Of interest to Westerly people is the election of the judge and clerk of the Third Judicial district court which sits at Westerly. A very close race is predicted for these positions.

During the week the name of H. Russell Burdick of Westerly has been presented by one of the Westerly representatives as his choice for clerk of the court in Westerly. It is understood that he has a majority of the votes from the senators and representatives who represent the third judicial district. In other words, he will be the choice of the caucus. His name will be presented in the grand committee as the nominee of the caucus of the senators and representatives of this district. This is in no sense a criterion of his election as he has to have the majority of votes from the republican and democratic members of both the senate and the house to win.

Judge O. H. Williams is said to be the choice of the district caucus for the judgeship. M. Walter Flynn, the present clerk and Clarence E. Roche are also in the contest for the clerkship. Vaudeville at Broadway Today

The management of the Broadway theatre is giving the Norwich theatergoers a rare treat for the first half of this week with five high grade B. F. Keith vaudeville acts and wonderful feature picture. The acts are as follows:

Leonard Kern & Co. offer a singing and musical revue; Anita, the up-in-the-air girl; Loftus & Lynch in the comedy, The $5000 Kiss; Garry & Baldi in the comedy, Who Help need Help; and Rose and Dell in Vim and Versatility.

A wholesome comedy of family life in America! A picture story that conveys a fine message without being a preachment! That is Will de Mille's Paramount production of Clarence, featuring Wallace Reid, Agnes Ayres and May McAvoy, three screen stars of unquestioned popularity. The management announces that Clarence will be the bill at the Broadway theatre today and asserts it is one of the most enjoyable pictures booked this season.

Clarence is the humorous story of an ex-soldier who drove mules without swearing and who became a good angel in the family of a millionaire whose happiness is being dashed upon the rocks because of their lack of harmony and constant bickering. Clarence found the task of reconciling this family nearly as difficult as driving army mules without cussing, but he accomplishes the task with the aid of his saxophone, his genial temperament and general tact, so that happiness is the lot of all concerned.

Clarence is packed with laughs from beginning to end. In the title role Mr. Reid scores a conspicuous success, while Agnes Ayres and May McAvoy have parts suited to their personalities. There is a supporting cast of rare excellence, and the screen version of Booth Tarkington's famous play is said to rang as one of the most enjoyable pictures of the year. Kathlyn Williams, Adolph Menjou, Edward Martindel, Bertie Jones, Robert Agnew, Dorothy Gordon and Maym Kelso are in the supporting cast.

The Hottentot Screen Sensation Opens at Strand Today

The ten-twenty-thirties of the old days with their terrific storms—made by a lightning machine and a tin pan in the stage wing—their magnificent processions—of twenty "extras"—their exciting round-ups—of three horses—seem to have been put under the sod.

Screen spectacles with the magnificent resources of the whole outdoors and all the natural phenomena at hand have killed the stage melodramas. The stage has been driven to simplicity of settings and the omission of any attempt at competition in the spectacle line, but hold its own as a "trying-out" ground.

So many screen successes of the past few seasons have been film adaptations of successful stage plays that many of the motion picture scenarists are beginning to complain bitterly. The fact that a theme has gotten over the footlights and received the publics' O. K. enhances its value to such an extent that millions of dollars are being spent annually by motion pictures producers for film rights to successful comedies and dramas. In practically every case, however, some big spectacular feature is added which was impossible in the stage presentation, and which makes an old story excitingly familiar.

In "The Storm," the big forest fire at the climax of the picture lends a note of tense drama which was impossible in the play. One of the finest snow storm scenes ever screened has been used in the Old Homstead, while the big street procession and coronation scenes were depicted on a scale impossible for the largest stage to encompass.

Thomas H. Ince in his film adaptation of The Hottentot, just released, not only has demonstrated that a hilarious comedy can be translated to the silver sheet, with all its laughs multiplied, but also that the climax of the picture can carry a far greater dramatic wallop than the play. The witty lines which made the play such a success when Willie Collier was starring in it have been preserved in the sub-titles while for a climax one of the most spectacular steeplechases ever filmed is presented.

"When Knighthood was in Flower" offers another illustration of the tremendous spectacular expansion used by the picture producers in adapting stage plays. The tournament joust, the ocean storm, the escape of the princess with her lover knight go far beyond any possibility of stage presentation.

"Forever," Way Down East," with its wonderful ice storm scene; "Omar the Tent Maker;" "East is West;" "Two Orphans of the Storm" are other illustrations the big stage successes which habe been adapted for the screen with unusual spectacular features.

Other features are a comedy and news.

NORWICH BUILDING LOAN PUTS SAVINGS TO WORK

Thrift not only saves intelligently, but puts savings to work; not only does it save a dollar, but it puts that dollar where it will thrive, where it can earn and labor for the welfare and comfort of its owners. Tariff of the intelligent will put present savings to work. Money invested in the Norwich Building and Loan association works for permanent prosperity and welfare, and at the same time renders a tangible service to the community.

Make your money earn more money. It earns here because each depositor is a partner in the business and receives his or her full share of the net profits. It is the desire of this association that every person with a disposition to rise above sordid conditions and unfortunate environments should be given an opportunity to do so. The first step must be in the direction of thrift, and to encourage thrift this association makes it possible for every one to have a savings account. To save successfully one must save systematically. It is easier to save $1 each week than to save $53 once a year. Monthly savings consistently made in an organization based on the co-operative plan encourages regular savings. Few have the good fortune to become suddenly wealthy. With most of us it is a slow process and systematic saving is necessary.

The Norwich Building and Loan association presents every one an opportunity to save their earnings at a good rate of interest. For the past three years this rate has been 5 1-2 per cent. and never under 5 per cent. This is possible and feasible because it operates on the co-operative plan. It loans its funds to its members at a low rate of interest. Its management is purely local. Its loans are purely local. It loans only on first mortgages. It is under the supervision of the state bank examiner. It is safe, conservative, and prosperous. Its present assets are over $100,000. It serves the thrifty and it serves the community.

New series opened next Tuesday night at the regular monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce office.

All of these men are wholly posted in their subject and will give a very interesting programme. The following is the programme: 10 a. m. Spring Management of Bees, Professor L. R. Crandall; 11 a. m., A Day in the Apiary, Professor Allen Latham; 1 p. m., Bee Keeping Possibilities in Norwich, John Sherman; 1.45 p. m., How to Make a Beginning in Keeping Bees, Professor Latham; 2.30 p. m., Honey as a Food, Professor Crandall.

Breed Theatre

Betty Compton, Paramount star in "The Little Minister" and "The Green Temptation," and Tom Moore, famous for his romantic characterization, is a new but welcome combination in Penrhyn Stanlaws' newest production, "Over the Border," which was finely presented at the Breed theatre yesterday.

This story of the love of Sergeant Flaherty, of the "Royal Mounted," for Jen, winsome daughter of a bootlegging tavern-keeper, has many moments of high drama. Miss Compson misses none of its opportunities. Produced as a Paramount picture, superbly cast and filmed among mountain settings which thrill with their beauty, the creation is one that rightfully bears the hall-mark of excellence and reflects the greatest credit on all concerned in the production.

Its adaptation from Sir Gilbert Parkers notable short story, "She of the Triple Cheveron," has retained all the power with which the famous author invested his work, and has enhanced the history of the celebrated R. N. W. M. Police.

"Over the Border" will be the feature at the Breed theatre again today and tomorrow and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a Christie comedy.

His satanic majesty catches some men by landing them dignity and some by landing them dollars.

AMERICAN LEAGUE UMPIRE ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH CLEVELAND MURDER

Cleveland, O., Jan. 14.—Ollie Chill, American league umpire, is being questioned by the police tonight in connection with the death of Edward J. McGregor, 28, found shot to death last night in an apartment house here. Chill, according to the police, was one of three men found in the apartment when the officers broke in the door. The men declare they remember hearing two shots fired but neither was able to say who did the shooting. No charge has been placed against Chill or his companions.

A drunken party, including several brawls and fist fights, preceded the shooting, according to a statement given to the police by Joseph F. Johnson, a taxi cab driver, who says he had taken [illegible] and the three men to the apartment. All were intoxicated, Johnson said.

Upon arrival at the apartment, there was another argument as to who should serve the drinks, Johnson said in his statement, and McGregor hit Chill and knocked him unconscious.

Little did the police received a report of shooting in the apartment. When they broke in the door, they say, they found Chill under a bed, his face [illegible]. The other two men were in separate rooms. McGregor was found in a hallway dying from bullet wounds in the heart and breast.

BATTERY B A LEADER IN NORWICH SPORTS

The past year has developed in the coming national guard company of [illegible] many fine athletes. This battery, under command of Capt. W. Johnson, endeavored to give Norwich what it has lacked, winter sports. Much credit should be given to the entertainment committee which by untiring efforts has managed to get things going full speed and the public [illegible] assured that with the proper support the best in every line of sport will be brought to the armory.

The various undertakings have been managed by the entertainment committee, consisting of Lieut. Howard Bass (chairman), Sergeant Wilson, athletic and sports, Sergeant Turner, [illegible], Sergeant Malcolm, with the assistance of the athletic committee under Corp. A. Breault.

The next committee will carry on the good work and much is expected of Pvt. Harry Mills, a new man in the organization. Mills is without a doubt the fastest center on any team in eastern Connecticut. In baseball he excels, having been the only local man on the Taftville team when it played the local Knoxes. With a man like this at the head of the athletics and supported by Breault, Lemoine and Coleman, Battery B will surely be heard from in all sports in 1923.

Baseball.

The battery got rather a late start in local baseball on account of being away for the month of June at Camp Eustis, Va. While at camp, Battery B won the regimental championship by defeating Battery A of New London in the decisive game by a score of 7 to 4. In the all-regimental team which played on the post team, four were Battery B men, Breault, Coleman, Keeley and Lemieux, who pitched a fine game, winning by a score of 2 to 0. With [illegible] men to pick from, the local battery more than held its own.

Lack of a playing field stopped the team from participating in local baseball but plans are now under way to secure grounds of their own for the coming season.

Private Lemieux was elected captain for the coming season, with Private Mills as coach. Nine and promising material is being rushed all the time and indoor baseball is bringing out many players.

Basketball.

Basketball, which has been in seclusion, as far as Norwich is concerned, for the past five years, was given a boost last winter by the battery team, but lack of support forced the team to play out of town most of the time. The team, consisting of Lemieux, Breault, Coleman, Gladue, Parquette and Brown, played Company C of Westerly, Wanderers of Baltic and many other semi-pro teams in the state.

In winning two games from Battery A, the team clinched the regimental championship, although they did not play the teams from the western part of the state.

Coleman at center is a fast and sure man, while Breault and Lemieux as guards are the fastest amateurs in this section.

This fall Battery B took over the management of the Crescent A. C., the fastest semi-pro team in eastern Connecticut. This team playing for the battery will put Norwich where it belongs in the basketball circle of the state—at the top.

Indoor Baseball.

This popular sport got away to a fine start this fall when the battery team under Sergeant Wilson defeated the Nuggets by the score of 30-6. By error The Bulletin printed the score of this game as 7-6.

They defeated the Naval Reserves 30-5 and in the second game of the series with the Nuggets under Chief Madden slipped up when Sergeant Wilson went up in the air in the sixth and lost, 18 to 12. The third game left the battery two games to the good, but the Nuggets won the fourth game, the fastest game ever seen in the armory, in a long time, by the score of 12 to 10, evening up the series.

The battery team consists of Sergeant Wilson p, Adams c, Mills 1st, Coleman 2d, Lemieux 3d, A. Breault ss, P. Breault ss, Gerahard f, Burrells f.

Sergeant Wilson, never heard from before as a player, although having been the booster of sports for the past three years, declared himself a pitcher and has shown in the past three games —and he even admits it himself—he has yet to face a better man than himself. As in all sports, the Taftville members of the battery led. Mills playing an exceptionally fine game at first, Lemieux, Breaults, Patsy and Mede, and Coleman as usual playing a fast game.

No organization in the city has better material than this organization, and the men are heart and soul in putting the name of their battery at the top. Such spirit as this is bound to conquer, and conquer they will.

ABOUT CHESS CLUB.

Mr. Editor:—

Would like to say a few words regarding Mr. Strom's letter of the 9th inst. regarding the forming of a chess club in Norwich.

Why not call some kind of a meeting together in the central part of the city to discuss plans for the forming of a chess club, or, better still, make it a chess and checker club, such as found in other cities, for with checkers added to such a club as he proposes there would be a whole lot more interest shown in such a club, especially at the present time, and a good many players would turn out to some such a meeting.

When towns only a third or one-half the size of Norwich can talk and boast of their chess and checker clubs, and also of their champions, then surely Norwich should have some such club at once, because we have quite a few of the "would-be champions" in town this very day who would gladly join such a club. If someone like Mr. Strom would only get things started, he surely can find many good players at once by calling some kind of a meeting together for those who are interested in the game of chess and checkers.

Here's hoping to hear some more from Mr. Strom through the columns of your paper, or from anybody else who may be interested in these two great games; so come, you players, and let us get together at once. Hoping for success, I am,

M. MURPHIPSKY,
Chess and Checker Player.

SARAZEN MAY NOT BE PERMITTED TO ENTER BRITISH CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Jan. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Whether Gene Sarazen, national open and professional golf champion, will be permitted to participate in the British open championship tournament in England during June, as he planned, will be determined tomorrow by the board of directors of Briar Cliffe Lodge, the Metropolitan club by which he is employed as a "pro."

Chauncey Depew Steele, managing director of the lodge, said tonight that a few of the directors of the club are opposed to granting Sarazen the time from his duties that will be required in going to and from England to play in the tournament since he will not begin his duties at the club until April and would just be started in then when he would leave.

Although Sarazen is employed at a salary declared to be greater than that of any golf professional in the United States, and acknowledged by the club to be above $10,000 a year, the question of the financial difference will not determine the directors' decision, Steele said.

The club is a new one and obtained Sarazen's services when he broke off relations with the club in Pittsburgh with which he had a two year contract. Both he and the Pittsburgh club were dissatisfied after he won the national open title, because he was away much of the time, giving exhibitions and playing in tournaments.

Sarazen and Jock Hutchinson, of Chicago, former national open champion, are now touring the country giving exhibitions. Some time ago Sarazen announced his intention of going after the British open title and at the time his association by Briar Cliff lodge was announced, it was understood that his contract permitted long leaves of absence.

Mr. Steele declared he personally favored granting the American champion the time as he desired this country to be represented by the best possible talent.

JOHNSON NOT TO INVESTIGATE CHILL'S ARREST

Chicago, Jan. 14—Ban Johnson, president of the American league, said tonight that he would make no investigation of the arrest of Ollie Chill, American league umpire, for the last few seasons, in connection with the shooting at Cleveland. "As we are no longer interested in Chill."

"I had made up my mind to make a change and have already selected Chill's successor," Mr. Johnson said. "The new umpire's name will be announced in a few days when I give out the list of 1923 officials."

SARAZEN AND HUTCHISON BEAT HAGEN AND KIRKWOOD

Santa Barbara, Calif., Jan. 14—Gene Sarazen, national open golf champion, and Jock Hutchison, former British open title holder, revenged themselves for defeats in the north at the hands of Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion, when they trounced the latter six and five here today.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Because of the tax inaugurated last year on race track wagers, there are likely to be fewer tracks in operation in Ontario this year.

The death of Peter Earl, 2.01 1-4, eliminates from the campaign of 1923 one of the most promising young trotters in training.

The 23d annual meeting of the United States Revolver association will be held in the 71st regiment armory on Monday, Jan. 15, at 8 p. m.

Jack Dempsey, in his answer to the $50,000 damage suit of Owen Bartlett, [illegible] painter, which is on trial in supreme court, declared he was not the champion prize fighter of the world" but the "champion boxer of the world."

Joe Beckett, who is in training in England, says that negotiations are under way for a bout with Dempsey [illegible] beat Tall Beckett defeats George Carpentier in their bout in London in May.

Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, middleweight champion of the world in New [illegible] and Jock Malone, also of [illegible] have been matched to meet in [illegible] a decision bout on Jan.

Golfers of the Rocky Point links of Tampa have their eyes on George Waggaman, who has charge there the year around. Little has been heard of this player but among those who know him he has the reputation of being the longest driver in the game.

Fordham university will play three of its most important football games at the Yankees' new stadium next season, according to the schedule for the 1923 campaign announced by Frank Gargan, head football coach and graduate manager of athletics at the Bronx institution.

W. M. Wright of Chicago, who bred the champion trotter Peter Manning, 1.56 3-4, recently paid $6,000 at auction for Jane the Great, 2.03 1-4, one of the trotters owned by the late John C. Welty, president of the National Trotting association. Dick McMahon will campaign her next season.

Worthy Son, 2.11 1-2, a trotter recently purchased in New Hampshire by Thomas W. Murphy for something like $15,000, is reported to be owned by Henry L. Bowles of Springfield, Mass., who also owns Czar Worthy, 2.03 3-4, and Princess Lawah, 2.03 1-4.

Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, may soon meet a formidable rival in the ring at Madison Square Garden. Promoter Tex Rickard has cabled him offering him a match with either Floyd Johnson, Iowa prospect, who vanquished Bill Brennan in the Garden last Friday night, or Brennan.

[illegible] Murphy says Peter Manson record of 1.56 3-4 does not represent the limit of his speed; not to [illegible] perfection, at least. His contract from Washington was received recently, and returned with a letter Wednesday advising Owner Clark Griffith that the terms were unsatisfactory and that he desired to quit baseball.

Attempts to merge the Union Trotting association in the National Trotting association, as proposed by the new presidents of the two organizations, have been blocked by A. E. Leatherman, secretary of the U. T. A. He says there will be no amalgamation embracing his association unless the merger takes in the American as well as the National, thus bringing all trotting tracks under one government.

Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., state amateur ice skating champion, Saturday afternoon made a new world's amateur record for three-quarters of a mile in the second day's races of the Adirondack gold cup championship meet, staged under the auspices of the Endicott-Johnson legion. Jewtraw made the distance in 2.02 4-5, clipping 3 2-5 seconds off the mark established by William Steinmetz at Saranac Lake on Feb. 12, 1922.

Congressman Wants Government Officials To Sign Pledge

As there has been concern over what France was going to do when it sent its army into Germany, there has also been thought as to the kind of reception Germany would give it. It was possible for both to so conduct themselves as to create a much worse situation, and it was likewise within the range of possibility for Germany to make the best of the seizure and profit by it.

Germany doesn't welcome the action. It doesn't like the idea of having France refuse to accept its explanations. It doesn't set well to have more German territory occupied by French troops. It doesn't accept gracefully the insistence by France that it have a chance to demonstrate that Germany can pay if it [illegible] does view with satisfaction the passing over of the important Ruhr valley and it is quick to claim that the provisions of the Versailles [illegible] to be modified [illegible] to be the effect of [illegible] undertake to [illegible] in any way possible [illegible] industrial activities, to refrain from other obligations under the treaty, or will it be brought [illegible] the fact that it will be for its own good and accompanied by a healthy adjustment within its own borders if it acknowledges that France is not engaged in bluff [illegible] other join with it in seeing that the occupation is continued as harmoniously as possible or put forth some new solution of the reparation difficulties?

If we are to judge by the statement made by Premier Poincare of France the door to adjustment, even now, hasn't been closed. LABOR FOR MODIFICATION OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 14.—Mobilization of the forces of American organized labor for a modification of the Volstead act, which would provide for the manufacture and sale of beer and light wine, was arranged for at a conference held today between Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and the general executive board of the Brewery Workers' International union at that organization's headquarters here.

"We plan to make America once more the home of the sane and land of the free," the noted labor leader declared, following an all day conference with the board of members, who represent every section of the United States and Canada.

While the conference was held in secret it was announced that plans were discussed for a nation-wide drive for a revision of the phoribition law and that every member of congress would be personally interviewed and made acquainted with the position labor takes on the prohibition law.

"Wine and beer of light alcoholic content are sure to come back 'and they will come back very soon," declared Mr. Gompers, who made a hurried trip from Washington, to attend the conference.

Mr. Gompers said there was a vast difference between the 18th amendment and the Volstead act. The latter he said, went far in advance of what was contemplated in the organic law.

"Where the fanatical drys err is in attempting to define beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent. 'are intoxicating," he declared. "Beer or wine containing a moderate percentage of alcohol is not only harmless; it is positively wholesome and would serve many good purposes. It would promote temperance; it would be an antidote for strong drink."

Asked if he favored a restoration of the saloon, Mr. Gompers explained the saloon. Mr. Gompers explosively declared, "No, nobody does. The saloon is an institution of the dark ages. It is gone forever and whiskey as a beverage also is a thing of the past."

Mr. Gompers returned to Washington tonight.

STORK BRINGING BOY BABIES TO THIS CITY

If the stork continues to favor boy babies in Norwich this year as he has so far in the maternity cases attended by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, the increase in the male population should considerably overbalance the increase in the other sex. Up to the 11th of the month, Dr. Cassidy had attended nine maternity cases in all of which the new arrivals had been boys.

Incidentally Dr. Cassidy has surpassed a record which recently was made at the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London where four babies were born in 24 hours. BEGINNING THRIFT WEEK ON FRANKLIN ANNIVERSARY

The week from Wednesday, Jan. 17, to Tuesday, Jan. 23, has been designated as National Thrift Week. Postmaster General Hubert York is asking the department offices all over the country to take up the promotion of the observance of the week.

The following circular letter on the subject has been received by Postmaster John Murphy:

Office of Postmaster General
Washington, D. C., Jan. 9, 1923.

January 17, Wednesday—National Thrift Day.

January 18, Thursday—Budget Day.

January 19, Friday—Life Insurance Day.

January 20, Saturday—Own Your Own Home Day.

January 21, Sunday—Share With others Day.

January 22, Monday—Pay Bills Promptly Day.

January 23, Tuesday—Make a Will Day.

January 17, the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, the first postmaster general and the most noted advocate of personal and national thrift, has been fixed as National Thrift Day. It is most appropriate that the instrumentality selected by the government for the promotion of thrift among the people should be the department which he organized and which has grown from the few employes in the day of Franklin to the present army of more than a quarter of a million postal workers.

The department has assured the National Thrift Week committee of its hearty cooperation. Postmasters are therefore, urged to accept the invitations of local thrift committees to participate in such demonstrations or programs as may be arranged in their local communities.

The department has prepared especially for this occasion two publicity mediums. (1), small card for distribution to every home served by such postoffices as are designated as postal savings offices, and (2), A poster for display on the postoffice motor vehicles.

The card should be distributed on January 17 in such a manner that it will come to the attention of every patron of the office. The distribution should be made by city carriers, rural carriers, through boxes and at the general delivery and money order windows. Every patron of the office should be reached.

Postmasters and officers equipped with motor vehicles have also been furnished with attractive posters, in red and blue bearing the inscription, National Thrift Week—start a Savings Account—U. S. postal savings," and containing an outline portrait of Benjamin Franklin. These posters should be attached to the motor vehicles on the morning of January 17 and removed after the last trip on January 23. If, for any reason, a poster becomes soiled or torn, it should be replaced by another.

In order that we may judge in some measure the effect of this campaign, postmasters are requested to report by means of a foot note on regular statistical report for the month of January the number of new accounts opened during Thrift Week, i. e., from January 17 to 23 inclusive. If no new accounts are opened a notation to that effect should be made on the card.

It is the purpose of the department through the postal savings system, to make the observance of the birthday of Benjamin Franklin an annual affair, and we will be pleased to receive suggestions from postmasters as to how we can best cooperate in the observance of National Thrift week.

Church Heater Gave Trouble

Because of trouble with the heater at Trinity Methodist church Sunday, the regular church services were not held in the auditorium, but in the Sunday school room.

UNEXPECTED GIFT FROM KU KLUX SOURCES TO NEW LONDON CHURCH

A gift of $60 for the organ fund of the First Methodist church, New London, was unexpectedly made Sunday evening, accompanied by a communication which indicated that it was a donation made by individual members of the Ku Klux Klan in that city.

Toward the close of the evening service at the church, an envelope was handed to one of the ushers in the vestibule by a man who did not reveal his identity, but immediately left the church. He was in ordinary clothing, without any uniform or insigna to be seen.

The envelope was delivered to the pastor, Rev. M. E. Genter, who found upon opening it that it contained a communication on Ku Klux Klan paper which indicated that the enclosed cash was a donation for the new organ from members of the Klan. The money was turned over to S. E. Bitner, treasurer of the building fund, who found that the total amounted to $60.

Pastor Genter announced the gift to the congregation with a brief acknowledgment of his appreciation of the fine spirit of co-operation which it showed on the part of the donors.

Since the Methodist church built its handsome new edifice on Broad street it has been getting ready to put in an organ, for which it has received help in the way of donations from many sources outside its own congregation. These, Pastor Genter said Sunday night, had included individual Roman Catholics, Jews, newsboys, and persons of all classes and affiliations in the community, where there seems to be a strong feeling of helpfulness to see the church realize its ambition to secure the organ as soon as possible.

STATE PRESIDENT INSTALLS MERCIER ASSEMBLY OFFICERS

Before a gathering of over three hundred members Sunday afternoon in T. A. B. hall, the officers of Mercier assembly, C. L. of C., for the coming year were installed by the state president, Mrs. Jennie Carroll of New Haven and her assistant, Mrs. Annie Henley of New London. The members were addressed by the chaplains, Rev. W. H. May and Rev. W. A. Keefe, who wished the assembly a prosperous year and encouraged them to continue their good work with renewed zeal. Mrs. Carroll reviewed the programme of the assembly since its organization and told of the fine work being done throughout the state by other assemblies. Mrs. Henley's talk on Social Activities was most interesting and enjoyable.

After the installation the members of the Columbus Musical club entertained with several well rendered selections and Miss Sadie A. Driscoll sang Joy of the Morning, by Paderewski. During the entertainment refreshments were served by sixteen members in various attractive costumes of yellow and white, the club colors. Those acting as waitresses were the Misses Helen Toomey, Bessie McVeigh, Mary Donovan, Kathryn Lasch, Bessie Callahan, Mary Ring, Lillian Mahoney, Lillian O'Brien, Nonie Nagle, Catherine Desmond, Anna Kelly, Helen McNally, Maude Quinley, Elizabeth McManus, Margaret Shannon, and Loretta Sheedy. To Mrs. McVeigh, chairman of the committee is due the credit of one of the most delightful entertainments in the annals of the Mercier assembly.

The officers installed were as follows: Mrs. Hannah Ehrmann, president; Miss Loretta Bellefleur, honorary president; Margaret Dutton, vice president; Miss May Bellefleur, recording secretary; Miss Mary Sullivan, financial secretary; Miss Agnes White, treasurer; Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald, mistress at arms; Miss Katherine Hanrahan, sentinel; trustees, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Miss Winifred Day, Mrs. B. Williams; auditors, Mrs. Nellie Moore, Miss Margaret Kane, and Mrs. Nellie McHale.

BOY SCOUTS AND CAMP FIRE GIRLS AT Y. M. C. A.

The number attending the meeting Sunday afternoon at Y. M. C. A. was unexpectedly large, and it was necessary to place some fifty more chairs in the gymnasium than were at first provided. The occasion was a special service for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls. Notwithstanding the storm weather, they came in large numbers and their friends also came in goodly numbers, the large gymnasium being well filled.

After the opening hymn, President J. C. Macpherson gave the audience a cordial welcome, expressing his pleasure at such a large number braving the storm to attend such a service. Scout Executive F. A. Benton read Scripture and Rev. R. D. Trik offered prayer. Swahn's orchestra rendered several pleasing selections and also accompanied the singing of the hymns. Mr. Benton led the Scouts in reciting Allegiance to the Flag. Rev. C. H. Ricketts delivered an intensely interesting and impressive address on the topic, Character, Intelligence and Efficency, these three, the greatest of these is Character.

The large audience of young people listened with rapt attention to his earnest words; while he emphasized the great need of intelligence and efficiency; he stressed the matter of character, as being of the greatest importance, and urged his hearers to see to it that in every possible way they develop true and noble characters.

Several reels of interesting Scout and Camp Fire moving pictures were shown, much to the pleasure and profit of the audience; one pictures portrayed a variety of camp life and woodcraft, etc. The pictures were applauded, as also was the speaker of the meeting, and a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Ricketts for his fine address. Emery H. Davis operated the moving picture machine and the pictures were unusually clear. This meeting was such a success that it is quite likely that it will become an annual affair.

ACADEMY SKATING RING HAS BEEN COMPLETED

The new skating rink recently constructed on the lower end of the Academy campus was flooded Saturday morning by Chief Howard L. Stanton and with a continuation of cold weather the rink measuring 100 by 150 feet will soon be frozen over. It is intended to use the rink for school winter sports, but while the academy is not in session the public will be allowed to use the rink for their enjoyment.

School hockey teams and other ice sports will be enjoyed by the academy students at the rink which was built and erected entirely through their efforts. As the depth of the water is but six inches it will quickly freeze over and many people will be able to enjoy skating with absolute safety.

In Court for Personal Taxes.

Ten women found Saturday morning that with the privilege of voting comes the paying of the personal tax. Ten men were also in the city court for failure to pay the personal tax. In five of the cases a fine of $5 was paid, in six the cases were nolled, and in nine continuances were made.

It is said that other cases will be brought up later if the tax is not paid. Prompt payment means the original tax of $2, but failure means $5 to liquidate the charge.

Funeral at Lafayette Street.

The private funeral services for Miss Harriet Sterry Park were held Friday afternoon at the home of Charles F. Burke of 91 Lafayette street. Through an error The Bulletin stated Saturday that the services were held at 30 Elmwood avenue.

It's the thermometer that enables the weather to get warmer or colder by degrees.

OBITUARY.

Edward T. Burke.

After being in failing health for several months, Attorney Edward T. Burke died Saturday night shortly before 12 o'clock at his home, 39 Uncas street. Mr. Burke was born in this city about 60 years ago, the son of William and Elizabeth McQuick Burke, and received his early education in public schools here. After graduating from the Norwich Free Academy he entered Holy Cross college and graduated with the class of 1885. He then studied law for about two years in the office of Attorney

EDWARD T. BURKE

William A. Shields and was admitted to the bar in Connecticut in 1890, and since that time had continued in the practice of law in Norwich.

In politics Attorney Burke had always been interested in the democratic party and for several years was chairman of the democratic town committee. He had often made speeches at political meetings and caucuses and was one of the hard workers of the party. He was also a member of several organizations, among them being the Foresters of America, in which organization he was grand chief ranger of the state of Connecticut for one term, one of the older members of Division No. 2, A. O. H., of Norwich, and of the Knights of Columbus, in which organization he was a past grand knight.

He was a member of St. Patrick's church and a member of the Holy Name Society of that parish. He also held membership in the bar association of New London county.

About 11 years ago in Southington, Conn., he was united in marriage to Margaret Cormody by Rev. Father Dolan. He leaves his wife and one brother, John W. Burke, of this city.

News of the death of Attorney Burke came as a shock to his many friends. He was a hard worker, a man of Christian principals and a good citizen. Those who are left to mourn the loss of a husband and a brother have the sympathy of an understanding public.

Homer Payne Greene.

Homer Payne Greene, aged 64 years, died very suddenly Sunday morning at 10.45 at the home of his sister, Mrs. William R. Clark, 11 Linden Parkway, where he had made his home for the past four years. Mr. Greene had not been feeling well of late, but on Saturday seemed to be in his usual health. Death was due to heart disease.

He was born in Lexington, N. Y., May 24, 1858, the son of Samuel W. and Emeline Huxford Greene. When a young man he learned the trade of printing but was soon forced to give up the business because of poor health. He then went to Denver, Col, where he lived for many years, working as a contractor on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad for several years.

In 1889 he was married in Denver, his wife dying three years later. About four years ago he came to this city to make his home with his sister.

He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, belonging to Salt Lake City, Utah, lodge.

Besides his sister in this city he leaves one son, William H. Greene of Chicago, Ill., and another sister, Mrs. W. H. Simmonds of Yonkers, N. Y.

Mrs. William Louis Apley.

The death of Dorcas Oliver, wife of William Louis Apley, occurred early last Saturday morning, at her home, 368 West Main street, resulting from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Apley was born in St. Johns, New Brunswick in 1838, where she spent her childhood days. She was twice married, her first husband being William Harris, who died July 4, 1866. She later married William Louis Apley at Providence, R. I., in the year 1876.

They lived in Providence a few years, going from there to Hampton Conn., where they moved to Norwich Town, living on Verguson Hill for 2? years, then moving to the West Side.

Mrs. Apley was a faithful member of the Seventh Day Adventist church which she joined over 40 years ago. She always took an active part in the work of the church.

The many people who knew Mrs. Apley prized her friendship, because of her fine personal qualities. She was kind and charitable and a helpful neighbor. She was a true wife and mother and lived for her family and her loss removes from the household a most valued member, while the community loses a friend ever ready to aid any worthy cause.

She is survived by her husband, William Louis Apley, her daughter Mrs. May Harris Joslin, and three grandchildren, W. L. Apley of New London, George Nelson Apley of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. John O Olsen of Norwich Town.

Mrs. Dwight W. Main.

After serious illness for about a week with heart trouble, the death of Frances Elizabeth, wife of Dwight W. Main, occurred half an hour after midnight Saturday at their home at North Stonington, where they had lived for many years.

Mrs. Main, who was the daughter of Henry and Thankful Johnson, was born in Ledyard March 19, 1862, but had lived the larger part of her life in North Stonington. She was devoted to her home and set a worthy example of love and affection in her household, while she was a kindly and helpful neighbor in the community. She was an attendant at the Baptist church and brought up her sons and daughters along the ideals which she made the rule of her life.

Besides her husband, she is survived by six children—Timothy D. Main, North Stonington; Mary, wife of Thomas Conlan of Preston; Oscar H. Main, Norwich; Alfred E. and Irving B. Main of Ledyard, and Edna, widow of Frank Brown, who lived with her parents. She also leaves five grandchildren.

Searched for Franklin Man.

County Investigator William E. Jackson and State Policeman M. R. Sterling spent a good part of Saturday in Franklin searching for traces of Michael Brassil, 75, who disappeared last Wednesday from his home on Meetinghouse Hill. Nothing was discovered to explain the disappearance of the man or where he might be.

Pass Bar Examinations

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Florence Joyce of Waterford to John Tourjee of Noank. Mr. Tourjee is employed by a produce company in New London.

But 85 Years Old

"I am now in my eighty-fifth year. My mental faculties retain their keenness; I have an abundance of energy; sleep soundly; have an excellent appetite; and am not unduly susceptible to colds. I am convinced that I owe my present excellent physical and mental condition to Wincarnis.

"Some five years ago, I began to feel my advanced age bear heavily upon me. I tired quickly; lacked energy; spent restless nights; paid the penalty for every exposure to a draft, and had many a spell of mental depression. I made experiments with many so-called tonics but without result.

"I decided to try Wincarnis, and the quickness with which I felt restoration returning was astonishing. My restoration was rapid and complete, and from that day to this I have taken a dose of Wincarnis at least once every day."

Annual reports read Sunday at all the masses by Rev. John Roux, M. S., the pastor, showed that members of St. James' parish were commendably liberal in their church giving during 1922 and that exceptionally prudent administration of the affairs of the parish made it possible to meet all the usual and extraordinary expenditures and to lay by a surplus. The report showed that there is a balance in excess of $11,000 in the church treasury and the church property entirely free of debt. Included in the extraordinary expenses of the year was an item of just over $5,000 for replacing a church boiler that had been in use since the church was built in 1900. If this large item of expense were not included in the year's outlay, the surplus from the year's revenue would have been nearly $9,000.

Parishioners were exceedingly well pleased with the annual report, and friendly to the pastor's suggestion that they increase the amount of their offering each Sunday as well as the amount given in each monthly collection that the reserve funds of the parish be built up sufficiently to permit of undertaking the important work of remodeling and increasing the size of St. James' parochial school building, now a pressing need of the parish.

Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Ward, in Providence, the funeral services were conducted for Mrs. Isabella Bissell Lowell by Rev. H. E. Mason, pastor of the Danielson Congregational church. Burial was at North Stonington. Relatives served as bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Windham County National bank held Saturday officers who have served the institution during the past year were in every case re-elected. Timothy E. Hopkins is president; Nathan D. Prince, vice president; Francis E. Storrs, cashier, and Frank J. G. Bailey, assistant cashier.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Jan. 13.—Speculators for the advance were in control of today's brief session of the stock market, chief interest again being centered in special shares with new leaders brought forward to take the place of old favorites, which have temporarily reached their zenith.

The European situation continues to be virtually disregarded as a market factor although postponement of the German reparations payment, due January 15, to the end of the month and the prospect of an international conference on economic problems had a cheerful effect on sentiment. Buying power was concentrated chiefly in shares of corporations which have reported "good earnings" and in which there are strong possibilities of early dividend action.

Announcement of an increase of 10 cents a barrel in the price of mid-continent crude oil, bringing the quotation to $2.10 a barrel, came too late to have much effect on the market, although most of the popular shares closed at higher levels. Cosden established another new top at 59 5-8, closing pt. 2¼ 1-2 for a slight net gain. Transcontinental A and B and Houston each advanced a point, of more but California Petroleum yielded a point on profit taking by recent buyers. Simms Oil was quiet, selling at 15 a new top, 1-2 for a net gain of nearly a point.

Standard industrial issues such as U. S. Steel, American and Baldwin Locomotives, Studebaker, Amerada and American Smelting showed only fractional changes. Another increase in the price of lead found reaction in a point gain in National Lead.

Sears, Roebuck was headed one of the most active specialties, touching 134 1-2 but slipping back at the close to 125, where it was up 6 1-2 points on the day. Macy & Co. was heavily traded in just before the close, making a net gain of 5 1-2 points.

Other strong spots were American Linseed common and preferred, International Paper, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Coca Cola, Chuck Peabody, Goodrich preferred, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron, Gulf States Steel and Texas Gulf Sulphur, all of which showed 4 points or more. Sugars, coppers, oils, food and rail issues made moderate gains, the latter group closing at the highest levels of the day.

Arbitrage carrying railroad shares were bid up. Delaware & Hudson rising 8 points and Delaware, Lack. 4, but the other rails were irregular. No special reason was apparent for the further weakness of New Haven, which dropped below 45 and then rallied to 47 1-4, where it was off 2-4 on the day.

Foreign exchange rates went lower on a comparatively small volume of business. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.67 1-2, and French francs again set below 7.00 cents, most of the business being done around 6.98. Polish and Hungarian exchange dropped to new low levels.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases of $31,772,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $4,227,000 in reserve of members in the Federal Reserve bank; $37,746,000 in net demand deposits and $10,567,000 in time deposits. Aggregate reserve totalled only $491,741,000, showing in excess reserve of $24,963,130 last week to a deficit in reserve this week of $27,012,940.

JEWETT CITY

Joe McCarthy and "Cup" LeClaire are welcome home again after a voyage half way around the world, in the U. S. merchant marine service. The last letter to reach home from them was a letter from Joe to his mother, dated at Singapore, Straits Settlement, a navy town in the Dutch East Indies on the other side of the world.

The vacation performances of these two young men, both less than twenty-five years of age, are no unusual deal entirely out of the ordinary that a detailed account of their seafaring is given. Since, during the war, a dozen trans-Atlantic trips, in the transport service stand to their credit. After the war Joe took a side trip to the Mediterranean and South African ports. Later both young men shipped on a tramp tanker, before the mast, for all service, to the Gulf and Alaskan ports.

Small coastal trips becoming tame they signed articles for a voyage that should circumnavigate the globe. The itinerary took them first to Gibraltar, then through the Mediterranean, Red Sea and via the Straits of Molucca to Singapore. It was the intention when the vessel sailed, to return via the Pacific to New York via Panama, but on account of a change in cargo manifests the return trip was over the same course. The voyage consumed almost seven months. The crew were allowed long shore liberty in Egypt. "Cup" went over and dances a regular Jewett City jig for the benefit of the Great Sphinx, and being a polite boy, his local friends imagine him with his hat off at the tomb of Mycerinus Manuetho, which Herodotus declared was built by Queen Nitocris in the sixth Dynasty.

K. of C. first degree meeting tonight. Foresters' hall.—adv.

Saturday evening was a coasting night, the like of which has not been seen in Jewett City for many a moon. Boys and girls, young and old, enjoyed the fine sliding on Taylor Hill, which came finely into its own after the inactivity of a few years.

Early risers Saturday morning enjoyed the unusual pleasure of seeing Venus poised on the southern tip of the first quarter of the old moon. The surpassing display was to be seen in the eastern sky with clear cut distinctiveness, a half hour before sunrise.

The great fall of snow has made vehicular travel necessarily slow. Fire Marshal G. H. Prior and Foreman Thomas Wakely are especially anxious at this time that every extra precaution should be taken to prevent fires.

Chief Stanton of Norwich does not hesitate to advise the people to clear away a space about the hydrant that may be in front of one's property. The home fire officials invite Jewett City people to thus cooperate so that in event of fire [illegible] be done.

Some of the churches have no coal, others have wood. Two are using coal and for the first time. Sunday all the churches in the borough held their usual services in the respective places. Mail notes received in the borough from the Ornithological society, are asking observers to keep watch for evasive birds that are now visiting those latitudes. The great northern shrike is here. It is his custom to arrive with heavy northward snow storms. Horned larks were seen feeding in the road near Fred Gilbert's cow barn every day last week. The great Arctic owl is reported no farther away than Palmer, Mass. He will come down here as the many predicted snow storms arrive. When one looks out of his window some of these nights and sees a great white Arctic owl perched on top of the clothes line post, he will be well worth looking at. As a rule he does not say much. GREATEST YEAR IN MOTOR VEHICLES; OVER 160,000 REGISTERED IN STATE

Over 160,000 motor vehicles were registered in Connecticut during the past calendar year, according to figures compiled at the motor vehicle department. This is an increase of 19,472 over the number registered in 1921. Aggregate receipts of the department for the year reached $3,567,744.84, a gain of $1,457,883.72, or 67.5 per cent. over the receipts for the previous year. It was by far the biggest business year in the department since its establishment in 1917.

Largest Gain in Private Cars.

The greatest gain was in private cars, $1,926,563.90 being paid for the registration of 124,608 of these as compared to $1,139,381.68 paid for the registration of 108,892 in 1921. The registration of commercial cars, which slumped, at the beginning of the year, picked up as the season advanced with the result that 25,922 were registered in the entire year, an increase of 1,550. The fees for these commercial car registrations aggregated $568,443.01 in 1922 as against $404,861.58 in 1921, showing an increase of approximately 100 per cent., due largely to the new schedule of motor truck fees adopted by the last session of the legislature and effective for the first time last year. Considerable of the increase in fees on account of other registrations is attributed to the general raising of the fee schedule by the last session of the legislature.

The exact total of motor vehicle registrations for the past year was 160,491, but 579 of these were for motor vehicles owned by different municipalities in the state for the registration of which no fees were charged, according to law.

There was an increase of 15,177 in the number of licensed operators, a total of 171,584 being thus authorized to drive motor vehicles in 1922, as against 156,407 in 1921. The 1922 total shown includes 109 licenses granted to operators of municipal cars for which no fees were paid.

35,590 Operators Examined.

Examinations were given during the past year to 35,590 prospective operators. In 1921, 33,596 such examinations were given, making the gain for the past year 2,204. This total of examinations is significant of an increase in the number of new operators, as examinations are rarely given to applicants other than persons who have not held licenses during the year next preceding.

Fines for violations of the motor vehicle law aggregated $65,433.96 in 5,333 cases. There were 4,531 such cases in 1921 which netted the department $63,323.68. Fines resulting from the passing to the department of 139 bad checks netted $700 more during the year.

During 1922, the department issued 2,447 public service motor vehicle registrations, for which it received fees of $31,732.25. Of these, 2,160 were the so-called "O" registrations such as those issued for taxicabs, and the fees for those amounted to $27,868.75. The remaining 287 were jitney registrations, for which $3,863.50 was collected in fees. For the year 1921, there was no distinction in public service registration, as the jitney law had not become effective. For 1,537 public service registrations issued in 1921, the department collected $20,082.

One Airship, Four Operators.

One airship was registered during 1922, the fee for which was $5. Four airship operators were licensed at $2 each. There was one airship registration and two aviators licensed in 1921.

All the fees received were by law turned over to the state highway department, through the state treasury, for use in maintaining and repairing state highways.

Receipts of the department for the last quarter of 1922 aggregated $104,016,540, which was an increase of $33,675,40, or 47.6 per cent., over the corresponding period of 1921.

WILL BE ANAESTHETIST AT THE BACKUS HOSPITAL

Miss Agnes M. Nelson, daughter of Antoine Nelson of this city, has been engaged as an anaesthetist at the W. Backus hospital. She is a graduate of the Hartford hospital training school, and for the last year and a half was in charge of the anaesthesia of the operating rooms of the Hartford hospital and instructress in the giving of anaesthesia, particularly the gas-oxide method. She will begin her duties at the hospital this (Monday) morning.

Miss Nelson finds rather strenuous work for her first day, four operations being scheduled for this morning.

Miss Nelson and Dr. Albert Miller of Providence, R. I., have both pronounced the McKesson machine at the Backus hospital one of the best on the market. This machine was presented to the hospital by the Norwich Rotary club and was first used by the late Dr. John S. Blackmar.

FEAR TAFTVILLE GIRL HAS LOSS OF MEMORY

Miss Ethel Aberg, 19, disappeared from her home in Taftville Friday evening and no clue to her whereabouts has been found. Miss Aberg left her home about 7.45 to visit relatives in the village but she did not arrive there. For some time she has been contemplating a visit to her brother in Washington, D. C., but she has not been there. She has been recovering from an attack of nervous exhaustion and loss of memory is feared. She is about 5 feet 5 inches in height, medium brown hair, blue eyes, weight about 120 pounds. She wore when she left home a gray dress taupe coat and small black velvet hat.

The Norwich police have been asked to assist in the search for the missing girl.

DYNAMITED ICE IN SEARCH FOR BRASSILL

Search for Michael Brassill, 75, who disappeared last Wednesday from his home on Meeting House Hill in the town of Franklin, was continued on Saturday and Sunday by his neighbors and people of the town, but without finding any traces of him.

On the chance that he might have fallen into Peck Hollow brook, which runs near his home dynamite was used Sunday on the ice under the bridge about half a mile below his home in the expectation that his body might have lodged there if he had been drowned in the brook. A considerable part of the ice was blown up, but nothing to offer any clue to the disappearance of the man was brought to light.

Partial Eclipse of Venus.

Many local people out early Saturday morning witnessed a sight not often seen, that of Venus and the moon crossing paths.

It seemed to the watchers that Venus disappeared from view just at the upper horn of the moon, but reports by astronomers have it that Venus failed to disappear but barely shaved the upper horn of the moon.

Venus and the moon were both in a clear sky and the partial eclipse was one of beauty. Those who watched closely were able to see the moon and Venus swing closely into line, the distance between them seeming less at every look. At one time it seemed that Venus would surely pass directly behind the moon, but this proved a bad guess, for the paths were not in a line, and the brilliant lady slipped past the man in the moon and continued on her way.

ENJOY THE COLD WEATHER

REMEMBER, when you were a child, how you used to shout for joy when you ran out into the cold, bracing winter air—how active and lively you felt?

That was because your blood was rich and pure and your body strong and vigorous. You can enjoy the severest weather now if you will purify your blood and restore your vitality and "pep" with that famous old tonic, Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Your druggist has it—liquid or tablets, as you prefer.

ASKS SHIPPERS' COOPERATION TO RELIEVE FREIGHT TIE-UP

President E. J. Pearson of The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company has issued the following statement, outlining the freight conditions on the New Haven, and asking further cooperation on the part of shippers and others in an effort to bring about improvement:

"To Shippers and all concerned:

"The freight situation is becoming such that still further cooperation on the part of shippers is necessary for the purpose of stopping the gradually increasing tide of congestion, thereby enabling improvement in service and increase in capacity. The situation is reflected by the following daily averages:

	Cars on line	Cars placed for unloading	Cars unloaded	Time per car in unloading—days
November	55,550	10,190	4,561	2.23
Dec. 1-8	52,464	10,092	4,389	2.29
Dec. 9-17	53,105	9,512	4,452	2.29
Dec. 18-24	54,533	9,059	3,893	2.32
Dec. 25-
Jan. 2	54,606	9,417	3,853	2.46
Jan. 3-9	55,922	48,970	3,432	2.61

"The present embargoes have not yet become effective, as indicated by the increase in cars on line, and in cars en route from other lines, as per their daily statement of cars for use, as follows: December 23, 6,825; December 25, 6,930; December 30, 6,9—; January 3, 6,986; January 5, 6,559; January 6, 6,577; January 7, 7,020; January 8, 6,441; January 9, 6,386.

"Obviously a better condition of power would enable the movement up to and the placing of more cars at destination, but the cooperation of consignees is essential for the necessary improvement in time required per car for unloading. Through such assistance the work of switching at point of destination can be reduced and the availability of present power increased.

"Particular attention is invited to the increasing number of cars on the line, plus those en route on the one hand, and the record in regard to unloading on the road as a whole on the other. This indicates increasing congestion through the gateways and within yards through which the cars are received and trains are handled, and still further reduces capacity of power available for movement of traffic. It is obvious that continuation of the combination of the several factors of adversity, including weather conditions, will cause increasing difficulties for all.

"The cooperation requested, therefore, is improvement in unloading without regard to demurrage time and the equation of incoming traffic to the fullest extent practicable, consistent with present commercial and industrial requirements, so that with diminishing congestion the tide may be turned; the railroad may be better able, during the interim, to protect emergency requirements through permits; the off-road movement of both loads and empties, which is an essential to unblocking of the situation, may be improved, and embargo restrictions may be gradually relinquished.

"The present situation is a matter not only of concern but also of regret to the management, because the improvements made to the property and the additional power purchased during the past few years, were all to the end that such a traffic situation as at present could be adequately met. This condition would have been achieved except for the strike of the shopmen.

"The present serious effect of that strike arises from the necessary diminishing of the customary work of re-conditioning locomotives, during the several earlier months of the strike. Because of the complete absence of men on repairs commencing July 1, and the continuation during the several months thereafter of intimidation, violence, and sabotage, which increased the work required and also the difficulty in keeping engines in service, there was a loss roughly equivalent to four months of the normal shop output.

"Assistance of outside shops for heavy repairs to locomotives was negotiated on July 1, but only 42 engines have been received up to January 1. The new forces, now fully recruited, are maintaining current requirements and assisting in reducing the large volume of accrued repair work. The output of railroad shops and engine houses in November and December was in excess of the two months immediately preceding the strike. With the additional work being done by outside shops, the prospects are for an output of repaired locomotives in January and following months of fifty per cent or more in excess of the normal requirements, which is operating in overcoming arrearages. It is to be noted that return of strikers would not increase the productive capacity of shops under the present condition that has been brought about, or expedite the recovery of conditions already created by those who went out on strike. The heavy passenger travel, mail, and express movement during the holiday required 285 additional passenger trains, and the addition of 465 cars to regular trains. With this heavy demand behind us, additional power will become available for freight service, switching and the shopping program.

"The overcoming of the difficulties occasioned by any excess waves of movement in transportation cannot be brought about immediately, nevertheless through the arrangements upon way by the railroad, and with the further cooperation of its patrons, and subject to weather conditions, there will be continuous and increasing improvement; more transportation can be furnished; better service can be rendered; and the very high costs now running against the railroad can be reduced.

"Your careful consideration of the facts in the present situation, the steps for betterment, and your further assistance will be appreciated."

CENTRAL BAPTIST SCHOOL ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Officers of the Central Baptist Sunday school were elected Sunday at the 84th annual meeting, which was held at the regular school session.

The following were elected; Superintendent, James L. Case; assistant superintendents, C. Edward Smith, Edward Y. Messinger, Harold S. Burt; secretary, Miss Bessie A. Grimes; treasurer, N. Eugene Smith; assistant treasurer, Horace F. Church; librarian, Willis Hill; chorister, G. Fred Noyes; assistant chorister, Charles D. Geer; auditor, Gilbert S. Raymond.

Superintendent Case made his annual report in which he spoke of the gratifying spirit of Christian service which has characterized the year's work. The average attendance has been larger than a year ago, contributions have been approximately $1,000, the interest in the Men's Bible class and the large enrollment in and the character of work in the beginner's and primary departments have been outstanding features. The social interests of the school have been maintained and a real "school spirit" has been developed. Of the 22 persons who joined the church by baptism during the year, seventeen were members of the school.

The report of secretary Harold S. Burt showed a present enrollment of 1787. The perfect attendance record was as follows: Horace F. Church, 28 years; Rosalynd Cranska, 15 years; Dorothy Gildersleeve, 8 years; Edwin Cole, Jr., 2 years; Mrs. Frank L. Dodge 9 years; Capt. William G. Tarbox, Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, Miss Ellett Barr, 1 year. There have been ten deaths in the membership in the year: John Hunt, Charles Burgess, Mrs. John A. Morgan, Mrs. Eunice E. Edson, William Cousins, Mrs. F. E. Boyens, John A. Turner, Mrs. Emma Tubbs, Mrs. James Gordon, Mrs. Delia Leffingwell Petroni.

Treasurer N. Eugene Smith reported total receipts of $951.15, out of which $542.77 had been used in the operating department and $356.31 in the missionary account, leaving a balance on hand of $92.07.

Spray Rings Will Pool Orders.

At a meeting recently held in the farm bureau office by representatives of the fruit spray rings it was decided to pool orders for insecticides and Irving Bushnell, manager of the Norwich Spray Ring was chosen to handle this proposition. H. J. Larkham, president of the Norwich Spray Ring, called the meeting and at this time it was brought out that there would probably be a scarcity of arsenate of lead which was bound to put the price up. At the present time some dealers are not even quoting until they know more definitely what the market is going to be. In view of the fact that the three spray rings will probably handle close to half a ton of arsenate it was felt that if a few cents per pound could be saved it would be a worthwhile proposition.

Three spray rings cooperating in this move are Lebanon, Norwich and Griswold. Besides arsenate of lead, lime, sulphur solution and black leaf 40 will probably be purchased.

It's all right for a man to be cool in the hour of danger—if the coolness isn't all in his feet.

BEGIN CUTTING ICE AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

Ice cutting at Ford's ponds at East Great Plain has continued since noon Friday with the result that a lot of good clear 11-inch ice has been run into the houses.

The work has been handicapped by shortage in help, however, and at least a dozen more men could be put to work. Wages that are the same as during the war years are being paid, but even at that they have not secured enough men.

TAFTVILLE MAN IN JAIL IN MAINE FOR BIGAMY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Farmington, Me., Jan. 14.—Emile Tellier, also known as Oliver Roberts, was sent to jail in default of $1,000 bail after he had been arraigned in the municipal court at Farmington, Me., on Jan. 5th, on a charge of bigamy.

It is alleged that Tellier married a young woman in Farmington, though he had a wife in Taftville, Conn. He was arrested in the latter place and brought to Maine by Deputy W. R. Leavitt of Phillips.

Samson was the first actor to bring down a house—and he was killed by the fall.

STUMP?

FROM childhood up, we meet stumps every day of our lives.

They either stump us, or we stump them. The more successful we are in jumping stumps, the less are we stumpt by stumps.

The most important stumps to watch are those that stump the maintenance of good health.

When Nature sounds her warning and indicates unmistakably the location of a stump—HEED NATURE.

When the mouth tastes bad, breath is foul, stomach distressed, brain foggy, eye dull, remember Beecham's Pills will clear away the stumps of indigestion, constipation and biliousness.

For 80 years this famous family medicine has stumpt disorders of stomach, liver and bowels to hold their grip on man, woman or child.

POETRY

THE THINGS I MISS.

An easy thing, O Power Divine,
To thank Thee for these gifts of Thine
For summer's sunshine winter's snow,
For hearts that kindle, thoughts that flow.

But when shall I attain to this—
To thank Thee for the things I miss?

For all young Fancy's early gleams
And dreams of joys that still are dreams
Hopes unfilled and pleasures known
Through others' fortunes not my own
And blessings seen that are not given
And never will be this side Heaven.

Had I, too, shared the joys I see,
Would there have been a heaven for me?
Could I have felt Thy presence near
Had I possessed what I hold dear?
My deepest fortune, highest bliss,
Have grown, perchance, from things I miss.

Sometimes there comes an hour of calm
Grief turns to blessing, pain to balm;
A Power that works above my will Still leads me onward, upward still,
And then my heart attains to this,
To thank Thee, for the things I miss.

THE WOODS.

And I have loved the woods the hoary
Ices woods,
In all their glory and their majesty
Magnificent—the forest solitudes,
Eloquent of God and liberty;
Yes, loved them ever since I was a child
When of the mighty trees the shade reached
Where Nature as a mother on me smiled
And in her love a lofty language taught,
Unknown to the vain world, until their name
Unto my heart was an enchanted word.
Around my spirit with charms
I was helped rejoicing to take my stand
Where never the foot of the soiller trod
In the Great Temple of the Living God.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I beg your pardon, sir, but what is your name?" the teller politely asked the man presenting a check.

"Name," echoed the indignant customer, "don't you see my signature on the check?"

"I do," answered the teller. "That's what aroused my curiosity."—Dry Goods Economist.

"Why don't you make some such speeches as Daniel Webster made?"

"I wouldn't attempt such a thing," answered Senator Sorghum. "Daniel Webster had an advantage which I shall not attempt to dispute. The American public is a fine, intellectual and discriminating audience. But Dan saw it first."—Washington Evening Star.

The dean was exceedingly angry. "So you confess that this unfortunate man was carried to the pond and drenched? Now what part did you take in this disgraceful affair?"

"The right leg, sir," answered the sophomore meekly.—Johns Hopkins Black and Blue Jay.

Teacher—"Tommy, what did I tell you yesterday that it was called to take out several letters?"

Tommy Figgjam—"Abbreviate."

Teacher—"Then make a sentence correctly, using the word 'abbreviate.'"

Tommy—"I saw the letter carrier abbreviate the mailbox on the corner."—Baltimore American.

FRANCE READY TO IMPOSE PENALTIES ON GERMANY

To Meet Conditions Arising From the Complete Breakdown of Negotiations Between the French and the German Magnates in the Ruhr District—Penalties May Include Military Measures as Well as Economic and Financial—French Military Occupation of Bochum and Gelsenkirchen Has Been Completed—Paris Appears to be Satisfied With Progress of Events in the Ruhr—As the Germans Become Obstinate the French and Belgians Display More Aggressiveness.

Essen, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—The deadlock involving the complete breakdown of all negotiations in the economic field between the French occupying authorities and the German magnates in the Ruhr is creating a critical situation which the French will meet tomorrow with penalties, military, economic and financial. The exact nature of the penalties the French general staff refuses to disclose, saying that instructions from Paris are being awaited.

In the meantime the military occupation of Bochum and Gelsenkirchen has been completed according to plan.

The troops which have been pouring into the Ruhr are estimated to be now close to 70,000. They have entered the basin and every bridge is guarded with machine guns, sentries are at all the cross roads and the searchlights are newly held.

The roads are traversed with armored cars, machine gun companies and batteries of 75s are moving up to the limits of the new occupied areas.

The workers however, excepting for a half hours strike ordered from Berline, which was enforced throughout the Ruhr, show no disposition to quit work, and all the furnaces and steel plants which line the road from Essen to Muelheim, Duisburg and Duesseldorf, were going at full blast tonight.

FRENCH REACH LIMIT OF THE NEUTRAL ZONE

Paris, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—The French and Belgian troops now occupy the whole Ruhr basin and have reached the limits of that neutral zone, 25 miles in depth, in which the Germans are barred from having Reichswehr or regular garrisons. The troops are at the gates of Dortmund, where they were ordered to stop for the present.

In view of the progressive obstinacy of the German attitude, however, it has been decided to extend the advance Tuesday, occupying Dortmund, and establish troops in the northwest, east and southwest, completely controlling the important railroad junctions.

It is said the advance will extend between Lunen and Elberfeld, which will be occupied just now.

The promptitude which the French have shown in countering each fresh move of resistance appears to be having the effect at least on the industrial magnates who were at first opposed to the police coercitatory methods of the French may temporarily break down.

The Franco-Belgian operations are being everywhere carried out with the regularity of clockwork; such protests as have been made at the different centers of the occupied areas were of a formal nature. The normal life of the great industrial region continues unmodified; the factories are working as usual.

It was affirmed in official circles tonight that French government has an instant counter-move ready for any move the Reich may make. All arrangements have been made to apply the appropriate measures to German menaces, whether they concern questions of labor, food supplies or transportation. For instance, General Degoutte, director of communications, has taken steps to defeat the German plan to deprive the Ruhr basin of rolling stock, which the Germans have just begun to put into operation.

The commission of control has discovered that the rail tax has not been collected for the past three months, enabling German transit to get coal at 40 per cent under the world prices and measures have been taken to stop this.

DRASTIC ACTION TODAY BY REPARATIONS COMMISSION

Paris, January 15.—(By the A. P.)—It was definitely announced by one of the highest authorities of the French government tonight that the reparations commission tomorrow morning will take one of the most important decisions, when the question of Germany's refusal to make any further deliveries in kind comes up for discussion.

The recent German note in reply to the notification of the French measures in the Ruhr announces that in view of French action in the Ruhr the German government has suspended all deliveries of kind to the allies, including coal, wood, dyes, cattle, building material and other commodities.

The commission by a majority of three, Great Britain abstaining will declare Germany in wilful default on these deliveries for the year 1923. This will open the way for a new policy of requisition which France will immediately put into effect.

This was also announced by one of the highest officials, who explained that France would follow the plan adopted by Germany during the war in occupied France and give written bonds or agreements to pay those from whom requisitioned property is taken. Payment will probably be made with the millions of German paper marks now held by the bank of France and the reparations commission.

The same spokesman emphasized tonight that France would meet continuation of German passive resistance in the Ruhr with the further application of penalties and that German attacks on the treaty of Versailles would be successfully countered.

BOYDEN NOT AUTHORIZED TO PRESENT ANY PLAN

Washington, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—In a formal statement issued late today by the state department, it was officially announced that Mr. Boyden has no instructions to present any plan to the reparations commission and that neither Secretary Hughes nor any one in the department had approved any plan for submission to the commission.

The department's statement was prompted by the Associated Press despatch from Paris concerning a plan for settlement of the reparations problem which the American representative with the reparations commission said had been approved by Secretary Hughes and which was to come up soon for discussion before the commission.

The statement issued by the parliament said:

"The department does not know to what this dispatch refers. Neither the secretary nor anyone in behalf of the department has approved any plan for submission to the reparations commission or has authorized any such submission. The department is not attempting directly or indirectly to fix German reparations or to prepare plans for the reparations commission. Mr. Boyden has no instructions to present any plan to the reparations commission."

HOW BELGIUM REGARDS DEVELOPMENTS IN THE RUHR

Brussels, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—The new developments in the Ruhr were the subject of long discussion by the cabinet today. The agreement with the French government regarding complementary military operations necessitated by Germany's systematic obstruction is complete, and all decisions have been taken with common accord.

Belgian official circles consider the situation created by Berlin's attitude as of the gravest nature, but still hope that affairs will settle down without serious incidents.

PARIS SATISFIED WITH EVENTS IN THE RUHR

Paris, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—Satisfaction at the progress of events in the Ruhr was expressed this evening by a French government spokesman, who stated that Dortmund was almost certain to be occupied—if not the city, at least its vicinity.

Occupation of the Dortmund district is imperative, he said, not only because of the coke it produces but because it supplies Essen with electricity for light and power, and this supply must be ensured.

STRIKE AT COBLENZ PASSED WITHOUT INCIDENT

Coblenz, Jan. 15.—The half-hour strike, called as a demonstration of "mourning" for the occupation of the Ruhr, passed off without incident throughout the British and American zones of occupation. The trains were stopped for the required time and the banks, telegraph offices and all the government bureaus were closed. The employes of the hotels, shops and factories also were idle during the interval, which many passed supping lasges of beer.

FAILED TO FIND ISLAND TO ESTABLISH KINGDOM

San Francisco, Jan. 15.—J. K. Cousins, globe-trotter who has just arrived here from the Orient, has been almost dissuaded from his announced plan to establish an independent kingdom somewhere in the South Pacific ocean.

Half in jest, Cousins sailed more than a year ago from the coast of China on a cruise of the South sea with the avowed purpose of finding a new island on which to found a principality free from the restraints of more complex civilizations.

He found on his arrival huge piles of letters from Americans who want to serve the new kingdom as diplomatic agents. Some of them are willing to serve for a dollar a year or even a song, in view of certain unVolsteadian perquisites attaching to the service.

There is just one drawback; Cousins hasn't found the island.

STEAMSHIP MINNESOTA SOLD TO WRECKING FIRM

New York, Jan. 15.—The steamship Minnesota, largest freighter under the American flag and built by J. J. Hill at New London, Conn., in 1904, was sold today to a wrecink firm.

The big ship, bought by the Atlantic Transport line of the International Mercantile Marine Co., in 1915 and was sold during the war as a horse and cargo transport, has been laid up since 1918. She is 622 feet long, 72 feet beam and carried 33,000 tons.

OBITUARY. John G. Clark.

New Haven, Jan. 15.—John G. Clark, for almost thirty years a broker here and a graduate of Yale, died at his home here today in his 55th year. He was born in Cincinnati in 1868 and was graduated from the Yale Law school in 1891. He leaves his widow and two brothers, E. E. Clark and A. Ray Clark, both brokers of New York city.

Rum Craft Menace Legitimate Shipping

Darkened Ships Are Lying Directly in the Path of Incoming Liners.

New York, Jan. 15.—Darkened ships, lying at night beyond the three mile limit directly in the path of incoming liners, have become a menace to legitimate shipping, Captain J. W. McKenzie of the steamship Fort Victoria declared on his arrival tonight. He reported sighting a group of vessels, believed to have been part of the fleet along the Jersey coast, which recently supplied scores of motor boats with cargoes of liquor.

"There is great danger in the presence of such a fleet," said Capt. McKenzie. "For the vessels carry no lights at night, as they probably are seeking new locations or keeping under cover of darkness to avoid the prohibition navy.

"Last night a blinding storm made navigation difficult, and the danger was increased by the fact that the booze fleet could not been seen although we believed it to be there.

"The fleet has grown smaller since I went out last Wednesday," the captain observed. "At that time there were 12 schooners and one Canadian steamship of about 2,000 tons. The latter anchored about 12 miles off the lightship. Today there seemed to be only seven schooners and the steamship."

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING STOLEN AUTOMOBILES

Hartford, Jan. 15.—Edward F. Lawler of this city and P. J. Hannon of West Hartford were arrested by the state police this afternoon charged with receiving and concealing stolen automobiles. They were held on bonds of $7,500 and $5,000, respectively. Their arrests are in connection with the statewide round-up of stolen automobiles which began about five days ago with the arrests of Sadlon and Harold Goldy of Bridgeport. Eight arrests have now been made. Several automobiles were seized by the police in the arrests today, two of which have been positively identified as stolen machines. One, found in Lawler's garage, is the property of the Diehl Manufacturing company of Elizabeth, N. J., which was stolen in December. These two were arrested about a year ago on the same charge but were freed because the police were unable to prove that five cars found in their possession were stolen property.

BOSTON WAS DARKENED BY FOG FROM THE SEA

Boston, Jan. 15.—Darkness settled over the city today as the east wind drove in a heavy fog from the sea, with a light rain. Street lights were kept burning for several hours after the usual time and traffic threaded its way cautiously through the slippery streets.

An inch of snow which fell during the night turned to slush and made the task of clearing railroad terminal switches hardly freed from the recent heavy snows, an additional adverse influence in the movement of trains. All the New England railroads made extra efforts over Sunday to clear up the congestio nof freight and particularly coal cars, but today they were still far from caught up and many communities were almost without fuel. In western Massachusetts the snowfall last night was heavy.

CUTTER SENT TO TOW COAL-LADEN SCHOONERS

Boston, Jan. 15.—The coast guard service is extended helping hand a long way today when the cutter Ossipee was ordered to help relieve a coal shortage in Maine by seeking two schooners, storm bound in Casco Bay with cargoes of coal, and to take them in tow to their destination. The schooner Moonbeam, with coal consigned to Jonesport, and the Charles C. Lister, for Vinalhaven, are the vessels.

Jonesport is reported to be without coal, and wood is being burned there. At Vinal Haven the situation is believed to be the same. The former has rail connections, but the latter is dependent entirely on water-borne cargoes.

WALL RESIGNS FROM LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES

Hartford, Jan. 15.—Representative Thomas J. Wall of Torrington has written to Speaker Leonard J. Nickerson resigning from all committees to which he was appointed including the chairmanship of the joint committee on constitutional amendments.

Other appointments rejected by Mr. Wall are places on the committees on congressional and senatorial districts, legislative expenses and federal relations.

THEFTS FROM THE RITZ ART AUCTION GALLERIES

New York, Jan. 15.—Small artistic pieces valued at $25,000 were stolen early Sunday morning from the Ritz Art auction galleries in West Forty-Sixth street, it was disclosed by the police today.

Ransacking the galleries between half-hourly visits of a neighborhood night watchman, the thieves carefully selected their loot from the entire stock, valued at more than $500,000, taking only standard articles readily negotiable.

TO NEGOTIATE FOR THE RETURN OF STOLEN JEWELS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 15.—Local police announced tonight they are investigating a report that Charles P. Schoellkopf, Buffalo millionaire, is en route here to negotiate privately with representatives of men who robbed his wife of jewels valued at $500,000 for the return of the jewels. Schoellkopf, according to information received here from New York police, had received an offer for the return of the jewels for a consideration of $100,000.

$40,000 SUIT AGAINST THE RUTLAND RAILROAD

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 15.—Suit for $40,000 against the Rutland railroad was filed here today by Lawrence L. Flanders, who was employed by the company during the shopmen's strike. The bill alleges that Flanders was assaulted by strikers and injured Aug. 19 last, "while in performance of duty," and that the railroad company failed to provide him with proper protection.

Report on Priority Projects for the Navy

New London Submarine Base is Given Priority Over the Hampton Roads Base.

Washington, Jan. 15—Development of an adequate advance fleet base on Oahu, Hawaiian island, is given first priority among shore projects for the navy in the report of the board headed by Read-Admiral Rodman, assigned by Secretary Denby to recommend a shore establishment policy for the department.

The main fleet base in San Francisco bay is placed next by the report, the project to include Alameda development as "imperative," developments of similar bases at Puget Sound, New York, Narraganset Bay and Chesapeake Bay coming next in order and the advance base in the canal zone following these.

The report of the board was sent to congress today by Mr. Denby. It recommends abandonment of numerous minor naval sites, but no navy yard or station appears on this list.

Ideal conditions as to fleet bases, the report said, would be the maintenance of two adequate establishments each on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts with advance bases in the Canal Zone and the Hawaiian Islands, naval activities to be closely concentrated at the points desired.

Development of the New York, Narragansett Bay base should include the dredging of Hell Gate to permit "ready passage of the largest vessels from Long Island Sound to New York harbor."

Six secondary bases are recommended in the program. San Diego, Cal., is placed first in priority for development for submarines, destroyers and aircraft and personnel training with no limitation as to time of development. A site for an Alaskan submarine and destroyer operating and supply base "to be limited at this time to selection and acquisition of the site," comes next.

An advanced operating base for the fleet in the eastern West Indies is third, also limited to selection and acquisition of the site at present. A Boston-Portsmouth region limited fleet base with no present major development is fourth. A Key West submarine and aviation base with no present development comes fifth and a minor operating base at Charleston, S. C., with no present development is sixth.

Continuance of the Philadelphia navy yard and retention on inactive status of the New Orleans yard as fleet repair and maintenance points is recommended.

The Squatum (Mass.) destroyer and submarine base is recommended for abandonment.

If conditions required reduction of activities at submarine bases, the board said, they should be reduced in the following order: Hampton Roads, New London (Conn.), San Diego, Pearl Harbor and Canal Zone.

While each of the fleet bases named should be equipped with air service provisions, one on each coast probably would have to be expanded for war purposes, the board said, and noted that the Hampton Roads and San Diego stations are best suited for this. Continued experimenting with lighter than air craft requires retention of the Lakehurst and Cape May stations, it was said.

The retention of the Rockaway Beach, Long Island, station or acquisition of some other aviation base site in that region is urged for the New York area.

Air stations at Hampton Roads, Hawaiian Islands, San Diego, Canal Zone, Alaska region and eastern West Indies should ultimately be completely developed, the board held.

The board recommends that three naval training stations, be developed to concentrate training activities. San Diego is selected for the Pacific station and Newport, R. I., for the Atlantic. The Great Lakes station is now functioning for that region. If reductions were necessary, these three should be cut proportionately, the board said. The only fuel depot to be abandoned would be that at East Lamaine, Maine.

All existing hospitals and ammunition depots are necessary, the board held. Two existing mine bases should be added, it continued, plants at San Francisco and Pearl Harbor.

The board declared that the shore establishment policy of the department should be worked out as a well considered plan of development over a period of years, congress to be asked to make annual appropriations for carrying out this scheme exactly as it has done with development of the fleet itself.

OPERATION FAILED TO SAVE SEAMAN'S LIFE

New York, Jan. 15.—With the arrival today of the Conte Rosso, the Lloyd Sabaudo line, came the first news of the death of Erik Wilhelm Hubernette, the coal passer of the steamer Eastern King, who was transferred in mid-ocean during a raging storm for an operation. He was buried at sea.

The Conte Rosso was delayed two days by the storm and the seventy-mile change in her course to reach the Eastern King.

Dr. Giovannia Valenci said Hubernette was dying when taken into the operating room and although the operation was performed it was too late to save the seaman's life.

SNOWBALL FIGHT BY YALE UNDERCLASSMEN

New Haven, Jan. 15.—Several hundred members of the freshmen and sophomore class at Yale staged an old fashioned snowball fight here tonight that only ended with the appearance of thirty policemen sent out to quell a "riot." The fight took place at the entrance of Wright Hall, the freshman dormitory, on Elm and High streets. No arrests were made.

The fight lasted for an hour. With the arrival of the reserves, the freshmen and sophomores joined common cause and contented themselves with hurling witticisms and chanting the refrain of a popular song at the expense of the police. The students finally were dispersed.

BRITISH CABINET STUDIES DETAILS OF DEBT FUNDING

Had Before It the Complete Report of the Debt Funding Negotiations Being Conducted at Washington—Commission at Washington Halt Proceedings Pending Receipt of Instructions to British Commissioners From the Home Government.

London, Jan. 15.—(By The A. P.)—The British cabinet this afternoon had before it the full details of the debt funding negotiations being conducted at Washington by Chancellor of the Exchequer Baldwin, and postponement of the joint session of the American and British commissions until tomorrow is understood to have been due to the cabinet's deliberations.

It is believed here that, after a week of conferences with the Americans, Mr. Baldwin found it necessary to ask his government for power to close the negotiations on a basis which would involve changes in the original instructions under which the British commission went to Washington.

The cabinet is expected to wire the chancellor its decision tonight, but there is no hint as to whether the government approves or disapproves of his propostis.

BRITISH COMMISSIONERS AWAITING INSTRUCTIONS

Washington, Jan. 15.—A difference of views as to the terms of settlement having been developed, conversations between the British and American commissions regarding the refunding of Great Britains war debt to the United States were halted today while the British awaited instructions from their government. The subject matter of these instructions were withheld, but it was learned from the highest official sources that the fields of both the time of final payment and the interest rate had been canvassed rather thoroughly in an informal way.

The British expected to be ready to resume the negotiations tomorrow afternoon, but some of the participants appeared to be less confident than heretofore that an agreement in principal would be reached before the departure of the London commission for home next Saturday. Chairman Meilon of the American delegation was represented as being still hopeful of a tentative settlement before that time, but it was made clear that he was not predicting that one would be reached.

While suggestions thus far developed as to the time of the final payment on the debt of nearly five billions of dollars range from 50 to 60 years, as compared with the 25 years' limitation fixed by congress, the question of the interest rate is believed to be the one on which the commissions are farthest apart. On this point there have been suggestions not only as to various fixed rates, but also that there be a graduated rate, beginning at a very low figure and increasing over a series of years to a point that would make possible an average fixed rate for the total period over which the debt is to run.

While American officials declined to enter into any discussion as to the rates proposed, it was stated that the United States could not accept a figure as low as three per cent. On the other hand it was declared that a graduated interest rate would be undesirable for a number of reasons.

As to the time of final settlement, the American delegation is understood to have proposed fifty years with the British suggestong the longer period. It was stated that both sides to the negotiations were desirous of a settlement within as short a time as possible, but that naturally Great Britain wished to exercise all care lest she commit herself to a programme what would be exceremely difficult to carry out in years of failing trade and decreasing revenue.

In this connection emphasis was laid upon the consideration that the commissions were dealing solely with the future which in the present state of world conditions contained many more elements of uncertainty than normally would be the case. Payments by Great Britain, it was stated, necessarily depended largely upon further development of trade and an increase in her national wealth.

On the basis of present expectations in this direction, the British mission has given the American an estimate indicating an ability to retire some of the principal of the debt within the next five years, but details have been withheld.

DID POLICE UNWITTINGLY AID AUTOMOBILE THIEVES?

Bridgeport, Jan. 15.—Reports that local police unknowingly aided in the sale of cars alleged to have been stolen by a ring of automobile thieves now being investigated by state police here received official recognition by the board of police commissioners meeting here tonight.

A thorough investigation of a story published in an afternoon paper purporting to show that local police unwittingly acted as sales agents for the gang will be conducted tomorrow, according to Philo C. Calhoun, chairman of the board.

Mr. Calhoun announced, after the meeting, that the board intended to subpoena the editor of the paper and the reporters who handled the story in an effort to learn what connection existed between members of the gang and local policemen.

The story under investigation declared that local policemen received $50 for each customer they were able to find for cars offered for sale by men who have since been arrested as members of a statewide gang which is alleged to have stolen 1,200 cars. No charges that the policemen knew the cars were stolen was made. Mr. Calhoun, however, said that an investigation would be necessary nevertheless.

Four more automobiles, alleged to have been stolen by the gang, were seized today, making a total of twenty-eight. Three were found in Hartford and the fourth in Stratford.

The five men arrested as members of the gang will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hugh Lavery on Jan. 25.

IRELAND TO PLACE WOMEN ON FOOTING WITH MEN

London, Jan. 15.—The Irish free state government has decided to put women republicans on the same footing as men, according to a Dublin despatch to the Daily Mail, abandoning the chivalry which heretofore exempted them from search for arms and detention when found in possession of them. There is speculation whether the decision involves the shooting of the possessor of arms.

The correspondent reports a riot of fifty women prisoners in Mountjoy. The date of this occurrence is not given. The women destroyed everything breakable, and considerable force was necessary to restore order. The two ringleaders were placed in solitary confinement.

DEAD DENVER MINT BANDIT WAS LEADER

Denver, Colorado, January 15.—The slain mint bandit whose frozen body was found last night seated in an automobile in a private garage, and regarded by police as the master mind of a desperate gang of criminals, was identified today as J. C. Sloan of Casper, Wyoming. Rugg Williams, chief of Denvers police department, announced today he was one of the men the police have sought since December 18 last, when robbers made away with $200,000 in currency from a federal reserve bank truck in front of the mint, killing Charles T. Linton, a guard.

Sloan it was, police say, who offered himself as a target, standing upon the running board of the bandit car as it sped away and desperately firing at mint guards.

Sloan's body was found with a bullet in the heart and police declare he was instantly killed by a bullet from the revolver of Pete Keidinger, a guard employed at the mint.

Police believe that after placing Sloan's body in the automobile the rest drove to the garage, locked the automobile inside and escaped. None of the loot was found in the bandits' car. Sloan, according to the police, was the leader of one of the most daring gangs of desperadoes in the country. This gang went out only for "big money" say the officers, and one of the admission requirements was deadly marksmanship with either a revolver, rifle or shot gun.

The first meeting of the creditors of the Adelard J. Mathieu estate was held Monday morning before Referee in Bankruptcy Thomas J. Kelley. Due to certain obstacles not much headway was made besides the selection of a trustee. The bankrupt was present but his attorney who is from Hartford, failed to appear.

Only three of the creditors were present when the meeting was opened They were the representatives of the Standard Oil Company and the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Hartford, the former claim is for $2,215 and the latter for $500. The other creditor present was William Mathieu of Columbia who entered a claim for $3000 which he seeks to enter as preferred. A discussion arose as to this claim being entered as preferred. William Mathieu is a brother of the bankrupt and claimed that he had a conditional bill of sale on certain pieces of machinery and equipment in the store and that he had a copy of the bill sale recorded at the office of the town clerk. He stated that on July, 1920 he advanced $3000 to his brother to pay for a supply of tires from the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and on February, 1921 he received a bill of sale covering machinery and some equipment in his brothers stor.

Referee Kelley did not pass on the matter of William Mathieu's claim being a preferred one as the creditors present did not represent half of the amount owed.

Referee Kelley questioned Mathieu as to his assets and stated that there appeared only in the schedule $4,042.37 unsecured which was in bills owed the bankrupt aside from $7.48 in the bank.

Mr. Mathieu said that that was news to him as he had stock in the store an inventory of which he had presented to his attorney and the amount of which was $2800. Referee Kelley could not find this amount in the list.

It was decided to appoint Charles R. Hibberd trustee and he was accepted by the court. Referee Kelly stated that as soon as the trustee qualified and furnished a bond that provisions would be made to dispose of the stock in hte store through the state auctioneer as required by law.

In answer to a question the bankrupt said that only half of the unsecured claims could be collected by him.

William Mathieu's right to have his claim preferred was again questioned as he already has a suit against his brother pending in the superior court.

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics
After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.
Dr. Brigadelli: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 1017 High St., Camden, N. J.

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT STAND
Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

Glens Falls, N. Y.—"For over two months I was so sick I was not able to stand on my feet, and my husband did my housework. The doctor said an operation might be necessary. I read testimonial letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began to take it. Before I had finished taking the first bottle I saw what good it was doing me. I am now well and strong, doing all my work for a family of four, all my washing and my sewing, which I think is remarkable, as I had not dared to run my sewing machine, but had done all my sewing by hand. I truly feel that were it not for your medicine I would not be here today as my case seemed very serious."—Mrs. GEORGE W. BURCHELL, Glens Falls, N. Y.

There is a difference in sugars
Sugars vary in quality, sweetening power and cleanliness. When you buy loose sugar in paper bags, you cannot know what you're getting. If your sugar has been exposed to dust, handling or insects, you have to eat it just as it is. You can't wash it or clean it.
For this reason, the safe way—and the economical way—to buy sugar is to order Domino Package Sugars. The sturdy Domino Packages bring you clean cane sugar of exceptional quality, always uniform and of the highest sweetening power. There cannot be any waste, spillage or exposure. Ask your grocer.

Wednesday evening of this week the second concert in Y. M. C. A. course will be given in the Y. gymnasium. This concert will be given by "The" Versatile Art Company" in the Lyceum, and consists of Miss Georgia Price and Miss Katherine Fahnestock. Miss Price is a gifted harpist and violinist. She studied harp with one of the best known French teachers in New York, Salzedo, She also spent several years at the school of music, University of Michigan, studying the violin. She is a finished artist, a woman of great personal charm. The harp used by Miss Price is made especially for her. Miss Fahnestock is from Harrisburg, Penn. She is a graduate of Swarthmore College. She later studied dramatic art under Theodora Ursula Irvine of Carnegie Hall. She has become a reader and impersonator of unusual merit. While in New York she played in Liliom. Through the undeniable excellence of her work is woven the charm of a brilliant personality and the distinctiveness which comes only from originality of concept. The record of this company in 1921 was one hundred twenty dates filled, and not a single adverse criticism. Great care has been exercised in selecting the numbers for their program, and they are put together so smoothly and with such exquisite taste, that everyone who hears their performance retains an indelible impression of its worth. The whole program is finished, refined and unique. Price for this concert is 75 cents. Tickets on sale at Y. M. C. A. and Smith's shoe store on Broadway.

Silver Wings Coming to the Breed.

Silver Wings, featuring Mary Carr the picture William Fox chose to open his Broadway season and which enjoyed a successful six months' run on the "lane of white lights' is coming to the Breed theatre next week.

Mary Carr, known as "the sweetest mother in all the world," has, in this new production, the role of a mother who spares the rod and spoils the child—the child in this case being a selfish son who browbeats a loving sister and a brother. His arrogance leads the mother to sacrifice the cruits of years of labor in order to clear his name from a stigma.

The prologue shows an ideal American family in a humble home, and the comedy element is especially evident here. It is described as good wholesome humor, and the play itself is said to be replete with laughs thrills, and heart-throbs.

One of Mary Carr's own children is in the prologue. This is May Beth Carr.

Other prominent characters in the play are portrayed by Percy Milton as the unspoiled son, Joseph Strike as "the spoiled boy," May Beth Carr as the daughter in the prologue and Jane Thomas as the daughter in the play.

In New Yok city, where it had an extended run at the Apollo theatre Silver Wings was acclaimed by the critics as one of the most wholesome and instructive film plays that was ever seen on the Silver Screen. Clergymen of all denominations unanimously approved it and the photoplay formed the subject of many sermons.

Breed Theatre.

A perfect pair of players providing a perfect dramatic thrill!

And that, in a modest way, is but an introduction to the Paramount picture, Over the Border, which features Betty Compson and Tom Moore. But this is not the only highly desirable attribute which the picture possesses. There is Sir Gilbert Parker, the eminent Canadian novelist from whose story She of the Triple Chevron, the picture has been adapted. There is also the fact that it is a Penrhyn Stanlaws production, and when one considers the skill with which this producer has invested his previous creations starring Betty Compson, one knows that in this, his latest, he has evolved a picture that is the last word in beauty, suspense, action and dramatic intensity.

Such a picture is Over the Border, which is the feature at the Breed theatre today. The Pathe News and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Entertaining Vaudeville at Broadway Plus Fine Comedy Feature.

Not a complaint from anyone. Yes, a fine banner bill of vaudeville and pictures is at the Broadway for the fist half of this week.

Anita, the un-in-the-air girl, opened the bill with a very clever bit of trapeze work, doing some very difficult stunts well received.

Loftus & Lynch call their offering "For No Reason." They received plenty of laughs and also did some good singing.

Leana Kern & Co. have very good voices and their singing and piano playing was appreciated.

Gary & Baldis were very generous with their comedy and singing and were well rewarded for their efforts.

Rose & Dell closed the bill with a comedy novelty offering that made a fine closing number.

One of the most delightful comedies shown here this season, is Clarence, a Paramount picture which has attracted large audiences to the Broadway theatre this week. It is a story of American family life with intense heart appeal, clean and wholesome comedy, and which teaches a sound lesson to those who care to learn. Wallace Reid, Agnes Ayres and May McAvoy, all Paramount stars, have the featured roles. It is well worth seeing, so don't miss it.

The Hottentot Scores Big at Strand.

Look out for The Hottentot, if you've got a cracked lip. We dare you to sit through it and not laugh—not a smile or a titter or a chuckle, but a laugh, honest, hearty and prolonged; a laugh that breaks out, in ripples and rumbles and roads until it bursts all restraints and becomes a guffaw, plain and unashamed.

Shakespeare, or some other equally talented scribe, could have done full justice to the laughs in The Hottentot. We can't. Our vocabulary is too restrained and besides we were too busy laughing to make notes. We smiled the first time that Douglas McLean met a horse in the pictue—a decrepit old cab-hack that still perked up enough to take a nip at the yachtsman, so evidently afraid of all horse flesh. We kept right on smiling when we weren't laughing or roaring until he started off in the astounding steeplechase, riding the wild Hotentot, with no more protection from sudden death than five napkins padded together under his jockey cap.

We've been to see The Hottentot three times since it opened and still can't seem to get the laughs out of our system. The censors ought to speak to Thomas H. Ince for putting out a picture that can spoil a man's favorite grouch. Willie Collier's stage play, from which it is taken, was funny, but the picture is hilarious. It's a menace to the public gravity. If there ever was a comedy special made for laughs this is the one. Seven reels just full of laughs and thrills. Only today and tomorrow left. Don't miss this one. An Educational comedy and a News were the other subjects.

SARAZEN NOT TO BE PERMITTED TO ENTER BRITISH GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Jan. 16—A tentative decision not to permit Gene Sarazen, American golf champion, a five or six weeks leave of absence to compete in the British open golf championship tournament was voted today by the directors of Briarcliff Lodge, the country club at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. by whom he is employed as coach.

"It was the consensus of opinion," said a statement issued by the directors, "that permission should be refused Sarazen for this purpose, but definite action will be withheld until his return from an exhibition tour he is making through the west and south."

Sarazen, holder of the American national open and professional titles, planned to go to England in June with other American golfers in quest of the only major title he has not won. He signed a contract as Briarcliff "pro" a short time ago with the understanding that he would be allowed time away for tournament play, but apparently the contract did not cover long leaves of absence.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 15—Gene Sarazen, American open golf champion, expressed surprise when informed of the refusal of the directors of Briarcliff Lodge, the New York country club which employs him as professional, to grant him a leave of absence to compete in the British open championship.

BUMPER CROP OF HOLDOUTS EXPECTED

Judging from reports all along the line the major leagues are going to have a bumper crop of holdouts this year. While most of the clubs have not even thought of sending out their contracts quite a number of stars already are listed among the belligerents. Jake Daubert and Eddie Roush of the Reds, chronic holdouts again demand terms which Garry Herrmann refuses to consider. Zack Wheat, Ruether and Andy High head a fair delegation of Brooklyn recalcitrants.

Most of the clubs are going to send out their contracts later than usual, so the squawking period will be shortened and holdout announcements a bit delayed. But when they come they will flood the offices. We hear that not a single club in the majors will grant appreciable increases in salary. The raises paid last season were based on the standards attained during the big seasons of 1919, 1920 and 1921. Last year several teams lost money and only the New York clubs showed real profits. The owners of the Giants are willing to continue along the 1923 scale but those in control of the Yankees promise slashing reductions in many cases.

Many of the holdouts will be found to be players who have seen their best days and are slipping. These realize that 1923 affords them their last chance to make a salary stand and they will fight to the last ditch. It is interesting to note that both candidates for the Players' Union, Daubert and Wheat, are already on the list of holdouts. Both were directors of the old Players' Fraternity and have been known to hold out in the past.

Daubert Demands $14,000

Daubert's case is interesting. Jake got $10,000 last season. He has been offered a similar contract for 1923 but demands no less than $14,000. Judging from the tenor of Herrmann's remarks when he was in this city recently that Jake has about as much chance of landing that increase as the Phillies have of winning the pennant. Daubert had a good year in 1922, but he is not getting any younger or faster. He is 39 years old.

As a counter move Pat Moran announces that while he recognizes the value of Daubert as a first baseman he believes that he has another bright star in Luis Fonseca, the sweet singing Portuguese. Fonseca proved an able citizen at second base last year, but his fielding in that position did not impress John McGraw. It is believed that Fonseca would make a far better first sacker and we would not be surprised to see him open the season at Daubert's station.

With Fonseca on first, Bohne would be the second base candidate. However, Bohne may be traded to the Pirates. Bill McKechnie is said to be anxious to send Cotton Tierney to pastures new. He would like to land Bohne and a young pitcher. Had Benton been signed by the Reds the deal would have gone through, but now it is a question of whether Moran will continue negotiations for he hasn't any pitchers to spare. Cliff Markle still is with the Reds and is on the market, but McKechnie does not want him. Cliff may be sent to San Francisco in part payment for Mitchell, the young left hander.

Jake Threatens to Retire

Daubert says he is ready to retire and devote all his time to his business—reclaiming coal from the bottom of the Schuylkill River, where it has been washed down from the mines. Roush declares that he is ready to remain at his farm if he does not get $18,000 for 1923. Herrmann says there will be no $18,000 item on his payroll—that Roush will play for much less or not at all—and that the outfielder positively will not be traded. The time seems to have come for Garry to send Roush elsewhere for a young outfielder. The Giants no longer want Ed.

Wheat wants $10,000 for next season High demands $6,000 and Ruether asks for $13,000. This set of demands, reenforced by a lot of little companions sent Charley Ebbets rushing off to Europe despite the rough winds on the north Atlantic. Charley knows who his holdouts are for he spoke terms with his men right after the close of the season.

Some of the Dodgers remain on the block with no bidders and a few have been reinstated. Among these is Al Mamaux, who will get another chance.

The Pittsburgh club seems to be in the most favorable position in the big leagues. Barney Dreyfuss says that he already has signed most of his players. The Pirates and the Cubs have refused to have anything to do with the players' union and seem to be content to concentrate on the league race. George W. Grant said yesterday that he had signed most of his Braves and that he looked for no trouble. But there will be trouble aplenty in other quarters before the season opens.

EXPECT 1923 DAVIS CUP ENTRIES TO BE LARGER THAN LAST YEAR

That there will probably be a larger list for the Davis Cup competition of 1923 than that of 1922, when fifteen nations were concerned, is indicated in correspondence of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. All the nations which entered a year ago are practically certain a re-enter, while, under the new zoning system, it is expected that new competitors will be encouraged to try for the famous trophy. Japan has already planned the personnel of its team, and communications from Hawaii state that the island territory will almost certainly compete. Hawaii had material for a strong team last year and only the unfortunate break of the draw, which paired the Islanders with Czecho-Slovakia prevented participation.

NEW LONDON MAN APPOINTED AT NATIONAL MEETING

New York, Jan. 15—Creation of a national registration bureau, to act as a clearing house for information on professional pugilists, and adoption of a standardized universal code of ring regulations were favored today by delegates attending the third annual convention of the National Boxing association, which represents boxing commissions in 18 of 21 states and five foreign countries where the sport is legalized.

Both proposals were referred to committees to be reported for action tomorrow, the closing of the two-day convention.

The association took no action on a suggestion that it seek to prevent the proposed return bout for the world heavyweight championship between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, on the ground that the latter is not a fit opponent for the champion.

The proposed boxing registration bureau, as devised by Tex O'Rourke, secretary-treasurer of the N. B. A., would be conducted under the direct supervision of the association, subject to the approval of boxing commissions in New York and Massachusetts which have declined so far to affiliate with the N. B. A.

Every professional boxer would be required to register with the bureau, according to Mr. O'Rourke, and would be given an identification card which would serve as a "passport" to engagements anywhere in the country. The plan would include distribution of detailed information on all boxers and weekly bulletins on results of fights.

Needs for standardized boxing rules, not only in this country, but universally, was stressed by President Walter H. Ligenger and Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, who is an honorary vice-president of the association.

Mr. Boglum deprecated talk of crookedness and gambling in connection with boxing, declaring it was greatly exaggerated.

The international character of the N. B. A. was demonstrated today when delegates were addressed by representatives of three foreign boxing commissions affiliated with the association. They were: P. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto, president of the Canadian boxing federation; Senator Rosendo Collazo, president of the Cuban boxing commission; and Raoul Hanker of Paris, representing the French boxing federation. England and Australia which also are associated with the American body, were not represented.

Thomas E. Donahue, of New London, was appointed today a member of the committee on rules.

VETERAN UMPIRE IS EXONERATED BY CONFESSION

Cleveland, Jan. 15—Ollie Chill, veteran American league umpire, was exonerated from all connection with the murder of Edward J. McGregor, 26, who was shot to death during a drunken brawl late Saturday night in an alleged confession made by George C. Roedl late today.

Chill and Robert J. Burek, a local contractor, who with Roedl were found in the apartment, were released from custody and Roedl was charged with first degree murder.

The police say that Roedl admitted that he shot McGregor after the latter had fired two shots at him. He said, according to the police, that he attempted to act as a peacemaker between McGregor and Chill, and was pleading with McGregor to stop quarreling when McGregor took a revolver from a dresser and fired at him. In the struggle which followed, Roedl is alleged to have said, the gun fell to the floor and he picked it up and shot McGregor twice.

McGregor and Roedl were members of the 308th ammunition train company during the world war. The revolver used in the slaying was one which they brought back with them.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE FINDS SIKI-CARPENTIER BOUT NOT "FRAMED"

Paris, Jan. 15.—(By The A. P.)—Those accused in connection with the alleged "frame-up" of the championship match between Battling Siki and Georges Carpentier are declared innocent in a report submitted to the French boxing federation today by the committee which has been investigating the charges.

The repost says: "The committee is absolutely convinced that the match on September 24 (1922) was not preceded by an understanding the object of which was to arrange the events of the match and fix the result."

The investigators express regret that certain circumstances have given weight to the accusations in the eyes of many sportsmen. They recommend that the federation in the future take steps to have its regulations strictly applied, so that announcements of purses will not be made which fail to correspond with the contracts signed by the boxers, and proper order will be maintained around the boxing rings.

The decision of the investigating committee clears Siki's former manager, M. Hellers, and Georges Carpentier and his manager, Francois Descamps, from charges that an agreement was made by which the Senegalese was to feign defeat in the fourth round. Siki brought his charges, with the aid of the deputy from Senegal, M. Diagne, after the boxing federation declared his newly-won title of heavyweight champion forfeit because of an escapade at a subsequent fight, when, while serving as a second, Siki entered the ring and struck the manager of the boxer opposing his man.

The French boxing federation in accepting the report of the investigation committee declares that the fight between Siki and Carpentier was not preceded by any irregular agreement, but was sincerely fought and the result was in accordance with regular ring procedure.

The report of the investigation committee declared that practically all of a "frameup" between Carpentier and Siki could be traced to statements reported to have been made by a boxer named Gaillard, which Gaillard formerly denied in testifying.

Carpentier is quoted by the committee as having said in testifying, "I never in my life faked a match nor prolonged one for the sake of the moving pictures."

The committee lay stress on Siki's unwillingness to testify before. It twice saw the films of the Carpentier-Siki fight, once when two deaf mutes were present, and once when three deaf mutes who were expert lipreaders. The few words the lipreaders were able to decipher as having been spoken, after many projections of the film at varying speeds, confirmed that Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, at the ringside only encouraged Carpentier.

The committee says it is convinced that Descamps, in the agony of seeing Carpentier losing, "was not aware that he had passed so far around the ring" while he was trying to encourage his protege. It says it also is convinced that Hellers was never aware that Descamps came so near him during the fight.

PRELIMINARY COAL REPORT.

In the preliminary report of the commission named to secure the facts in connection with the coal industry, as made to the president and congress, it is evident that only a beginning has been made. The commission has established certain facts but it has not reached the point where it is prepared to offer recommendations. Rather has it summarized statements which it has put forth from time to time regarding certain features of the inquiry, and one of these to the effect that it is believed there will be no strike in the bituminous coal fields the first of April must be well grounded or it would not have been issued. Industrial and public welfare cry out loudly against any action such as has been experienced in the past year and previously.

Without a doubt the commission has hit upon a weak spot when it says: "There can be no satisfactory agreement as to wage rates, and no lasting peace between operators and miners unless steadier employment can be provided," and what it has to say about the unreasonableness of expecting the railroads to be prepared to handle the coal tonnage in a short period that should be distributed over many months is equally true.

The commission isn't able as yet to make a definite report on profiteering, though it says there has been such, and it hasn't sufficient data to permit it to offer the needed remedies but there is significance in the paragraph which says "The commission believes that the public interest in coal raises fundamental questions of the relation of this industry to the nation, and of the degree to which private rights must yield to public welfare. It may be that both private property in an exhaustible resource and labor in a public service industry must submit to certain modifications of their private rights, receiving in return certain guarantees and privileges not accorded to purely private business or persons in private employ."

This indicates that regulations dealing with an industry that is overmanned are to be expected and that the interests of the public are coming in for their proper share of attention.

FURTHER AID TO FORESTRY.

While there may be sufficient need for the benefits that come from forestry experiment stations in all sections of the country, where large areas of forest land exist or could be developed, it is certain that New England would derive much good from such a station. Whether it gets one depends upon congress.

A considerable sum of money has been spent in the acquisition of a large tract of forest land in the White mountains for a federal forest reserve. It is the purpose of Senator Lodge, through a bill which he has introduced in congress, to have $35,000 appropriated for a forest experiment station that would be located in that reserve in New Hampshire. Because it would be a good thing does not necessarily insure the success of the move. It is already planned to spend this sum among several experiment station, but as an alternative for that the senator from Massachusetts proposes the use of the money for this particular station at this time that something worth while may be accomplished instead of distributing the sum among several and thus permit only a feeble effort to be made by each one of them.

New England isn't producing as much timber as it should. It has much land that could be made excellent use of in this way and it needs the encouragement that would come from such a station. Likewise it has a reserve which permits of the study of tree diseases and their treatment, that would be of value to all sections as well as this.

With new interest aroused in behalf of forestry work and with a realization that this part of the country should come nearer to producing a much larger quantity of the lumber it requires the influence of a forestry experiment station would be just what New England requires.

Connecticut is displaying increasing interest in forestry and reforestation. If the governor has his way a still greater interest will be manifested and a federal experiment station devoted to this industry would give new encouragement and enthusiasm.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

New members on the federal reserve board have been named by President Harding. That Governor Harding was not reappointed has caused some disappointment in those sections of the country where it is believed that he followed the correct policy in dealing with conditions in this country, while there are other sections, where his policy was not approved, that will approve the change.

In the naming of Daniel R. Crissinger, who has been controller of the currency, as governor of the federal reserve board there is quite as good reason for believing that the president has recognized the responsibility that rests upon his shoulders in filling such an important office. There is in fact quite as good reason for having confidence in the work that will be done by the federal reserve board under his governorship as there was at the time when Governor Harding undertook his duties. It is a case where financial conditions must govern the action and that is what is to be expected whoever happens to be holding the reins.

The other two members of the board just named, M. D. Campbell of Michigan and J. C. McNary of New Mexico, the latter being made controller of the currency to succeed W. P. G. Harding and therefore an ex-officio member of the federal reserve board, will have the same opportunity that Mr. Harding had to demonstrate their ability for this important work.

Mr. Campbell is not named because of his record as a financier. He has been placed upon the board as the result of the action of congress is requiring one member of the board to be a "dirt farmer," the expectation of the farm group apparently being that he will have more influence on that board in behalf of the farmers than any of the other members. Because of the reasons for the appointment of such a member special interest will be attached to his work as a member of the board.

AMERICAN LAW'S DEFECTS.

None knows better than the members of the legal profession what advantage is taken of the law and how great is the need of reform in connection with its administration. Delays, lack of respect, circumvention in the practice whereby other than the objects aimed at are obtained are repeatedly referred to as reasons why some sections are so quick to resort to mob rule rather than seek justice under the law. It is the wrong attitude to take in order to correct the situation, but the fact that it exists even where mob rule is not resorted to has prompted certain leaders to inaugurate a change.

No less an organization than the American Bar association has had a committee at work upon this problem. No more enthusiastic supporter of it is to be found than Chief Justice Taft, who has made a study of British methods in order to see what might be gained therefrom to aid the situation in this country. The committee of which Elihu Root is chairman and which was named for the establishment of a permanent organization for the improvement of the law has urged the creation of a permanent American law institute to determine what shall be done to remove the defects in the law.

This institute will be made up of those who respond to the 300 invitations to attend a conference to hear and act upon the report of the committee. The members will select the 21 who are to serve as the council, of whom a third will retire each year.

It may be a belated movement to correct conditions which lawyers realize ought not to exist, but it is one of those movements that must be regarded as better late than never. The removal of the chief defects in American law will be a move in the right direction.

AUTO THIEVES.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the authorities have gathered in the ring that has been stealing cars and dealing in stolen cars with Bridgeport as one of its headquarters. This practice is nothing new. It gets its encouragement from the fact that it is a simple thing to step into a car and drive away without detection, and because once the opportunity is provided the chances of making it next to impossible to distinguish the stolen car are excellent.

A tremendous sum is involved each year in the number of automobiles that is stolen. There may be those instances where cars are taken for the purpose of transportation, and in other instances for a joy ride, but repeatedly has it been shown that there was a well organized system of stealing cars. Apparently the ring operating in Bridgeport as the representatives of a large central body, is only one of the spokes in the wheel, but it probably stood ready to get the car wanted by a customer, regardless of the make.

It is because of such extensive operations by those who are in the business of stealing and making over cars that greater efforts have been made in behalf of safeguarding them through locking devices, but that doesn't warrant any let up in the efforts that are being made to locate and punish such thieving. When it is claimed that there are a thousand or two persons owning stolen cars purchased through such individuals the seriousness of the game which they are playing can be readily appreciated. And it is not solely the agents but the leaders in the game that deserve the full penalty.

HER OWN CASE

"Tipping should be abolished," commented the beauty-parlor attendant as she bustled in twenty minutes late for her 9 o'clock appointment. "I hurried over to the restaurant for breakfast and thought that I would surely be here five minutes before your appointment. I always like to get in a few moments ahead and get my hands warmed."

The girl with bobbed hair nodded her head vigorously at this last statement.

"I ordered wheat cakes and sausages," continued the beauty-parlor attendant, as she donned her long white apron, "and told the waiter to hurry it up as quickly as possible. I go into that place every day of my life, and wouldn't you suppose that they could hurry an order when I especially asked them to?"

The girl with bobbed hair opened her mouth, but closed it at the approach of a finger full of cleansing cream.

"I waited a full five minutes for it and then asked the man what was keeping them so long. He pretended not to hear me the first time. Finally he said that it took time. The woman sitting at the next table leaned over and said that if I'd tip him he could doubtless hurry up the order. Now, I ask you, isn't that a ridiculous state of affairs! As if wheat cakes didn't take a certain time to cook regardless?"

The girl with bobbed hair opened her mouth cautiously. "They all expect it, you know," she offered.

"Tipping ought to be abolished," said the beauty-parlor attendant firmly. "I went downdown the other day in that dreadful storm and found that my shoes needed a polish. I was in one of the buildings where I had stopped before for a shine and so I naturally went there again.

"The boy began as if he intended to do a good job. Then in some foreign language, the boy working on the woman next to me—a boy, by the way, who had done my shoes before—spoke some long sentence and grinned. The boy shining my shoes had had a cheerful air at first but now his mouth drooped and he gave three or four swishes with the brush and five or six with the rag and rose.

"I couldn't believe that the shoes were really polished. To be sure the mud was gone and there was a faint gleam, but a very faint one. There was nothing more to be done, however, except step out of the chair."

"Did you tip him?" asked the girl with bobbed hair as she opened one eye a little.

"Certainly not," exploded the beauty-parlor attendant.

"But the next time——" the girl with bobbed hair began to say.

"There won't be any next time. I'll go to another shoe-shining place," said the beauty-parlor attendant.

"Then the cabman who brought me home waited and waited after I paid him, evidently looking for a tip," went on the beauty-parlor attendant. "I couldn't afford to take the cab, only I should have ruined all my clothes. Tipping really ought to be abolished, that's all there is to it."

By this time she had swiftly given a few rubs, had placed a little powder on a cold piece of Turkish toweling and had patted it over the face of the girl with bobbed hair. Apparently she had been thinking also, for when the girl with bobbed hair took a coupon from her purse to pay for what she had received the beauty-parlor attendant smiled radiantly and said:

"Only last night I was telling Wanda, who works in the marcelling, how I loved to work on you because you always are so liberal. 'There's nothing stingy about Miss Winchell,' I told her, 'just like that.'"

And she smiled as she regarded the coin in her hand a moment later when the girl with bobbed hair had gone. "Whew!" she said half to herself, "that was a slip!" and she dropped the coin into her—deepest pocket.—Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

Clara Wieck, Wife of Robert Schumann

Parallel in many ways to the famous love affair and marriage of Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning, was the more obscure romance of Robert Schumann, the composer, and Clara Wieck, the pianist. Artists both, as were the English lovers, they met with the sternest disapproval on the part of the girl's father. Disobedient, like the Brownings, they were married in spite of paternal objections and found a life of entire happiness.

Clara Wieck was ten years old, but already an accomplished pianist, when Robert Schumann first began to take lessons from her father, Frederick. The young student came to live with the Wiecks that he might be nearer his master. Secretly when practicing he wore a brace on his middle finger which proved his undoing as a pianist, for one day he discovered that the finger was paralyzed and that he could never play again.

Clara, who was now about eighteen, consoled him.

"Never mind," she soother. "You write the music and I will play it." And so he turned to composing. The girl played his songs constantly, to the irritation of her father, who said they were trashy. Soon Robert was asked gently but firmly to find another place to live. In the meantime he had become the editor of a musical magazine, through which medium he immoderately praised the work of Clara.

It took an article about Clara which appeared in a rival publication to precipitate matters. The article stated that marriage was death to a woman's heart. Well, Robert would prove the contrary.

And so they were married, this eighteen-year-old girl and the twenty-six year old man. Dire were the predictions for the future, but for once art and love made a go of it, and the Schumanns led a bright-starred life. Clara, beautiful neither of face nor figure, had a rare beauty of mind. She knew instinctively what her husband needed and provided it for him.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

How many famous actors have begun their stage career as leading man? Probably Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, who today celebrates his seventieth birthday, is the only instance. One night, when Sir Johnstone was a young man of 21, his father, who was an art critic and journalist, went to see W. G. Willis' "Mary Stuart," and after the performance Willis accompanied him to supper. In the course of conversation the dramatist asked his host how he thought the leading part was played. The critic replied that his son, who had never acted, could do the part fifty times better. The author asked young Johnstone if he would try it, the latter assented, and a week later made a sensational debut. Since then he has always been a star. Sir Johnstone was born in London and before taking to the stage studied at the Royal Academy with a view to becoming a painter.

Stories That Recall Others

Too Hasty

Teddy came home from school looking very doleful. He sat all through dinner with a long face, unable to eat anything.

"Come along, now Teddy," said his mother, "eat up your dinner like a good little boy. What is the matter with you?"

To her astonishment Teddy burst into tears. When he at last gained some control over his emotions he blubbered: "I-I-I-I-wish I hadn't licked Jimmy Jones this morning."

"Well, never mind dear, I expect he will forgive you. You see how wrong it was, don't you dear?"

"Y-yes!" came the answer between sobs. "I didn't know until afterward that he is going to give a party."

When He Was Willing

Johnny's parents lived in the country. He was the only child and being too young to attend school, got very lonely.

He often expressed the wish for a baby brother, and, hearing of the arrival of a new baby at his aunt's inquisitively demanded why the baby had not been left at his house.

His mother told him it was because his aunt had more clothes for the baby than she did, as most of his baby clothes were worn out, but promised him to be prepared and, when the doctor had another baby to leave in their neighborhood he would leave it at their house. Several weeks passed and Johnny's father took him to his grandmother's to spend the day. Toward evening his father called him on the phone. After talking a few minutes Jimmy dropped the phone and cried: "It's come, I've got a baby brother. We had the most clothes so the doctor left it at our house. I've been expecting that baby for a long time and the first time I go visiting here it comes."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

A Caliph "Without Portfolio"

Near East politics are inextricably bound up with religion in ways it is hard for us to conceive. And some prevalent misconceptions about the Mohammedan faith seem to add confusion to many discussions about Moslem problems.

"A caliph without temporal power is a more radical departure in the Islam world than the western mind at first can grasp," says a bulletin from the Washing, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The easiest way to dispel some of these illusions is by pointing to several striking likenesses between the worlds two newest among the major religions. The term 'Mohammedan, like the term 'Christian,' is a nickname. Both names were given, with contemptuous intent, by enemies of the religions.

"The term 'Christian' was quickly adopted by followers of the Nazarene. The term 'Mohammedan' never has been adopted by the followers of the Prophet. He sought to avoid the employment of his own name by supplying one—the name of Islam—by which he hoped Mohammedanism would be known. He further sought to make this word, meaning resignation, imply the five cardinal points of the new faith. The first of these points was the brief creed, There is no God, but Allah, and Mohammed is his prophet. The other four enjoined prayer, giving of alms, the fast of Ramodan and pilgrimage to Mecca.

"Another significant parallel between Christianity and Mohammedanism is that both are the religions of millions of people of races alien to that of their founders. Christ was a Jew, Mohammed was an Arab. It is the Mohammedanism modified by the Turkish temperament and nationality that has clashed with western civilization in recent centuries.

"Most misleading of all the illusions about Mohammedanism, however, is the tacit assumption that the Mohammedan world is a religious unit. Seen a long way off the sects and groups fade away. In reality there are two great branches of Mohammedanism, the Sunnites and the Shiites. Among both these branches, and also outside them, there are sharply drawn cleavages.

"Recent caliphs who have been the sultans of Turkey, have claimed spiritual supremacy over the Mohammedan world of some 300,000,000 souls. But in actual fact the Sultan of Turkey had little more spiritual ascendancy over the Mohammedans outside Turkey than the king of England has over the Episcopalians in the United States. In fact there would be no urgent Near East problem at this moment had his leadership been recognized on the other side of the Bosporous in Asia Minor.

"A very important difference between the Western mind and the Mohammedan viewpoint has, hitherto, precluded a spiritual ascendancy if the latter which would cut across all lines of temporal power and include even warring nations. The Mohammedan has no priests, Islam is the most pragmatic of all religions. Heretofore if a caliph did not rule he wasn't a caliph. A spiritual ruler up to now has been incomprehensible to the Moslem mind. Naturally, then, caliphs have sought to rule by the sword.

"Ideas are potent factors in geography. Not only does the Mohammedan conceive it difficult to pray 'Thy Kingdom Come' and then fight for a different kind of kingdom, but, in peace time, his religion and his law go hand in hand. Mohammed was a law giver, not only in the Mosaic but also in the Justinian sense. There are as many codes of law as there are codes. Among the Sunnites, the Orthodox major division of Islam, there are four schools of law. A Hanafite would as soon engage a Malakite lawyer as a Presbyterian congregation would likely to employ a Unitarian preacher.

"The very word 'caliph' has an allurement which dates back to childhood days when you lived among these fantastic Arabian nights at the court of Caliph Harun al Rashid. Rashid was a bona fide caliph, and in your later years a reading of the historical facts about the caliphate furnish no fewer thrills than the immortal tales.

"When Mohammed died, his counselor, Abu Bekr, the companion of his flight, or Hegira, became caliph, meaning, literally, successor. Abu Bekr, means 'father of the virgin.' He was Mohammed's father-in-law. The second caliph, or successor, was Omar, another father-in-law of the Prophet, who started organizing armies and began spreading Islam over the map in a very literal sense. Omar was the first to hear of the title Emil al Moumenin, 'Prince of the Faithful.'

"From the first, Ali, husband of Mohammed's daughter Fatima, considered himself the logical successor to the caliphate. Not until Abu Bekr and Omar had ruled, and another caliph, Othman, had his day and had been murdered as was Omar before him, did Ali become Caliph.

"Certainly Mohammedanism can be termed emphatically a 'man's religion.' Yet at this early date, two women were the moving spirits in splitting it into the Sunnite and Shiite divisions which have prevailed ever since. Ayesha, favorite wife of the Prophet, always had been jealous of his daughter, Fatima, and the succession of Fatima's husband directed all her efforts upon an anti-Ali party. Meantime the group which, all along, had regarded Ali as the legitimate successor gained strength during his rule but were kept busy fighting to hold the sway Amar had established.

"When Ali's son and successor, Hassan, was murdered, probably by the hand of his wife at the behest of Moawiyah, this Moawiyah assumed the caliphate, removed its seat to Damascus, and began the series of rulers known as Ommiades. Henceforth the Shiites were alienated from the Sunnites, or Orthodox Mohammedans, because of their reverence for Ali and Hassan, and their belief that the first of the Ommiades and his successors were usurpers and pretenders, Arabian and Persian Mohammedans inclined toward the Shiite faction.

"Away back in the days of the successor to Moawiyah the inhabitants of Irak rebelled—the same Irak which only last year launched out again on its national course after electing Emir Feisal as king. Feisal is the third son of the grand sheriff of Mecca.

"It was during another series of caliphates, that of the Abbasid monarchs, that Harun al Rashid ruled. And it was after his reign that the division of the caliphate among his three sons made the caliphate into a sort of commission form of government. One son was to hold sway over Arabia and Syria; another in Persia and Turkestan; and a third in Asia Minor and the Black Sea region.

"At another time, toward the end of the tenth century, Bagdad, Cairo and Cordova, Spain, all were the seats of separate ruling caliphs; though this was no amiable divison. Each caliph declared the other a heretic and held himself the lone head of all Islam.

"How Abdul Abbas, first of the Abbasid monarchs, had every living male of the Ommiades thrown into prison, killed them all, and then gave a banquet on a great cloth thrown over their bones is but one example of the fantastic cruelty of the centuries-long struggle to be caliph.

"The story of the caliphate would fill—has filled volumes. The assumption of the title by the sultans of Turkey is a modern and perhaps a minor chapter in the struggle to be 'The Successor' and thus to hold sway over this mighty force of Islam. Points of special interest are that force often has played a major part in assumption of the role, that there have been several caliphs both by mutual agreement and also by rivalry, and that acquiring the title of caliph by no means guarantees its recognition by the Moslem world."

BANDITS WORKED FROM THE ROOF DOWNWARD

New York, Jan. 15.—"Aerial" bandits, who lowered themselves by ropes nearly 150 feet from the roof of an eleven-story building to the third story, looted the Flapper Dress Company, Inc., of silks and dresses valued at $35,000, police announced today.

The lower floors of the building were protected by burglar alarms but the thieves, after descending the ropes and breaking their way through a window, selected the most valuable of the stock, lowered it by cords to the rear court, and made their escape.

The French government has published a decree through the under secretary of posts, telegraphs and telephones regulating private radio receiving sets.

Constipation and the toxic poisonings that come from it not only take the enthusiasm out of life, making you depressed and physically and mentally dull—but they head you into diseases such as Bright's, diabetes, rheumatism, etc. You can actually rid yourself of these dangers if you will EAT KELLOGG'S BRAN REGULARLY! —at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with every meal!

Kellogg's Bran is nature's most wonderful food. It is scientifically prepared to relieve suffering humanity from constipation and it will do that as no other food can! Don't take a chance of "getting away" with constipation—IT WILL GET YOU! Don't ruin your health with pills and cathartics—they are as dangerous as constipation itself and give but temporary relief, at the very best!

What you should do for your family and for yourself is to serve Kellogg's Bran every day, in any one of several attractive ways, and fight constipation as you have never fought it before! AND YOU WILL WIN.

In the first place, Kellogg's Bran is delicious in its nut-like flavor, adding greatly to any cereal with which it is used. Eat bran as a cereal with hot milk, or mix it with hot cereal before serving. Another method is to cook Kellogg's Bran with cereal. In each case add two tablespoonfuls of bran for each person. A popular way is to sprinkle bran on hot or cold cereal. Bran makes wonderful bakery products. Recipes are printed on every package.

Kellogg's Bran is served in leading hotels, restaurants and clubs. It is sold by all grocers.

BALTIC MEN'S LEAGUE ENTERTAINED AT Y. M. C. A.

The Men's League of Baltic, nearly fifty strong, were guests of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association Monday evening from 7.30 to 9.45, coming by special car from Baltic.

The men inspected the new "Y" and enjoyed watching a large class in the gymnasium, after which they assembled in the parlors for the evening's program.

General Secretary Edwin Hill in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. gave the visitors a warm welcome, and spoke briefly along the line of the great possibilities of every man's life when it is directed by Almighty God, and he urged all the men to line up with all that is best, and thus to make their lives count the most possible for the community in which they live.

Rev. Mr. Ruoff, the pastor of the Baltic Methodist church, responded for the men, expressing sincere appreciation to the association for inviting the league to spend the evening here, and concluded his remarks by proposing three cheers for the Norwich Y. M. C. A., all the visitors joining heartily in the cheering.

State County Y. M. C. A. Secretary H. T. Hatfield of New Haven happened to drop in and he was called upon for a talk and interested the men for a few minutes, telling them of the great importance of work for boys and giving them a picture of the wonderful possibilities and pleasure in working for the boys in the smaller places.

Boys' Secretary Davis showed several reels of interesting moving pictures, both educational and comedy, and these were much enjoyed by all present. Several of the visitors enjoyed a swim in the beautiful pool. There was much enthusiasm on the part of all the Baltic men and the management of the "Y" was glad of the privilege of arranging a pleasant evening for them.

Rich relatives are of little use to a poor man except to pose as something to which he can point with pride.

OBITUARY.

Miss Mary E. Beckett

The death of Miss Mary Elizabeth Brown at the home of her niece, Mrs. Harriet E. Beckett, in the north part of Stonington recently takes away one of the oldest residents of that town. Miss Brown was born at Narragansett Pier, April 18, 1831, to George C. and Sarah (Stanton) Brown. She was a descendant from the early settlers of Rhode Island, one of whom John Coggshall, was the first governor of the colony.

When a small child the family moved to North Stonington. Miss Brown received her education in the schools of North Stonington and at East Greenwich seminary.

After the death of her parents, the two sisters, Anna and Mary, went to Mystic, where they lived nearly 30 years on Denison avenue. After the death of her sister, Miss Brown went to live with Mrs. Beckett.

Miss Brown was a life-long member of the North Stonington Congregational church.

She always believed that women should have the right to vote and after the privilege of the ballot was given to the women she improved every opportunity to use her franchise, the last time being the general election of last November, when she cast her ballot for the republican nominees. The funeral, which was private, was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. D. D. Fisher of North Stonington. The interment was in the Brown family lot in the Stonington cemetery. The bearers, all nephews were James Frank Brown, Frank Brown, Ralph P. Wheeler and Frank Bindloss.

The near relatives of Miss Brown are James Frank Brown of North Stonington, Mrs. Gordon DeCody of Wytheville, Va., Mrs. Harriet B. Beckett of Stonington, Mrs. Myra Dawson of Birmingham, Alabama, and Mrs. Helen Bindloss of Mystic, children of Miss Brown's brother, the late Col. James F. Brown of North Stonington.

ATTRACTIVE NOVEL WRITTEN BY MISS AMANDA HALL

In commenting on the new novel, "The Heart's Justice" by Amanda Hall of this city, the Providence Journal has the following to say:

"Not in any sense remarkable, 'The Heart's Justice,' by Amanda Hall, is nevertheless an attractive novel of the type generally characterized as "readable." The style is not distinguished, yet barring an occasional tortuosity and affectation the English is good. The plot is not new, love after marriage is its keynote with the devotion of father and daughter as a powerful undertone, but it is fairly engrossing. The main fault with it is the preposterous semi-flirtatious visits of Rolf to his unknown mother-in-law. The characterization is not remarkable for any profound understanding of human nature, yet, "The Heart's Justice" is the sort of fiction that will appeal to a large number of readers, particularly to those who dislike anything of the beaten path, and it has good qualities to recommend it. It comes to the borderland even of charm occasionally, though it never gets through the barriers because the effort to do so is apparent. Moreover, when Miss Hall intends to be humorous she invariably ends by being farcical. To pick flaws is easy but ungrateful. Altogether, "The Heart's Justice" is a perfectly nice story to give to young or elderly persons if they do not happen to be keen critics of style, characterization and construction.

JORDAN CHURCH ON FIRE DURING SERVICES SUNDAY

During the morning service at the First church at Jordan, in the town of Waterford, fire broke out under the pulpit while Henry Starr was singing the offertory solo

Mrs. Oscar Patch, who happened to be seated near the front, saw flames eating their way through the bottom of the pulpit and immediately shouted that the house was on fire.

An axe was secured and Deacon Vine Starr proceeded to chop a hole through the woodwork of the pulpit. Other men were ready with water to throw into the opening and soon the flames were under control. Two fire engines were summoned from New London.

The cause of the fire was an overheated stovepipe. A new heater was recently installed in the church and on Sunday morning at church time there was a good fire, but the temperature in the auditorium was quite low, so to hurry the heat up someone had put in dry wood, which made an extremely hot fire. The damage to the church will probably not exceed $100.

A. PROCTOR, WHO WORKED ON ENGINES OF MONITOR, DIES AT AGE OF 93

ALEXANDER PROCTOR

After an illness of about a month Alexander Proctor, aged 93, died Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William D. Ricker of 73 Peck street. Mr. Proctor suffered a shock on December 18th but was not confined to his bed until about January 1st.

He was one of the few remaining men of Connecticut who could boast of the days of the Monitor, for on March 9, 1923 the fiftieth anniversary of the battle between the Monitor and Merrimac, he told of his working under Captain Ericson in the building of the engines of the Union boat. It was in the Delamater plant where Mr. Proctor engaged in working on the Monitor. In those days the men worked 10 hours a day for $1.75 but the Monitor was built and won a decisive victory.

On September 26, 1921, Mr. Proctor celebrated his 92nd birthday at his home many friends visiting him on that occasion. He was born in Dundee, Scotland, September 26, 1829, and came to America in May, 1850. In 1858 he was married in New York to Elizabeth Fraser, who had come from Scotland in 1851.

In 1540 he came to Norwich to live. While in Scotland he had mastered the trade of ship engine builder. For a time he worked in the big plant of Hoag & Delamater in New York where the famous engines for the Monitor and Ericson were built. When he came to Norwich he became engine builder and head machinist at the shipyard of J. M. Huntington Co., at Thamesville. While working for this company The Norwich was built and used in the Civil war. Many other old time ships were built by this company while Mr. Proctor was head engineer, among them The Whirlwind, and its sister ship, The Tradewind, late the ships, Prometheus, Perit, Chase, Hunter, Uncas, Utility and Zigzag. The Hunter, one of the ships built by the company had as first assistant engineer, William Ricker, and Mr. Ricker's son, William D. Ricker, later married Miss Estella Proctor, daughter of Mr. Proctor.

Mr. Proctor gave up active work many years ago and for the past 17 years had lived with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Ricker. Mr. Proctor's knowledge of engines was widely sought and his many friends delighted in listening to his stories of the building of the Monitor and works of Captain Ericsson and of the adventures of the ships built at the Thamesville plant.

In the death of Mr. Proctor Norwich loses one of its most respected citizens and the country perhaps the oldest man in the trade of ship engine building.

Surviving Mr. Proctor are two daughters, Mrs. William D. Ricker, with whom he lived, Mrs. Ella Dennis of New London, and one son, Alexander Proctor, Jr., of Springfield, six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

FARM BUREAU DIRECTORS FILL SEVERAL COMMITTEES

The farm bureau directors held the first regular meeting in the offices of the New London county farm and home bureau in the Shannon building on Saturday, Jan. 13, and elected four members to the executive committee to act with the officers who were elected at the annual meeting of the farm bureau. The following were chosen: A. W. Lillibridge of Norwich, Mrs. Appleton Main of Preston, W. W. Service of Preston and Mrs. E. L. Waterman of Lebanon.

The question of electing a committee to handle the arrangements for the North Dakota horse auction which will be held in Westerly was discussed. It was brought out that the North Dakota farm bureau federation is co-operating with the state farm bureau federation and the local county farm bureaus in bringing in carloads of North Dakota horses to be sold at auction to farmers in Connecticut and other parts of New England. Local farm bureaus are expected to co-operate in selecting committee to have charge of arrangements for these sales. The North Dakota horses at the sales last year proved exceptionally good buys for men in Connecticut. In a survey which was made of men who purchased horses last year the men who reported estimated that they saved all the way from $50 to $100 per horse or an average of about $75. A carload which was sold at Westerly proved exceptionally well. Many of the men in this section have already been asking this year when the farm bureau horses would be sold again.

Horace Lewis of North Stonington, who handled this proposition so well last year, was chosen as chairman of this committee, with power to pick additional members as he saw fit.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Whitman of Waterford were elected delegates to the state farm bureau federation meeting to be held in Hartford Jan. 20th.

The resignation of R. J. Whitham as director for the town of Groton was read and accepted. Several vacancies in the board of directors which were not filled at the time of the annual meeting in December were filled at this directors' meeting as follows:

North Stonington, Irving Main; Bozrah, John Sullivan; Groton, Irving Crouch; Old Lyme, E. G. Morgan.

For towns in which no women directors at present were serving the following elections were made:

Old Lyme, Mrs. E. G. Morgan; Lyme, Mrs. D. Wiggins; East Lyme, Mrs. Walter Scott; Voluntown, Mrs. Walter Tanner; Colchester, Mrs. A. H. Brown.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE IN CELL WITH NECKTIE

Arrested in New London on the charge of intoxication at the union station, George A. Miller, Norwich, was taken to police headquarters Saturday evening and placed in a cell to sober up. Craned by the drink which he had imbibed, Miller became despondent. Taking his necktie, he made a noose of it, and, placing the loop about his neck, tied the other end of the tie to the iron grating on the roof of the cell. He then lifted his feet from the floor and attempted to commit suicide by hanging.

The thin strand of the necktie was not sufficient to support the weight of his body, however, and the tie snapped and he dropped to the floor. The noose held tight about his neck, but Sergeant Samuel Hick happened to discover the man shortly after the noose was tightened and, opening the cell, released the noose. The city physician was sent for, but when the pressure on the man's neck was released he soon revived and the city physician stated that he was none the worse for the incident. Miller was arraigned in police court Monday on the charge of intoxication and was fined $3.

Monday morning the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Lester & Wasley company was held at the company's office. Directors elected to succeed themselves were Howard L. Stanton and George W. Armstrong. Charles I. Smith was re-elected auditor. Reports were approved showing that the company had had a successful year, a dividend of five per cent having been paid at the opening of this month.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors officers were reelected as follows: President, Frederick W. Lester; vice president, Howard L. Stanton; secretary and treasurer, Percival W. Chapman; superintendent, George W. Armstrong.

ANNIVERSARY DATE RECALLS TRINITY OF FAMILY EVENTS

Two former Norwich Town residents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pearce Capron (Martha Lord Smith), whose home had been at Norwich Town for nearly 40 years, would have celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary today (Tuesday) had they lived to this date.

The anniversary date brings to mind among their relatives an unusual trinity of family events which happened on their wedding day 50 years ago, consisting of a silver anniversary, a wedding and a baptism, all in the same family, on the same day, in the same church, and with the same minister officiating at each.

Mr. and Mrs. Capron were married Jan. 16, 1873, in the old Universalist church which before being torn down stood on the present site of the Chelsea Savings bank on Main street. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. L. C. Brown, pastor of the church. On this occasion the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Capron (Emeline Harrington), celebrated their silver wedding, they having been married 25 years before in the same church and by the same minister. There were present five generations, the fifth generation, Mary Shifner Capron, then an infant three months old, was baptized during the festivities by Rev. Mr. Brown. Such an event was never before or since heard of in Norwich. Silver wedding, marriage, baptism, with the same clergyman officiating on all occasions, all of which took place in the same edifice, with five generations present at the gathering.

The bride of 25 years and the bride of the above date both received a very beautiful display of wedding presents from the guests present, which numbered about 150. The reception was held in the vestry of the church, with the entire wedding party receiving. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Capron had as attendants the former's sister, Miss Eva Capron, now Mrs. Edward A. Sims, at present in Florida, and Frederick Brewster, now deceased. A caterer was in attendance and a bountiful repast consisting of many courses was served the large company of guests. During the marriage ceremony of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Capron Rev. Mr. Brown read a poem which he had composed.

This bride and groom of 50 years ago took up their residence on Boswell avenue. A few years later Mr. Capron purchased the property at 15 Town street, where he built a home for his family, and where for more than 30 years he conducted a successful stove and tinsmith business. A number of years before he died, which was in July, 1918, the lower floor where he conducted his business was made into an apartment. Mrs. Capron passed away in May, 1907. The home is now the property of their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb (Charlotte Mabel Capron), of Norwich Town, who occupy the upper apartment. Although built 43 years ago, this house has an unusual reputation, as there never has been a birth or a marriage take place in it.

SPECTACULAR SHIFTS IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

The West Side Pinochle club had its most spectacular night of shifts in position in its play Monday evening. When the play was over, only one man, Haskell, had not changed his place in the standings.

Schuler jumped from ninth place to first, Dr. Lewis from seventh to second and Peckham from fifth to third. Parker and Bailey, who had been first and second, slid down together to fifth and sixth, and Pendleton went from third to eleventh. Another notable gain was J. Jordan's jump from eleventh to fourth.

The standig: Schuler 14385, Dr. Lewis 14055, Peckham 14065, J. Jordan 14485, Parker 14415, Bailey 14370, A. Jordan 14270, Underwood 13480, Dr. Boynton 13435, Pettis 13325, Pendleton 12945, Haskell 12725.

WAUREGAN LODGE, K. OF P., HAS OFFICERS INSTALLED

Wauregan lodge, No. 6, K. of P., held an important meeting Monday evening at their rooms in Steiner's hall, with Chancellor Commander Dr. Kopland K. Markoff in the chair. Regular routine business was transacted, following which the installation of officers took place, the ceremony being performed by the following members of Unbaunted lodge, No. 34, of Jewett City: District Deputy Jacob Wechsler and Brothers Thompson, Pott and McClugage.

The officers installed were as follows: Chancellor commander, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff; vice chancellor, Josiah Greenstein; prelate, Harry Salomen; master of work, Simon Mandell; inner guard, James Mallett; outer guard, George Kaplan; master of finance, Fred Pieper; keeper of records and seals, Albert Noren; master of exchequer, James Smith; trustee, James B. Palmer.

Following the installation, a social time was enjoyed, after which the entertainment committee served light refreshments.

A committee composed of Fred C. Pieper, Louis Crandall and Albert Noren has been elected to arrange for a banner entertainment to be given at the lodge rooms in the near future. It has been planned to have a troupe of 20 well known actors come to this city and entertain the lodge. No expense is to be incurred by the entertainment, as the services of the actors has been promised free. Besides the entertainment, the committee has promised a banquet. Further notices of the event are to be announced in the usual lodge notes following some future meeting.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENT BROUGHT SEVERAL UNEXPECTED GIFTS

That Norwich coal dealers are not altogether a hard hearted crowd was demonstrated recently when a well known local man received a half ton of coal following a death in his family.

This man thought a great deal of the member of the family who had passed away and wished things to be done right. A notice to a coal dealer brought the necessary coal, and another local business man immediately got busy and sent a bouquet of flowers. Not to be outdone in kindness, an undertaker called on the man and offered his services free for the funeral.

All this was appreciated greatly by the man who had lost a member of his family, but he stated afterwards that even though he got the coal, flowers and had the offer of free burial services, he would much rather had the member of his family still alive, for as he told it the cat that died was one of the best in the world. It would run to meet him as he came home, go for rides in the automobile, and took delight in smiling and showing a gold-crowned tooth, a distinction of class not many cats enjoy.

WHIST WAS PLAYED AT DOUBLE SURPRISE PARTY

A surprise party for Mrs. Alida Boyens and Mrs. Eva Wilson was held Monday evening at the Boyens home in honor of their birthdays, a large number of friends attending. Whist was enjoyed during the evening, the prizes going to Mrs. Alice Brayman, first; Mrs. Mary Adams, second. Mrs. Boyens and Mrs. Wilson were presented morocco leather handbags by their friends, and Mrs. Boyens received a gold banded set of dishes from her son and daughter.

Those present were Mrs. Bertha Collins, Mrs. Mary Adams, Mrs. Mary Greene, Mrs. Eva John, Mrs. Eva Wilson, Mrs. Minnie Amburn, Mrs. Alice Brayman, Mrs. Ada Revell, Mrs. Mary Harris, Mrs. Julia Wals, and Mrs. Florence Douglass.

STARTING ON WORK AT NORWICH PALACE THEATRE

The first work towards the erection of the new Palace theatre between Rose place and Ferry street was begun Monday morning when workmen of the New Haven Wrecking Co. commenced tearing down the old brick building on the rear of the plot.

The company demolishing the building has a sub-contract for this work under the H. Wales Lines Co., which has the general contract. As soon as the old building has been cleared off construction work can begin.

Contracts have also been sublet for the plastering, etc., so that when the weather gets where the outside work can be hurried along a little faster there will be no hindrance on the inside work. The steel for the construction of the building has already been bought and will be in Norwich not later than March 1. Every possible care will be used in the construction of the new theatre to make it one of the best in this vicinity. Already many of the Norwich citizens have taken advantage of the opportunity to invest in the stock of the new Palace theatre corporation and there are now only a few shares left for purchase. It is expected that the new corporation will be a fine investment.

BROKE GLASS IN DOOR TO GET INTO STORE

A minor break, but without anything stolen, was reported to the police to have taken place some time Saturday night at the Atlantic & Pacific Tea store on Main street near the Preston bridge.

The thieves were apparently after money only but they found the cash register left open as is customary, without any money in it.

Entrance to the store was evidently made by breaking out a glass in the front door through which the would-be thief crawled, coming out the same way. There was a padlock on the door which, prevented it being opened, but the glass was broken out enough to allow a boy of small-sized man to crawl through.

Fined in Police Court.

In the police court Monday morning one man paid $19.50 for getting intoxicated on Sunday. Two more charged with fighting had their cases continued until July 16th. BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The work on local building projects moved along slowly during the past week although in some cases with the aid of slamanders concrete and cement work was done. Several applications for building permits were taken out at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton and one permit was filed.

The work of remodeling the Greeneville fire station was started Monday morning by Contractor P. F. Sweeney and the work will be rushed along until a modern station is constructed. The old building which originally housed the engine company and the hook and ladder company in separate quarters will be completely changed. The partitions between the two rooms will be torn away and one large room made on the lower floor. With the partition gone and some chances made the station will be ample to house four pieces of motor-driven apparatus. The second floor with its parlors will be left much the same although big double doors will connect the two large rooms. There will be locker rooms and toilets and sleeping quarters and in time this station will be as good as any in the city.

Clarence Peterson has filed application for permission to erect a building at the corner of West Main and Connell street for factory purposes. The building will be 100x40 feet and will be of frame construction. The roof will be gabled and covered with slate roofing.

Plans are being drawn for Alexander Rasnik for a building to be erected on the property formerly owned by the Chelsea Boat club. Mr. Rasnik intends erecting a modern apartment building with stores on the ground floor.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 14 sales of real estate as compared to 9 sales for the same week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $11,-.00 and $35,600.

There were 7 sales of real estate in New London during the past week or two more than for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $22,200 and $81,400.

NEW LONDON.

Plans have been completed for the proposed Stanton street school, and will be sent out for estimates at once. The building will be of brick, 78x85 feet, having six rooms, heated by steam and equipped with every convenience. It will cost approximately $60,000.

Plans are now in course of preparation for a hollow-tile and brick residence to be erected on Shaw street for Anton Rispoli. It is to be 28x65 feet, 2 1-2 stories high, having two apartments of six rooms each, heated by steam and fitted with modern improvements.

Bids for the general contract on the proposed Alger street school have been asked. The plumbing, heating, electrical and painting contracts were awarded some weeks ago, when the first set of estimates were received, these bids being satisfactory. The new figures will be on revised plans, so ordered by the common council, and it is hoped the figures will be materially lower.

Alfred H. E. Burr has been granted a permit for a cottage to be erected on Montauk avenue. It is to be 47x42 feet, 1 1-2 stories high, fitted with every improvement. In the rear will be a garage for two cars. The cost of both houses and garage is estimated at $5,500.

Abraham Rakosky has been granted a permit for a concession building he will erect at Ocean Beach. It is to be of wood, 125 feet long by 25 feet deep. In the center will be an arch, on either side of which will be a confectionery store. In all there will be eight stores in the structure, the cost of which will approximate $4,500. The contract has not been let.

Building Permits.

Alfred E. H. Burr, frame cottage, Montauk avenue. $5,000.

Pequot Steam Laundry, frame addition. $1,300.

Louis Lubchansky, frame garage, 55 Pequot street. $3,500.

Total number of permits for the week, 4. Estimated cost of buildings, $10,400.

ROCKVILLE.

Work is to be started in the spring on a new convent for St. Bernard's Roman Catholic parish, of which Rev. George T. Sinnot is the pastor. The structue will be of brick, costing about $40,000.

State Building Operations.

The amount of new building construction, as indicated by permits granted in the larger centers of the state is almost a negligible quantity due, it may be assumed, to the winter weather which has made building operations almost impossible. The number of permits reported in the territory covered during the week was 77, for buildings costing $231,-253. These figures compare with 73 permits in the corresponding week of last year, when the cost of new construction was $204,735, and 68 in 1921, with the cost of buildings $316,-173.

FIVE SHIVERING CHILDREN ATTENDED WHISKEY STILL

North Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Five thinly clad and shivering tots, one dressed in a newspaper, and all ranging from the cradle to twelve years of age, were found attending a whiskey still in the home of William Rabisch today, while he and his wife were away.

Patrolman Joseph Lynch made the discovery when he carried Joseph, brother of the five, to the Rabisch home, after the boy, while sledding, had been struck by an automobile.

The children were formally taken from the mother's care. She gave a $500 bond on a charge of violating the state prohibition law.

KLANSMEN TESTIFY OF MER ROUGE KIDNAPPINGS

Bastrop, La., Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—New ground was opened today by states attorneys in their task of solving the mystery surrounding the kidnapping and slaying of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richard, victims of black hooded kidnappers. Two members of the Ku Klux Klan put in the record a recital of an assemnbling of klansmen in a store here in anticipation that Mer Rouge citizens might swoop down on Bostrop in retalation.

James F. Harp and "Jap" Jones, farmers of Bonita, a village in the southern part of Morehouse parish, both members of the Parish klan organization, testified that after the kidnapping of Daniel, Richard and three other men on the Mer Rouge-Bastrop pike August 24 last, a dozen or more klansmen gathered in a hardware store here, armed themselves and prepared for eventualities.

Both insisted that the klan had no part in the kidnapping but that the gathering of klansmen was deemed advisable as a precautionary measure in view of the intense feeling prevailing in the parish.

"Why did you klansmen wait up that night?" was asked of Harp.

"It takes a long time to tell that story," Harp said.

"We heard the people of Mer Rouge had guns and a regular arsenal and we thought they might come over and blame the kidnapping on the klan. We knew they were mad and up in arms about the kidnapping of Richard a week before and we were afraid it would be laid at our feet."

"Did you have your masks?"

"No."

Jones testified along much the same lines as Harp as to the gathering in the Bastrop store.

"It was a serious thing," Jones said. "We had discussed it and decided to be prepared."

"Did you believe it was the klan who did the kidnapping?" was asked of Jones.

"No, but I did want to know who did," he answered.

Jones told of making the round with his friends in Bastrop stores. Trying to learn who might be responsible, but without result. At no place, he declared, could he find information as to who was in the party of men who took part.

The watch at the hardware store continued until midnight.

"Did you hear of any preparation made to kidnap Daniel and Richard?" Jones was asked.

"No—none."

"Did you attend any meeting in which the conduct of Richard and Daniel was discussed?" was another question.

"Yes, about six weeks prior to the kidnapping. We met in the courthouse and Daniel and Richard were discussed but we decided to let Daniel, Richard and other citizens alone. Then we had another meeting—an impromptu affair—at which Dr. B. M. McKoin, Captain J. K. Skipwith and others were present. We talked over the attempted assassination of Dr. McKoin.

"Wat Daniels and other were blamed, but particularly Watt Daniel."

Skipwith is the parish leader of the klan. Dr. McKoin, formerly mayor of Mer Rouge and now charged in an affidavit with murder in connection with the deaths of Daniel and Richard.

Harp and Jones were the principal witnesses at the afternoon session of the hearing. They were preceded on the witness stand by F. L. Carpenter, parish sheriff; Gus Boyd, Collinston storekeeper, from whom the black hooded band purchased gasoline while holding the two kidnapped men prisoners, and a half a dozen other witnesses.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 15.—George Shelton, a 30 year old negro, was brought to the Baltimore jail today by the sheriff of Somerset county to escape a threatened lynching for alleged assault upon a 14 year old white girl near Princess Anne, Maryland, Saturday night.

A crowd gathered at the Princess Anne all yesterday and fearing violence the jailer admitted one of its number who knew the negro. After a search he reported that Chelton was not there and the mob dispersed.

Feeding of wild game birds is now under way in this territory. Monday afternoon Harold E. Attwood, Richard Bannigan and Henry Lague were in the eastern part of the town of Brooklyn distributing scratch feed, in favorite haunts of partridges, pheasants, and quail. While engaged with their work the sportsmen saw a flock of ten quail industriously engaged in seeking food from branches and twigs that could be reached from a wall from which they were working. Monday instructions came through from the commissioner of fish and game to Deputy Warden Frederick E. Kies, to take up the work of distributing grain for flocks of game birds in this section. The birds are known to be very short of food on account of the heavy blanket of snow and several flocks have been reported within a few days hunting for something to eat there nothing was to be had.

The Christian Endeavor service in the evening was in charge of George F. Hyde, chairman of the prayer meeting committee, in the absence of Miss Martha Taylor, who was detained by the storm. "Reflecting"

IN comfort while I smoke my pipe.
I wonder how the world would be
In the north and south and west—
I'd like to take a trip and see!

California would be nice,
With its sunshine and its flowers,
Still, I guess it is no better
Than this varied clime of ours.

Florida might be delightful,
New York be bright and gay,
Boston quite a hub of learning,
Each fine in a special way.

But Connecticut's wooded hills,
Busy towns and fields are best;
For right here is all and more
Than in any of the rest.

The truth of this I'll plainly see.
On display all together
At the Winter Exposition.

RUPTURE EXPERTS

COMING TO NORWICH, CONN.

Demonstrate the Famous Rice Method Free to Callers at Hotel

If you are ruptured, your big opportunity has now arrived. If you want to be free from the slavery of gouging, pinching chafing trusses that make life a burden and misery, then HERE and NOW is the time to act.

J. M. HORTON,

expert in rupture cases, trained under the personal direction of W. S. Rice of Adams, N. Y., the originator of the Rice Non-Surgical Rupture Method, will be at the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, Conn., Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, and the Crocker House, New London, Conn., Friday and Saturday, January 19 and 20.

J. M. Horton is coming to personally demonstrate to all ruptured men, women and children what the Rice Rupture Method can accomplish. You have, no doubt, heard and read much about this famous Method and the thankful cures which thousands have reported from it. Now, you have the chance to find out all about it—what it is, how it acts and why it cures by having it applied to your own rupture so you can experience and know its marvelous influence and effect before you decide to adopt it. Just call at the Hotel and these experts will give you their personal attention, best advice and complete demonstration absolutely without charge.

Are you tired of that binding, hampering, uncomfortable truss? Would you like to be done with truss-wearing forever? Then investigate this Rice Method and learn the splendid possibilities of help and cure it holds out for you. Surely a Method that could enable so many thousands of former rupture sufferers—men, women and children—to report easy and painless home cures must be worthy of your fullest confidence. If the Rice Method can free you forever of every pain and trace of rupture torment, without operation, pain or danger, or loss a single hour from work—is it not worth your while to investigate, at least, as thousands of others have done before you, and determine that for yourself.

No matter if your rupture is one that has baffled doctors, trusses, or other methods, or if you have only a slight rupture, or a bad one, or if you have any rupture at all, no matter of its size or how many kinds of rupture appliances you have discarded in order to get relief, you owe it to yourself to investigate the Rice Method. Don't neglect your case beyond this time, as the Rice Method may be your last and best hope. Don't delay—don't put off—don't neglect—don't wait—don't hesitate—don't think of anything else until you have accomplishing results where all other treatments, even operations, have failed. It is modern, up-to-date, abreast of the latest scientific developments. It is the one Method that you are not asked to take on faith alone—the one Method that is positively demonstrated to you right on your own person, without any charge whatever. You do not spend a penny unless, after having a full and complete demonstration, you decide that this is the Method for you. And you—you alone—are the sole judge of that.

In justice to yourself, come in and see these experts. Remember, they will be here only two days, then your opportunity will be gone. Grasp it NOW. It is sure to prove one of the wisest things you ever did, and anyway, it costs you nothing to find out all about the Rice Method and just what it can do for you. Remember, there is no man or woman too old or child too young, nor is there any case, including the large Navel and Operation Ruptures too difficult to be helped by the Rice Method. So don't fail to come to the hotel on the date given and determine if this great home self-treatment is not the long hoped for means of help and cure you have been seeking.

Remember, come to the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, Conn., Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, or to the Crocker House, New London, Conn., Friday and Saturday, January 19 and 20, any time from 9 to 12 forenoons, 2 to 5 afternoons and 7 to 9 evenings. Just ask at the hotel desk for the Rice representatives and you will be directed to their private apartments. Your only regret following the visit will be that you have not learned of the Rice Method sooner.

IF YOU CANNOT CALL, WRITE FOR FREE TRIAL.

If you are unable to call then don't fail to write W. S. Rice, Inc., 550 Main St., Adams, N. Y., tell where rupture is located and a DEMONSTRATING TRIAL with full instructions for using at home will be mailed you free of charge.

People in hte borough, are obliged to resort to using wood to burn for fuel and almost any kind, wet, dry, and green wood. Much suffering will be caused if the people here are unable to procure coal. PREDICT VOTE IN SENATE ON CAPPER BILL TODAY

Washington, Jan. 15.—Such progress was made by the senate today in consideration of farm credits legislation that managers predicted a vote tomorrow on the Capper bill, the first of the farm relief measures to be taken up.

The credit legislation, pendings in the form of two bills, was taken up after the administration shipping bill had been laid aside temporarily by unanimous consent to make way for the farmers measure.

A unanimous vote for the Capper bill was predicted by its friends but considerable criticism was promised for the complementary credits measure. The Lenroot-Anderson bill, providing for federal subscription to credit departments, under the farm loan system, of $50,000,000 capital.

Before proceeding today with the Capper measure, the senate took action which was said to mean the defeat of the Norris bill proposing a government corporation to buy and sell agricultural products. Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, objecting to immediate consideration of the farm credits bill, demanded that his bill, which was reported several weeks before the credit legislation, be taken up first. His motion was defeated, 33 to 19. Mr. Norris said the defeat meant the loses of his bill during the present congress, bmut added that he expected to support both credit measures.

Speeches on the credits legislation were made today by Chairman McLean, of the bankings committee, which reported the two credits bills, Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, chairman of the senate farm bloc, and Senator Heflin, democratic, Alabama.

Senator Capper declared his bill would aid farmers substantially in obtaining longer term credits necessary for production and marketing of their products, without preventing establishment of still further credit machinery.

The co-operative credit feature of the Capper bill was stressed by Chairman McLean and Senator Capper, both of whom cited the success of California co-operative associations. Chairman McLean discussing the credit deflation and price reduction after the war, contended they were not not caused by the federal reserve board or the present system.

Mr. McLean's statements were denied by Senator Heflin, wso said, "deadly deflation" inspired by Wall street had been "the most diabolical crime ever perpetrated against a free people." Fifteen thousand persons, he asserted, have committed suicide because of losses from the alleged credit deflation policy, and he gave notice that efforts would be made to amend the pending bills to present passage of measures "not worth the paper they are written on."

Senator McLean said wider markets and lower freight rate were greater needs of the farmer than credit extension.

HOMES OF PHYSICIANS IN DUBLIN RAIDED

Dublin, Jan. 15.—(By The A. P.)—In addition to the kidnapping Friday night of Dr. Oliver Gogarty, a member of the Irish Free State senate, who later escaped from his captors, the homes of four other physicians in Dublin were raided during the week and the furniture in them smash-ed. All the physicians were absent at the time of the raids, but the miscreants declared they would visit them again until the physicians were found at home. The four physicians are believed to be sympathizers with the republicans, and the raids are attributed here as reprisals by organizations formed on Fascisti lines, designed to meet the irregulars with their own methors.

As some of the raids on the residences o the physicians preceded the capture of Dr. Gofarty, the reprisals are believed to have been aimed at avenging him but in pursuance of a plan for getting back at the friends of Eamon De Valera.

$500,000 GOLD WITHDRAWN FOR SHIPMENTS TO INDIA

New York, Jan. 15.—Gold valued at $500,000 was withdrawn through the federal reserve banw today for shipment to India via London. It is believed a million dollars more will be withdrawn this week.

While official comment was lacking as to the purpose of the shipment, it is believed here that the keen competition afforded by American financial interests at the London gold auction has prevented India from obtaining sufficient metal for her mint requirements in England, with the result that she finds it uiprofitable to buy here. Calcutta exchange reached its highest price since the war here today, the rupee being quoted at 31.40 cents demand.

The gold export movement has not yet reached sufficiently proportions to make any substantial inroads into the huge supply accumulated in this country since the war, although with Swedish exchangge selling above par and some other Scandinavian rates and the pound sterling heading in that direction, local bankers believe the time is not far distant when it again will become profitable to ship gold to Europe in order to correct trade balance.

Gold exports for the first 11 months of 1922, the latest figures available, totaled $34,165,000. The gold imports during the same period totaled $348,780,000 most of which came from England.

FUNERAL OF FORMER SLAVE GIRL IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Jan. 15.—Funeral services for Mrs. Patience Reid, former slave girl of Cumberland, Virginia, who died here last Saturday in her 108th year, will be held tomorrow from the home of her daughter. In spite of her advanced age, Mrs. Reid enjoyed the best of health until a few days before her death and never suffered impairment of her senses. During her life time the aged woman, through sales in the slave traffic, was separated from her parents and from a son, not one of whom she ever saw afterwards.

HARTFORD CITIZEN IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Declares Tanlac Completely Overcame Rheumatism From Which He Suffered Nearly a Year.

Raymond M. Frisbie, 25 Hudson St., Hartford, Conn., manager of the Belmont Lunch Room, is still another who has cause to be glad he was induced to give Tanlac an honest trial. Here is what he says about the medicine:

"There's nothing too good for me to say for Tanlac. It has helped me out of a bad case of rheumatism from which I had suffered in my arms and legs for almost a year. I could not raise my hands above my head, or stand on my feet without great pain. My nerves were played out, too, and I could not get sufficient rest. My energy had slipped away from me and I felt dull, tired and listless all the time.

"On the advice of a friend I began taking Tanlac about a month ago and it has rid me of my troubles and built me up eight pounds in weight. I get up mornings feeling refreshed and can stand on my feet all day without getting tired or feeling a pain. In fact, I am now feeling like myself again and am glad to speak out for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Over 35 million bottles sold.

POETRY

NIGHT SONG OF THE PINES.

Oh, I would sing of the swaying speech of the pines
Of what they say by night when the wind is high,
And the crumbling clouds go racing
over the sky,
And with ghostly face in the east the full moon shines!

Down from the crests of Carmel where slender and tall
They rise their soughing sweeps like a litany
And blends with the ceaseless surge and sob of the sea—
A rhythmic swell, and then a dip and a fall.

Whatever their words—and who shall interpret them clear?—
Forever they tell of strange and of eerie things
That clutch at the heart like an unseen wafture of wings;
Hark, they are murmuring now!—You may learn and hear.

—Clinton Scollard, in New York Herald

DISARMAMENT.

"Put up the sword!" The voice of Christ
once more
Speaks in the pauses of the cannon's roar.
O'er fields of corn by fiery ploughs reaped
And left dry ashes; over trenches heaped
With nameless dead; o'er cities starving slow
Under a rain of fire; through wards
Down which a groaning diseases runs
From tortured brothers, husbands, lovers sons,
Of desolate women in their far-off homes,
Waiting to hear the step that never comes!
O men and brothers! let that voice be heard.
War fails try peace; put up the useless sword.
Fear not the end. There is a story told
In eastern tents, when autumn nights grow cold
And round the fire the Mongol shepherds sit,
With grave responses listening unto it:
Once on the errands of his mercy bent
Buddha, the holy and benevolent,
Met a fell monster huge and fierce of look Whose awful voice the hills and forests shook.
"Oh, son of prince!" the giant cried, "thy fate
Is sealed at last, and love shall yield to hate."
The unarmed Buddha, looking with no trace
Of fear or anger in the monster's face,
In pity said: "Poor fiend, even thee I love."
So! as he spoke the shrivelled terror sank
To hand-breadth size; the huge abhorrence shrank
Into the form and fashion of a dove;
And where the thunder of its rage was heard,
Cooing above him sweetly sang the bird:
"Hate hath no charm for love," so ran the song;
"And peace unweaponed conquers every wrong."

—John G. Whittier.

It is said that ancient Rome consumed no less than 340,000,000 gallons of water a day, and a most noticeable feature of the modern city is the prodigal effervescence of its water, gushing from fountains of every conceivable size and design. The old Roman baths required much water. The splendid Thermae built by the degenerate emperor Caracalla had accommodation for 1,600 bathers. Besides the baths proper, the establishment included within its area of about a quarter of a mile square a gymnasium, athletic field, library and race course.—Detroit News.

Great crowds are attracted daily to a Park Row store window where a young woman is demonstrating a patent pencil. The fact that she seems to have a rich baritone voice is what attracts attention. A large phonograph horn is suspended outside the window and is attached by a tube in the window frame to a phonograph hidden under a table. As she starts the machine she speaks in unison with the "patter" of the record. Passersby hearing this masculine voice apparently coming from the lips of the girl stop in amazement.—New York Sun.

By means of a new instrument it is now possible to determine whether the lenses of eyeglasses and other optical devices have been accurately ground accordingly to the prescribed formula. Heretofore the means for testing optical lenses have been only approximately accurate and more or less liable to human error. This instrument, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, uses the light passing through the lens to measure its power. It combines the advantages of the other methods, none of which is complete in itself, and eliminates the defects peculiar to each.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DEPRESSED.

New York, Jan. 15.—French occupation of additional German territory with reports of a more threatening attitude on the part of the inhabitants provided speculators for the decline with an excuse for an assault on today's stock market, losses of 1 to 2 points being quite common among industrial shares and specialties.

Operators for the advance made two unsuccessful attempts to rally the list, first by bidding up the steel stocks and then by a brisk buying movement in railroad shares, but they eventually abandoned their constructive efforts. Convinced that the technical condition of the market warranted a reaction, the bear interests began offering stock freely around the end of the first hour and prices began to sag throughout the list. Industrials and specialties which had taken a prominent part in the recent upward movement were the hardest hit, the reaction in these shares being accelerated by profit taking on the part of recent buyers.

Baldwin fluctuated with a range of 3 1-4 points, closing at 133 1-4 for a net loss of 2 1-4. Studebaker dropped below 114 for a net loss of 2 1-2 points. Other prominent industrials and specialties to record net losses of 2 to 3 points were American Locomotive, Pan-American A and B, California Petroleum, American Can, American Tobacco A and B, Associated Dry Goods, Famous Players, General Electric, Texas Gulf Sulphur, International Paper, Macy & Co., Prairie Cereal, U. S. Alcohol and United Drug.

Southern Railway was one of the features of the short-lived rally in the railroad group, getting as high as 2 1-8, but reacting at the close to 87 3-4, where it was up 1 1-8 on the day. Buying of this issue was based on reports that the road would show earnings of nearly $4 a share on its common stock for 1922. Atlantic Coast Line closed 2 points higher and St. Paul Preferred, 1, but most of the other early gains in that group were reduced to fractions or converted into small net losses. Special weakness again cropped out in New Haven, which got as low as 16 1-2, but rallied at the close to 17 7-8, where it was off only 3-8 on the day.

Steel shares also forfeited their early gains. Gulf States Steel, which had been pushed up to 83 5-8, dropped back to 80 3-4 for a net loss of 1-4. U. S. Steel got as high as 107 3-8 but yielded to 105 3-4, or 5-8 below Saturday's close, on the final sale. Crucible and Replogle each registered net losses of more than a point.

There were a few exceptions to the downward trend. Anaconda closed at 49 7-8, or 1 3-8 points above Saturday's close, late buying being based on reports that the terms of the Anaconda-Chile merger would be announced after the market closed. Chile improved only 1-8, closing at 19 1-8. Leather and shoe stocks also were strong, Central Leather common and preferred rising 1-2 and 2 1-8 points. Respectively. American Hide & Leather, 1 1-4, and Brown Shoe, 7-8. The usual "selling on the good news" followed the announcement of a 20 per cent stock dividend by the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, the stock closing at a net loss of 1 1-4. Marine Preferred dropped to 40 7-8, its lowest point since 1921.

Call money opened and renewed at 4 per cent, but declined to 3 1-2 in the afternoon, closing at that figure. Little activity was apparent in the time money market. Some 30 day maturities being arrayed from 60 days to 6 months. Bankers demand 4 3-4 for the longer maturities. Commercial Paper continues quiet with the bulk of the prime names demanding 4 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were weak. Demand sterling dropped to $4.56 3-8, or more than 2 cents below last week's high. French francs dropped more than 15 points below 6.80 cents and German marks made another extreme low record, being quoted at 72 1-2 100ths of a cent or about 13,700 to the American dollar.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 15.—Fresh complications in the German reparations situation combined with a decided reaction in foreign exchange rates induced extensive selling of foreign bonds in today's market, the general list displaying irregularity with losses outnumbering the gains.

The decline in foreign securities was conducted in an orderly manner. Dominican Republic 8 1-2's lost 2 points and Seine 7s, 1 3-4, while Italian 6s, Brailian 7s, Bolivian 8s, State of Sao Paulo 8s, French 8s, Marseilles 6s, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s, Framerican 7 1-2s, Serbian 8s and Prague 7 1-2s yielded a point each.

Except for gains of 4 cents on Liberty 3 1-2s and 3 cents on the third 4 1-4s, all the active U. S. government securities showed losses of 2 to 6 cents.

The chief features of the railroad group were a break of 3 points in New Haven 6s, weakness of Erie and Northern Pacific issues and further recovery in St. Paul bonds.

Chile Copper 6s, off 3, and Marine 6s, off 1, were the weak spots of the industrial group in which Cerro De Pasco 8s, Lorillard Tobacco 7s, and distillers' securities 5s made gains of a point or more. Brooklyn Rapid Transit 4s broke 2 5-8 points and the stamped 7s, 1.

Total sales (par value) were $3,524,000.

Good absorption was reported in the $50,000,000 Cuban 6 1-2 per cent bond issues, which was put out at 97 1-4 to yield over 5.55 per cent. Announcement was made today that the recent $7,274,000 offering of "Nickel Plate" Second and Improvement Mortgage 6 per cent bonds had been oversubscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Although an unexpected decrease of the United States visible supply total brought about something of a rally during the late trading in the wheat market today prices averaged lower, largely as a result of heavy world's shipments. The close was unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 2-8c down with May 1.19 to 1.19 1-8 and July 1.12 3-4 to 1.13 7-8. Corn closed unchanged to 1-8@1-4 lower, oats 1-4c off to 1-8c advance and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 5c.

With world shipments of wheat last week greatly in excess of the amount for the preceding week and for the corresponding time last year, and with Liverpool quotations declining in consequence the wheat market here showed a sagging tendency until after mid-day. This tendency was emphasized by the fact that carlot receipts at the principal western markets aggregated 1,471 cars against 338 a year ago. Meanwhile, a majority of traders were apparently unable to decide for themselves whether slashing of European interests were at present to be construed as likely to bring about higher grain prices or the reverse.

Bears in the wheat market urged that for the most part European countries were in no financial position to go to war, and that warfare of a desultory kind would further restrict buying power. On the other hand, drought conditions in important sections of the domestic winter wheat territory were unrelieved.

Under such circumstances and with no new export business of consequence talked of, the volume of trading here was small, and the market easily influenced.

Corn and oats reflected the weakness of wheat, but rural offerings remained meagre, and other markets were persistently outbidding Chicago.

In the provision market, the effect of lower quotations on hogs was about counte-balanced by liberal export clearances.

continental combination against England, but had advised France to limit her military action in the Ruhr valley to the utmost, and not shut the door upon a possible agreement.

The premier declared that Italy had given France her political and technical support. Italy could not isolate herself without making a very serious mistake, neither could she dissociate herself from the operation for control of the coal fields in the Ruhr, which was a question of fundamental importance for European and Italian economics.

The proposal to form a continental combination against Great Britain was non-existent; the Italian government could never have contemplated such a combination.

If an entente were formed which could give Europe peace, it could not, in Italian opinion, succeed without the participation of Great Britain. Italy, said Mussolini, had no coal and could not allow herself the luxury of isolation. Italian policy had been inspired by the principles of the memorandum of London for safeguarding Italian interests and the restoration of European economic conditions.

The Italian government believed it was possible to reach an agreement, and was working to that end. It would be a grave mistake, declared the the premier, for German to reject such a possibility.

A slackening in the tension between the French authorities and certain industrialists in the Ruhr basin appeared to have occurred, and also apparently the working classes were not placing excessive difficulties in the way of control of the operations.

These remarks of the Italian premier were evidently made before the break between the German coal interests in the Ruhr and the Franco-Belgian commission of control was known to him.

As the German reparations payment due January 15 had been postponed until the 31st, Mussolini pointed out there was still a fortnight in which to solve the problem, and expressed the belief that it was not improbable France might come to view favorably the Italian proposal which was presented at the London conference.

HOPE MINE OWNERS WILL COME TO TERMS

Paris, Jan. 15.—(By the A. P.)—The allied engineers commission at Essen, acting in agreement with the French government, has decided, because of fresh information received, to suspend for twenty-four hours the order given for the requisition at the pithead of the coal due the reparations account. There is ground for hope that the mine owners will withdraw their decision, announced this morning, to comply with orders from Berlin to cease deliveries of coal and coke to France.

GERMAN KILLED IN CLASH WITH FRENCH TROOPS

Berlin, Jan. 15 (By the A. P.)—A clash between German demonstrators and French troops occured at the railway station at Bochum this evening. The French fired, killing one person and wounding several.

The incident followed political demonstrations on a big scale. Several thousand people collected in front of the town hall, where the French general had his quarters, and cheered the German republic, then marched through the streets. A number of young communists made a counter-demonstration, cheering the Third Internationale and the French Communist league.

The police were unable to handle the crowds, and towards the evening the French troops were obliged to intervene. It was about 8 o'clock in the evening when they opened fire near the railway station.

LEGION SANCTIONS FRENCH OCCUPATION OF GERMANY

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 15.—Resolutions indorsing the action of the French government in occupying certain territory in the Ruhr valley as a means of collecting the reparations award due her, were adopted by the executive committee of the American Legion today at the closing meeting of its two day session.

Within a short time after the amount of reparations due the allies from Germany had been fixed, the people of Germany immediately began to send out of the country gold, securities and othe forms of wealth and to seriously impair the whole German financial system for the purpose of avoiding payment, the resolution says.

Therefore, the action of France in occupying the Ruhr for the purpose of forcing compliance with the terms of the peace treaty, is justified, the resolution states, and adds that the Legion approves her course and wishes her success to the end that the wrongs endured and the damages suffered by her may to some extent be compensated.

Another resolution adopted at the meeting, urged the government to lend its every effot toward promoting tranquility among the nations of the wold during the present crisis and assist in establishment of a lasting peace.

The action of the authorities of Louisiana in their investigation and prosecution of the perpetrators of the hooded mask disorders, was commended by the committee, in a resolution adopted.

LOU TELLEGEN SEES NO CHANCE FOR RECONCILIATION

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 15.—Lou Tellegen checked out of his hotel during the night, it was learned today by interviewers, who sought to question him about a report that he had sent a bunch of roses to Miss Geraldine Farrar at a Lynn, Mass., theatre last the San Francisco Chronicle quoted him earlier as having no knowledge of the rose incident.

"I certainly did not send her any roses nor anything else," was Tellegen's emphatic statement, according to The Chronicle.

Tellegen said further, according to The Chronicle, that there was no chance for a reconciliation.

Won't you now learn what brought that change about?

Film—the enemy

Film is the great tooth enemy—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

It absorbs stains, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose their lustre.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

That's how tooth troubles come.

The new methods

Now we daily fight that film. Dental science, after long research, found two effective ways. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent omits the film and removes it without harmful grit. Its polishing agent is the safest ever used. Proven by the endorsement of the dental profession.

Two tooth pests to offset Pepsodent. Careful people of course do not use any regime to battle to dental ruin.

Night and day

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids as they form. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus it gives manifold power to these natural agents which night and day fight acids—the cause of tooth decay.

You'll welcome it

Pepsodent will delight you. Watch how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Watch these effects. Cut out this coupon and send it for a test. It will be a revelation.

DEFENSE RESTS CASE IN HERRIN RIOTS CASE

Maion, Ill., Jan. 15. (By the A. P.)—After having called 36 witnesses during the day to impeach testimony oeffred by the state, the defense in the trial of five men charged with the murder of Toward Hoffman, one of the victims of the Herrin riots, rested its case today.

Angus W. Kerr, chief counsel for the defense, immediately renewed a motion made when the prosecution rested late in December, asking that testimony introduced by the state be ruled out. Judge D. T. Hartwell overruled the motion and the posecution announced that it would begin its rebuttal tomorrow morning in the hope that the case would reach the jury by Friday.

Before resting, the defense turned to the last act of the tragedy of June 22, the shooting down of six nonunion workers at a little cemetery just outside Herrin. C. J. Frick, Marion undertaker and former mine union official, testified that he had started from Marion to the cemetery about nine miles away in his automobile ambulance just as the Marion town clock was striking nine the morning of the slayings.

Frick asserted that he arrived at the cemetery about 9.30, saw the six dead and dying men laying in the road and the crowd surrounding them. He said he remained there about ten minutes when he called the coroner at Herrin, that he saw no guns or abuse of any of the victims.

On cross-examination Frick said three of the men in the oad were still alive and that he heard one of them ask for water. He admitted that he made no attempt to bring water or aid the victims in any way.

AMERICAN STATEMENT AT LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Lausanne, Jan. 15 (By the A. P.)—The American delegation made the following statement at the Near Eastern conference today relative to a future fiscal regime applicable to foreigners in Turkey:

"The future fiscal regime applicable to foreigners in Turkey is a matter of legitimate concern to the United States representatives. The United States desires to take this opportunity to point out that by virtue of treaties, usage and custom citizens of the United States have enjoyed certain rights in Turkey.

"The United States understands that the Turkish government desires to be free from any and all unwarranted restrictions upon its sovereignty. It is not the desire of the United States to obtain special privileges for itself or its nationals, but it desires to protect its rights and assure for its citizens opportunity and privileges equal to those of other nationals in Turkey.

"In case existent rights are to be replaced by others with the joint consent of Turkey and the United States the new regime set up will require as a minimum not only the most favored nation treatment, but also equality of commercial, professional and institutional exemption and the opportunity or privilege which Turkey accords her own nationals in the field of commerce, business, education, charity and religion.

"A clear distinction must be made between the existence of the internal laws of Turkey, which are subject to repeal or change at any time, and the existence of specified rights of other countries and of their nationals. It is the common custom of nations dealing with each other to define these rights by international treaties and not by domestic legislation.

"The representative of the United States desires to point out particularly that prosperity, the activity of commercial and industrial enterprises and religious, educational, welfare, relief and charitable institutions in Turkey should enjoy any special exemptions or privileges which now exist under the Turkish law or which Turkey has an inclination to put in force by international agreement and by internal legislation.

"It is believed that Turkey will desire a new treaty stipulation with guarantees that will insure the continuation of all foreign enterprises in Turkey that are to her advantage and encourage their future increase and development. Treaty stipulations are necessary to give confidence that domestic legislation will provide suitable guarantees."

SOFT COAL PRICES HAVE REACHED PEAK LEVELS

Washington, Jan. 15.—Bituminous coal prices, which have been advancing during recent weeks at a rate which has occasioned concern in official, consuming and trade circles, have about reached peak levels, according to F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor. He said that, unless a widespread transportation tie-up developed, the prices could be expected soon to show some tendency to ease off, since the car shortage which has hampered distribution is being relieved and the demands of domestic consumers who have been forced to supplement limited anthracite supplies with bituminous are being satisfied.

Latest figures available at the distribution office show that during the week which ended January 8, the average price of bituminous coal at the mines, where sold on the "spot" market, was $4.54 for the United States as a whole. During the preceding week the figure was $4.47, while for the first week in December it was $3.93. These prices, Mr. Wadleigh pointed out, did not include cost of transportation from mines to points of consumption, nor was coal mined under yearly contracts considered.

TELLS NORWICH MEN THEY MUST KEEP THAMES RIVER DEVELOPED

Waterways are creators of prosperity, declared S. A. Thompson of Washington, secretary of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, to the gathering of 115 men Monday evening at the Wauregan house at the monthly membership meeting of the chamber of commerce. Norwich must not lose the great advantages which it has in its river and harbor and must head every effort for their improvement, he pointed out. If the government will not provide all the money that is needed, it would be well worth while for the city and town to make a 50-50 proposition; and if the government would not meet this, it would be still be worth while and of immense and vital ultimate importance to the growth of this city if the citizens even advanced all the money for a deeper and wider channel in the Thames river. If we don't keep up with the procession, we will drop behind.

Secretary Thompson, who has made the subject of waterways a study for 35 years, held the closest attention of his audience as he spoke for over an hour, giving instances of remarkable development of cities through the development of waterways in the experience of Frankfort, Germany, Manchester, England, Houston and three other cities in Texas.

President Lerou Introduces Speaker.

Supper was served at 6.30 after the blessing had been asked by Rev. A. N. Foster, the new pastor of the Universalist church, who was seated next to President B. M. Lerou and the speaker at the head table.

Fine music during the supper hour was rendered by Swahn's orchestra, with the diners joining in the chorus of popular songs under the leadership of Edwin Hill.

In introducing the speaker, President Lerou spoke of his gratification at seeing the large gathering and said that no subject of greater importance had ever come before the chamber of commerce than the effort to secure a 16-foot channel, 200 feet wide in the Thames river.

"One man above all others who can tell us what this means is 'Deeper Waterways' Thompson," said President Lerou as he gave way to the speaker who was greeted with warm applause, which was repeated a number of times in the course of his informing address.

Secretary Thompson Speaks.

In part Mr. Thompson spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: There are only a few people in the country who think that their taxes are too small and the number is equally few who know that is the greatest tax that they pay. Comparing figures furnished respectively by the Census Bureau and the interstate commerce commission, we find that, in 1912, out of the gross revenues of the railways of the United States, there could have been paid every dollar expended by the national government for all purposes; every dollar expended by all of the 48 states and the District of Columbia; every dollar expended by the counties in those states; and every dollar expended by all the cities, towns and incorporated villages in the United States with a population of 2,500 or over, and there would then have been left over more than $151,000,000. In other words, the average citizen of the United States paid more for railway transportation alone than he paid for the support of all governmental activities, from the nation down to the village.

Transportation affects everything that is bought or sold by any individual; it limits the territory tributary to the trade of any city; it determines the development of the resources of any state; and, far more than any other single factor, it fixes the share obtained by any nation in the commerce of the world. Transportation changes the location of things without changing their character. It therefore constitutes a tax which must be borne either by the producer or the consumer, or divided between the two, and, since our transportation taxes are so high, it is worth while to see if some way cannot be found by which they can be reduced, and to inquire what is the cheapest form of transportation. Statistics, like everything else, were thrown into chaos by the great war, it must be understood, therefore, that the figures which I shall use refer to the period previous to the war.

Comparative Transportation Costs.

The experts of the agricultural department estimate the cost of transporting a ton of freight a distance of one mile by horse and wagon, on the average road in the United States, at 25 cents. In England where the roads are much better than most of those in this country and where much attention has been given to the development of what the English call a steam lorry and we would call a steam truck, it is said that goods can be carried for 3 cents per ton per mile.

For a number of years before the war the average rate on all the railroads in the United States was about 7 1-2 mills per ton per mile, but a special group of roads could be chosen upon which the average was about 5 mills.

On the Erie Canal, before its enlargement, the ten-ton rate for a series of years was about 3 mills, while on certain canals in Europe (notably the Teltow Canal near Berlin), which are deeper and wider and on which electric or other mechanical systems of haulage are used, the rate was 2 mills.

The official records kept at the "Soo" show that the average rate on freight carried into and out of Lake Superior in 1913 was two-thirds of a mill per ton-mile, while coal was habitually carried from Buffalo to Duluth, and was often carried from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, for one-third of a mill per ton per mile.

What Dollar Will Do

These are microscopic figures; let me translate them into something with which the average business man is more familiar. Here is something (holding up a dollar bill) with which I hope all of you are very much more familiar than I am. Suppose you have a ton of freight to ship and a dollar to spend in shipping it—how far will the dollar carry the ton by these different methods and at these different rates of transportation?

By horse and wagon, a little over 4 miles; by English steam truck, 20 miles; by rail, at the average rate for United States railways, 133 miles; at the rate on the group of selected railways, 200 miles; on the Erie canal, 333 miles; on the European canals, 500 miles; by lake, at the average rate through the "Soo" canal in 1913, 1,500 miles; while at the rate at which coal was carried both on the Great Lakes and on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, the ton of freight can be shipped 30 miles for a cent, 200 miles for a dime, 3,000 miles for a dollar.

It must already be apparent that the difference in the cost of transportation by different methods is sufficiently great to be worthy of serious consideration, but let me carry the argument a step further. Taking any point as a center, over how great a territory will a dollar carry a ton by these different methods and at these various rates of transportation?

By horse and wagon, over a circle a little more than 8 miles in diameter; with the English steam truck on the English road, the diameter of the circle becomes 40 miles; at the average railway rate in the United States, it expands to 266 miles; at the rate on the selected railways, to 400 miles; at the Erie canal rate, to 666 miles; at the European canal rate to 1,000 miles; at the "Soo" canal rate, to 3,000 miles; while, at the coal rate which has been named, the dollar will carry the ton to the outer limits of a circle of 6,000 miles in diameter.

It must be clear to you, gentlemen, from the figures that I have given that the cost of transportation absolutely limits and determines the distance from which raw materials can be drawn for manufacture, the distance to which the finished product can be shipped in competition with others in the same line of business; and that applies not only to firms and individuals, but to cities, states, and nations. And the nation, the city, the firm, or the individual that has the best, the cheapest, the most economical form of transportation available is the one that will win in the competition for trade anywhere on earth.

German Commerce Built on Waterways

It came to me with surprise which was almost a shock when I found that for every one of the 26 years ending with 1913, the foreign commerce of Germany exceeded that of the United States, and that the excess grew steadily greater from year to year. Divide the twenty years into four periods of five years each—in the first five years the foreign commerce of Germany exceeded that of the United States by an annual average of $207,000,000; in the second five-year period the excess was $221,000,000; in the third, it was $400,000,000; in the fourth, the average excess for each year was $782,000,000; for the single year 1912 it was $855,000,000; and for the whole twenty years it was $7,700,000,000.

Holland and Belgium are insignificant in size as compared with the United States, for taken together they are almost exactly as large as West Virginia, but in that limited area they support a population of more than 11,000,000 souls and had developed a foreign trade which, before the war, exceeded that of the United States by from $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 a year. A still more striking, indeed a startling, result is obtained when we take the figures for Germany, Holland and Belgium combined. In 1908, for instance, the foreign commerce of these three countries exceeded that of the United States by the astounding total of $3,600,000,000.

There is nothing in that record for the United States to be proud of, and that little becomes still less when we remember that they have less than one-third our area—being in fact 33,000 square miles smaller than the state of Texas—a population smaller by 14,000,000, less than one-half the accumulated wealth, a soil and climate that are no better to say the least, and natural resources not a tenth as great as ours.

But they have two things which compensate for the lack of many others; first, nearness to the sea, for no part of Germany is farther from tidewater than Pittsburgh is from New York; and second, a system of inland waterways composed of thousands of miles of connected and dependable channels, over which imported raw materials bound for factories in the interior and finished products on their way to the seaports and the markets of the world may move at the lowest possible cost of transportation.

Waterways And Prosperity.

I hope there is no one here who thinks that Norwich has no interest in the development of waterways in other parts of the United States. It is true in the United States as it is everywhere else that waterways are creators of prosperity. You find the densest populations, the greatest development of commerce and industry and the heaviest traffic in those regions which are best provided with waterways. My own study of the matter leads me to the conclusion that if the national government or the state governments should refuse to develop the waterways of the United States, the railways ought to make that development out of their own resources, not as a matter of sentiment or patriotism, but as a hard-headed, cold-blooded business proposition.

The products of the factories in Norwich do not find their markets within the city limits, the state of Connecticut or the boundaries of New England. Norwich made goods are known throughout the United States and indeed in foreign lands and everything that increases prosperity throughout our great country increases the market for the goods which you produce.

However, your interest is chiefly in the Thames river, and it is not strictly speaking a river proposition but a harbor proposition. I find that the first appropriation by congress for the Thames river was made on the 3d of March, 1821. It consisted of $150, which was used to remove certain obstacles placed in the river during the War of 1812. The second appropriation was for the same amount. This was made on the 2nd of March, 1823 and was used for a survey. The first appropriation for improvement was made on the 4th of July, 1836. It consisted of $10,000. An appropriation of $20,000 was made on the 3d of March, 1837 and another of $10,000 was made on July 7, 1838, but so far as the records show no further appropriation was made until June 23, 1866.

$584,474 Spent on Thames

I find that originally there was a narrow, tortuous channel, 6 feet deep, in the six miles of the river immediately below Norwich, and the original project adopted in 1836 called for a channel 100 feet wide and 11 feet deep in this portion of the river. The existing project, which was adopted in the River and Harbor bill of 1882, and modified in the bills of 1907 and 1910, calls for a channel of the same depth over this six miles, but 200 feet wide.

The total expenditures which were made to June 30, 1922, were $584,474.55. The real question is not what anything costs, but does it produce results that justify the cost.

Unfortunately we have complete records of the amount and value of the tonnage carried on the river only since 1909. We have records of the tonnage carried from 1902 forward and I have been able to find statements for certain years as far back as 1892, from which it is possible to get a fairly good approximation to the facts. As closely as it can be got at, there have been carried on the river in the 30 years from 1892 to 1921, inclusive something like 13,000,000 tons of freight which had a value of $250,000,000. Even if we put the entire expense on the traffic of this 30 year period, it amounts to only 4 1-2 cents for each ton of weight, and $2.34 for each thousand dollars of value of the commerce carried, leaving in the phrase of the day, all the value of the traffic carried from 1536 to 1892 as "pure velvet."

Future For Norwich.

I know that there is not a man within the sound of my voice, and I doubt if there is one within the limits of the city, who believes that Norwich is finished and ready to be fenced in. You have had an honorable past, one of which to be proud rather than ashamed, but the thing for you to do is to turn your faces from the past and try to visualize the tremendous possibilities of the future. These possibilities, however, are not going to be changed into actualities and dropped into your laps by a bountiful providence. While I would not venture to set any limit to these possibilities, how much you get and how soon you get it will depend upon your vision, your energy, your staying power, the intelligence with which you plan and the energy with which you work.

The first requirement for a port is access to the sea. You have a channel 14 feet deep in the upper portion of the Thames river, 12 feet deep, I believe, to the city wharf on the Shetucket. A channel of these dimensions is by no means to be despised. In 1913 it carried 630,754 tons of traffic, and in 1921 the commerce of the river was worth more than $18,000,000 but every increase in depth and width which can be secured in the channel makes possible a vast increase in the volume and value of the traffic which it carries. It is an axiom among vessel men that within any reasonable limits, the greater the carrying capacity of a vessel, the less is the cost at which each ton of cargo can be carried.

Access to the sea is first, next in importance comes the equipment for the transfer of commodities between ships and shore. This includes docks or quays, warehouses, elevators, cargo-handling machinery, streets and railways.

There is a very large overhead cost to modern vessels and every bit of delay in getting into or out of a dock or in the unloading and re-loading of cargo causes an increased expense which has to be met out of the price paid by the shippers or receivers of the goods which they carry, and if by some ability in planning, some skill in the development or the operation of the equipment of a port, it can offer lower costs, and quicker dispatch than other ports, business will flow to that port just as surely as water will run down hill.

It goes without saying that there must be the most careful preliminary study of the volume and kind of traffic to be handled before the equipment of the port is planned and built. There are engineers in the country today who specialize in just this sort of thing and as a starter, I want to remind you that under certain provisions that were put into the Transportation Act of 1920 by the activities of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, the chief of engineers of the United States army, and the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, may be called upon for advice and assistance in planning the kind and amout of equipment which you should build.

Get Best Results From Harbor.

Of course you men of Norwich want to get the very best out of your harbor that is possible, and the experience of the ports of the world, I think, has proved that the best results are obtained when the entire port is owned and operated by the city itself, not under the control of a committee of the city council, because the personnel of such committee necessarily changes continually, but under the control of a permanent harbor commission composed of men selected because of their especial fitness for the positions which they are to fill and who are given either permanent positions or very long terms so that there may be an absolute continuity of policy developed and carried out.

There are other things which also must be supplied before Norwich or any other port can reach its highest development. There must be banking capital available for financing the exports and the imports. There should be great firms or corporations which can bring commodities from all the territory which can profitably be tapped for shipment and which can distribute goods received by vessel over all the territory within which it is possible to compete with other ports.

In 1866, Hamburg was nothing but a sleepy fishing village on the shores of a muddy river, but the government improved the channel of the river and the village, the city which it presently became, and the true State of Hamburg, which it finally evolved into, poured tens and scores of millions of dollars into the building and equipment of a harbor and when the war broke out in 1914, Hamburg was disputing with London and Liverpool and New York for the position of first port of the world. I do not of course mean to say that Norwich can become a New York, a Liverpool, or a Hamburg I do say, however, that you can have a growth and a development, and a prosperity beyond anything that may seem possible today and that your growth and development in industry in commerce in population and prosperity will depend more upon the degree to which you develop your port along all lines than upon any other factor—indeed more than upon all other factors combined.

RESERVOIRS WILL RECEIVE MUCH WATER FROM SNOW

January is making a good start on the rain record for the month, as the total measurement so far at the water office is 3.59 inches. The last rain recorded was .43 of an inch.

Much water is expected to be added to the reservoirs as soon as the snow that is on the ground begins to melt. Fairview reservoir is now 17 inches down from full pond and Stony Brook reservoir is down 11 feet. It will not take much to give a full pond again at Fairview, and Stony Brook will no doubt begin to approach full pond measurement again as soon as the watershed begins to discharge from the snow that has accumulated.

AN ULTIMATUM HAS BEEN DELIVERED TO THE MINE OWNERS AT DUSSELDORF

Unless Resumption of Reparations Coal Deliveries to France and Belgium Are Resumed This Morning, Germany Will be Subjected to Further Penalties—A London Despatch Says Italy Has Offered to Become Mediator Between France and Germany—Italy is Not Disposed to Favor Extreme Coercive Measures Against the Germans—There Has Been No Serious Disturbance at Bochum.

Essen, Jan. 16 (By the A. P.)—How far the Franco-Belgian occupation will ultimately extend and what other punitive steps are contemplated are questions uppermost in the minds of the Ruhr population because of the new ultimatum delivered to the mine directors at Duesseldorf today. General Degoutte's latest order, which is declared to be final, provides for the resumption of the reparations coal deliveries to France and Belgium not later than tomorrow morning; otherwise Germany will be subjected to further penalties.

The German mine owners say they were not given a hearing at the Duesseldorf meeting and reiterate their intention to abide by the federal commissar's instructions to withhold the deliveries.

While it was revealed at the conference that the occupation of Dortmund was the price paid for the commissar's action, French circles in Essen declined to disclose the nature of the additional penalties to be exacted. Reports are widely current that Muenster will be the next large place to fall, yet these are skeptically received because that city is so far outside the so-called Ruhr area.

It is pointed out, however, that Muenster possesses great strategic importance, as it is one of the big central points of the railroad through Wesel, which runs parallel to the railroad through Hamm, Dortmund, Bochum, Essen and Duisburg. Thus its occupation would aid greatly in effecting control of the Ruhr traffic, as the occupying forces are reported to be planning.

Control stations have already been established on the lines about Essen and freight trains being required to stop for fifteen minutes while their papers are being inspected. It is feared here that one of the steps in the program of occupation will be to place such a tight ring of patrols about the occupied territory that the rest of Germany will be deprived of Ruhr coal.

Reports stated in German quarters that no more freight cars are being permitted by the railroad administration of occupied Germany to enter the Ruhr and hundreds of cars were burned during the first stages of the occupation.

German engineers today went to the mines in the neighborhood of Essen and endeavored to determine whether the mines were being resumed and to inspect the machinery. They were unsuccessful in the first respect and are reported to have applied sabotage to the machinery so that it would be ruined if operated by the invaders.

The latest German moves gave it as their opinion that war was probably the immediate result of the occupation of Dortmund. The miners have been ordered to keep on strike to support their families, thus creating economic conditions which, it is declared, would force the occupying powers to withdraw. The miners have been paid their wages in full, and the strike order was issued before the orders tried to extend the working day of the miners. Other German circles declare that the strike of miners' unions are so solid that a strike could not be supported for more than a fortnight.

The Bochum disorder of yesterday is the sole instance of serious disturbance since the French and Belgian troops came into the district.

ITALY IS OPPOSED TO SEVERE MILITARY ACTION

Washington, Jan. 31.—(By The A. P.)—To the utmost limits consistent with the preservation of its relations with France and also with Great Britain, the Italian government has been exerting itself within the past few days to restrain French officials from proceeding with extreme measures of coercion against Germany.

A clear exposition of Italy's delicate and difficult position in connection with the problem of the Ruhr invasion has already been made known to Italy's allies and undoubtedly, while not sufficing to cause any sensible change in the French plans, the views of the Rome government have received serious consideration.

A discussion of the Italian position is likely soon to be made to official Washington, and meanwhile some of its features have been learned through persistent inquiry in informed quarters.

One of the most important disclosures is that the Italian government, while of necessity concurring in the decision of the reparations commission that Germany was in voluntary default in the supply of coal and other supplies required to be turned over to the allies, never contemplated a military invasion of the Ruhr.

It is quite clear that what the Italian government supposed was to be done was to leave the collection of the overdue reparations in the hands of technical experts, and that it is still convinced that such a plan might have worked successfully without the adoption of severe military measures.

The cost of collection of the penalties by force would probably absorb the entire product, it was held by Italian officials, in view of the enormous expense of a military occupation of the Ruhr, even if it were assumed that the German miners and factory workmen would consent to continue under French employment. Meantime, great unrest among the industrial classes in Italy, more or less sympathetic with the workers in Germany, supplemented by real distress and unemployment among the Italians caused by the cutting off of their fuel supply, has caused the Italian government no little concern.

There has been no question of Italy's adherence to the alliance, if for no other reason than that she absolutely must obtain German coal which can only be had in accordance with the provisions of the Versailles treaty. In addition, financial considerations are involved in the case of Italy. She must have the coal to run her industries, and on the other hand, she cannot afford to pay for coal imported from countries other than Germany, since the German coal was to come to her without cost as part of the reparations due her under the peace treaty.

In Italian official quarters there has been no thought of a breach with Great Britain. It is understood that the British government has been reassured on this point.

Meanwhile, it is believed in Rome that though disproving of the extreme and forcible measures adopted by the French and Belgians in regard to the Ruhr, the Italian government can best serve the cause of peace by continuing in at least formal relations with these two countries so far as reparations are involved. Standing as the good friend of all the parties, it has been the Italian belief from the start that Italy may be in a favorable position to act as a mediator and may be able eventually to bring about complete co-operation among all the entente powers.

FRENCH VERSION OF THE CLASH AT BOCHUM

Duesseldorf, Jan. 16 (By the A. P.).—The official French version of the clash between French troops and German civilians at Bochum last night, in which one German was killed and another severely wounded, was given out at the occupational headquarters here this afternoon.

A large crowd of Germans had assembled near the Bochum railroad station, says the statement, where they were singing songs insulting to France. When ordered to disperse by the French commander they refused, and several shots were fired at the sentries. The French retaliated with their rifles, firing high at first, then shooting to kill. The French declare no machine gun was used against the Germans.

ITALY AS MEDIATOR ON REPARATIONS QUESTION

London, Jan. 16.—(By The A. P.)—Italy has offered to mediate between France and Germany on the reparations question, says a Central News despatch from Rome, quoting an announcement by the Italian ministry of foreign affairs.

Italy's proposals, the despatch adds, embrace control or control of the Ruhr, together with the cessation of hostilities with Germany.

Italy, the statement is said to say, is not allied in any way with the Franco-British character.

BOYDEN SUGGESTION MERELY MEMORANDUM

Washington, Jan. 16.—(By the A. P.)—The suggestion placed before the reparations commission by Roland W. Boyden, and which apparently has been regarded abroad as a proposal of the American government for settlement of the reparations problem, was said by Secretary Hughes tonight to be nothing more than "a purely personal" memorandum prepared by Mr. Boyden at the request of commission members and in no sense embodying a "plan for the settlement of reparations."

SYMPATHY IN MEXICO FOR PAPAL DELEGATE

Mexico City, Jan. 16.—(By the A. P.)—Throughout the day crowds of Mexicans gathered outside the residence of Monsignor Ernesto Filippi, the papal delegate to Mexico, who has been ordered deported by President Obregon, to attest their friendship and sympathy for him. Monsignor Filippi, however, declined to receive them.

The prelate will leave tomorrow night for Lerado, on his way to Washington and New York. Today numerous messengers delivered letters and telegrams from all parts of the republic assuring Monsignor Filippi of the sympathy of the senders. With street demonstrations denied them by the civil authorities, the entire Catholic population of the city has protested by appearing before the residence of the prelate in person or sending him greeting by telegraph or mail.

The Italian minister called at the United States embassy last night and secured a vise for the passport of Monsignor Filippi. The embassy has instructed all the border authorities to extend every possible courtesy to the departing papal delegate.

The Italian minister will not accompany Monsignor Filippi to the border. He said today his duties would end when he had afforded all possible assistance to the prelate as an Italian subject.

PAPERS FOR EXTRADITION OF ARTIST MACARTHUR

Newark, N. J., Jan. 16.—Captain Godfrey of the prosecutor's office of Esse county, announced today that Governor Smith of New York had signed papers for theextradition of Alexander A. MacArthur, 20 year old artist and foster son of a millionaire New York contractor, who is under indictment by the grand jury of Essex on charges of assaulting two women in 1921.

Captain Godfrey said extradition papers had been mailed and are expected to arrive tomorrow morning. McArthur will finish a three months' term at Blackwell's island January 21, where he was sentenced for disorderly conduct.

Previous attempt was made by Essex county officials to extradite McArthur but failed, when Governor Miller reported no evidence had been produced to show McArthur was in New Jersey at the time of the alleged crimes.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Has Fallen Out With Creditors

Paris, Jan. 16.—Prince Antoine of Bourbon-Orleans, a former infante of Spain, has fallen out with some of his creditors, thirteen of whom appeared in the hall of justice today seeking an order to have the prince's silverware and furniture sold at auction to pay his debts. The judge, however, decided that the claims, a number of which were for cash advanced, were not sufficiently large to justify such action.

IMMIGRANTS EXPERIENCED A HARROWING PASSAGE

New York, Jan. 16.—A haggard, hungry crowd of 352 immigrants from fourteen European nations, whose diet for the past four days consisted exclusively of beans, bread, sardines, catsup and chili sauce, lined the rail of the Greek steamer Acropolis which arrived today after a 33 days' voyage from Patras, with a tale of a harrowing series of misfortunes. All passengers, except nineteen Americans, were held on board pending removal tomorrow to Ellis Island for examination.

The climax of the vessel's mishaps came today when United States marshals posted two libels aggregating $4,298 on her pilot house. Woeful tidings came not only to the ship's officers for the crew found that wages were not forthcoming; and laments in many tongues arose when word of exhaustion of immigration quotas was carried to travel-weary immigrants.

Ships officers said their Odebegone odyssey began when labor troubles held up the ship's departure in Patras for 31 days. An appeal was made to the American consul to effect removal of the passengers when it was seen that the Acropolis could not get to America before exhaustion of the various immigration quotas.

The American authorities enabled 500 immigrants who were provided with funds to leave the ship, but the Greek authorities, according the ship's officers, refused to help the penniless immigrants left on the ship, and, with threats, forced the vessel to leave for America.

No sooner had the vessel sailed than it was discovered that the coal purchased in Greece was almost entirely slate. For five days until the patrolls arrived at Malta, deck benches, rails, hold partitions and cargo wood was fed to the furnaces.

A few days out from Algiers a violent tempest forced the captain to take refuge in a port in the Azores Islands from where he proceeded to Amerlca.

RUM FLEET MAY MOVE TO LONG ISLAND SHORE

New York, Jan. 16.—Should the vagabond fleet of rum runners, which has been quetly riding the waves off Sandy Hook since Friday when squalls terminated landing of the liquor it carried, attempt to transfer operations from the Jersey coast to Long Island, it will be met with resistance, John I. Appleby, prohibition zone chief announced tonight.

Chief Appleby and Field Supervisor John A. Murphy, acting federal director for New York state, both announced today that the rum fleet, which they suppose to be hovering beyond the three mile limit, is inactive so far as ferrying their contraband cargo to shore is concerned, but that reports have reached them that the fleet contemplates moving nearer the Long Island shore.

When reports of the intended shift of the fleet reached Chief Appleby he tightened his lines.

"We have all landing points on the southern shore of Long Island well protected," he edid, "including East Rockaway inlet, Jones' inlet and Fire Island inlet. At the present time I don't believe there are over fifty cases a day being brought into Long Island from the rum-running fleet."

PRESIDENT HARDING IS AFFLICTED WITH A COLD

Washington, Jan. 16.—President Harding, because of a cold which has afflicted him for several days, went to the White House proper today soon after the regular cabinet meeting and spent the afternoon in seclusion resting. He retired for the night early. Brigadier General Sawyer, the president's personal physician, emphasized, however, that there was nothing serious in Mr. Harding's condition.

The first intimation that the president was indisposed was given at the usual Tuesday conference with newspapermen when he indicated his wish that the conference be prolonged no further than necessary and it was at once terminated.

The president, it was said, caught cold last week, and on Monday after a busy morning at the executive offices felt it best to spend the afternoon at the White House in his study. He sent for his stenographer, however, and disposed of a mass of papers that had accumulated.

Mr. Harding has engagements for tomorrow covering the entire morning, but none for the afternoon. Some may be cancelled, if he still desires to remain in seclusion.

Tilt in House Over 18th Amendment

Outcome of "Liquor Drinking" Charges Made Recently by Representative Upshaw.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Declaring that prohibition had "utterly failed to prohibit," Representative Bourke Cockran, democrat, New York, told the house today that if the president should call into the enforcement service all the forces used after the Civil war to enforce the 14th and 15th amendments, "the result would be the same—a dead letter in many states."

The New York representative, who was speaking in reply to the charges of liquor drinking by high officials recently made on the floor of the house by Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia, added that "fanaticism and regulation had gone mad, already had resulted in disorders in some sections of the country, and had demonstrated that there are localities where the 18th amendment "cannot be enforced."

Calling attention to the great majority given Governor Smith, of New York, running on a wet platform in the last election, Mr. Cockran said he hoped to see the New York idea adopted by other states.

That the dry act had proved a failure, Mr. Cockran declared had been shown so completely as to call forth the extraordinary statement of President Harding that disregard of the law's provisions are so widespread as to constitute a great national scandal.

"Who shall be permitted to judge morality for me?" he asked. "We might just as well come along with a constitutional amendment regulating what we shall eat and how long we shall sleep. Or we might by that means regulate the length of a skirt and the degree to which a lady may expose her shoulder to a friend.

"Every attempt to enforce morality is attended by disorder, and there are localities in this country where the 18th amendment cannot be enforced."

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, replying to Mr. Cockran, reminded the house that the United States was closing today its third year under national prohibition.

"What was there in the speech of Mr. Upshaw of Georgia that so aroused the opponents of that law?" he asked.

"Simply that law and order should prevail, and that you and I as members of this house, and government officials who have taken the oath, should observe the law."

There after, he said, Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, whom he characterized as the spokesman for the Association Opposed to Prohibition, wanted the Upshaw charges investigated.

"The gentleman from Maryland," Mr. Cramton said, "ought to include in his resolution a speech he made two years ago in St. Louis in which he said there was nothing so thirsty as a dry congressman and that he had been forced to stop keeping liquor in his office because so many prohibitionists went to see him he had none for his wet friends."

Mr. Cramton said Mr. Cockran solicited the nullification of the Volstead law on the ground that no law should be enforced in any community against the will of the people.

"This whole question," he declared, "is law enforcement on the one hand and disorder, anarchy and nullification on the other."

CONSIDERATION OF CAPPER BILL NEARLY COMPLETED

Washington, Jan. 16.—Consideration of the Capper farm credits bill was nearly completed today by the senate but final action went over until tomorrow, with the other credit measure, the Lenroot-Anderson bill, scheduled to be taken up immediately after its disposal.

Little criticism of the principles of the Capper bill was aired in today's discussion, although its efficacy was scouted by some republicans as well as democrats. Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, said he hoped it would not prevent enactment of "real" farm credits legislation, declaring the co-operative credit associations proposed would not be of much aid to agriculturists except livestock growers.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, described as "splendid" measures for farmer relief the bill's proisions extending federal resere system loans on farmers' notes to nine months and authorizing continuation of the war finance corporation's loan aid for another year.

An amendment by Senator Norbeck, republican, North Dakota, changing the title of the bill to "federal livestock and agricultural loan act," was accepted by Chairman McLean of the Banking committee and adopted by the senate. The new title is based on the co-operative credit corporation principle of the bill.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, advocated farmers' co-operative credit organizations controlled by farmers and not bankers. He asserted that not one ban kin Iowa "fits into the business of agriculture." Farmers, he added, contributed about $4,000,000,000 of the federal reserve system's deposits and obtained loans from it aggregating only $1,900,000,000, but were denied credit they needed.

READY FOR ARGUMENTS IN HERRIN RIOTS CASE

Marion, Ill., Jan. 16.—(By the A. P.)—An offer to submit the fate of the five men charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman, one of the victims of the Herrin riots, to the jury immediately without argument, was made by the defense today at the close of the state's rebuttal.

After a hurried conference among attorneys representing the prosecution, the offer was refused. Judge Hartwell announced that argument will begin tomorrow after counsel has submitted instructions to him.

The completion of the state's case was marked by constant clashes between opposing counsel over th introduction of evidence by the state designed to refute an attack by the defense on the character of George Nelson, a farmer, and to substantiate the testimony given by Dr. O. F. Shipman of Herrin, and Donald Ewing, a Chicago newspaper man, all three of whom were witnesses for the prosecution.

Edward J. Brundage, attorney general, is expected to make a statement to the jury regarding law enforcement during the arguments. Miles Dutty, state's attorney, will make the principal address for the state.

Snags in Refunding British War Debt

Commissions Differ on Rate of Interest — Matter Discussed in Both Senate and House.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The American and British debt commissions were unable today to bring into accord their views as to the terms of the settlement of Great Britain's war debt to the United States. Further negotiations were suspended until Thursday, with the British meantime seeking additional instructions from their government.

The subject matter of the conversations at today's joint session, which lasted about an hour, was carefully guarded by both the Americans and the British, but there were indications that the present difference had to do largely with the question of the interest rate. It was reported that the British mission had suggested 3 per cent., and that this had been approved yesterday by the British cabinet, which had before it an account of the progress of the negotiations forwarded by the mission.

It was learned authoritatively that at previous sessions there had been discussion of the statement that 3 per cent. was the average rate of government loans in normal times and that the figures examined by the commissions had appeared to support this contention. Since this figure is considerably below the rate of interest now paid by the American government on the money borrowed and advanced to Great Britain, however, some members of the American commission presented as feeling that they would be justified in recommending such a figure to congress.

While the state of negotiations after today's session was described officially as practically the same as that obtaining after the previous meeting on last Friday, both the Americans and the British expressed hope of an agreement in principle before the end of the present conversations. Stanley Baldwin, British chancellor of the exchequer and head of the London mission, still is anxious to sail for home next Saturday, but it was said that there was a possibility that the mission would remain over unless an accord was reached before that time.

The refunding negotiations were the subject of brief discussion today both in the senate and the house. Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, said that, considering Great Britains ability to make loans to other nations, to support "the largest navy in the world," to invest "hundreds of millions" in oil developments and other circumstances, she was able to pay the United States.

Representative Pou, democrat, North Carolina, commending the announced determination of the British government to pay its debt, declared in the house that the American commission should be vested with the largest powers of adjustment, reserving the one condition that there be no cancellation of any part of the debt.

NEW CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROPOSAL

Washington, Jan. 16.—Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, speaking at a hearing today before a senate judiciary sub-committee in favor of his resolution to require that constitutional amendments shall not be ratified by states until new legislatures have been elected, declared that, regardless of code opinion of recent amendments, it could not be denied "that ratification by certain states was achieved in the face of opposing public opinion by methods and means that cannot be defended."

The Wadsworth resolution, based on the theory that voters in electing new legislatures would indirectly pass on impending constitutional amendments, also was supported at the hearing by a number of other witnesses.

Stating that he believed it impossible for the people to acquaint themselves with the details of legislation, and while not in sympathy with the initiative, recall and referendum as applied to complicated legislative problems, Senator Wadsworth urged adoption of the resolution on the ground that the people, having created this government, gave it a constitution through conventions and should now by conventions have the right to amend the constitution.

"When we propose that the people shall have the right to vote upon an amendment to the federal constitution, we are following out logically the origin of the consultution," he said.

Admitting that the great mass of the people may be indifferent at times to proposed amendments, he asserted that "groups thoroughly organized, efficiently led, endowed with the ability to obtain publicity and well financed," would be found supporting proposed constitutional amendments if old methods of ratification continued.

An analysis of the action of the Tennessee legislature upon the woman's suffrage amendment was given by Oscar Leser, representing the Maryland League for State Defense, who asserted that the laws of the state and of the nation had been the "flaunted" in the face of the people who, he asserted, should have some way to protect their rights.

The Constitutional Liberty league of Massachusetts was represented by Barton Cornes of Boston, who asserted that by the proposed amendment the people of each state would be offered a free opportunity to express their opinion with reference to proposed constitutional amendments.

BEAT HIS BROTHER AND SISTER WITH AN AXE

Meodus, Conn., Jan. 16.—John Willey, 55 years old, of Millington, near here, was taken to Middletown in the custody of a deputy sheriff tonight, after he had notified neighbors that he had beaten his brother and sister into unconsciousness with the blunt edge of an axe. It is believed that Willey suddenly became insane. He will be examined at the state hospital.

According to the story told by Henry, the man's brother, who sustained severe cuts and bruises on the back of his head from the axe blows, Willey entered their home and seizing an axe attacked his brother and sister, Catherine. Both were struck on the back of the head with the blunt edge of the weapon.

Willey then went to the home of a neighbor and asked that a doctor be called. The neighbor notified the authorities and the brother and sister were given medical attention. Both refused to go to a hospital and it is not believed that their condition is serious

BRITISH ARE RESTRAINED BY FRENCH AND ITALIANS

Great Britain Has Renounced Her Idea of Presenting Draft of Peace Treaty to the Turks at the Lausanne Conference This Week—French and Italians Hesitate to Risk a Break With Turkey Before All Avenues of Compromise Have Been Closed—Difficulty is Being Encountered Over the Boundary of Western Thrace.

Lausanne, Jan. 16 (By the A. P.).—In the face of French and Italian objection, Great Britain apparently has renounced her idea of presenting the Turks with a draft of the Near Eastern peace treaty this week. Great Britain believes that so much time has been spent in discussion that little more can be gained, but the French and Italians hesitate to risk a break with Turkey before all avenues of compromise have been closed.

The Italians are described as vitally interested in the attempt to maintain foreign judicial privileges in Turkey because, now that the Armenians are to unrestricted immigration to Italy, Italy desires to send part of her dense population to Asia Minor and have them settle there, so far as possible, in Italian law.

Four articles of agreement covering the exchange of the Turkish population and the Greek population in Turkey will soon be taken up. people were accepted today, but the Turks raised obnoxious questions on important points. They insisted that all Greeks in Turkey, except those in Constantinople, shall be deported, whether they be Turkish subjects or Greeks who have not adopted Turkish nationality. All Greeks, whether followers of the Orthodox Church or Roman Catholic, must go, and those who have acquired the nationality of some other country while resident of Turkey.

Difficulty arose today over the boundary of western Thrace, which belongs to Greece, and where the Turkish population is allowed to remain to offset the Turkish decision that the Greeks may stay in Constantinople. The Turks contended that the new boundary of western Thrace, the Struma river and not the Arda river, as had been believed in many quarters, and that the Greeks must be deported. The Greek delegation objected to this, and the question was referred.

Until the terms are agreed upon, the peoples are to be exchanged into their own lands, as soon as separated, so that they will start their new lives and gain new citizenship. They will be people only without property.

Criminals must serve out their sentences in the country in which they are repatriated or stand new trials.

STRIKERS HAVE BEEN EXPELLED FROM HARRISON

Harrison, Ark., Jan. 16.—With a suspension of the order of Governor McRae at Little Rock late today ordering a company of Arkansas National Guardsmen here with a possibility of declaring martial law on their arrival, Harrison tonight resumed a tranquil appearance after two days of "armed action" in which one man was hanged, another wounded and scores of alleged Mis ourians and North Ark ans railway strikers escorted from town to the Missouri state line, accompanied by a "committee of 1,000."

The "committee of 1,000" suddenly broke up after holding special sessions behind closed doors for two days and its members are on the way to their respective homes, some whom came a distance of 150 miles to assist in the roundup.

The Arkansas house of representatives and senate this afternoon adopted a resolution authorizing Governor T. C. McRae to call out the National Guard and declare martial law at Harrison.

It was said last night that virtually every striker in Harrison—about 200—have been ejected from the state or placed in jail by the committee.

The body of E. C. Gregor, striker railway shop worker, found early this morning hanging from a railway trestle, was tonight taken by his wife and relatives to his former home for burial. Gregor, it is said, was hanged after he resisted attempts of the "committee of 1,000" who were seeking to identify persons who are said to have carried on a campaign of sabotage against the railway company.

Following the hanging of Gregor, George W. O'Neal, hotel proprietor and local capitalist, who is said to have furnished bail for many strikers arrested and charged with sabotage, was taken from his home mid severely whipped.

Night Marshal Rasch of Harrison, who was accused of being a strike sympathizer, was seized, tied, flogged and ordered to leave town. He is said to have left late today.

A. J. Russell, United States deputy marshal of Fort Smith, spent today in Harrison investigating the situation. He came here on orders from Attorney General Daugherty.

Russell said tonight he would make his report direct to Mr. Daugherty early tomorrow and intimated he would recommend the railway be placed under federal guard.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE MER ROUGE INQUIRY

Bastrop, La., Jan. 16.—(By the A. P.)—Admission on the part of one witness that at one time he thought he recognized three members of the black hooded band held responsible for the kidnapping of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richard, lengthy examination of two other witnesses—Smith Stephenson and E. N. Gray—and protest made by a Bastrop attorney against the propriety of certain questions to Gray, were incidents of a lively day's proceedings in the open hearing into the masked band depredations in Morehouse.

W. H. Todd united proceedings momentarily during the examination of Gray to call the attention of Judge Fred L. Odom, before whom the inquiry is being held, to a newspaper dispatch intimating that Gray might be named as a defendant with several other men in criminal proceedings as a result of the disappearance of Daniel and Richard.

Todd interposed when Gray was asked where he was on August 24—the day of the kidnapping of Daniel and Richard.

Judge Odom ruled that Gray would not be expected to answer any questions that might be of an incriminating nature.

Gray in the course of his testimony, said that he attended a baseball game in Bastrop on the morning of that day. Later he had a conversation with Jap Jones, William Higginbothom and others, he said, relative to a threatening letter said to have been received by Higginbotham and, at Higginbotham's request went to the latter's home that night. Gray said he remained in an automobile in front of the Higginbotham home some time. While he was there he was supplied with a pistol by Hibbinbotham.

Higginbothem was warned in the letters to "get up and get out of the country," Gray said.

Gray was on the witness stand for more than two hours. He said he was seated on the porch of a house near the roadway when an automobile passed carrying black-hooded men and the men taken captives. Soon after, the witness said, Higginbotham came alongand he went with him in his automobile to the Higginbotham home.

CONDEMNED THE "BLOC" SYSTEM" IN CONGRESS

New York, Jan. 16.—The "bloc system" in congress was condemned as dangerous by Representative Fess, republican, Ohio, in a speech tonight before the Quill club, an association of editors and editorial writers.

The system is "naturally selfish," said Mr. Fess. "Some blocs are of little significance, because of lack of influence, which is not measured so much by the number of members in congress as by the number they represent."

Mr. Fess cited that the former service men in congress were not more than twenty, but that there were four million former service men who, if united, could dictate results. "Then," he said, "there are a few members of labor representatives who seem to speak for labor, and in the degree they can convince their colleagues that they speak for labor, they will likely influence their vote."

Speaking of the "farm bloc" Mr. Fess said it numbered close to 100 members whose number and influence "become almost decisive in legislation." The same statement he added, could be properly made on the anti-saloon group.

"Each group," he declared, "maintains headquarters domiciled in the capital. Each support its legislative agents in further close identified as lobbyist. Each conducts well organized and systematized propaganda not infrequently well supplied with necessary funds, busily creating atmosphere."

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
11 Church Street Telephone 1089

Wade U. Webster, the retiring chief of the Willimantic Fire department, has now completed nearly twenty-six years of service. Mr Webster joined the department on May 4, 1897, when the fire fighting apparatus was all hand-drawn. He served with the Alert Hose company as hosoman. During the years 1902-1903 he was second assistant foreman of the company, first assistant foreman of the company during the years 1906-7 and he was appointed chief of the department in 1908 and he served in that capacity until the change of administration came to the board of aldermen. At that time he rejoined the Alert Hose company and remained there until June 1, 1917, when the department was reorganized and Mr Webster left when the old volunteer companies were disbanded.

In January, 1918, he was reappointed chief of the department and has continued in that position until his successor, James J. Tighe was appointed last Monday night. Mr. Webster who has completed nine years as chief has always held the keenest of interest for the local fire department. It was under his charge that the department was motorized and that fine fighting organization made up which has been a credit to the city. The fact that the retiring chief has been elected to the presidency of the Connecticut firemen's association in proof that he is an authority on any question relative to fire fighting. He is also a member of the International Association of Fire Engineers, the National Firemen's association and the Connecticut Fire Chiefs' club.

In the future Mr. Webster will assist the fire department in an advisory capacity and he leaves the position of chief with the best wishes of the city fathers and of his numerous friends. Mr. Webster handed his resignation in a few weeks ago giving pressing business conditions as his reason for not having time to fill the position. His resignation, however, was held up until Monday in the belief that he would change his mind, but he finally decided that twenty-five years of service with nine of them as chief has been plenty.

The newly appointed chief of the Willimantic Fire department, James Joseph Tighe, stated that Monday the day of his appointment, was the big day of his life. He joined the department as a member of the old Montgomery Hose company on January 15, 1906, seventeen years ago. Mr. Tighe, who still retains the title of Captain of Engine Company No. 1, was appointed by a unanimous vote of the board of aldermen and with the appointment came a raise of salary of $400 a year and his salary which formerly was $1,747 is now $2,038 a year.

Chief Tighe has a clean record with the fire department and has always been "on hand." His father, the late James Tighe, a former superintendent of the sewers department of the city, was a member of the Willimantic Fire department for thirty-four years and his uncle, William Tighe, was chief of the Holyoke, Mass., fire department for twelve years.

Henry J. Kelley, lieutenant of Engine Company No. 1, who was appointed assistant chief of the local fire department, at Monday night's special session of the board of aldermen has the best of qualifications for the position tendered him. Mr. Kelley was born in this city, the son of Attorney Thomas J. Kelley and the late Helen M. (Murray) Kelley. He received his education in the local schools and attended Windham High school. He became a member of Engine Company, No. 1, in July, 1917, when the fire department was motorized.

Mr. Kelley is a veteran of the World war having been attached to Company D, 301st Ammunition Train, of the 76th Division and he served eleven months overseas. When he returned to this city he was promoted to the position of lieutenant of the fire department. In August, 1919, Mr. Kelley received the hearty congratulations of all his friends in his promotion.

Judge George E. Hinman ordered the January criminal term of the Windham county superior court to be and recessed as all of the cases on the list have either been disposed of or continued to the May term. Fred C. Fred Luzvick, charged with reckless driving in which bond was forfeited was reopened at the Tuesday morning session.

Luzvick appeared in court with his bondsman and stated that he was of the opinion that his case was to come up this week. Last July Luzvick took an appeal to a fine of $50 and costs imposed in the local police court but Tuesday morning he changed his plea to that of guilty and paid the fine plus additional costs.

Bonds were ordered called in the case of Barnett C. Hart of New York, charged with bribery. Bonds of $8,000 in case were furnished by the National Surety company of New York city. On August 8, 1922, Hart made an attempt to bribe the state from the Danielson and Jewett City barracks, it is said, when the officers seized a truck load of beer en route from Providence to various points in Connecticut.

The following probation cases were disposed of: Medor Migneault, statutory burglary; Annie Migneault, theft, Felix Vandal, theft and William Timmins and Joseph Moriarty, theft.

About eight cases of the forty which were on the list, will go over to the May term of the superior court, the remainder being either nolled or settled out of court with the exception of one which was heard Thursday and was that of Leo Bellevance, of Moosup, charged with non-support of which he was acquitted. The jury panel which was drawn was not called as only one case was called for trial by jury and that case has gone over to the May term of court.

The Willimantic Rotary club entertained ten visitors at its regular meeting held Tuesday noon. The guests present were Fred Crowell, "Bert" Carey, "Shep" Palmer, and Ex-President "Jim" Case; all of the Norwich club. The men came here so that their own club would have a 100 per cent. attendance for the third consecutive week. Also present as guests of honor were Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court, States Attorney Charles E. Searls and Public Defender Charles L. Torrey of Putnam and Rev. Frederick F. Foshay, the new pastor of the First Baptist church in this city; and also present were William E. Jackson of the New London Rotary club and Clifford C. Out of Norwich.

Secretary Charles W. Hill read a communication from Alexander H. Abbott, who stated that he regretted the fact that he could not come to this city to speak before the local club in the near future. A communication was read from Arthur L. Morse of New Haven, chairman of the registration committee for the New England Spring Conference of Rotary clubs to be held in that city March 15, and 16. Mr. Morse requested preliminary information in regard to attendance by local club members. So far twenty-one of the local members have stated their intention of going.

Two out of the three following names will be chosen for round table discussions at this meeting: Frank H. Foss, Rev. Harry S. McCready and Charles W. Hill.

Brief remarks were then made by States Attorney Charles E. Searls, Attorney Torrey, Rev. Foshay and [illegible] Hinman all of which received the applause of the audience [illegible] spoke on the opportunities offered the club in having the [illegible] the local Y. M. A. building and organizing it into a community house.

Jim Case, of the Norwich club, and Secretary Hill then spoke briefly on better attendance.

President Valentine L. Murphy announced that District Governor "Don" [illegible] Adams of Boston expects to be present at a Rotary meeting in Willimantic some time next month. It was suggested to have him present on the anniversary of the club if possible and a committee of three were appointed to make the arrangements for the affair.

Chairman of the entertainment committee, Harry W. Standish, announced that the next meeting of the club would be held next Tuesday evening at 6:15 and Rev. Harry S. McCready will speak on "Service Above Self." C. Harry Branch will give his life history at this meeting and Maurice S. Leonard will give the business talk. The January 30th meeting will be in charge of the boys' work committee of which Fred D. Jordan is chairman. It was further announced that some time next month a Competitors' Night will be held at which time every member will invite as his guest, some friend in a similar line of business as his own.

Frank H. Foss reported for the committee which was authorized to investigate the best ways of raising funds for the club and showed that the committee had made progress. He also reported for the committee in charge of organizing a Rotary club in Putnam. Mr. Foss stated that the committee will dine with some of the business men in Putnam today (Wednesday) and he fully believed that the forming of a club would be successful. Judge Foss then made further remarks in which he bore out those suggestions made by Judge Hinman in regard to the taking over of the Y. M. C. A. and he introduced a motion which was passed, authorizing the president to appoint a committee of three or five members to investigate the matter.

"Jim" B. Fullerton reminded the club that Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont would be the speaker at the Chamber of Commerce next Thursday night. His subject will be "Immigration."

The meeting was closed with the singing of one stanza of the Star Spangled Banner. Harry Standish and Ray Parker were the song leaders.

In the local police court Tuesday morning John Grodisky, 35, of No. 505 Main street was charged with assault and breach of the peace, to which he pleaded not guilty, through Isadore Heller, his interpreter.

His wife, Mary Grodisky, the complainant in the case, testified that Sunday evening, her husband came home very intoxicated and after breaking dishes and furniture he tried to choke her and one of the children.

Witness then ran to an upper flat occupied by Mrs. Anna Thompson. She stated that the accused worked in No. 4 Mill of the American Thread Company and earned $17 a week. She said that she had received $20 in the last four weeks. Mrs. Grodisky testified that she had two children, one ten and the other six, and that she had been beaten by her husband, for the past nine years. She now wished to have him keep away from the house as she could get along by herself.

Mrs. Anna Thompson testified to having seen the trouble between the two and she corroborated the testimony given by Mrs. Grodisky.

Grodisky then took the stand and denied all that had been said, further stating that his wife ran out nights with other men and he pointed to one well known man in the gallery as being one of them.

Recalled, Mrs. Grodisky and Mrs. Thompson both denied that any such thing had ever occurred.

Judge Foss fined Grodisky $10 for assault and $5 for breach of the peace at the same time warning Grodisky to keep away from his wife until he mended his ways or until she called for him. The accused said that he had paid the rent on the tennement and he could go there if he pleased. Fifteen days in the Brooklyn jail was the court's rejoinder.

PLAINFIELD

The following Episcopalian clergy were in Plainfield over the week end to take part in the tenth anniversary of St. Paul's church: Rt. Rev. C. B. Brewster, D. D., bishop of Connecticut, Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Trinity church, Norwich, and Rev. Horace Johnson, rector of Brick Hall. Seven members of St. Alban's choir, Danielson, were also present.

Twenty members of the eighth grade of the village school enjoyed their annual sleighing party Friday evening, going to Jewett City. Raymond Lachrop furnished the horses and used the mill company's sleds. Fine sleighing with a fine team makes a fine time, so all of the class will testify. Principal C. L. Butler accompanied the class.

The school children have started raising a fund for the purpose of purchasing a stereopticon lantern to be used in connection with their school work. It is hoped that the order with the first payment may be sent in this week.

A drive is on this week for new and renewed members of the Parent-Teacher association, and it is hoped that a large number will be reported in at the regular meeting Friday evening at the Community house.

The term of evening school is a little more than half finished and a fairly good attendance is still maintained. It seems that more should be taking advantage of the fine equipment and faithful teaching here available.

The tenth anniversary of St. Paul's church was observed on Saturday and Sunday and it was an inspiring and eventful occasion both for the church and for the community. The celebration commenced with a bountiful dinner served in the parish room at 5 o'clock on Saturday evening when a large number were present. At 7.30 there was an interesting program of entertainment, consisting of clever acts by the magician from Norwich. W. C. Banfield, musical selections by the choir and a vocal selection by Mrs. Baldwin and banjo, by Miss Higginbottom, which were well received. There followed brief, but excellent remarks by the rector, Rev. David Combs, who introduced The Right Reverend C. B. Brewster, D. D.

The bishop gave a brief address, touched with wit and humor, but befitting the occasion. The rector then called on Rev. William C. Prentiss, pastor of the First Congregational church, who in a few carefully chosen words brought greetings and congratulations from his people in the old historic church.

Sunday morning at 10.30, there was a confirmation of a class of ten, followed by the holy communion. Bishop Brewster, the celebrant, who was assisted in the service by Rev. D. Combs and Rev. Horace Johnson. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, although very stormy, the church was well filled for the anniversary service which was both impressive and inspiring. The first lesson was read by Rev. J. Eldred Brown, archdeacon of Trinity church, Norwich; the second lesson was read by Rev. Horace Johnson. The musical part of the service was an inspiration to all present and was rendered by the choir, assisted by seven members of the St Alban's choir of Danielson. The music consisted of processional, hymn 460; anthem, Son of My Soul, by Turner, and office hymn, offertory hymn and recessional. The choir was led by the choirmaster, Frederick Lever, the organist was Miss Emma Kay.

Rev. Mr. Combs read two letters from former rectors of St. Paul, the Rev. John D. Hall and Rev. J. H. George. In both letters there were timely references to the growth and progress of the church in the ten years, with frequent mention of the faithfulness and sacrifices of the people in St. Paul's church and parish.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At Broadway Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

There will be five more good acts at the Broadway for the last half of this week of the best kind, B. F. Keith vaudeville.

Here's a rare treat for fair. A melodrama that will make your blood boil, a romance that will make life worth living, and a mixture of rural comedy that will make you chuckle with delight—all rolled in one in "The Curse of Drink"—and as if that weren't enough, there are five big stars in the bargain, including Harry T. Morey, Marguerite Clayton, Edmund Breese, George Fawcett and little Miriam Batista. The feature is playing at the Broadway theatre starting tomorrow for a three day run.

"Ebb Tide" Story of Regeneration. Human Drama Ably Presented by an All Star Cast at Strand Tomorrow.

What more moving human drama has ever been recorded than that of a man on the ebb tide of life—one who has "made a success of failure"—who suddenly and unexpectedly, even to himself, rebels against the well nigh overwhelming poison of life's darkest waters, the drug of the ebb tide, and makes a soul touching fight to return on the new tide to the breach of regeneration.

That is the spectacle, most vividly presented in "Ebb Tide," a new and gripping Paramount picture, which will be the feature at the Strand theatre tomorrow. Of course, there was strong inducement for the regeneration of the Oxford scholar, played by James Kirkwood. It was love, in the form of dainty Lila Lee.

An Educational Christie comedy, "Be Yourself," and a Selznick News will complete the bill.

Superb Are These Scenes.

Those who like musical comedies or circuses will especially enjoy the tournament scenes in the big Cosmopolitan production, "When Knighthood was in Flower," a Paramount picture starring Marion Davies which opens at the Broadway theatre next Sunday for a four days' run. Tiers of fancifully decorated boxes fluttering with flags and pennants and draped with garlands of roses; beautifully gowned women; court attendants; knights in armor and court jesters make of this brilliant scene one of the most sparkling events imaginable. The glitter and the splendor of it all remind one alternately of a circus or musical comedy.

Robert G. Vignola directed the impressive production. Lyn Harding plays King Henry VIII. He is one of England's foremost actors and he has played the part over two hundred times on the legitimate stage. Theresa Conover Maxwell is cast as the queen. "When Knighthood Was in Flower" is one of the most elaborate screen productions ever made in this country. Three studios were used in the filming and the costumes cost a small fortune.

United Workers Meeting. All Citizens Invited.

In the Park church parish house, on Tuesday, January 23, at 8 p. m., the annual meeting of the United Workers will be held.

This is the one big meeting of the year, when the work of the organization is laid before the public. It is hoped that the public, therefore, will be interested in the accomplishments of the past year and will be present to hear whatever plans are being made for the health of our community and for the care and training of our children.

How many know what the public clinics have done for children, babies, and mothers? Come and you will hear what has been done and what plans are being made for the further development of the children of our community. You will be given the news of our nurses' activities and will learn what is being done for the unemployed, the delinquent, the neglected, and the needy.

The entire meeting will be devoted to a resume of the year's work and to plans for greater service, influence, and efficiency.

Come and share in these, our common interests. Encourage by your presence and by your support those who have spent so much of their time in labor for the public good. You will not only help the workers by the interest which you show but you may be able to contribute from your own experience some suggestion that will aid in the development of the work and in the larger service of the organization.

Breed Theatre.

Never have star and story been more admirably matched than in the presentation of Clara Kimball Young in "Enter Madame," starred a glamorous personality, Miss Young plays in this picture, founded on the stage success by Gilda Varesi and Dolly Byrne, the character of Lisa Della Robbia with a statelliness and whimsical charm that make perfect the illusion of impersonation. By all odds, "Enter Madame" is the best thing the star has done; hers is a fine and finished and winning performance; and it goes without saying that this Metro picture constitutes an event in entertainment no one should miss. It will be shown as the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow.

Like most of those of real merit, the story of "Enter Madame" is not complex or confusing, having to do with the attempt of a prima donna of the opera to win back her husband, who, through her neglect, has become so far attached to another, and what one might call a comfy woman, as to be determined upon divorce from the great Della Robbia. Elliott Dexter, as the weakening husband, Gerald Fitzgerald, is sincere and likeable; Louise Dresser, as the soft and scheming Boston widow, is quite pleasantly hateful; and others in the cast including Arthur Rankin, Mary June Sanderson, Lionel Belmore, Wedgewood Nowell, Rosita Marstini, Orra Deveraux and George Kuwa are more than competent.

For the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in the delightful comedy drama titled "Very Truly Yours," and Movie Chats will complete the bill.

Talented Mary Carr Coming in "Silver Wings."

When William Fox presents a photoplay as a "special" to an American audience, it is always an event in the film world. When it is a picture in which he has surpassed himself, as in his latest, double importance attaches to the event. In Mr. Fox's newest and most pretentious film, "Silver Wings," featuring "the most famous mother in the world," Mary Carr, which opens at the Breed theatre next Sunday indications are that this picture play will have a record attendance during its run here.

So much stir has been made in all the large centers where "Silver Wings" has already appeared that opinion is divided whether it is due to the emotionality of the famous drama upon which it is based, to the very remarkable characterizations of the principal roles, or to the magnificance with which the story is presented.

The management of the Breed theatre expects to demonstrate that the sweeping force of the production lies in the masterful blending of all these elements. And yet for one who is acquainted with the performances rendered by Mary Carr in "Over the Hill," he might focus his attention chiefly upon Mrs. Carr. For it is her spirit that is largely instrumental in guiding the theme contained in "Silver Wings" and creating it into a human document—mother love.

Wheel Club Dance For Charity.

The Pomeroh Wheel club is conducting a dance this (Wednesday) evening in Pentham hall which will be one of the social events of the season and the proceeds are to be devoted to a popular charitable organization. The music will be by Thuman's orchestra, which insures that this part of the programme will be all that can be desired.

A new method of dyeing timber has been discovered by a Dresden engineer. He "vaccinates" the living tree with one-tenth of a pound of aniline colors dissolved in 200 pints of water. This is sufficient to color the timber throughout.

BOXING ASSOCIATION APPROVES ABOLISHING MAXIMUM AGE LIMIT

New York, Jan. 16.—Tentative endorsement of a national boxing registration bureau, refusal to intervene in selection of championship contenders or arbitrary award or ring titles, and recommendation that the minimum age limit for boxing participants be fixed at 18 with no maximum age barrier, were outstanding developments today at the closing session of the two-day National Boxing association.

The question intervening to prevent the proposed return heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard again came up. This time on the floor of the convention. The association decided that any judgment of the merits of the contest rested with individual state boxing authorities.

Discussion of the pending championship encounter, which Promoter Tex Rickard proposes to hold at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, N. J., on June 30 or July 4, developed a consensus of opinion that Willard should first engage in one or two trial bouts to show his fitness for another title contest.

The recommendation regarding a minimum age for participants in main bouts will not affect existing state laws some of which allow boxers under 18 to participate. It was the feeling of the convention, that fitness of the individual and not age should be the determining factor.

The association's refusal to pick champions or title contenders was the result of a request that it help determine the proper holder of a belt donated for competition in the 140-pound class.

The fate of the proposed national boxing registration bureau, designed as a clearing house for all pugilistic information, rests with a committee appointed to examine the plan and take a mail vote among boxing commissions in the eighteen states which are affiliated with the N. B. A.

Richard F. Burke, of New Orleans, was unanimously elected president of the association to succeed Walter H. Liginger, of Milwaukee, who was elected a life member of the association, chosen as official delegate to the International Boxing Union's convention in Paris, Feb. 17, and named as the choice of the N. B. A. as a candidate for president of the union. Mr. Liginger's candidacy for international office was endorsed by Cuban and Canadian delegates.

Other officers elected were: Honorary Vice-President, Gutzon Borglum; First Vice-President, Larrabee Caswell, Baltimore; Second Vice-President, Charles P. Campeau, of Detroit; Fourth Vice-President, William H. Rosap, of Philadelphia; Secretary and Treasurer, Tex O'Rourke, New York.

BOXERS INVENT VERY FEW NEW PUNCHES

Style in the ring if more than result is a copy than is punching. Yet how few realize how few knockouts are delivered in the same fashion as Dempsey is a great puncher with either. His hooks with a short arm and deliberation is complete when these lads let fly, when champion lands to put a long left to the jaw. Johnson, his storied conqueror, was strong for right uppercuts delivered in close. Fitzsimmons shot jolts at close quarters with either the right or the left. His most [illegible] solar plexus shift—a shuffling [illegible] the foot forward and the left [illegible] being [illegible] a little left punch to the solar plexus [illegible] name for the "wind".

Dempsey likes hooks, particularly with his right. Charlie White has the best defended left hook in the business. It tenses the whole arm, which is sent out slightly crooked and simply [illegible] with devilish intent until [illegible] arrives. Joe Gans [illegible] hook with the right [illegible] Sam Langford, the [illegible] Boer" also used hooks, [illegible] left. They were delivered [illegible] the elbow often being [illegible] that eye biters could [illegible] [illegible] battles in stairs, [illegible] swing to head or body. But Nelson had a knockout knack all of his own. The Dane liked to batter his enemy above the right kidney with his left. The arm was stiffened, which added deadliness to the blow. The only famous kidney puncher previous to Bat was old George Dawson, the Australian marvel. Dawson used a right above the foe's left kidney, and the results were direful. Billy Papke, great middleweight of Ketchel's days, invented the "loop the loop" punch so often seen now. Papke, however could deliver a knockout with his punch. With boxers today it is a mere ornament, a slap. Joe Lynch uses a "one-two" punch. This "innovation" was invented by Willie Lewis a cracking middleweight of a decade ago. It is a left with a right following directly in its wake, a sort of double-barreled shot, the impacts being registered as almost a single one.

Then there was old Kid McCoy's famous "cork-screw" punch. This was one of the most dreaded wallops ever known. McCoy imparted added power to his knockout punch by a left twist of the wrist just before the blow landed—a terrible "dum-dum" bullet effect.

Boxers of today are rather stupid in the matter of inventing new punches even new names for old ones. You don't hear of any, do you?

IMPORTANT CHANGES MADE IN 300-MILE RIDE

New York, Jan. 16.—Two important changes in the conditions governing the annual 300-mile endurance ride for horses, were made today by the board of sponsors, for the 1923 contest, which will be held either in the Genesee valley, with headquarters at Avon, N. Y., or in Vermont again with headquarters at Rutland.

For the first time since the rides started five years ago, it was unanimously voted to allow owners of horses entered to have grooms care for their mounts at the end of each day's run, instead of compelling the riders to care for their own mounts.

The other change is a reduction of the maximum time allowed for a horse entered in the ride to cover the daily run of 60 miles in order to remain in the running in the 1923 ride. Every horse will be compelled to cover the entire 300 miles in 50 hours or less, though they may not cover the distance in less than 45 hours. In 1922 the maximum time allowed was 55 hours for the 300 miles. This time limit has been reduced each year by one hour. The first year the ride was held, the maximum time allowed for covering the 300 miles was 65 hours.

JOHNSON MAKES 'MORE APPOINTMENTS FOR UMPS

Chicago, Jan. 16.— The shakeup in the staff of umpires of the American League became more pronounced today when President Johnson announced he had signed Emmett Ormsby as an arbiter for the 1923 season. Yesterday Johnson announced that Clarence Rowland, former manager of the Chicago White Sox had been signed as an umpire.

Ormsby has been an umpire in the Western League for the past two years and began his baseball career as a semi-professional pitcher in Chicago.

President Johnson has definitely announced that Ollie Chill had been dropped, and it is understood that Ed Walsh and Bill Guthrie will not be back in the official family.

KEELER FOULS 27 IN A ROW

Willie Keeler not only was a master hunter but was also perhaps the greatest place hitter of all time, and a past master in the art of wearing down pitchers. He could foul off as many balls, almost, as he pleased, until he lured a pitcher or forced him to put the ball where he wanted it. His tactics prolonged ball games so greatly that a contest under two hours became a rarity. In one game, batting against Kid Nichols, Keeler is said to have fouled off 27 balls before he drew a base on balls.

NEARLY $2,000,000 GOLD WITHDRAWN FOR EXPORT

New York, Jan. 16.—The withdrawal of nearly $2,000,000 gold from the sub-treasury today for export to France and British India caused much speculation in financial circles as to the reasons for the shipments. One lot of $1,300,000 was withdrawn by the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., for export to France Wednesday for the account of foreign correspondents of the bank. The names of the consignees could not be learned but it was said that the probable final destination of the gold was Switzerland. The opinion was expressed that the gold movement was the result of speculation in exchange rather than economic unrest.

A withdrawal of $600,000 gold for shipment to British India, via London, in addition to the $500,000 announced yesterday, was also made. Indian interests that usually fill their gold requirements in the weekly gold auctions in London were said to have been unable to purchase their required amounts there because of the recent competition of American bankers. The ex necritse in value of the Indian rupee and the demand for gold in India have made it profitable, it was said, to buy gold in this market and further purchases are expected to be made here during the week.

FOREIGNER NOT WELCOMED IN AFGHANISTAN

Light on conditions in this little-known region is thrown by the following communication to the National Geographic society from Frederick Simpich and Haji Mirza Hussein:

"The buffer state of Afghanistan, historic shock-absorber between Great Britain and Russia in middle Asia, years ago put up a 'Keep Out' sign, a 'This Means You' warning, to all white men and Christians. The land is 'posted'—to use a poacher's phrase—posted against trade and concession hunters, against missionaries, and against all military and political hunters in particular.

"And the 'Keep Out' sign is still up. Today the foreigner is no more welcome in Afghanistan than he was a hundred years ago. Forbidden Lhasa itself is no more exclusive than brooding, suspicious Kabul, the capital of this isolate, unfriendly realm of fanatic tribes, of rocks, deserts, irrigated valleys, and towering unsurveyed ranges.

"For reasons of foreign policy, the Amir has long felt the necessity of secluding his little-known land to the greatest possible extent from the outside world. Only a few Europeans, mostly British, but occasionally also an American and now and then a few Russians or Germans, have had permission to come into this country and to sojourn for a while in its curious capital. But even on such rare occasions as when a foreign engineer, or a doctor whose services are badly needed, is admitted by the grace of the Amir, the visitor is subject to a surveillance that amounts almost to imprisonment.

"No ambassadors or ministers, not even missionaries, are permitted to reside in this forbidden Moslem land. 'Splendid isolation' is a sort of Afghan tradition, a conviction that the coming of the foreigner will spell the end of the Amir and his unique, absolute rule.

"Today no other monarch anywhere wields such undisputed authority or is in closer touch with the every-day life of his subjects. He personally runs his country's religion, its foreign affairs, and he even supervises much of its commerce. He also owns and censors the only newspaper printed in all Afghanistan. Incidentally, he keeps 55 automobiles, and he never walks. Even from one place to another, he goes by motor over short pieces of road built especially for his pleasure.

"From the World war, though he took no active part in it, the Amir emerged with singular profits. His old and once rival neighbors, Great Britain and Russia drawn together as allies in the world conflict, left him a free hand, and in 1919 Great Britain officially recognized the political independence of this much-buffeted buffer state, to those rulers she had so long paid a fat annuity.

"With an area of 245,000 square miles, Afghanistan is, next to Tibet, the largest country in the world that is practically closed to the citizens of other nations. But political life at wary, alert Kabul is, in sharp contrast to the mediative seclusion and classic aloofness of the pious lamas at Lhasa. Amir Amanullah Khan, through his agents in India and elsewhere, is in close touch with the world's current events; and, as the last remaining independent ruler of a Moslem country, now that the power of the Caliph at Stamboul is broken, he wields a far-reaching influence throughout the Mohammedan world; also, because his land happens to lie just as it does on the map of the world, it is plain that for a long time to come he will be an active force in the political destinies of middle Asia. Like Menelik of Abyssinia, Queen Lil of the Hawaiian Islands, or the last of the Fiji kings, this Amir, remote and obscure as his kingdom is, stands out in his time as a picturesque world figure.

"From the Persians the Afghans got the idea of marrying more than one wife; but like the Persians, too, they have found, to their dismay, that polygamy is nowadays more expensive than exciting.

"Sometimes, when the Amir wants to favor his faithful officials with presents, or perhaps play practical jokes in certain cases, he distributes woman among them, but these 'gifts' often prove so troublesome that no great degree of gratitude is apparent among the recipients.

"Amir Habibullah Khan (who was assassinated in 1919) had a harem of over 100 women, and among these, strangely enough, were a few Europeans. The present Amir Amanullah Khan, has but one wife.

"The women of Afghanistan are kept in more rigid seclusion and are more closely veiled than the women of any other Moslem land.

"Like the Arab, the Afghan considers it unnecessary and even unwise that women should learn to read or write. No girls are admitted to the bazaar schools and no mullahs are employed to teach them, and Afghanistan knows nothing of women teachers.

"The trade of Afghanistan is moved entirely by caravans and is largely in the hands of Hindus and Tadjiks. There is not a mile of railroad in the kingdom, the Amir, fearing that steel rails would make isolation impossible.

"Apart from rugs, a few [illegible] some crude adornments for [illegible] little silk and felt, and a few [illegible] woven tissues, no products of [illegible] skilled labor are on the market. And even much of what is produced in these few lines is merely an imitation of Western and Eastern art. Small industries supply only the most urgent needs of the lower classes. The rich people buy their luxuries from abroad, and the poor make shabby shift with the cheaper fabrics.

"The Amir keeps at Peshawar, a political agent, who occasionally pays a visit to the viceroy of India; and, since Afghanistan's formal independence of 1921, envoys have been sent to Persia and one is perhaps now in soviet Russia."

THRIFT WEEK.

There is no reason why seven days which are agreed upon for some special observance shouldn't start in the middle of the week as well as any other day. It is unusual but there is nothing to prevent it.

Commencing today Thrift week is to be observed throughout the country, and back of the idea is much of value for each and every one. Thrift is that regard for self and the future which ought not to be overlooked. It means the wise use of that which is at hand, whatever it may be, that waste may be overcome and provision made for the rainy day.

The efforts that are put forth with a view to encouraging the formation of the habit are deserving of widespread support. There are a great many instances where the individuals have received efficient training in this respect. Others have come to learn the value of such action, whether as the result of bitter experience by self or others. The absence of it in others have prompted its advocacy.

The thrifty are to be found in all classes. The examples of others are always an inspiration but there is soundness in the view that the best results are to be gained when thrift is taught at the same time that other important habits for life are being formed.

With the seed once planted in the mind of the child the chances are excellent that it will flourish. And yet the instances are numerous where such development has failed. The desire to bring home to all, whether in or out of school, that there is something of value in thrift for each and every one has back of the Thrift week idea. It is worthy of the attention that is sought for it.

Thrift should not be confused with stinginess. They are as wide apart as the poles. It means the practice of economy, the safe investment of funds, the careful expenditure of money and recognition of the fact that much of the wastefulness can be eliminated.

PROBE FOR LYNCHINGS.

However successful the filibuster on the Dyer anti-lynching bill was it was impossible to regard it as the end to legislation in that direction. It was intended to deal with a national sore and the need for some remedy will continue until action is taken.

The Dyer bill brought strong opposition from the south. That is just what can be expected relative to the measure which has been introduced by Senator Frelinghuysen, by which it is sought to have a commission appointed by the president, to serve without pay, to investigate the subject of lynching, the causes for it and the remedies which are needed, and report to the next congress.

Because the south is more or less committed to this form of lawlessness and because it has hitherto been regarded as the proper thing to leave the handling of such conditions to the states themselves doesn't mean that the federal government must turn its back to them forever, regardless of the deplorable conditions that are disclosed.

The country, it would seem, is pretty thoroughly informed as to the gross lack of justice in certain of the states, and the high handed manner in which mob rule has been practiced. It isn't enough to know that there have been perhaps as many cases where lynchings have been frustrated as there are where they have been carried out. It is a practice that no law abiding community ought to be willing to tolerate under a government that is based upon laws, and which gives assurances that are entirely disregarded when lynching is resorted to.

And yet there could be no harm in throwing such light as an investigation committee representing the country could throw upon the situation. Perhaps more should be known about the underlying causes of lynchings. The move for a commission, however, can do no harm. If it can add emphasis to the need of federal legislation dealing with the subject it is a move that should experience no delay.

BUYING THE WEST INDIES.

If we are to judge by the manner in which he has put forth the idea Senator Reed of Missouri is sincere in his advocacy of the acquisition of certain of the West Indies from Great Britain and France in the adjustment of the war debts. The idea is not exactly a new one. It has been previously advanced and on one occasion at least it brought forth the response from Great Britain that such a sale could not be considered.

There is no probability that the proposition will amount to anything. Senator Reed has had the pleasure, if such it can be considered, of taking up much valuable time of the senate in setting forth his views upon the question, but he hasn't convinced the senate or the country. What is in fact more important he hasn't any encouragement for believing that the British or French would be so disposed. Everything seems to be to the contrary. Not only are those countries unfavorably inclined in that direction but they are likely to be influenced to a considerable extent by the attitude of the inhabitants of such islands especially if they are opposed to any such change.

In all that the British have had to say concerning the refunding of the war debt there hasn't been any intimation that they would like to entertain such a proposition. The desire for a settlement and their determination to pay in full certainly hasn't encouraged the senator from Missouri to think they were hinting at such a thing.

When unofficial feelers have been put out in advocacy of such an idea they have gotten a reception that settled the matter and it is bordering on the ridiculous to think of having the government undertake to repeat it only to get a similar answer. Senator Reed is probably relieved to get the idea off his chest but different conditions will be required to pry any of the islands lose from their present ownership.

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE.

Without any question France is determined in the course it is pursuing. It is folly for Germany to think otherwise, and yet when those in German cities take the view that they should do everything possible to obstruct, to jeer and taunt the French they must realize what the consequences are likely to be.

It isn't so long ago that the Germans have forgotten what kind of treatment they accorded those in Belgium and France who undertook to handicap their advance and obstruct their plans. France is moving into the Ruhr under far different conditions than Germany crossed in Belgium and France and it is time to reflect that if pushed to it the French may be disposed to give the Germans a little of the treatment which others received at the hands of the Germans. It is not pleasant to contemplate and for that reason the efforts ought to be directed to the prevention of any such harshness.

It is a case where much rests with the Germans. They can make it more difficult for themselves, or they can maintain an attitude that will work for leniency and fair treatment. Even though the best of feeling may not exist it is impossible to look upon the advance of the French as other than a move which they hope to carry out with the least possible friction.

German failure is responsible for the occupancy. German conduct can be made to aggravate the situation or it can aid in the demonstration which France is making to convince itself and others that Germany can if it will meet the demands that have been made upon it. It isn't to be expected that it will be pleasing to Germany but it is a time for Germany to determine whether it desires a mild or severe degree of unpleasantness.

One thing is certain. Germany is not going to awaken any great degree of sympathy because of the French decision, in view of the practices it resorted to when it figured it held a superior position.

TRANSPORTATION IN WINTER.

Interest is bound to be manifested in the statement of the highway commissioner that the storms this winter thus far have cost the state at least $350,000 and the bill may be a half million before the season is ended.

There isn't a municipality in this part of the country but what has been obliged to go to large expenditures for the removal of snow and ice.

All the regular transportation lines have likewise been put to heavy expense in order to provide service.

Conditions are diffrent today from what they were a couple of decades ago, for the state highways and the large number of motor vehicles places a burden upon the highway department to keep the thoroughfares open that were not required then. The transportation lines see but little difference, except that they are apparently looking with envious eyes at the burden of expense which is thrown upon them and the state for the purpose of clearing the way for those new transportation lines which neither build nor keep clear the roadbeds over which they operate.

The jitneys are having their troubles but they are not looked to to remove the drifts, clear the road or by plowing a path provide a good roadbed for competitors. It is first hand evidence of the expense that is being shouldered by others for their benefit. As far as clearing the way is concerned winter piles up no greater expenses than summer.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There continues to be a big demand for snow shovelers and plenty of sand.

Except that they are no laughing matter the income tax blanks are about welcome as the comic valentines.

Those who expected to get through the winter without using a snow shovel should realize now that they ought to have known better.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Connecticut has reason to be especially interested in the progress of the Tilson program submitted to the war department in making preparations to turn out munitions quickly in time of war emergency. The definite policy which the department has announced it will adopt was suggested by Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven, who, during the war, was ordnance expert of the military affairs committee of the house.

Secretary of War Weeks, chief of ordnance, General Pierce and others in high power are greatly impressed with the Tilson plan and have made known the cooperation of the department in testing it out, and making it effective.

The plan is along this line: the manufacturers of the country will be organized in such a manner that cooperation with the government would turn out munitions in mass production at short notice. This would be done by being in shape to switch over to the manufacture of munitions from whatever the machinery was then being used for. This could be done by having the plant equipment standardized in the way of screw threads, and plenty of jigs, screws, gauges, dies and other tools and instruments needed in the manufacture of munitions on hand to be used without delay.

Without such preparation the mass production of munitions would take from one to two years after the movement was started; with such preparations there would be no delay. Representative Tilson saw the need of this durng the late war, and has now offered a practical solution which the war department eagerly adopted.

It is proposed to have civilian plants make up a sufficient quantity of the necessary equipment; to have machinery standardized and thus prepare for emergency.

This industrial preparedness will save the country many millions of dollars and years of delay, should the United States be again involved in war.

Standardizing of screw threads was the first step, made by Colonel Tilson several years ago. This resulted in the formation of a commission authorized by congress, and so thoroughly has it dealt with the standardization of nuts, bolts, screws, etc., so they can be used interchangeably, that the conversion of machinery from one sort of work to another, including manufacture of munitions could be quickly accomplished. On this commission are two Connecticut members—Major John O. Johnson of New Haven and Earl Buckingham of Hartford.

There is a "jam of air traffic" according to bills recently introduced by Congressman Winslow of Massachusetts and White of Maine relating to radio and aircraft. The Winslow bill advocates turning over control of aircraft to the department of commerce and would create a commissioner at a salary of $7500 a year. It is the purpose of the bill not only to control air traffic but to encourage it from a commercial standpoint. It would make the display of false signals, plundering aircraft in distress and other violations of the proposed law, punishable as criminal violations of the law with severe penalties.

The White bill is to regulate radio and like the Winslow bill would put control in the hands of the secretary of commerce. It provides regulation of the use of air waves to prevent the "jam" of raid message which now occurs, and interferes with radio service. Mr. White states there are 21,000 radio stations in the country, of which 17,000 are amateur stations, next come ship stations and these are closely followed by broadcasting stations of which there are now 570. Mr. White estimates that from 1,000,000,000 to 2,000,000,000 persons listen to radio service from broadcasting stations.

Under those conditions the necessity of clearing the air routes is evident and make it free from the jumble of sounds that often interfere with commercial and governmental messages. Mr. White believes this can be done and the radio used for broadcasting important weather conditions, crop reports, train orders and train control and other useful purposes, as soon as the air routes are cleared and radio further developed.

A delegation of Osages Indians, squaws, bucks and numerous progeny came all the way from their far west reserve to Washington, to tell congress that they cannot live in the style they desire on the allowance of $4,000 a year which is doled out to them by the government agents. They were the biggest men and women—in stature—that ever came here as a delegation. Not one of them seemed under six feet and many topped off a higher notch. And they were broad in proportion. Dressed in the flaming blankets of the tribe, bedecked with long strings of beads earrings whose length make vamps turn green with envy, these big men and women from the far west, strutted through the streets of the city and through the corridors of the capitol, the wonderful ornaments of silver, jade and precious or semi-precious stones jingling as they moved about.

The Osages own huge oil fields and Little Puma, as the biggest "Buck" of the mall was somewhat incongruously named, wore a flashing diamond on his little finger, when he argued his case before the committee. They were a "colorful" crowd and with them the pipe of peace has given place to cigarettes which they smoked in immense quantities.

The question of passing necessary supply bills still makes the calling of an extra session in the spring a matter of doubt, although the sentiment is strong against such a session. The president has this week made it known that he does not intend calling congress together before it meets automatically next December. But there is still much work to be done in the six remaining weeks of the 67th, congress. There will be no bonus bill brought up this session, nor will there be a reapportionment bill brought to the front. No coal or transportation bills are likely to receive attention, but farm credits and industial measures will receive due attention. The shipping bill is likely to fade away, although its advocates will do their best to obtain a vote, for it will pass if the opportunity for a vote is given it.

The industrial conference of women's clubs and other organizations held here the past week didn't prove to be a rest cure. The sessions were lively in the extreme factional expression holding full sway. For instance, Miss Alice Robertson, member of congress from Oklahoma, spoke and said in substance that home was the best place for women; that they were not yet qualified to sit in the cabinet, be governors of states, and that motherhood was the highest position the world could offer a woman. "Did you get applause, Miss Alice?" questioned your correspondent. "I got a few hisses" was the quiet reply made by the lady from Oklahoma. The next day a gentleman addressed the big audience advocating birth control and deploring the fact that physicians are not permitted to give instructions along that line. The National Woman's party upset one meeting by interpolating questions from persons not credited delegates, along the line of the proposed constitutional amendment for equal rights, under which women would not of necessity take on the name or domicile of husbands. Once in a while peace was restored by Miss Anderson of the children's bureau, who was presiding, but the conference will go down into history as one offering the most varied experiences, and the advancment of wide-apart ideas that har ever been held in Washington.

The industrial conference was preceded by a meeting of the Federation of Woman's Clubs, during which much interesting discussion took place. Child labor laws, educational laws, hints that Mrs. Winter, president of the federation might be groomed for the United States senate in 1924, rebuker by Mrs. Miller, chairman of the Pennsylvania federation, to the League of Women Voters, for trying to cover too much ground with a diversity of function, were features of the meetings. Marriage and divorce laws were made a vital topic of the discussions.

Congressman Rogers of Massachusetts has made an investigation into the exporting of coal from this country to Canada and gave congress some facts in an address a few days ago. Mr. Rogers stated that Canadians are paying from $2 to $7 less a ton from American anthracite coal than is paid by Americans this side of the border. "Canadian dealers seem to have an ample supply" said Mr. Rogers, "while we want to be neighborly, I believe we ought to have an embargo on sending coal to Canada until the present emergency here is met. Mr. Rogers stated that in the month of November 433,721 tons of anthracite coal were shipped out of the United States the greater part of which went to Canada.

A bill by Senator Keyes of New Hampshire, for relief for near east Armenia refugees, has been favorably reported by the immigration committee of the senate. It provides for the immigration to this country of an excess of the quota of Armenians if [illegible] who are citizens of the United States who will assume responsibility of their care. It also provides for the admission to this country of some American orphans, and for examination and investigation of the conditions on the other side of the water, so that aged not be turned back on arrival here.

The report of the Daugherty investigating committee of the house is interesting in the way the charges were dismissed on a non-partisan basis. Not only did the republican members of the committee fail to sustain the charges made against the attorney general but only two democrats sustained them. The attorney general was left standing firm on both feet, without even a tinge of color for the charges being sustained by the evidence submitted. Representative Keller, who brought them, has "gone south for his health" after refusing to appear before the committee. Whether he will be brought before the house for contempt is not yet decided upon.

HIS TOO QUIET WIFE

"What's this I hear about your brother being married?" asked the girl who lived out in Glencoe and usually got the news a few months late. "I thought he was a confirmed bachelor."

"So he was, for a while," answered the sister of the aforesaid brother.

"I never did understand why he took such a decided stand against matrimony," said the Glencoe girl, who at one time had secretly cherished designs on the brother.

"I remember just how it started," explained the sister. "He was invited to the Carters for dinner one night, and all through the evening, whenever James Carter would venture a statement, immediately his wife up and corrected him. It got on Stafford's nerves at last, and he came home that night very much disgusted and said he felt mighty sorry for James.

"Then he went to an alumni banquet. One of his married classmates was called on to make a speech and every little while his wife would interject a word here and there to the very evident embarrassment of the speechmaker. Of course, the others at the table were highly amused, except Stafford, who thereafter had plenty to say about the folly of putting one's head into the matrimonial noose. And so it went."

"But he did get married," reminded the girl from Glencoe. "Were the girl's vocal cords paralyzed or what?"

The sister smiled proudly. "Marjorie has no such defects."

"Oh, indeed!"

"Yes. Stafford has said repeatedly that if he ever did get married the girl would have to be very lovely to look at, extremely quiet and reticent as to speech. No gabbing wife for him! Well, he certainly found his ideal in Marjorie. Stafford would do all the talking and she'd sit there with her beautiful eyes gazing at him soulfully, but hardly ever a word would issue from those pretty lips. She filled the bill to the last item.

"They were married and Stafford was so proud of her that he decided to take her on a honeymoon trip through the east and show her off to all our numerous relatives. The Philadelphia folks gasped at her beauty, but when they found that her vocabulary consisted mostly of 'no,' 'yes' and 'really' they began to lose interest in her looks and to commiserate with Stafford upon her queer lack of speech. Gradually it dawned on him that looks weren't everything."

"It was the same way in New York and Boston and everywhere they went. On the trip home he had a brilliant idea. You know Stafford bought a bungalow on the north shore and in the same suburb is located Beechwood Hall, a select boarding school for young women. Stafford's plan was to have Marjorie attend this school during the day, while he was downtown at his office, hoping that she would pick up enough society small talk to get along better. But of course he didn't tell Marjorie why he wanted her to go to school. And Marjorie consented.

"But on the night of the day they got home they attended an entertainment given by this school. It was some kind of a big jubilee affair to celebrate the founding of the school fifty years ago, and invitations were extended to neighboring schools and colleges.

"Stafford met some men he knew, and they went into the school library to chat. All at once he sat up and listened. Telling me about it later, Stafford said that he had the queerest sensation when he heard his wife's voice. It was not alone that she was laughing so heartily, but she was chattering away as fast and hard as any well-seasoned debutante.

"Not willing to believe his ears, he stepped up to the door and looked into a small anteroom and there was Marjorie having the time of her young life with a number of congenial spirits—who were classmates of Marjorie's at the school from which she had been graduated. Stafford decided then and there that she didn't need any further schooling."

"Well!" exclaimed the girl from Glencoe rather breathlessly, "what had happened to change her so?"

"Why, it seems that she was always a lively chattering girl, but before she ever met Stafford she had heard of his set ideas about what constituted his ideal wife. When she found herself head over heels in love with him, she decided the only way she could keep his love was to pose as a very quiet person. And goodness knows how long the poor child would have kept it up if he hadn't discovered her natural aptitude for conversation that night."

"Humph!" sniffed the girl from Glencoe. "You wouldn't ever catch me suffering in silence like that for any man living!"—Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

"The Handsmoe Miss Glynne," Wife of Gladstone

One of the hardest jobs that can be given a woman is the job of being wife to a man in political life. More than one promising career has been ruined by the too-talkativeness and blunderings of a well-meaning wife. Among the cleverest women who ever occupied such a position and never made a false step was Mrs. Gladstone, wife of William E. Gladstone, Prime Minister of late Victorian days.

Mrs. Gladstone was in addition to being an unusually fine looking woman—she was always spoken of as "the handsome Miss Glynne"—the very essence of tact and diplomacy, the typical wife of a statesman, who never said too much and always enough, and who guided her distinguished husband with just the right proportion of firmness and gentleness.

Miss Glynne first saw her future husband at a dinner party at which both were guests. A gentleman sitting beside her called her attention to Gladstone.

"Mark that young man," he said, "He will yet be Prime Minister."

She marked him well, and found him not unpleasant to look upon. The following winter they met in Italy, and were married in 1839. They were married happily for more than half a century, and at their golden wedding, Mr. Gladstone paid fitting tribute to her successes as a wife.

"Words fail me," he said (it was probably the first time that had ever happened to this great orator), "in expressing the debt I owe my wife in relation to all the offices she has discharged during the long and happy period of our conjugal union.

The one drawback to Mrs. Gladstone's complete happiness during her marriage was the enforced frequent absence of her husband. She used to tell her friends that when Mr. Gladstone was in office and in London during the season she considered it a great treat to be invited to a friend's house to dinner with him. If possible she would sit next him at dinner.

"Then," she said ruefully, "it is at least possible for me to have some conversation with my husband. Otherwise I see nothing of him."

Stories That Recall Others

What Used to Be.

One of those affluent persons who can afford to go across the water for a little look around brings back the following story:

"I was being shown the sights of Edinburg. At each apparently wonderful to the Scotsman who was acting as my guide, I guess I scoffed. Finally, as the sun was going down, he took me to the brow of a hill and pointed to three smokestacks, belching forth smoke.

"'That's nothing compared to what we have in a number of parts of the United States, Douglass,' I said.

"'Ah, my friend,' he said in commiserating tones, 'those are the smokestacks of three breweries.'"

Saving the Lights.

As the car rounded a curve the trolley slipped and the lights went out.

"Oh, mamma," piped a small voice evidently attached to a youngster whose parents put out the lights at home as soon as possible. "They're saving the lights, too."

QUART OF WATER A DAY HELPS KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Also Take a Little Salts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women use now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least once a year.

FIGHTING TO INCREASE WATERWAYS APPROPRIATION

Washington, Jan. 16.—The fight of the rivers and harbors bloc to increase the waterways appropriation in the army bill broke in the house late today when Chairman Dempsey, of the river and harbor committee, announced he would offer an additional [illegible] from $7,000,000 to $35,000,000. He [illegible] been given [illegible] by the army engineers.

Representative [illegible] on the floods of the Mississippi and tributaries, urged the committee to [illegible] the Mississippi and the coast [illegible] Representative Dempsey [illegible] to police these waterways [illegible] commerce [illegible] and [illegible] but he described as a [illegible] ment with grave [illegible] agricultural and industrial interests of the country.

"The transportation congestion is in the interior of the country," Mr. Dempsey said. "A vast tonnage on the Great Lakes is idle partly because of the depression in Europe, but also by reason of the inability of the railroads to carry shipments for which there is a ready market abroad. It is clear, therefore, that the situation can only be relieved by increasing the facilities for water transportation in the interior."

Mr. Dempsey cited the congestion of the New York harbor, where he said, the port facilities ought to expend $40,000,000 so that foreign ships [illegible] unloaded in the city. "The [illegible] sufficient support proposed by the bill," he said, "would only take care of maintenance charges and some of the harbors, leaving inland rivers of such vital importance to the transportation needs of the nation, practically without funds to proceed with existing improvement projects."

Chairman Anthony, of the appropriations sub-committee, which framed the bill, said the committee had increased the budget figures by $10,000,000 and that with $12,000,0000 on hand, all necessary work could be done. He said that, estimating the working year at 312 days, the appropriation carried by the bill was all that the engineers advantageously could expend.

VISITING CLERGYMAN TO OBEY THE PROHIBITION LAWS

New York, Jan. 16.—The Very Rev. Albert Victor Baillie, chaplain to the king of England and dean of the chapel of St. George at Windsor castle, arrived today on the Baltic with a promise to obey the prohibition laws.

"I don't think it is civil for a stranger to come here and criticise your country's laws, and I would say that while I am here I shall abide by them," Perhaps it is creating a good deal of consciences violation, which is bad for the people, I think."

The dean plans to visit Washington, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. He will preach here at the Cathedral of St. John the Divinie on January 28.

BETTER MINISTERS, NOT MORE CHURCHES NEEDED

Boston, Jan. 6.—Better men to enter the ministry and not more churches is the greater need of the average American community, Bishop William Lawrence, of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, said tonight at the opening dinner of the campaign here in the $1,000,000 fund drive for the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge. He said the campaign is an "investment in giving these men better training for their jobs."

Bishop Lawrence announced that $600,000 has already been subscribed and that quotas throughout the country had been removed.

NO LOSS IN MOVEMENT SOUTH OF TEXTILE MILLS

Boston, Jan. 16.—The movement of textile mills to southern states, if it continues, will have no adverse bearing on general conditions in New England, William P. G. Harding said today in his first remarks as governor of the federal reserve bank here. Mr. Harding was formerly governor of the federal reserve board.

"The south has its advantages in the manufacture of cotton particularly of heavy grades," he added, "because of the open winter conditions, the development of electric power and transportation facilities near the sea."

In Africa it is a bewildering sight to see a colony of ants on the move. They advance in perfect formation in lines about three inches wide, a column of them often extending for nearly a mile. They are led by a regiment of warrior ants. After them comes a body of small ants carrying various loads. They are the porters, whose duty it is to transport eggs, babies, sticks, leaves and so on.

SKIPS FROM SUPERIOR COURT WHEN HIS CASE WAS TO BE TRIED

William Coman of New London, accused of theft of a roll of cloth worth $150, was to have been tried on the charge in the criminal superior court here Tuesday morning before Judge Allyn L. Brown, but when the time for the trial came he could not be found.

Coman had been in court during the morning accompanied by his wife, but he disappeared and his bond of $1,000 was called and forfeited. Attorney G. G. Morgan, who was his counsel, was in court prepared to defend him in the trial of the case.

Other cases were disposed of during the short morning session and court adjourned about 1 o'clock to come in again here at 9.30 Friday morning.

John Brosky of Franklin was given a sentence of 10 months in jail when he pleaded guilty to breach of the peace. He had been charged with a more serious offense, but the charge was changed.

Harry Jarro and Tony Colega of this city, accused of burglary at the West Main street restaurant of Harry Harrowitch and Peter Listre had their cases nolled.

The case of the state against Tony Laurences of Franklin, who was accused of a vile offense, was nolled for lack of evidence.

In the case of M. Tatro of Voluntown, accused in connection with the death of Thomas McGuire, 45, of Voluntown, the court continued the case to the next term and fixed the bond at $1,000. Early on the morning of Dec. 24 McGuire was found dead in the road near the Voluntown school house with his neck broken. Tatro found the body in the road as he was returning in his automible from a dance at Rockville, H. I. Later Tatro was arrested on the charge of having hit the man with his machine and caused his death. He denies any knowledge of the affair that would show negligence on his part.

JUNK PILE FATE FOR GROTON-BUILT STEAMSHIP

Steamship Minnesota, the world's largest freighter, which was built at the plant of the Eastern Shipbuilding Co. at Groton in 1904, was bought on Monday by the Merritt, Chapman and Scott Company of New York. The freighter, which has been laid up since 1918, was bought for dismantling from the International Mercantile Marine Co. of New York.

The Minnesota and a sister ship, the Dakota, were built by James J. Hill for the Great Northern railroad and after their launching were used in the Pacific Mail's service between the Pacific coast and Japan. The Dakota was lost a few years after on the coast of Japan. The vessels were the largest ever built under the American flag, being 622 feet long and 73 feet wide, with a capacity of 32,000 tons.

The Minnesota proved too big and unwieldy for profitable operation for ordinary commercial use, as steamship lines find that vessels of from 8,000 to 20,000 tons are more economical. At the outbreak of the World war she was used for transatlantic service as a horse and cargo transport and performed prodigies of work.

In the traffic slump which came upon shipping after the war in 1920 the huge steamer again showed herself a white elephant and was laid up.

TOTOKETT MAN'S DAUGHTER LOST IN SEAPLANE WRECK

John McDonald, formerly of New York, now employed at the Totokett Manufacturing company, received a telegram Tuesday morning that his daughter, Miss Grace McDonald, a nurse, was among those drowned on Saturday, Jan. 13, when the seaplane Columbus, flying from Key West to Havana, fell and sank 20 miles off Havana, carrying four of its passengers to their death.

Miss McDonald, with the two children of Edwin F. Atkins, Jr., of Belmont, Mass., had remained in the cabin of the Columbus, following the accident and when the rescue ship Henry M. Flagler arrived the plane was taking water. A boat was lowered from the Flagler and those passengers who had remained outside the cabin were hastily transferred. Heavy seas were running and just as Edwin F. Atkins 3d, Boston capitalist, was going below to bring them up to the deck the wreck suddenly sank, carrying four persons to their deaths.

Search has been made for the bodies of the drowned but none were found, it being believed that it will be impossible to find them in those southern waters.

WARNS JITNEY OPERATORS TO USE CARE NOW

Owing to the increased road hazards due to Sunday's storm, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel has warned long-distance jitney line officials to exercise all possible care in the transportation of passengers. He called attention to the fact that on account of the deep snows, roads are now much narrower than usual, and to pass another car in the limited space requires greater caution.

The commissioner said there had been repeated instances in the past few days of a car forcing another off the road and into a drift. He also pointed out that traffic policemen, for their own safety, should be on the lookout for cars not under complete control in the snow, as the danger of swerving was greatly increased by the street conditions.

Chief Linton investigated and found that Day had lived in Norwich some 25 years ago but had left many years ago for the west. His sister leaving with him. REMOVED FROM OFFICE IN STATE LABOR FEDERATION

On charges that he had violated the obligation he took when assuming the office of vice president of the Connecticut Federation of Labor; that he had "borrowed" money indiscriminately from brother unionists, and did not repay it; that he had charged exorbitant bills of expense to local unions for his appearance before them, and had generally violated the tenets of organized labor, Vice President Urgel L. LaPre of Norwich was removed from office by the executive council of the federation at a meeting held in Hartford. Mr. LaPre has the right to appeal to the convention of the federation to be held in New Haven the first week in June. Whether he will or not is not known, as he was not present to answer the charges made against him.

The charges were made by President P. F. O'Meara and Secretary T. M. Ornburn of New Haven following complaints made to them by union members from all parts of the state but principally "down east," from which section Mr. LaPre comes. He was appointed a vice president about a year ago to succeed Thomas A. Freeman of Norwich, who died in office. At the convention held in Stamford last year he was elected a vice president from the floor.

It is charged that even at the Stamford convention he borrowed money right and left, and has not repaid any of it. Then he put in an exorbitant bill to the Norwich Central Labor union for his expenses to Stamford, it is added. To this it was charged that when sent for by local unions about the state to assist in their organization on programs, he had agreed to do so, arranged for the meetings and then demanded expense money before he would carry out the program.

These matters were brought to the attention of the executive board and at the meeting were made into formal charges. The board unanimously voted to oust him and then appointed D. E. Foley, also of Norwich, a vice president in his place. LaPre is a member of the polishers' union, while Mr. Foley is a moulder.

DEVELOPMENTS IN PROBE OF AUTOMOBILE THIEVES

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 16.—Developments in the state police-insurance investigators probe into the activities of an alleged band of automobile thieves, heretofore confined to Bridgeport and Hartford, branched out to include Fairfield and New Haven tonight.

George S. Singer of Manhattan avenue, former owner of a Park Avenue garage, was arrested for the second time within a week. State police took him into custody for Fairfield authorities on the allegation, Sergeant Frank Vierlli said tonight that he had been in possession of an automobile that had been mutilated.

The car had been sold by Singer to Andrew Vesy, of Fairfield, police aver, and was seized, claimed to be a stolen car, in Vesy's garage, last week.

Singer will be arraigned in Fairfield town court next Monday morning. In Bridgeport city court a charge of alleged perjury is pending against him, in that, state police declare, he registered with the motor vehicle department fictitious names and addresses of persons from whom he said he had bought automobiles later resold.

State police also confiscated automobiles, they say had been stolen, in a New Haven garage.

Arrests in the startling case total eight. Aside from Harold and Nathan Goldy, Singer, Sam Lefeitz, and Frank Cleary, Abe Feuerstein, of Butler avenue; E. J. Lawlor, of 31 Amity street, Hartford and F. J. Hannon of Quaker lane, East Hartford, were arrested this week.

HOPES TO DETERMINE THE NATURE OF ELECTRICITY

Boston, Jan. 16.—Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, expects to sail about July 1 to establish permanent scientific stations in northern part of Labrador for the purpose of studying terrestrial magnetism and atmospheric electricity, he told fellow alumni tonight, at the annual dinner of Boston members of the Bowdoin College Alumni association.

The first expedition consisting of seven scientists will sail on the steamer Bowdoin, and will be away a year.

Mr. MacMillan hoped, he said, to determine the nature of electricity from these observations. He said that very little is known of forces emanating from the center of the earth. He pointed out that magnetic pole is slowly moving westward but that eventually it will halt and swing back and point north.

Millions of tons of bituminous coal can be mined in the far north he declared in speaking of the fear that the world supply of coal is nearly exhausted.

CUTTER TOWING DISABLED SCHOONER TO PROVIDENCE

Boston, Jan. 16.—The Coast Guard cutter Tuscan was on her way to Providence tonight towing the disabled British schooner Derin, picked up southeast of Nantucket on Sunday with a cargo of 3,000 cases of liquor. The cargo, the cutter reported by radio, was shopped from St. Pierre, Miquelon, and was destined for New York.

It was expected early tonight that the cutter would anchor in Narragansett Bay and make Providence in the morning. An armed guard had been placed over the schooner, her cargo and crew.

The Dorothy M., a 26 ton vessel, geared as a fisherman, and hailing from Newport, R. I., was captured in Dorchester Bay today by the customs launch Dreamer and taken to the appraiser's stores here. Collector Lubbin will decide tomorrow whether the vessel will be formally seized as a rumrunner.

The skipper and his five men were detained and guards were placed on the vessel, which customs men admitted had liquor on board.

Scituate, Mass., Jan. 16.—A truck load of liquor, landed at Peggoty Beach under armed guard, and whisked away in an automobile at gunpoint while a crowd stood by was being sought by police and prohibition enforcement officials today. The prize slipped through the hands of a south-shore constable who held up the truck, but allowed it to proceed when one of the men aboard exposed a badge, saying he was a prohibition agent. The incident occurred Sunday, but was reported only today.

EARNINGS OF SINCLAIR OIL COMPANIES WAS $22,384,000

Washington, Jan. 16.—The surface of the controversy which has raged for nine months about the action of the Harding administration in leasing the Teapot Dome Naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests was scratched by the senate oil investigating committee today in its initial examination of Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the board of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

Mr. Sinclair spent three hours on the witness stand detailing the organization of the many oil companies in which he is interested and it was only a few minutes before adjournment was taken for the day that questions by the committee attorney took him within range of the Teapot Dome controversy.

The matter of the Teapot Dome lease even then was not mentioned by Mr. Sinclair in his testimony, but after describing the organization of the mammoth oil company, which now is operating the naval reserve under the lease granted last April by Secretary Fall, he offered and Chairman La

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Speaking of transportation matters, here is a bit of information more cheering than consideration of the railroad and its difficulties. By the first of March, and possibly before that time, a bus line with machines operating on regular schedule, will have been established between Danielson and Providence, via Little Rest and North Scituate, reaching Providence through Olneyville square and with LaSalle square, near the public library, as its terminal.

Herbert J. Barnett has obtained a certificate to cover the Rhode Island end of the operation from the public service commission of that state and has completed his arrangements to put his line in operation within a few weeks.

As now planned this service, which was as certain to follow the completion of the new state highway as dawn follows night, will provide a three-trip service daily. It is expected that the first will leave here shortly after 7 a. m., providing transportation for business men and others who need to be in the city early. A later trip will put passengers in Providence in time for a lunch and some shopping before the matinees and a still later trip will be convenient for those going to Providence to spend the night. Returning the last trip out of Providence, excepting possibly Saturday, will be about 6.30 or 7 p. m.

Busses of 16-passenger capacity will be $1.50 unless some rearrangement of present plans is made. The busses will pick up traffic all along the line to North Scituate. From Danielson to South Killingly the fare is to be 25 cents. From Danielson to Little Rest 35 cents. To Chop Mist hill the rate will be 75 cents, $1.00 to North Scituate and $1.50 to Olneyville square. The line will operate daily and Sunday.

With the Danielson-Providence route in operation the Barnet lines will be furnishing through bus service from Providence to Willimantic, where connections may be made by motor vehicle for Hartford.

The new line out of Danielson will be authorized to carry small packages and newspapers for dealers in the territory along the line. It will give Danielson people a direct means of transportation into the Rhode Island capital, a boon that was lost when the Danielson and Providence trolley road suspended service and tore up the rails between East Killingly and North Scituate.

The certificate covering this route is the second issued in Rhode Island recently for a line into Connecticut. The Blue Ribbon bus line, a Providence concern, has the other certificate for a service that will come out of Providence through Plainfield street to South Scituate, Rockland, Clayville and via the Fairbanks hill route to Sterling and Moosup, which will be the Connecticut end of the run.

SENATOR GIBBS PRESENTS BILLS APPOINTING CITY COURT JUDGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Jan. 16.—Bills were presented in the senate today by Senator H. J. Gibbs of Norwich appointing Arthur F. Libby judge of the city court of Norwich and Henry M. Pettis deputy judge. Both went on the calendar.

Wants Two More Judges.

Senator Wilder introduced a bill to increase the number of judges of the supreme and superior court to 18. The present number is 16. The bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Senator Brooks of Torrington introduced two bills for the elimination of mosquitoes. One bill provides that whenever any swamp, marsh or other land is drained it shall be kept free from obstruction, and the other authorizes the director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station to make rules for the elimination of mosquitoes. The bills were referred to the committee on public health and safety.

A bill requiring street railway companies to keep the part of highways between their tracks in good repair, etc., was introduced by Senator Gibbs of Norwich and referred to the committee on roads, bridges and rivers.

Senator Rogers of New London introduced a bill for the repeal of chapter 24 of the general statutes relating to home rule for cities. It was referred to the committee on the judiciary. The senator also introduced a home rule recommended by the commission on uniform charters for cities, of which he is a member, and a bill authorizing municipalities to contract with other municipalities for the use of their sewers, both of which were referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Senator Gibbs—For the payment of back pay amounting to $600 to Robert McBurney, the messenger of the superior court of Norwich. Refered to judiciary committee.

A bill introduced by Senator Gibbs of Norwich fixing the salary of the messenger to the judge of court for Norwich at $1,200 was referred to the judiciary committee.

In the house the chief incident was the resignation from all committee appointments of Mr. Wall of Torrington, who is said to have been vexed at the failure of Speaker Newcomb to reappoint him to the judiciary committee, on which he served last session. Mr. Wall's letter was read and without comment the speaker appointed Mr. Slosky of Enfield as chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments, Mr. Lucas of Goshen on concurrence matters, Mr. Pomeroy of Meriden on federal relations, and Mr. Sheffield of Bridgeport on legislative matters in Mr. Wall's place.

While not unprecedented, the action of Mr. Wall was not commonplace. It is said to have been taken without any previous friction with the presiding officer or as the outgrowth of any protest in parliamentary procedure. Undoubtedly circumstances of this kind having been brought about by differences of opinion of party caucuses in which Mr. Wall as a member took part with the majority, better work this session.

In the senate Senator McGrail offered a resolution which would memorialize congress to modify the Volstead act, and his measure is one of several which are to be offered.

The state board of education gave its consent to the [illegible] to repeal school laws.

On motion of Leader Buckley, the house today took from the table the bill repealing Chapter 24 of the public [illegible] after brief explanation. The purpose of repeal is to leave it [illegible] to the cities themselves to [illegible] the commission form of government. It was stated by Representative Buckley that the bill was passed by the house without opposition.

It is stated failure to concur with the senate in passing the bill. Both Senator Rogers of the senate, and Senator Rogers, the senate chairman of the committee on appropriations, said to him that the law which the bill seeks to repeal was a failure.

On motion of Senator Ells, the bill was passed under suspension of the rules.

Senator Rogers moved that the senate concur with the house in passing the bill under suspension of rules.

Senator French of Thomaston could not see the necessity of haste in acting on the bill. He was opposed to the suspension of rules for the purpose of giving immediate action on the matter.

On the motion of Senator Bidwell of East Hartford the bill was tabled.

Election Contests

A contest over the election of representatives from Enfield was started today by the filing of petitions from Charles D. Bent and Henry J. Bridges of that town for seats in the house as duly elected representatives. Samuel Slosky and William Ryland, Jr., are the Enfield members who have been sworn in. All are republicans. The petition was referred to the committee on contested elections.

A contest also comes from Hampton where Wallace Jewett petitions to be seated on the ground that John G. Lewis was illegally elected by improper ballots and that the polls were closed before the legal hour. Spellacy & Yeomans of Hartford are counsel for Mr. Jewett and J. F. Carpenter of Putnam for Mr. Lewis, a republican.

Bailey an Assistant Clerk

The committee on engrossed bills and the committee on the judiciary held a joint meeting Tuesday afternoon after adjournment of the two houses and appointed W. Arthur Countryman of Hartford clerk of engrossed bills and Alfred C. Baldwin of Derby, clerk of bills. The joint committee left the appointment of assistant clerks to the clerks. The arrangement in regard to the appointment of assistant clerks was unexpected.

Later in the afternoon Frederick A. Scott of Plymouth, a former speaker of the house, Albert J. Bailey of Norwich and A. E. Howard of Hartford were appointed assistants.

Appointments by Governor

Governor Templeton sent the following appointments to the senate:

Director of state prison for the unexpired portion of the term ending July 1, 1925—Morgan B. Brainard of Hartford.

Board of pardons for the unexpired portion of the term of four years, ending the first Monday of June, 1925, Robert U. Tyler of Haddam.

Bank commissioner for the unexpired portion of the term, ending July 1, 1923—John B. Byrne of Putnam.

The appointments were referred to the committee on executive nominations.

Senator Brooks introduced a bill repealing chapter 249 of the public acts of 1915, relating to small loans.

The senate adjourned to Wednesday at 11.15.

JEWETT CITY

On the night of Oct. 21, 1922 a Ford roadster, mechanically out of order, was noticed by a passing car on its way to Pachaug. On its return again the roadster was found to be stripped of three practically new tires of non-skid type, locks, etc. A search was made to find traces in the dark to allow the taking of the cars.

A complaint of the theft was made to James McCusker to Deputy Sheriff Dolan and an investigation was made by the deputy and state policeman Keith, of Baltic. No. [illegible] of Preston with the result of the recovery of some of the stolen goods and the arrest of David Lockwood of Westerly. [illegible] was arraigned in police court [illegible] and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was fined $50. At the town court Tuesday, Judge Brown found the accused guilty of the theft of goods alleged in complaint, but changed the valuation of goods taken from [illegible] and fined David Lockwood $100 and costs with a sentence of 3 months in jail, with bonds of $1,000 in case of appeal.

The assistant prosecutor, John Barry, took advantage of the occasion to compliment Deputy Sheriff Dolan and State policeman Keith on their success in locating the guilty party. The officers received many words of praise from motor owners on their fine work in this particular case.

BOSTON LABORERS SUFFER WITH CRAMPS AND COLDS

Boston, Jan. 16.—Shovelers' cramp has cost the city and the street railway company the services of 725 men, as a result of the almost constant labors with the recurring snows of the past fortnight. Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke said today that 400 laborers were on the city's sick list, laid up with cramps and colds. General Manager Edward Dana said 325 of the Boston Elevated Railway's gangs were at home unable to work for a time after days spent fighting the snows.

HANOVER

The annual church meeting and roll call of the Congregational church was held in the parish house last Thursday evening. About 60 members and friends enjoyed the very fine supper which was served at 6.30 o'clock by the Ladies' Guild.

Reports from all the organizations in connection with the church were given at the annual meeting, and they showed that much goodo work had been done during 1922. A new furnace has been placed in the parsonage and the electric light installed during the year. It was voted to change the name of the [illegible] school to church school and the sum of $100 was paid by the trustees of the church to the school as evidence of their feeling of growing responsibility for this most important part of the church work.

The women of the church were heartily commended for their loyal support of the work in the village and also in the missionary activities for which we are responsible. The men of the church are striving to make the best possible use of the parish house activities for the good of all. The young people of the church have endeavored to co-operate through their various societies with the older people and with each other in making their organizations mean more to the life of the church. This has been specially noticeable in the work of the C. E. societies. The reports showed evidence that plans were being made to carry on this spirit into 1923, when we shall hope for even better results.

The roll call of members closed a very interesting and helpful annual meeting.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIVE.

New York, Jan. 16.—Speculators for the decline, taking advantage of the more threatening complications in the German reparations situation and the liquidation on the part of frightened investors, forced another material recession in prices in today's stock market. The declines ran from small fractions to 2 and 3 points in standard shares but the strength of the resistance at the lower levels indicated substantial support by insiders.

While the reaction spread over most of the list and was particularly effective in the motors, equipments, oils and a few of the rails, thee were a number of stocks that managed to move against the prevailing current. These included California Petroleum, which closed 2 points above Monday's final figure; Beechnut Packing, up 2 3-8; Kresge, up 6 1-2, and Montana Power, up 1 3-8.

Low money rates and constructive domestic developments, such as the announcement of more price advances in the mid-west and Pennsylvania oil fields, helped to keep the decline within reasonable bounds.

German marks fell to 60-100ths of a cent a hundred, or 16,666 to the American dollar, as against yesterday's closing price of 72-100ths of a cent. Other rates opened firm, eased off and then rallied again. Demand sterling got as low as $4.65 1-3, or more than 3 points below last week's high, but advanced to $4.66 1-4 in the late afternoon. French francs closed at 6 cents, or 4 points above Monday's close.

Polish marks dropped to .004 1-3 cents, a new low record, while the Calcutta rate remained at its high mark, 35.10 cents.

Baldwin again fluctuated within a range of nearly 4 points closing at 130 7-8 for a net loss of 2 3-8. Sonderlicker moved within more narrow limits, ending the day at 113 1-8, or 3-4 under last night's final quotation. Pan-American stamped as low as 60 1-4 and rallied to 61 1-8, off 1 1-2, other active shares to yield to selling pressure were American Can, Allied Chemical, Coca Cola, Houston, Cosden, Mack Truck, Republic Steel, Punta Alegre and Stromberg Carburetor, all off 1 3-4 to 3 1-4 points. U. S. Steel touched 104 3-4 but rallied to 105 1-4 for a net loss of only 1-8 of a point.

Anaconda and Chile Coppers, details of the merger of which were announced last night, each sold below Monday's closing levels, the former at one time 3-4 and the latter 1-2. Sales of Anaconda totalled approximately 17 thousand shares and of Chile, nearly nine thousand shares.

Rail issues rallied for a time but a number of active issues gave ground during the afternoon reaction, which was accelerated by the circulation of rumors of war between France and Germany. Canadian Pacific, off 1 1-4 points and losses of 1 point or more took place in Texas Pacific, Ohio, Lackawanna, New Orleans Texas & Mexico and St. Louis Southwestern Preferred.

Call money opened at 4 per cent and then eased to 3 1-2, despite government withdrawals of $47,000,000 from local depository banks. The time money market was inactive with only a few small loans being made at 4 1-4 per cent and brokers bidding 4 1-2 for three or four months maturities. Banks were reported to demand 4 3-4 per cent. Commercial paper business was light with the prime names commanding 4 1-4 per cent.

BOND MARKET.

New Yok, Jan. 16.—Heavy selling of foreign bonds, most of which declined a point or more, combined with another flood of new offerings, including the $100,000,000 Anaconda issue to be put out tomorrow, imparted a decidedly reactionary trend to prices in today's bond market.

Fear of further trouble in Germany led to a rather extensive liquidation of French bonds. Marseilles 8s beaking 2 1-2 points; Bordeaux 6s and Lyons 6s, 2 each, and French 7 1-2s and 8s, Belgian 7 1-2s and 8s, and other French municipals, 1 to 1 1-2 points, together with Italian Queensland, Mexican and South American issues. Several of the French issues approached within small fractions of their lowest quotations for all time.

U. S. government securities held firm in the early dealings but reacted towards the close, the issues ranging from 2 to 10 cents on $100 except in the case of the 1st ory 4 3-4s, which advanced 2 cents, and the second 4s, which dropped 18.

Speculative railroad mortgages all yielded to selling pressure. Atchison convertible 4s, series A, breaking 2 1-2 points and Frisco 4s, adjustment 6s and income 6s, Southern Railway 4s and 5s, Rock Island Refunding 4s, New Haven 6s, and St. Paul 4s of 1925 and refunding 4s dropping a point or more.

In the industrial division, International Cement 8s receded 3 5-8 and Cerro De Pasco 8s, 1 3-4. Brooklyn Rapid Transit 4s dropped 2 points on unconfirmed reports that they would not fare as well as the other issues in the reorganization plan.

Total sales (par value) were $12,176,000.

The Northern Pacific railroad is reported to be planning a $10,000,000 issue of refunding and improvement 5 per cent mortgage bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Wheat and corn, partly on foreign account, together with warlike reports such as that Germany had massed 25,000 troops facing the French advance, brought about a decided upturn today in the value of grain. Wheat closed strong, 1 3-8c to 2 1-2c net higher, May 1.21 3-8 to 1.21 1-2 and July 1.14 1-4 to 1.14 3-8. Corn finished 2-4 to 7-8c 4c up and oats up 3-8c to 1c. In provisions, there was a rise varying from 7c to 15c.

Almost from the start, wheat trading gave indications that European purchasing had broadened out, and this was associated more or less with talk which was current that if the Ruhr invasion proved unproductive the French planned an attempt to occupy Berlin and two of the chief German seaports as well. Bullish sentiment thus engendered became especially pronounced after news was circulated that Germany was mobilizing military forces on a considerable scale, and that a large report business in the United States was under way. It was said Great Britain had taken 500,000 bushels and that France and other European countries were also buyers.

Assertions that the movement of the Argentine crop had met with unexpected delay tended further to strengthen the wheat market here, and so, likewise, did continued adverse weather conditions in the domestic winter wheat territory. On the other hand, word that a panic existed in the Berlin money market failed to have any apparent bearish influence here, and with recent speculative sellers showing something of a flurry to reverse their position the wheat market closed at the highest point reached in several weeks.

Corn and oats followed wheat upgrade. Seaboard advices told of good export demand for corn. Provisions were higher with hogs and grain.

THE LIFE OF A HOME

A healthy, happy, contented wife is the life and joy of the home and the greatest inspiration a man can have, yet how many homes in America are blighted by the ill-health and sufferings of the wife and mother. It may be backache, headaches, the tortures of a displacement, or some other ailment peculiar to her sex, which makes her irritable, despondent, and her whole life a burden. Every women in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, to restore her to health and happiness, for statistics prove that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

REPORTED ACTIVE MONTH IN YMCA WORK

The January meeting of the Norwich YMCA directors held Tuesday evening was both interesting and encouraging. It was well attended. President James C. Macpherson presided, and called for the reports of the various departments, all of which were very optimistic and hopeful. The report of the physical work showed good attendances at the various classes, with some of them showing a good increase. The increase in social activities was indicated by the social committee report. The report on boy's work showed much activity among the boys in the various departments of the boys division. A healthy growth in membership was noted. The religious committee reported an increase of interest in the various forms of religious work during the past month, and plans for a still larger work in the near future.

Noon Meeting at Radiator Plant

One of the best of the series of noon meetings under YMCA auspices was held at the radiator plant Tuesday when Rev. C. H. Ruskess greatly interested a large number of the employees on the topic "Or now we know in part."

The speaker said in part, "Our knowledge at best is limited. Let a man go down in the valley where the mountains rise on either side and he can see comparatively little, but let him climb the hills and his horizon widens, and let him go still higher and on a clear day perhaps a hundred miles, the higher he goes the wider his vision. However, every man's vision is limited. Up to certain points, what a man sees depends upon who he is and what he is; for instance, a geologist would see a hundred things in rocks, while I would see very few things. One man can tell you much about the large variety of birds; he knows them by their looks and by their songs, but I could tell you about very few of them. But even the brightest mind has its limits, for "now we know in part." And I ask the question, is it not best as it should be so? Who would want to know it all. Take a boy at school, suppose he could know that he was to be very successful in his studies and in his grades and that he was to lead his class, such foreknowledge would make his head swell, and he would feel like a little Prince and expect others to bow to him; or suppose this other boy at school knew that he was to fail in his studies next week; he would be discouraged, and he would continue to fail. Suppose no man knew that some time next week or next month you were to meet with a fatal accident in these shops, you would be most miserable. God has fixed it right; He discloses things as we can stand them, and He does it in a way that is for our best good.

The Editor—What's wrong with our report? I wrote it myself and said that you, being considered the fittest member, were elected president of club.

GET MAN CREDITED WITH RECENT SERIES OF BURGLARIES IN CITY

Since the arrest Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock of a man who gives his name as Fred Roderick, 26, coming from Orleans, Mass., a little town on Cape Cod, the Norwich police believe they have got the burglar who is responsible for a number of minor cases of breaking and entering Norwich business places.

Was Carrying Hammer

Roderick, who is a Portuguese, is so dark complexioned that he would be taken for a colored man. When arrested he had no money on him, but in an inside pocket of his coat was a heavy long handled hammer such as could have been used to break glass in doors and windows, which has been the method of getting into the places in half a dozen burglaries in the past few weeks.

While Roderick was locked up at police headquarters Tuesday morning, telephone messages were received from two more places that had been broken into during the night, the breaks having been discovered when the places opened for business Tuesday morning.

Two Breaks Monday Night

These were the Norwich Grain Co., at 41 Water street and the trucking office of C. B. Bromley & Son, on Shetucket street, opposite the freight depot. Both are laid up against Roderick, who was presented in the police court on the charge of burglary in the night season. Probable cause was found and he was bound over to the May term of the criminal court. Bonds were placed at $2,000. He went to jail.

Roderick was seen on Water street standing behind a telegraph pole about 5.30 Tuesday morning by Frank Tuttle, who is a watchman in the elevator. The man moved off towards Market street when he saw that he was observed by Watchman Tuttle, who soon afterwards reported to Sergeant A. C. Matthews the suspicious stranger whom he had seen loitering. Sergeant Mathews took up the trail and learned from Officer Frank Henderson that the man had passed him a short time before.

Hiding Behind Show Case

Going through Water street to Main and along that street, Sergeant Matthews was passing the Plaut-Caddan Co. store when the watchman inside the store rapped on the window and told the policeman that a man was hiding behind the big show case in the vestibule of the store.

Sergeant Matthews promptly collared the man, who proved to be Roderick and was identified by Watchman Tuttle and Officers Henderson as the same one they had seen on Water street shortly before, although Roderick denied having been on Water street. He claimed he was waiting for a trolley car to go to New London where he was working, and that he had got up without knowing what time it was and had come out to wait for the car. Asked how he epected to get to New London without money to pay the fare, he said he supposed the conductor would trust him.

Checking up on what he told them, the police punctured about every statement that he made. He claimed to have been here about three weeks, staying at the Carboni rooming house on Main street and working in New London. Mrs. Carboni denied that he had been working in New London, but said he had usually slept in the day time and had gone out about 5 p. m. each day, telling her he was working nights. He owed her a week's rent Monday and she put him out of the house about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning where he couldn't satisfy her demand for payment.

Meal on Man's Rubbers

Investigating the break at the Grain company store, the police found that the rubbers Roderick wore fitted footprints in the snow near the rear window where the glass was broken. Traces of meal were also found on Roderick's rubbers, indicating that he had been inside the store. He secured nothing to reward him as there was no money in the cash register.

Chopped Safe at Bromley's

At Bromley's trucking office, where entry was also made by breaking the glass in a window, the would-be thief had made an attempt to chop into the safe and had also knocked off the combination, but he left without getting the safe open and without securing any money in the place.

The police believe that Roderick was the man who made this break, also and that he used his hammer and a hatchet which was there to work with. It looked as if the burglar had pounded on the hatchet with his hammer. He had succeeded in cutting a seven-inch gash in the top of the safe, going through into the concrete lining, but had then given up. In a last desperate attempt to get inside the safe the combination had been knocked off but this did not open the safe.

Police Were Watchful

Ever since the first of a series of minor breaks, all of the same general character, with entrance gained by breaking glass and nothing but money taken in any case, the police have been doing extra time at night in keeping a watch for the burglar. Extra men have been out in plain clothes in the center of the city and the business section has been thoroughly patrolled the police are satisfied that these minor burglaries will come to an end now, and they are well satisfied that the net they have spread to get the burglar had finally landed him behind prison bars.

Besides the breaks at the Grain Co. and Bromley's the police credit Roderick with similar breaks in the last few weeks at the Cranston Co., the Public Market on the East Side, a Franklin street pawnshop and the A. & P. store on Main street near Preston bridge.

THEATRE MEN JOIN MOVE FOR BETTER MOTION PICTURES

Because political censorship of moving pictures has failed in practically every state where it has been attempted, Connecticut has started a movement for a better class of pictures that is decidedly unique in many respects. One novel feature of the plan now being worked out is that the idea is fostered by the theatre men. Recognizing that their success depends upon the public acceptance of their offerings, the show men have put the matter squarely up to the people and are actively backing the activities of a committee on organization which has called a meeting of societies all over Connecticut for next Wednesday afternoon at the Old Statehouse in Hartford.

At the meeting a detailed program for obtaining better pictures will be outlined. More than 30 organizations, representing varied interests, have signified their intention of having from two to six delegates present. When the general plan is worked out, the various delegations will take the matter up with their respective organizations for ratification.

The following organizations will be represented: Hartford Chamber of Commerce, Connecticut Society Sons of American Revolution, Connecticut Congregational club, Bachelors' club, Hartford Women's club, Connecticut Sunday School association, Master Painters' and Decorators' association, Twentieth Century club, Civitan club of Hartford, Women's Aid society, Good Will club, Norwich Chamber of Commerce, Hartford Council of Churches, Central Council of Social Agencies, Connecticut Branch of King's Daughters and Sons, Connecticut and Rhode Island Interstate Conference of the Council of Jewish Women, Charity Organization societies, Ararat lodge, No. 13, I. O. B. B., the Monday Morning club, Missionary Society of Connecticut, Boy Scouts of America, and Girl Scouts.

William A. True, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Connecticut, will represent his organization, which includes in its membership 160 out of the 200 motion picture theatres in the state.

Will Attend McKinley Dinner.

The McKinley association annual banquet scheduled for the 27th is the first statewide event at which Governor Charles A. Templeton will officiate since taking his oath of office. The fact that Governor Templeton is president of the association this year has created unusual interest in the event, many men and women from all over the state planning to attend.

Nearly 500 tickets have now been actually mailed all over the state, with many from Waterbury. Strict observance of the assigning of seats has given the first callers the seats nearest the speakers' table.

As an example of one day's mail of tickets, the following is the list of tickets actually mailed Friday:

Dan D. Home of Montville (7), H. Wales Lines of Meriden (2), Elisha Waterman of Bozrahville (3), Albert Krouse of Canaan, Emil Mannweiler of Naugatuck, C. V. Pendleton of Norwich, Thomas J. Aylward of Danielson, A. W. Byrne of Hartford, Fred W. Perkins of Uncasville, Donald S. Sammis of Stratford, J. H. Hurlbutt of Waterbury (3), Attorney John Smith of Bridgeport (2), James J. Fitzpatrick of Meriden, Lieut. Gov. Hiram Bingham of New Haven, Maxwell S. Porter of Hartford (3), Norman A. Beers of Danbury (3), and John Jenusaitis of Waterbury (2).

WARNS DOMESTIC CONSUMERS TO LAY IN BITUMINOUS

With railroads congested and freight traffic seriously interfered with, and in some cases entirely suspended because of the storm, the state fuel administration has sent out an appeal to domestic consumers as a precautionary measure to lay in supplies of bituminous coal.

Information received at the Capitol showed that the railroads at present are crippled so seriously because of prolonged snow storms that until it is possible to clear tracks and free switches of ice, it will be practically impossible to move shipments of coal at all. Many dealers are almost entirely out of anthracite coal, and nearly all report entire absence of both buckwheat and pea sizes.

Information is in the hands of the state fuel administration showing that it is possible to burn soft coal with a good measure of success in household furnaces where up to the present time, anthracite only has been used. In order to substantiate this, statements were taken from several prominent citizens who are now using bituminous coal entirely.

Lucius S. Storrs, president of the Connecticut company, up to the present year burned nearly forty tons of anthracite coal each year, is at the present time using bituminous successfully and reports that so successful is the new grade of fuel that he would not return to the use of anthracite if he had the opportunity.

Samuel Ferguson, vice president of the Hartford Electric Light company, informed the fuel commission today that he was burning soft coal successfully in the furnaces of his home. "I consider," said Mr. Ferguson, "that when the difference in price is considered, soft coal is just as useful as anthracite."

Townsend H. Soren, treasurer of the Hartford Electric Light company, is another enthusiastic user of bituminous coal, and is at the present time utilizing that product exclusively with a considerable measure of success.

Numerous complaints within the past few days have been received by the Connecticut Fuel Administration with respect to coal offered for sale, the quality of which is such as to made it objectionable and unmerchantable. In some cases this fuel was so filled with slate that it could not be burned at all. Advice received by the state fuel administration from the Pennsylvania fuel commission discloses the fact that without exception so far this grade of alleged coal has been sold by companies which are not operating and the names of which do not appear on the list of representative coal companies of Pennsylvania.

In order that the public may be protected from making purchases from unreliable dealers or jobbers a warning was issued by State Fuel Administrator Thomas W. Russell against making purchases from people or alleged coal companies without some investigation or inquiries made through the proper authorities at the Capitol as to the standing of these people.

Sand Put Out Trolley Fire

A one-man trolley caught fire near Yantic Tuesday noon but a few shovels of sand thrown by the motorman soon extinguished the blaze which was beneath the trolley. None of the passengers, several of them women, were frightened by the fire and nine left the car.

A jackknife is a dangerous thing, but it is less dangerous than a jackpot.

FINDS AMANDA HALL'S BOOK A CHARMING STORY

In its review of "The Heart's Justice," a new novel by Miss Amanda Hall of this city, the Philadelphia North American finds a charming combination of human appeal without sentimentality, characters that correspond to our experiences, and a style of exquisite and natural grace and humor.

The North American says:

It is hard to find a new novel with simple human appeal that is not sentimental. It is hard to meet with characters that are at once charming and true to our experience of real people. It is hardest of all to discover a style of exquisite grace and humor that is perfectly natural. Yet all these qualities Amanda Hall unites for the sympathetic reader of "The Heart's Justice" (George H. Doran.)

The heroine, Muffet Harlow, lives apart from the world with her father, a whimsically unpractical genius, but a rare companion. A threatened breakdown in health drives him to favor his daughters marriage with an efficient young business man; but her entire education of quiet refinement and love of nature has set her against the material standards of her husband. Her gallant struggle with conflicting duties is the poignant central motive of the novel. The background is a small town in New England, and the minor figures are mostly odd native specimens.

But it is the atmosphere of the story that counts most of all. Every mood both of the characters and of nature is interpreted with the love and understanding of the artist. Faults there may be, but few readers will stop to note them, except perhaps a too great hurry toward the end. The temptation will rather be to read the whole straight through again for the quaint and poetic touches, as thick as flowers in a May meadow. That at least, is what one reader has done. Who would forget, for instance, the description of Vannie, the Harlow's darkie servant with her belief that man is "an animal owning but one collar button, no memory, and an eternal hole in his pocket"? Or the house that "like a timid child with its mother, clings to the skirts of the wood"? "The Heart's Justice" will live in the affections of those who read it with eyes alert for beauty.

NORWICH DISTRICT REPORTS ON PALESTINE FOUNDATION FUND

The Norwich Zion district has issued a printed report of the Palestine Foundation fund that was raised last year, showing that the total pledges were $18,553.38, on which there has been paid $17,607.38, leaving uncollected pledges of $1,246. The whole amount of the Norwich quota of $18,600 has been paid over to the national administration.

In the printed report, by error the names of Morris Sussman and David N. Gordon were omitted from the list of the general committee. A contribution by Gilbert Bros. appeared wrongly under the name of Goldberg Bros. and N. Horowitz received credit for having paid only half of his pledge, although he has paid it all. A pledge of $25 by S. Colt was included by mistake in the miscellaneous list.

News was received in Old Lyme on Monday afternoon of the death of Henry Lewis, which occurred at the government hospital in Arlington, where he had been a patient for a few months' suffering from tuberculosis.

POETRY

TO A MOTH.

Crushed Within the Leaves of an Iliad.

Poor Creature; nay, I'll not say poor.
Why surely thou art wondrous blest;
Right royal is this sepulchre
Fate gave thee for thy last long rest.

See here—the line two lines above
The spot that marks thy early tomb—
Here Paris breathes his burning love
To her who compassed Ilia's doom.

And here, upon a neighboring page,
The name Achilles means his friend.
A tearless tomb, the kingly sage.
Of fame or curse the gods may send.

Pass Trojan princes with the Greek;
And mighty lords, with silvery hair
Use words of war and wisdom speak.

The big gods are not always here,
Great wars go forward, resting place
Remains a [illegible] burning tear
Shall [illegible] unreturned face.

And [illegible] for thou must woo
[illegible] on [illegible] in vain
[illegible] the [illegible] sun.
And [illegible]

FRENCH HAVE SEIZED COKE AND COAL WHICH GERMANS HAD LOADED IN CARS

Have Rerouted 5,800 Tons Coke and 600 Tons of Coal for Distribution Among the Allies—French Government Has Begun Its Policy of Requisitioning in the Ruhr—General Foch's Plan of Military Operations for the Occupation of the Ruhr Valley Has Been Completely Carried Out—The Ruhr Mine Owners and Operators Have Disregarded the French and Belgian Ultimatum.

Paris, Jan. 17.—(By The A. P.)—The French government has begun its policy of requisitioning in the Ruhr, it was announced this evening five thousand eight hundred tons of coke and six hundred tons of coal, which the Germans had loaded in cars were taken and rerouted for distribution among the allies.

The French engineers in the Ruhr are simply giving an acknowledgment in return for the requisitioned coal, but the acknowledgment contains no promise to pay.

ULTIMATUM DISREGARDED BY RUHR MINE OWNERS

Berlin, Jan. 17.—(By The A. P.)—Special despatches from Essen report that the Ruhr coal owners and operators are standing pat, despite the ultimatum delivered by General Degoutte. The mines were operating [illegible] complete accord with the [illegible] issued by the French general. It was also declared that the [illegible] shown that the decree throughout the Ruhr empowers requisitioning German labor if necessary, and prosecution before courts-martial of the coal and industrial magnates who refuses to cooperate with the French in carrying out the Separation proclamation.

The effect of Tuesday's conference between General Degoutte's commanders and the mine operators has served, according to stories the German newspapers and the special correspondents, as the labor leaders and mine workers also are displaying indifference to the French ultimatum.

The boat which the French general is holding out to the mine workers will fail to have the desired effect," says the Volkes Zeitung, socialist organ, while the Mine Workers' Official Gazette declares the Duesseldorf conference plainly indicated that the French are doomed to defeat along the whole line, especially if the operators and mine workers continue their present united front.

"Our parole is a brief one," says one leading mine owner. "We propose to stand firm, do our duty by Germany, and refuse to surrender our coal—come what may."

At the Good Hope mine it was stated that, even if the directors should be arrested and detained, orders from the French would be disregarded. If the French proceed to confiscate the mines and seize the stocks on hand, it is stated, they will not realize sufficient cash to meet the payrolls.

Fritz Thyssen, son of August Thyssen, veteran Rhenish industrialist and mine owner, is the popular hero just now, and his plain-spoken manner as the spokesman for the industrialists at the conferences with the French is working infectiously on his colleagues.

Herr Thyssen, who is the active managing head of the family's varied interests, enjoys considerable personal vogue with his subordinate employes, of whom there are more than 65,000.

"The French will learn that the indigenous Westphalian physcology is quite different from that encountered in the Rhineland, for the native Ruhrith, be mine owner or worker, is a man of stubborn mind and unbending will," one correspondent observes, in discussing the Westphalian mentality as affected by the French occupation.

"Nothing has yet been heard or [illegible] seen of the much discussed 'commission of engineers' which was widely heralded by the French when the advance began," says the correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung, who asserts that thus far "only French generals have been in evidence."

It is stated that reparations deliveries will continue to be made to Great Britain, Italy, Jugo-Slovia and Poland.

One of the reasons for the removal of the headquarters of the Rhenish-Westphalian Coal Syndicate from Essen to Hamburg, it is understood, was to secure closer touch with the British sources of supply.

READY FOR MILITARY OCCUPATION OF RUHR

Duesseldorf, Jan. 17.—(By The A. P.)—The plan of military operations for the occupation of the Ruhr valley, as prepared by Marshal Foch and executed by General Degoutte, has been completely carried out, it was officially announced at the French headquarters here this afternoon.

The French troops in the Ruhr now number nearly 100,000, and the military authorities are prepared to take charge of every mine pithead in the valley tomorrow as a protection for the French economic mission, which has undertaken to operate the mines with German labor.

The limits of the occupational zone begin at Wesel. At the confluence of the Rhine and Lippe rivers, the most northerly point in the hands of the Franco-Belgian forces, the line runs east along the Lippe to Dorsten, this part being held by the Belgians who make junction with the French at the last named town.

The French hold the Lippe to Lunen, the extreme northeast limit of the occupation. The line then turns south in a semi-circle around Dortmund to Herderke and Witten, then southwest to Hattingen and thence, skirting Barmen and Elberfeld, joins Duesseldorf bridgehead at Wulfrath.

General Degoutte issued an order of the day thanking both the French and Belgian armies "for the admirable manner in which you carried out the operations," and exhorting them to bear the inclement weather and other hardships with fortitude. He added that the troops had shown great patience under provocation, and warned the Germans not to repeat the Bochum demonstrations, as the repressive measures would be severe.

General Degoutte now has the 32nd and 42nd army corps, complete, under his command with an independent unit formed by one division of calvery and the 11th and 12th divisions of infantry as reserves.

NO CHANCE FOR GERMANS TO POSE AS MARTYRS

Essen, Jan. 17 (By the A. P.)—The French economic mission has decided to content itself for the time being with the requisitioning of coal already mined and brought to the surface, diverting to France the cars already loaded and destined for the interior of Germany, and postponing for the present the idea of requisitioning the mines themselves.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the economic mission, at which General Simon presided and which lasted many hours. The meeting was called after advices had been received from Paris that the word "requisition" mentioned in the French papers was creating a bad impression abroad, especially in the United States and England.

The realization that the French technical services in the Ruhr were totally inadequate to direct a task of such magnitude also was responsible in a measure for alteration of the French plans.

That the French policy in the Ruhr is veering toward milder methods is also evidenced by the announcement in French general headquarters at midnight that "the defaulting magnates" would not be arrested, but would be simply summoned and tried before courtmartials, leaving these courts to deal with them as they deemed fit.

"We will not give them an opportunity to pose as martyrs" was the comment made at headquarters.

Application of the Tirard plan for collecting customs, which was presented at the Paris conference by M. Poincare, will also be enforced between now and January 31.

It developed during the evening that friction existed between the French economic civilian mission and the occupying military authorities, which was responsible for orders and counter orders, and the vacillating policy, involving first the stern and then the conciliatory measures obtaining in the past few days.

The economic mission realizes that preparations are totally inadequate for the French to take complete charge of the Ruhr mines without the assistance of German technical organizations, and is desirous of gaining time. Without the wish to resort to the requisitioning of the mines until there is absolutely no other way out.

The French economic mission places little credence in the reports from London that Hugo Stinnes has obtained large credits in England for the export of coal into Germany, and expect that when coal shipments from the Ruhr fail, the reich will come to terms inside of three weeks.

TWO BRIDGEPORT WOMEN CHARGED WITH BURGLARY

Bridgeport, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Lorraine Negy, 21 years old, and Mrs. Mamie Archer, 25 years old, were arrested tonight on charges of burglary and held in bonds of $500 each.

Police say Mrs. Negy has confessed to entering the home of Mrs. Joseph Mellitz with a key on January 8. Wearing apparel valued by the owner at $200 was stolen. Police recovered it in the home of Mrs. Archer, who, although named as her accomplice by Mrs. Negy, denied she entered the robbed house; declaring Mrs. Negy gave her the clothing.

Mrs. Mellitz, riding in a jitney bus today saw Mrs. Negy wearing a hat and underskirt owned by her and stolen. She stayed in the bus with the woman for blocks, and when Mrs. Negy alighted, Mrs. Mellitz summoned a policeman.

HOMELY GIRL TO HAVE CHANCE ON THE SCREEN

New York, Jan. 17.—To the list of novel similies there was added today "as homely as a movie heroine." Richard Rowland, general manager of a large film distributing company, arriving from a tour of west coast studios declared that 1923 would be the year of the homely girl on the screen.

"The popular girl of pictures," Mr. Rowland said, "will not be the pretty, doll-faced type. She will be the ordinary appearing young woman who plays the leading role in melodrama, because melodrama is going to be the principal screen fare and in this form of picture, facial beauty does not count for much."

CANADIAN MINISTER OF RAILWAYS DIES IN NAPLES

Naples, Fla., Jan. 17.—W. C. Kennedy, Canadian minister of railways, who came here recently from Montreal to recuperate after an operation, died suddenly tonight of heart disease.

He was twice elected as a liberal to the house of commons, and was given the portfolio as minister of railways and canals in December, 1921.

FARMERS CONFER ON SUBJECTS OF PRODUCTION

Boston, Jan. 17.—A committee of representative farmers from the New England states today drew up a tentative ten-year program to cover the subjects of production, distribution, organization, finance and partnership of the farm home. Education and coordination between commerce, industry and agriculture. The program will be submitted tomorow for action to the general session of the New England Agricultural council.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Besieging French Consulate

London, Jan. 17.—Hundreds of unemployed are reported to be besieging the French consulate at Liverpool, in an effort to get work in the Ruhr mines under the French regime. Officials of the consulate say nothing can be done in this connection as no official instructions have been received from France.

"CITIZENS' COURT" HAS SEEN ESTABLISHED AT HARRISON

Harrison, Ark., Jan. 17.—With the circuit court and the grand jury in session early tonight, and no intimation given as to the probable results of their deliberation, speculation centered on the activities of the "citizens' court"—a self-styled tribunal consisting of 12 men appointed yesterday by the "committee of 1,000" to investigate the recent bridge burning and other destruction of property along the lines of the Missouri and North Arkansas Railway.

The "citizens' court" late today announced that it would give a complete statement of its "findings" some time tonight.

There is no evidence," the governor wrote, "that Larkin ever endeavored to incite any specific act or violence or lawlessness. * * * Substantially his offense was nothing more than the issuance of a misguided opinion that in the remote future our system of government should be changed by a process abhorrent to our institutions.

"Stripped of its legalistic aspects, this, to my mind, is a political case where a man has been punished for a statement of his beliefs. From the legal point of view, it is a case where a man has received, during the period of popular excitement following the close of the war, so severe a sentence for a crime involving no moral turpitude. He already has served over two years in prison. This in my judgment, fully expiates his offense. The state of New York does not ask vengeance and the ends of justice have been amply met."

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 17.—James J. Larkin, pardoned by Governor Smith, was released from Sing Sing prison late today. He said he was thankful to be liberated.

TO ORGANIZE TEXTILE WORKERS IN THE SOUTH

Boston, Jan. 17.—The United Textile Workers of America will begin an organizing campaign among workers in southern textile mills immediately, President Thomas F. McMahon announced tonight after a meeting here of the emergency committee of the organization.

"Our organization has been shaping its plans toward this end for some time," the statement said. "The recent meeting of the entire executive council endorsed the plans which had been made in outline, and left details to the emergency committee, which is now ready to act. Organizers have been wired to proceed to specified work. The center chosen for our work in the south is not being announced at this time.

"The opening up of textiles in the south leaves our plans for New England unchanged. The New England textile workers must have the 4 per cent wage increase necessary to restore the cut made in December 1920."

LEGION NON-POLITICAL AND NON-SECTARIAN

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 17.—Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, in an address at a legion meeting here tonight, denied charges made yesterday in the national house of representatives by Representative Goodykoontz, republican, of West Virginia, that the legion had entered politics in circulating in California the "bonus-tariff speech of William G. McAdoo, delivered at Fullerton, Cal., last Armistice day." He said he had information that the California department was circulating the speech.

"The American Legion reiterates the statement that it is a non-political, non-sectarian organization," declared Commander Owsley.

"It is not concerned whether its members are democrats, republicans or socialists, Protestants, Catholics or Jews. It is the one all-inclusive American organization of ex-service men. * * * The American Legion is not interested in the political destiny of any of the great parties. A disinterested congressman seems unable to read the difference between loyalty to political parties and loyalty to country. The American Legion looks beyond and above all consideration of party interest and sees only the good of the country."

REGULATIONS DRAFTED TO DEAL WITH IRISH REBELS

Dublin, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—The army council of the Irish Free state has drawn up a code of stringent regulations to punish attacks against the army and state. The code which requires the endorsement of the Dail Eireann, prescribes the death penalty, after trial by military court for any encouragement of murder, possession of plans prejudicial to the safety of the state or the national forces, or for having, without authority, military or police uniforms. Penal servitude would be the punishment for those assisting prisoners to escape from either military or civil custody.

A noteworthy feature of the regulations is the use of the words "his or her," pointing to the belief that women are largely assisting the irregulars.

CURLEY WOULD NOT SIT ON PLATFORM WITH SIMS

Boston, Jan. 17.—Refusing an invitation to be present at Symphony hall on the evening of Feb. 1, when Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., retired, is to deliver an address, Mayor Curley today wrote to Telfair Minton, secretary of the Loyal Coalition, the organization sponsoring the meeting, that he had "no desire to sit on any platform with Admiral Sims, retired, whose best service to the American navy was his retirement from it."

TO ASK ABOLITION OF THE KU KLUX KLAN IN LOUISIANA

New Orleans, La., Jan. 17.—Governor Parker has decided to call a special session of the Louisiana legislature to take up the question of the abolition of the Ku Klux Klan in Louisiana, to impeach certain officials in Morehouse parish, and to dispose of some minor legislation, according to a story printed here today in the item.

Governor Parker's secretary, however, says the governor does not plan calling a special session in the near future.

KWANGEI TROOPS ARE STREAMING INTO CANTON

Canton, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Six thousand Kwangei troops, supporting Sun Yat-sen, marched into the city last night and this morning. Others still are streaming in from across the Beard river. The city is quiet, shops are closed and business is at a standstill.

"RED" DOWNEY REFUSED TO TELL WHO SHOT HIM

New York, Jan. 17.—"Red" Downey is in Roosevelt hospital and "his light are going out," but he refused to tell who shot him.

A taxicab cruised through upper Third avenue early today, two men ran into the street, stopped it, and informed the driver they had a sick friend who wanted to be taken home. They put him in the machine.

A half a mile was traversed. The passenger knocked on the window to attract the chauffeur's attention.

"Wait a minute," the passenger said. "My light are flickering. Don't take me home; take me to a hospital."

"All right," the chauffeur assented, and turned a corner.

Came the pounding again.

"Say," said the passenger. "The old lights are getting dimmer and dimmer. Thin they're going out. Better hurry."

The car speeded. At the hospital they found two bullet holes in the man, who was Downey. Police who had been seeking Downey to question him about a recent robbery came, and then Downey's mother and sisters. But he wouldn't tell them a thing.

"Everybody can go to thunder," he cried. "This is my business. If I croak it's all right. If I don't, I'll get the other guys."

The two men who halted the cab and placed Downey in it were found later and held pending investigation.

TESTIMONY IN THE GOOSE CREEK FLOGGING CASES

Houston, Tex., Jan. 17.—Important testimony in the Goose Creek flogging cases is believed to have been presented to the Harris county grand jury today, though only an inkling of what was going on in the jury room leaked out.

Sheriff Binford, little Bonnie Lee Harrison, daughter of the woman victim of the floggers, and R. A. Armand, the man victim, were questioned at length. The little Harrison girl identified Claude C. Buckley, arrested late Tuesday as one of the members of the masked party that took her mother from their home on the night of January 5.

"That one is the man," said the little girl, pointing to Buckley as he was brought before her.

The child was positive in her identification, she said she knew Buckley well and recognized him when he came in her mother's home on the night of the flogging.

Buckley denied all knowledge of the affair.

HONEY MIXTURE GOOD IN AUTOMOBILE RADIATORS

Storrs, Jan. 17.—Honey as a substitute for alcohol in keeping automobile radiators from freezing has been found highly satisfactory, according to L. B. Crandall, bee specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college. A 50 per cent. honey and water mixture was found best at temperatures down to 10 above zero, while a 60 per cent. mixture prevented freezing at zero.

Another advantage claimed for honey by Professor Crandall was that it would not rot rubber connections nor corrode metal with which it came in contact.

Gov. Smith Pardons Irish Agitator Larkin

Decides There is No Evidence That Larkin Ever Endeavored to Incite Violence or Lawlessness

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17.—James J. Larkin, the Irish agitator who has served two years of a five year prison term after conviction of a criminal anarchy charge, was pardoned by Governor Smith today.

The governor's action was a sequel to a hearing he gave January 9, when a delegation of Larkin's friends, including Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the former lord mayor of Cork, pleaded for clemency. In announcing his decision, Governor Smith issued a memorandum because in which he explained that the statute upon which Larkin was convicted defined criminal anarchy as the doctrine "that organized government should be overthrown by force or violence * * * * or by unlawful means." Larkin, he said, joined in issuing the manifesto of the left wing of the socialist party, which counselled a dictatorship of the proletariat, and that this change should be accomplished by strikes called to affect political action by the electorate. The governor declared that his present action "in no way involves the slightest agreement with this manifesto."

"There is no evidence," the governor wrote, "that Larkin ever endeavored to incite any specific act or violence or lawlessness. * * * Substantially his offense was nothing more than the issuance of a misguided opinion that in the remote future our system of government should be changed by a process abhorrent to our institutions.

"Stripped of its legalistic aspects, this, to my mind, is a political case where a man has been punished for a statement of his beliefs. From the legal point of view, it is a case where a man has received, during the period of popular excitement following the close of the war, so severe a sentence for a crime involving no moral turpitude. He already has served over two years in prison. This in my judgment, fully expiates his offense. The state of New York does not ask vengeance and the ends of justice have been amply met."

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 17.—James J. Larkin, pardoned by Governor Smith, was released from Sing Sing prison late today. He said he was thankful to be liberated.

Sympathy for France At Civic Conference

Shown in Debate at Session of Committee of 100 Appointed by Alton B. Parker.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Sharp debate over participation by the United States in present European affairs developed at this afternoon's session of the committee of one hundred on international relations appointed by Alton B. Parker of New York, as president of the National Civic Federation. Two resolutions designed to express the conference's attitude on the question were referred for recommendation to the executive committee, which began a two day meeting today, is comprised of representatives of 53 national organizations and was addressed at the opening session by Elihu Root and a number of other prominent persons.

Daniel J. Tobin, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, introduced one of the participation resolutions, asking the government to do everything in its power to prevent war in Europe between countries now in disagreement. This aroused debate on the French occupation of the Ruhr and was opposed by several as tending to embarrass France.

Expressions of sympathy for France in its invasion of the Ruhr were heard throughout the discussions. Edgar A. Bancroft, of Chicago, in opposing the resolution of Mr. Tobin, said he believed France was within its rights and he thought it the duty of "our government to keep out with advice until ready to co-operate."

Professor Jeremiah W. Jencks, of New York university, said he believed the resolution unfortunate in that France might misinterpret the facts. Hoke Smith, former senator from Georgia, said he believed responsibility for the European situation rested upon the United States and Mr. Tobin, defending his resolution, declared he wanted to prevent another "slaughter of the workers of all nations."

The other resolution dealing with the question was introduced by the Rev. Clarence H. Wilson, of Glenridge, N. J., and asked that the committee decrale "the time has come when our government might participate in councils of Europe in order that we might exert our proper influence in securing the ends of justice by amicable agreement."

Henry L. Smith, president of the Washington and Lee university, in seconding this resolution, advocated entry of the United States into European affairs, declaring this country "inhumane, if it did not attempt to relieve the suffering people of Europe."

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking at the morning session, urged support of France and defended that nation in its movement into Germany.

Education of the voters and less loose talk by men in public life relative to foreign affairs was urged by Mr. Root. The other speakers included Mrs. Horace M. Towner, representing the General Federation of Women's clubs; Colonel Harry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., and J. A. Chandler, president of William and Mary college. All advocated greater attention in schools and by voters to questions of foreign affairs.

TO CHARGE JURY IN THE HERRIN CASE TODAY

Marion, Ills., Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—All argument at the trial of five men charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman, one of the victims of the Herrin riots, ended suddenly today when Angus W. Kerr, chief counsel, announced that the defense waived its right to address the jury.

With this unexpected announcement Judge D. T. Hartwell immediately adjourned court until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to permit him to prepare instructions to the jury.

The entire morning session was taken up with the argument of Delos Duty, state's attorney, who discussed the evidence and declared that the state had proved all of the defendants guilty beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt. In closing, he declared:

"Swift and retributive justice should fall upon these defendants and it is up to you to see that it does. In the words of the Scripture, 'Choose Yea which Yea shall serve' and I pray you will choose right."

When Mr. Duty finished, Mr. Kerr made his announcement regarding the waiving by the defense of its right to argument, later issuing a statement in which he declared that no further argument was necessary to prove the complete innocence of all the defendants.

Before departing for Chicago early tonight, Attorney General Brundage declared that the case had been one of the most difficult to prepare he had ever encountered because of the unwillingness of witnesses to testify.

"Despite the intimidation of witnesses and the environment, the state presented every particle of its testimony and did it wonderfully well," he added.

Other cases growing out of the riots will be brought to trial as early as possible.

TO IMMEDIATLY PENALIZE GERMANY FOR DEFAULT IN DELIVERY OF TIMBER

French, Belgian and Italian Governments Have Given the Order to at Once Commence Work on German State Forests on the Left Bank of the Rhine—Are Carrying Out Decision of the Reparations Commission of December 26—Berlin Authorities Are Continuing Their Policy of Passive Resistance to the Franco-Belgian Occupation of the Ruhr—Washington Does Not Take an Encouraging View of Developments.

Paris, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—The French, Belgian and Italian governments today gave the order immediately to commence working the state forests on the left bank of the Rhine as penalty for Germany's default in the delivery of timber, as established by the decision of the reparation commission on December 26.

WASHINGTON DOES NOT TAKE ENCOURAGING VIEW

Washington, Jan. 17.—Italian efforts toward modification of reparations enforcement measures in Germany are being watched by officials here with deepest interest. It was indicated today that while the United States government has no part, direct or indirect, in the matter and little official information, it was hopeful that Premier Mussolini would find a means of accomplishing the purposes with which press advices have credited him.

Even before the council of premiers met in Paris only to disagree, Secretary Hughes made it plain both in public addresses and in diplomatic exchanges with Ambassador Jusserand here that the American government was very anxious that the allied powers should themselves find a solution to the reparations problem. It was only the very plain indications of an approaching disagreement that prompted Mr. Hughes to put forward his suggestion that financial authorities be called in to advise with the governments.

The Washington government was evidently reluctant to interefere in any way. The financial commission plan was presented only as a last resort suggestion to avert a rupture. It is, therefore, not surprising that any new move within the allied group to restore harmony and relieve world anxiety is welcomed in Washington.

Nothing has reached the Washington government, so far as known, to indicate any change in the purpose of the Berlin authorities to continue the policy of passive resistance to the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr. That this policy has created a situation which involves the French authorities in new difficulties with every hour is not doubted.

Official American advices as to the situation in the Ruhr region since the troops entered are not made public. They are strictly confidential. The attitude of officials familiar with the nature of these reports, however, leads to the conclusion that American observers who have been on the ground or at nearby capitals do take an encouraging view.

In some quarters, it has been said that a natural result of the Ruhr occupation would be not alone to cut down output of the German mines and mills but to force the cost of living upward for German inhabitants. Press advices from Essen and elsewhere are viewed as confirming this expectation.

It was learned today, in connection with the clearing up of the financier standing which at first surrounded the activities of Roland W. Boyden, American observer on the reparations commission, that the state department had transmitted to Mr. Boyden in Paris a copy of the explanatory statement issued by Secretary Hughes last night. It was desired that Mr. Boyden be completely informed.

Presumably American ambassadors in Europe all have been similarly advised and are able to inform the governments to which they are accredited in such fashion as to prevent any further misunderstanding of the American position.

A report from Paris that Mr. Hughes had despatched a note on the subject to Premier Poincare was believed at the state department to have originated from the cabled press statement. The despatch apparently came from that document. In any case, it was said officially, no note or other communication of the kind has been sent to the Paris government.

GERMANS ARE PLACING HOPE IN UNITED STATES

Essen, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Within the industrial and mining circles of the Ruhr hope is quietly cherished that some third power will initiate steps toward intermediation between Germany and France in order to break the deadlock over coal deliveries, which has been created by the occupation. This was learned in reliable German quarters today.

The possibility of such action by England, it was stated, is regarded out of the question for the time being, owing to Anglo-French political connections; hence attention is increasingly directed toward America. Apparently hope springs eternal in the German breast, and, according to certain German authorities, there is reason to believe that a compromise could be effected should the United States become mediator.

The suggestion is advanced that possibly in this manner the French could be induced to consider withdraw of their troops, while the German government might retract its prohibition of all deliveries. It was pointed out, however, that the time may not be considered ripe for such mediation by outside powers in a position to act; yet the costs and consequences of the occupation are already so great as to make intervention all the more welcome, it is declared, were it to come quickly, at least on the part of a majority of the owners of the Ruhr mines and industries.

As the situation stood tonight the occupying forces were virtually marking time, awaiting application of further penalties, in view of their failure to resume deliveries this morning as ordered. The allied representatives at Essen continued silent as to what steps were under consideration.

The German federal coal commissar put the mine owner rather between the frying-pan and hte fire by supplementing his recent deliveries prohibition with an announcement that any violation of it would be dealt with under German law, which permits the imposing of a year's imprisonment.

The owners obviously do not require the commissar's additional instructions, since they stoutly adhere to their refusal to deliver coal against his orders.

An investigation revealed that no shipments went forward for France or Belgium today. It was reported that normal traffic prevailed and that the usual number of cars were ordered and provided; also that a number of trains, even with coal cargoes, departed, destined for points outside France and Belgium.

The control of railway traffic announced yesterday was raised today after a brief period. The Germans noted that even in case an attempt was made to force trains to carry out repafations coal, the German authorities were empowered to forbid their movement.

The Germans have stopped returning empty barges of the Rhine to the Ruhr area, according to a statement of the control commission, which announces that proper measures therefore will be taken to provide the necessary coal transport facilities. This is interpreted as meaning that all barges at present along the Rhine in this territory will be seized.

The Communist newspaper Ruhr Echo today published an appeal to the French soldiers and the workers of all countries, signed by the executive committee of the communists' internationale and the directorate of the Red workers internationale.

It pictured the danger of a new war in which workers would be sacrificed in the interests of the capitalists. The plea was directed especially to the soldiers. It urged them to prevent the Poincare government from starting a new flame of war. An appeal was made to the soldiers to keep "your worker brothers" from being trod under foot for the sake of the Ruhr speculators.

A late report from Dortmund indicates that there have been no new troop movements there, and that Hamm and Keseld have not yet been occupied.

ITALY HAS MADE NO PROPOSAL TO MEDIATE

Rome, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Reports from London of an offer by Italy to mediate between France and Germany on the reparations question were declared authoritatively today to have no foundation. The foreign ministry, it was stated had not announced, as reported, that Italy had offered her mediation.

Italy has, however, repeatedly suggested that, in taking steps to obtain reparations, no recourse be mad to military measures, and even favored a civilian as the head of the mission sent into the Ruhr instead of a military man.

Italy has persistently maintained that it would be easier to obtain reparations from Germany through persuasion and assistance helping her economically, than through violence.

The Giornale D'Italia today says the French action in the Ruhr constitutes a violation of foreign territory in time of peace. France's action, it says, is so grave that it may provoke the most serious consequences for Europe.

FIRST SHUT-DOWN IN RHUR INDUSTRIAL PLANT

Kaiserberg, Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—The first shutdown of a large industrial plant in the Ruhr since the Franco-Belgian occupation occurred today in this town, lying between Essen and Gelsenkirchen, when the Kellerman Locomotive Works, employing some 300, ceased operation. The plant had been working on a nine-hour day schedule, but the workmen informed the management that in view of the French ruling set forth in General Degoutte's proclamation that the eight-hour day must be respected they had decided to work only that number of hours but insisted upon nine hours' pay. Thereupon the Kellerman management closed down the plant.

The workmen have asked the French to intervene and force the management to grant the men's demands.

Wilfred A. Gagnon of No. 31 High street has brought civil suit for damages of $1,000 against August Anderson of Columbia. It is alleged in the complaint that Gagnon was badly injured at noon Friday, November 3, when he was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Mr. Anderson, on Main street opposite the foot of High street, this city, and that the bicycle which Gagnon was riding was demolished and that Gagnon suffered severe injuries to his face, head, arms, leg and back and that his nervous system was strained.

It is also alleged in the complaint that the accident was due to careless and negligent operation of the automobile on the part of Anderson and that the complainant spent the greater part of three weeks as a patient in St. Joseph's hospital as the result of the accident.

At the time the accident took place Anderson was arrested on the charge of reckless driving and given a hearing in the local police court Monday, November 27. When asked to plead Anderson said, "I won't say that I was driving recklessly though my car struck the bicycle and injured the young man." A plea of not guilty was entered for the accused by the court.

At the close of the hearing Judge Foss stated that in his opinion there was no intent on the part of Anderson to be reckless at the time although he was taking such chances as many automobilists take in trying to pass another or other cars. A fine of $25 and costs with $15 of the fine remitted, was imposed, making a total assessment of $16.75. The suit for damages brought by Gagnon followed. The case is returnable before the next term of the Windham county superior court next May.

The work of enumerating has been completed by the personal tax enumerators for the town of Windham who were appointed by the board of selectmen early in November and they have turned in their reports to Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. This is the second time that the names of women between the ages of 21 and 60 have been enumerated with those of the men between the ages of 18 and 60 years of age. About 6809 names appear on the reports, something like 200 less than last year.

Of the men 284 were of ages 18, 19 and 20, not liable to the payment of the tax. The figures show a total of 569 persons exempt and the number of men between the ages of 18 and 45 years liable for military duty 2460.

The enumerators were: First ward, Conrad Dubeau; second ward, Anthony McKenna; third war, James Berard; fourth ward, Edmond R. Portelance; Windhams, Miss Elizabeth Anderson.

The reasons for exemptions were given to the enmerators as follows: Ex-World war veterans and army, 269, ex-naval, 40; Spanish war veterans, 25; students on college, 40; active army 1; active navy, 7; active firemen, 7; active militia, 20; ex-firemen 83; and ex-militia, 47.

Of the total number of 2460 men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, subject for military duty who are exempt from duty, according to law, the figures show 58 as follows: Disability and physical defect 12, active service in the army and navy, 5; govt. office employes 24; and number already enlisted in state militia 24.

JEWETT CITY

The annual borough meeting was held on Monday evening at which the annual reports were read and accepted. It was voted to lay a ten mill tax, an increase of two mills. The treasurer's report showed the expenditures by departments to be $37,653.46. The receipts to be $38,439.30, leaving a balance in the treasury of $785.84. The borough debt less cash in the treasury and amounts due from collectors and others is $128,682.60. Health Officer Dr. G. H. Jennings who has served in that capacity for twenty-seven years gave his report, which was in part as follows:

Approximate expenditures for the last fiscal year for the following: Control of communicable diseases, $45; school inspection, $6; sanitary inspection, $14; all other (unclassified) $17.80. Total expended for all health work including health officer compensation and excluding garbage and school inspection, and excluding influenza, $76.80. Town pays annually to state institutions for care of inmate $1,024.30; from tuberculosis fund $98.80.

Communicable Diseases: Cases of the following occurred during the year: Diphtheria, 2; measles, 8; mumps, 2; tuberculosis, 5; whooping cough, 18; gonorrhoea, 3; pneumonia, lobar, 3; scarlet fever, 7; influenza, 140.

Physicians report cases promptly. Nearest isolation hospital is Norwich. Vaccination in the schools is not enforced.

Influenza was epidemic in February and March. A census of the school children with regard to vaccination, taken in June, showed that only 47 per cent of those in the public school were protected, in the parochial school only $2.62 per cent were so protected. After the census was taken 28 children were vaccinated, slightly raising the per cent. Smallpox has been epidemic in some parts of the state this year; it has been in some parts of the state every year since 1900. It can only be eliminated by general vaccination. When all are protected by recent vaccination, smallpox disappears, there is no soil for it to grow on. As vaccination protects from smallpox, so immunization from diphtheria by toxin-anti-toxin is of great value. The state board of health urges the general use of this means of abolishing this dreaded disease. All children over one year of age should be so protected. This prophylactic is given in three doses from five to seven days apart. Nearly all who use this are immune from diphtheria.

Attention is given to the sanitary condition of schools annually and when teachers notify; but no special campaign has been undertaken to improve general sanitary conditions.

Water, Milk and Food: Public water supply in nearly all the borough; the water has been analyzed by the water company and the watersheds have been inspected. The wells number about 30 and their condition in general is good.

The approximate number of quarts of milk sold daily in town is 900. Milk comes from farms located outside of borough. No milk inspection system.

School Inspection: School inspection is under the direction of the health officer; parochial schools are included. In parochial schools are 200 pupils.

Child Hygiene: One school nurse has been employed.

Public Health Nursing: In the way of public health nurses the borough is served by a district nurse in addition to corporation nurses. A clinic was started by local Red Cross chapter, for pulmonary tuberculosis and is to be continued.

Clinic held by Dr. Campbell, of the Norwich sanatorium.

On our files are the names of two trained nurses who would be willing to care for communicable disease.

Administration: The records of our office are up to date. Efforts are made to keep the public informed as to the activities and importance of our office.

The state department of health might possibly assist.

MORE TESTIMONY ABOUT THE BLACK-HOODED MOB

Bastrop, La., Jan. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Threatening letters and the statement of William Higginbotham, farmer, that Dr. B. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge, had learned of an alleged plot to kill him, formed the basis of today's tetimony at the inquiry being conducted by state's attorneys into masked and hooded band operations in Morehouse and the kidnapping and slaying of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richard, Mer Rouge citizens.

Higginbotham, explaining the presence of "Newt" Gray at his home the night Daniel and Richard were taken prisoner by a black hooded mob, declared he was at the Higginbotham farm in the role of protector because of a leter received earlier in the day warning Higginbotham to "tend to your own business."

Gray was on the stand at the opening of the day's session but was temporarily excused to consult with his attorneys when the question was raised as to whether he could be forced to testify in view of a newspaper publication which his counsel interpreted to indicate he would be made defendant in criminal proceedings.

The letter sighed "not your friend" was placed in the record. It read:

"Why don't you ten to your own business. It is no matter to you about our negro women or making whiskey. We intend to do as we please and your bunch can't stop us. We know you and we are going to stop you. Take this for what it is worth and get close together. You can guess the rest."

"Who did you have in mind as to the writer of the letter?" Higginbotham was asked.

"I think it was those fellows around Mer Rouge. Watt Daniel and Will Braddock had the reputation of being whiskey makers and sellers and also James Norsworthy, but Norsworthy had said he had quit making it."

Dr. McKoin, Higginbotham said, told him he had heard Leon Daniel, brother of Watt, had said the latter had planned to kill him. An attempt to assassinate McKoin, now charged with murder, is alleged to have been made preceding the disappearance of Daniel and Richards.

Higginbotham declared himself a member of the Parish branch of the Ku Klux Klan and brough out it was his understanding that black hoods and robes were part of the Ku Klux Klan regalia. He asserted, however, that he did not have the black disguise.

Higginbotham gave a vivid description of the hold-up on the Mer Rouge-Bastrop highway when the two men were kidnapped August 24, though he could name none of the black hooded men who took part.

AMERICAN DOLLAR NOW EQUALS 20,000 GERMAN MARKS

New York, Jan. 17 (By the A. P.).—It took just $50 in United States money today to become a millionaire in German marks. Theoretically, the American dollar could buy 20,000 marks in the foreign exchange market, but practically little or no business was transacted in less than a million share lots. At pre-war prices, 20,000 German marks would have been worth $4,760.

Today's quotation for the mark, which was technically given as .005 cents, represents an extreme low record. The pre-war price of the mark was 23.8 cents each.

Local bankers report that little new German commercial business is being transacted in marks. German exporting and importing firms have adopted foreign currencies as a medium of exchange months ago. Transactions in marks now largely represent old obligations and maturities payable in that currency.

Speculation has been very light in recent weeks, although last year, when the international bankers' committee met to devise means of stabilizing the mark, speculative transactions assumed gigantic proportions.

Most of the banks now decline to do business in less than million share lots and some even refuse orders to buy or sell that amount because the business is unprofitable.

International bankers declare that it is a waste of energy to attempt to predict what will happen to the mark. Measures which would have helped to stabilize the mark months ago, they said, would not be effective now, while corrective remedies that could be applied now might be useless in two or three months from now if the depreciation is continued. Until the German government takes some action to balance its budget and stop the inflation of marks, circulation of which has now passed the trillion mark, international financiers assert that prophesies are valueless.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

It would seem, if the movies' conception is true, that the lives of prima donnas are fully as hectic as those of the stars of the screen themselves. Certainly Clara Kimball Young's newest—and to our mind most excellent—photoplay, "Enter Madame," holds one breathless with the depiction of the vicissitudes of the vocal heroine.

One can understand, after witnessing this Metro picture at the Breed theatre last evening, why the play upon which it was founded (written by Gilda Varesi and Dolly Byrne) packed New York theatres for a stretch of forty-five weeks. The story is novel, splendidly told and engrossing from beginning to end; and Miss Young's art has never been so exacingly tested and triumphant.

Fully up to the standard of the other elements in this Harry Garson production is the cast, in which Elliott Dexter and Louise Dresser are prominent. Frank Beresford's scenario is one that combines feeling with dramatic decisiveness; and Wallace Worsley's direction impeccable. The photography is accredited to, and a credit to L. William O'Connell.

"Enter Madame" will be the feature attraction at the Breed theatre again today and for the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in "Very Truly Yours." Movie Chats will complete the bill.

Mary Carr Coming in Wm. Fox's "Silver Wings."

William Fox's super-production, "Silver Wings," featuring Mary Carr, will be shown for the first time in Norwich at the Breed theatre, starting Sunday. According to advices from the William Fox offices in New York city, this feature production shows Mary Carr in afar better characterization than in the famous "Over the Hill."

Mary Carr's role is that of a mother and a devoted wife who assumes, upon the death of her husband, the care of a profitable business that he had built as well as the care of two boys and a daughter. One son is a quiet unassuming chap and the other a lazy lad who permits himself to become the victim of social parasites and bogus business men.

The daughter marries for love much against the wishes of her proud brother. The young son who has toiled diligently in his father's factory is forced to run away because of his brother's crime which has been fastened upon him. The mother—Mary Carr—watches two of her children depart and then discovers that this promising son on whom she has showered so much affection, is himself accused of forgery. He too, absconds, but his waywardness forces his mother into bankruptcy. After the mother has drunken deep the dregs of poverty the family is brought together by curious twists of fate and once again happiness enters into the portals of their lives.

Grace Sage, Famous Dramatist to Appear at Community House.

On Tuesday evening, January 23rd, Grace Sage, the famous reader of plays will appear in the Community house on Church street, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

To present a programme as Miss Sage does, so that an audience will sit absorbed and spell-bound watching the imagined scene, requires art of a very high order. Her appeal is made to the creative imagination of an audience. So true is her conception of what a play means and so masterful is her dramatic ability that she is able to get this meaning into the minds and hearts of her hearers. Grace Sage is a true exponent of a beautiful art—an art that will ever increase in popular favor.

Miss Sage will be assisted by Miss Sadie Driscoll, soprano, and Henry La Fontaine, tenor, and the Ladies' of Columbus orchestra will render selections during the evening. Miss Mary Bresnan will be the pianist.

Tickets for this delightful entertainment are on sale at The Cranston Co., on Broadway. Tickets $1, tax exempt.

The Plaut-Cadden Co. will furnish the piano.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At The Broadway.

For the last half of this week the management has again arranged a fine programme of B. F. Keith vaudeville and pictures.

The vaudevidde consists of the Four Miners, called vaudeville's greatest singing quartette. Reiff Bros. in a singing, dancing and comedy combination, Lew Wilis, comedian par excellence. Howard and Irwin in comedy, songs and steps, and Cornell, Leona and Zippy in variety a-la-carte.

It is a relief to see an honest-to-goodness melodrama, with all the suspense and thrills in abundance, mingled with romance and comedy that bring back the olden days when we were young. "The Curse of Drink," is a 100 per cent. entertainment, and with a cast including such five supreme stars as Harry Morey, Edmund Breese, Marguerite Clayton, George Fawcett and Miriam Batista, the showing of this feature at the Broadway theatre is an event in local filmdom.

Expert Fencers Show Their Skill in Big Photoplay.

Shakespeare's line in Romeo and Juliet—"He jests at scars that never felt a wound," often prompts inexperienced persons to sneer at the picture sword plays. But the fact that expert swordsmen are utilizing the filming of sword duel scenes in Cosmopolitan's big, spectacular production of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," a Paramount picture starring Marion Davies, which comes to the Broadway theatre next Sunday night amply prove that even these make-believe duels often are not bloodless. During the filming of these scenes a surgeon was kept in constant attendance at the Cosmopolitan studio, and split thumbs and lacerated hands were treated nearly every day. Only the fact that most of the swordsmen were experts prevented the casualties in the melees from being serious.

James Murray, fencing master at the New York Athletic club, was engaged to supervise these scenes in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Mr. Murray declares that in his thirty years' experience as a swordsman in Europe and this country he never saw such strenuous assaults at arms.

Among the expert swordsmen engaged in these scenes were two German barons, one Italian and one French count, all of them with records as duelists. Guy Coombs used to teach fencing at the Academy of Dramatic Arts, while Forest Stanley and Ernest Glendinning are experts with the foils.

The surprise of the picture, however, is the prowess with the small sword displayed by Marion Davis in the stellar role of Princess Mary Tudor. Disbuised as a boy in the tavern scene she crosses blades with the swash-bucketing adventurer, and starts the melee which involves the whole company in a free-for-all sword fight.

"Miss Davies is one of the best fencers for a woman that I have ever seen," declares Maitre d'armes Murray, "and she went into this assault at arms with all the dash and daring of the character which she assumed."

Robert Louis Stevenson's Superb Story is Splendidly Picturized. Now at the Strand.

The absorbing and sympathetic story of how Robert Herrick was mired in the swamps of civilization and of how he finally struggled back to firm ground is the theme of "Ebb Tide," a picturization of Robert Louis Stevenson's famous story, which will be shown at the Strand theatre today. Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan are the featured players.

A young man of good birth and too careful rearing—he was never allowed to face responsibility—Robert Herrick becomes a drifter and is stranded on the beach of a South Sea island. Here he meets two other derelicts, a discredited but likeable master mariner named Davis and a shady, vile-mouthed London clerk called Hulsh. The three are drawn together by the bonds of hunger and exile and they barely exist until a chance offers to take out a smallpox ship.

The voyage of this schooner with its cargo of champagne and its native crew tries the souls of the three derelicts, and each faces the crisis in a different way. When food runs low they sight a mysterious island, where they found a remarkable white man named Attwater, who lives there with his daughter and a few natives. For years Attwater has taken pearls from the lagoon, and this treasure offers a new temptation to the three adventurers. Herrick is ensnared against his will, but Attwater cleverly defeats Davis and Hulsh and wins over Herrick to the side of honor.

Naturally there is a girl who loves Herrick and her devotion has much to do with snatching Herrick from "the ebb tide in man's affairs."

The photoplay is excellent, and the scenes at Attwater's island are of the most gripping character. An encounter with a devil fish in twenty feet of water is one of the big thrills of the picture.

The Christie comedy, "Be Yourself," is a sure fire comedy and a Selznick News completes the bill.

Some men have to sit down and think in order to ascertain where they stand.

TENTATIVE ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR INTERNATIONAL TRACK MEET

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 17.—Tentative arrangements for an international track meet in England next summer between combined Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge teams were announced today by "Bill" Bingham, former Harvard track coach, on his return from a business trip abroad to which plans for the international event were incidental. The arrangements are subject to the approval of the athletic authorities of the two American universities.

The list of events for the proposed meet has been increased to 12 from the 10 contested in previous international competitions. The hammer throw has been dropped, and the 220 yard dash, the 220 yard hurdles and the pole vault added. The meet would be held July 24 or July 31 at Queen's club, London, or in a stadium now being built in the vicinity of London.

The rules tentatively agreed upon provide that each man finishing first in an event would count a point for his team. In case of a tie, contestants reaching second would be taken into account.

Bingham said he would urge the Harvard authorities to permit freshmen to compete in this year's meet, in reference to the wishes of Oxford and Cambridge who permitted freshmen to take part in the international competition held here two years ago, but Harvard maintained the rule eliminates first-year men, fearing that the question of eligibility might arise.

The situation has brought the [illegible] Sunday baseball [illegible] and gives [illegible] pro and con bearing in the [illegible] a referendum it has received [illegible] those who have already [illegible] upon what is now being sought. Probably there are more who have opposed it. Opposition at [illegible] prevailed and to a great [illegible] has gained its support from the church organizations of the state. If that opposition no longer exists, or if it exists only to a small extent, those who seek to profit from Sunday sports are not going to encounter very much opposition. Certainly they have reason to feel that they are breaking down the opposition when there is a division of opinion in the federation's committee, and every wedge that is driven into the ranks of the opponents advances the prospects of victory.

Getting the opinion of 50,000 church people of Connecticut may not represent the attitude of Connecticut any better than does the divided opinion of the committee. It should be possible, however, to have it demonstrated thereby just how extensively the sentiment exists among church members for making legal professional Sunday sports. Some idea can be gained of the number represented by the champions of the opposing views in the federation's committee.

THE BOYDEN INCIDENT.

The United States has no member of the reparation commission. It has, however, an observer with that commission that it may be kept in touch with what is going on. What such an observer may have to say, if in fact he says anything, should depend upon the instructions that he gets from this government. It is impossible to look upon any statement that he may make as representative of this government unless it was instigated by or has the approval of Uncle Sam.

R. W. Boyden, the observer for this country, saw fit to give his views to the commission concerning Germany, its defaults, the Versailles treaty and its impossibilities. From what has been learned since that statement was made he did not speak at the direction of this government. His views did not have the approval of this government, and even though he is the observer attached to the commission, it is impossible to regard what he said as being anything else than his own personal opinions.

The trouble that has developed as the result of the expression of his views, and what might be expected from statements of that character which have not the endorsement of the government a speaker represents unofficially, is that what he had to say was interpreted as being the voice of the United States, or there have been those who have been endeavoring to present it in such a light.

Not only does Observer Boyden declare that they are his own views, but Secretary Hughes declares that he had no knowledge of the Boyden ideas and certainly did not direct him to present them.

The situation caused attention because the Boyden views seemed to stand for something they were not. The situation is one that ought not to have arisen. Either Mr. Boyden failed to make his position clear as not speaking for this government, or else he was badly reported on that point.

ARKANSAS HELPLESSNESS.

Too frequently are we given cause for deploring lawlessness in various forms at different points throughout the country. There appears to be a recognition that certain conditions ought to be tolerated no longer, but unfortunately there isn't manifested a desire to do it in a lawful manner.

Out in Arkansas at the present time there is a mob of several hundred engaged in overcoming conditions which have contributed to defy railed transportation and destruction and destruction of property over a period of many months. They have the situation has gotten to the point where strong arm methods are justified and as might be expected under the circumstances the governor before that he has troops available to protect the destruction of life and property.

There aren't many instances where a more complete breakdown of state government has been manifested. Jurisdiction to respect law and the rights of others on the part of certain ones has displayed such a weakness that others have considered it necessary to take a hand, and they are disposed to go as far in their rule by mob edict as did those upon whom they are inflicting the penalty. It is a case of giving those considered responsible for the troubles accruing from the strike a taste of their own medicine, but it is of course just as great a disregard for law and order.

Arkansas stands before the country as an example of what can be expected when lack of respect for the law gets to the point where those who are supposed to enforce it are powerless. It is not only a weakness but a deplorable sad state of affairs, and when a governor says has no means of seeing that the law is respected he might almost as well serve notice that lawlessness can run riot, or that the mob is the real authority. If there was as strong a support of the law in Arkansas as there seems to be of the mob the situation would not exist. Will conditions there arouse Arkansas to its duty? The governor's statement is containing a call for action.

STEADY EMPLOYMENT.

In connection with the coal situation the fact finding commission indicates that steady employment would be beneficial, inasmuch as many of the employes have work but about two-thirds of the year. It also points out that there is overdevelopment of mines and more miners than are needed, making the situation such that a smaller number of workmen engaged, regularly produce a larger amount of coal.

The [illegible] various conditions which contribute to this situation, such as demand, distribution, labor troubles, encouragement to open new mines which are not needed and the extensive list of holidays observed in the mine fields.

Whether these holidays are kept because certain layoffs are to be expected or because there is an unwillingness to participate in steady work may be discussed later. If steady work is one of the solutions for the problem it is something that must be participated in by the employe as well as the employer.

Even though the country, especially this section, is suffering from the lack of a proper amount of coal 18,500 men have been involved in suspended operations for a period of 30 days, ending last month. Thousands of others have ceased work for varying periods because a certain man was not discharged, because union carpenters didn't join the miners' union, because four men were suspended for loading dirty coal and other similar troubles which ought not to have been allowed to interfere with the production of coal. That attitude and the holiday fever must be overcome if steady employment is to be brought about.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

From all indications Germany could have prevented that first bloodshed had it so desired.

The man on the corner says: Even the radio boots can be seen and heard for a long distance.

Those without a roof may be unfortunate, but so are those who have a roof that leaks and leaks and leaks.

These are days of speed, but moving from Maine weather one day to that of Palm Beach the next is too much of a good thing.

What the consumer would like to know from the commission is about how many hods of coal he can figure on for the rest of the winter.

Warnings against swindlers cannot come too often. It amounts to nothing to wait until it is all over and then say "I could have told you so."

Because the French have moved in Ruhr the Germans think the treaty of Versailles has been violated. France hasn't, however, termed it a scrap of paper.

The decision of Secretary Hughes to attend Pan-American conference and visit several South American cities will do much to further improve the friendship of the nations.

LAMB STEW

"Where are you and your gorgeous coat going to dine to-night?" inquired the stenographer, addressing the comely young woman who was private secretary to the important personage in the front office.

"Don't mention 'coat' to me groaned the comely young woman as she slipped into the aforesaid gorgeous garment, and then glanced at her reflection in the office mirror to admire the effect. Whenever I look at this coat I think of lamb stew!"

"For goodness' sake!" ejaculated the stenographer. "What has lamb stew to do with that beautiful coat?"

"Just this. When I woke up to the fact that my last year's coat looked decidedly shabby, I made up my mind that I was going to spend just so much and no more for a new one. I have been hearing so much about this 'budget system' for busy housewives and poor working girls that I resolved to try it out. It took me three evenings to frame a budget that seemed satisfactory to me.

"I set aside so much for meals, so much for clothes and so on. And of course every week a certain sum for the bank. In this way you always keep within your income and your bank account grows larger and larger and you never have to worry about the proverbial 'rainy day.'"

"That's an awful good idea," approved the stenographer.

"It did look perfectly splendid on paper," admitted the comely young woman. "Beginning some months ago, I set aside a sum every week for my new coat, and last week I reached the amount I had decided to spend for it. But when I took this coat money and attempted to buy a coat with it, somehow the coats within my financial reach were simply impossible as to style or quality, while those I coveted were also impossible—financially—if I kept to my schedule.

"I tramped around to all the downtown stores during the noon hour and did the neighboring stores in the evening. I began to realize that a 'budget' coat would never do for me. Finally one noon I went back to Stingem's. The same saleslady upon whom I had firmly impressed the fact that I would spend just so much and no more upon a coat advanced toward me with great dignity. When she recognized me, she surveyed me coldly. Without waiting for me to speak, she announced, 'We have nothing new to-day—not cheap, at least.'

"'Show me something good,' I answered. She looked at me with new interest.

"'Well,' sighed the comely young woman, 'she brought out a lot of expensive coats that I had no business looking at, and succeeded in selling me this one.'

"Its certainly scrumptious," said the stenographer. "But the lamb stew?"

"I'm coming to that," replied the comely young woman. "You see I paid so much more for the coat than I had intended that I simply had to take from the money I had put aside for meals and other overhead expenses, and the bank money, too, and add it to the budget price of the coat. I have just enough left till next pay day by limiting myself to 25 cents for my dinners, not to mention 10-cent breakfasts and skipping lunches once in a while in order to be able occasionally to tip the waitress."

"What kind of dinner can you get for 25 cents?"

"I didn't say you could get a dinner. But you can get lamb stew. I found a little place on a side street where a quarter of a dollar just covers the price of a lamb stew without any of the trimmings. And," tragically, "I've been eating lamb stew for days and days, until I'd be ashamed to look a lamb in the face!"

"Well, if I could have a coat like yours I'd be willing to eat any old kind of stew every day in the year. But why don't you write to your folks in Slu Center and get a little help from them?" suggested the stenographer.

"I should say not!" declared the comely young woman, emphatically. "Instead of money I'd get a lengthy lecture for being so wickedly extravagant. As for lamb stew I've eaten it for the last time I'll get a sandwich to-night. Then next week when I get my pay check I'm going on a wild orgy of two-inch-thick steak French fried potatoes and lemon cream pie!"

As the comely young woman stepped out into the street she almost collided with a tall, thin young man.

"Why, hello there!" he exclaimed, delighted, as he extended his hand. "How's everything? You look like a million dollars!" eying the gorgeous coat.

"I'm awfully glad to see you, too" she replied. "Where have you been all this time?"

"Been out of work and looking for a job for two months. Landed one three days ago. By the way, to-day was pay day and they gave me my money for the three days I worked. So I can invite you to dinner—where would you like to eat?"

The comely young woman thought of the two-inch-thick steak with French fried potatoes and lemon cream pie and decided to accept. Then she thought of his long hunt for a job and the three days' pay in his pocket and decided to decline. Suddenly she smiled.

"I'll be awfully glad to eat with you. And I know a place where they serve the nicest lamb stew!"—Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Fanny Osbourne, Wife of Robert Louis Stevenson.

A woman considerably older than himself, a divorcee and mother of two children, but having withal presence that combination of virtues needed to charm the young writer, Fanny Osbourne, the American wife of Robert Louis Stevenson, is largely responsible for some of the best of the Scotchman's work.

They met first at "Siron's," a sort of club for artists at Barbizon, on the French Riviera, where Stevenson was living with his cousin, Bob. Once, returning after a three-day tramp through the woods, the boys found installed in the house a woman, and as if that were not bad enough, an American woman. With her were her son and daughter. At first the young writer, already marked by the hectic flush of tuberculosis, was frantic with fear that the woman would spoil the boy life at "Siron's." Soon, however, he found her so charming, well-educated and understanding that he welcomed her to the inner circle. Then, too, she was an artist, which helped.

Shortly thereafter he fell deeply in love with her, and when cousin Bob returned to Edinburgh he remained at Barbizon to be near Mrs. Osbourne. Three months later she sailed for America, and Robert Louis went home, to the great relief of his parents. Their satisfaction was short-lived, however, for one day the elder Stevenson received a letter mailed at the Glasgow dock, announcing his son's departure for America. He was selling because he had word that Mrs. Osbourne was very ill. Half a world apart, but she needed him and he went.

Robert Louis lost no time in reaching Mrs. Osbourne's home in San Francisco. Here he found her much improved in health, mostly as a result of the knowledge of his coming. She had in the interval obtained her divorce. They were married on May 19, 1880, and lived together in complete happiness for 16 years. Having all the qualities of industry and practical [illegible] that her husband lacked, plus the perfect understanding of the artist, Fanny Osbourne was the ideal mate for Stevenson. About her he wrote:

"Teacher, pupil, comrade, wife,
A fellow farer true through life,
Heart whole and soul free,
The august Father gave to me."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Moderation in All Crimes

Mr. Editor: What a ridiculous hullabaloo is made by some as to alleged "invasion of personal liberty" and "the rights of the people," by the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. As if this invasion of personal liberty were a new thing under the sun!

If one desires to view it from that standpoint what was more pestiferous in its invasions that the old-time "internal revenue system of the federal government and the "license and local option" system in the states? From the time of the establishment or, rather, large development of the internal revenue tax on liquors, it has been "open season" on "moonshiners in the mountains of the south and elsewhere. Those poor fellows had no peace and they do not have it now! And in the states under "regulation" (sic) the liquor seller who held a charter of liberty (to sell) from the state, couldn't sell after certain hours, couldn't keep open election days (when trade would have been exceptionally good) and there were many "restrictions" which kept him busy, to know whether he could or couldn't! Actually pestiferous in its invasions of "personal liberty"—I'll say so!

Government is doing that sort of thing all the time in many other relations. Why, Mr. Editor, do you realize that there were near a hundred "shall nots," "noes" "neithers" and kindred negations in the United States Constitution before even the eighteenth amendment arrived? Let any reader take down his copy of the Connecticut States Register and read the federal constitution carefully, and thoughtfully!

Then there are a lot of petty annoyances of the same sore right in the city. You'll get haled into court and fined if you don't clear off your sidewalk. Try dumping your morning ashes in the gutter and see what happens; maintain a stinking garbage can, even in your own back yard, so that it offends your neighbor and see whether the inspector will make you a social call.

But if your neighbor wants to sell a drink that the United States supreme court has called "a greater source of crime and misery" than any other, some who imagine they want that sort of drink demand that they shall have the right to buy that drink, no matter what the social consequences. They say, "Oh, no we don't want the saloon back; we just want to get a drink; to arrange some quiet safe way, so we can get it—we, who know how to use it properly; but we are quite willing that the fellow who abuses the privilege should be deprived of it."

But remember, prohibition is concerned solely with the traffic in alcoholic liquors as a beverage. Prohibition says nothing about personal use. Prohibition rests upon the indisputable fact that wherever and however liquors of any degree of alcoholic content are sold, such traffic because of the physical nature and effect of alcohol, invariably and inevitably does far more harm than good.

There is such thing as "good liquor," meaning alcohol to be used as a beverage. It is a plain fact that of the "rich men" who have their private stocks or are still able to get it because of the "bootlegger" connivance,—it is a plain fact that mighty few of those "rich men" are today drinking the stuff to any considerable degree. Some of them are doubly selfish. They defy the law to get it; they think too much of themselves to drink it, but lest they be deprived of an imaginary need they are willing that men shall sell the stuff to their neighbor's sons. This is not what they intend to do; but isn't it really what they do? Can their action stand analysis from any standpoint which, according to the definite pledge made by every citizen when becoming an elector, considers the public welfare as of first importance? Does the obligation of citizenship mean anything personal or practical? Is loyalty only a sentiment?

There are some who affect to believe that the wave of crime and lawlessness will be checked if only "light wines and beer" come back. If such mildness would be effectual, why not try it in other directions? Tax Commissioner Blodgett calls attention to large sums lost to the public treasury by tax evasions. Why not make taxes payable in "light dimes and nickels?" Wouldn't it make a better feeling? Then the theft of automobiles is increasing to an alarming degree. Why not authorize the theft of "light Fords and Chevrolets"? Wouldn't it ease the situation in that direction?

In brief, let's go in for "moderation" in all sorts of crime and lawlessness, and insist that if men must rob and evade and debauch and destroy they shall do it decently and in order and mildly!

Sincerely yours,
ALLEN B. LINCOLN.
Hartford, January 16, 1923.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Welfare Plans.

Within the last few weeks considerable attention has been given to various welfare plans made public by business concerns. It is noted that many of these plans have as their bases the bestowal of rewards in keeping with the profits of the company making the distribution.

Herein lies a very important aspect of industrial effort, and it bears a close relationship to thrift. More and more we are learning the difference betwen charity and the earned reward. The employe, through his loyalty, faithful service and intelligent effort, is one of the direct factors in the prosperity of the company employing him. Therefore, his rewards should as nearly as possible, consistent with good business judgment, be in keeping with the prosperity which he has helped create. Success, through mutuality of effort, should bring a corresponding mutuality of reward.

Such processes are constructive. The earned dollar, so to speak, means new wealth. But the donated dollar can be viewed only from the standpoint of charity.

It is important in our industrial life that good service be regarded by the employe in the light of personal thrift.

Thrift is progressive. The longer one practices it the more enjoyable it becomes, and the more satisfying are its benefits.

Loyalty and faithfulness of effort, rightfully rewarded, produce the same reactions. It is along these lines that the individual, impelled by honest enthusiasm, attains a constantly increasing degree of efficiency and usefulness.

A most useful type of thrift is complete co-operation between employer and employe. The more nearly they attain the relationship of co-workers, with a mutuality of confidence, loyalty, enthusiasm and reward, the greater will be the successful outcome of their relationship.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

What a Relief

"Nice day. All the people gone."

Finds "Worthy Antagonist"

Max, an English bulldog, was spoiling for a fight. All the other dogs that were worty of a scrap had been hauled away or disposed of. At least none was in sight. The sight of Pekinese and other species of muffs, snarling and snapping from the security of matronly arms or toddling along at the end of a silk ribbon, seemed only to aggravate him. He wished to fight, but he wished to make sure he would find a fight that would be interesting.

Back and forth he trotted on the sidewalk in front of the building. Finally his wary eye caught something that got his attention. With a snarl of rage he rushed along. In another instance he leaped and snapped. His teeth, however, failed to get the grip that made the bulldog famous and Max alighted on his back. He had attacked the large metal dog that sits on the sidewalk at the doorway of a music store.

NERVOUS WOMAN COMPLETE WRECK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Indianapolis, Ind.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. HERRICK, 234 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

I Then Saw I Would Have The Secret Key to Health

For Thousands of Weak, Nervous, Run-down Folks—A Message Of Good Cheer To Those Who Want To Be Strong, Healthy and Vigorous

Cut Out and Use Free Trial Coupon Below Today

If I could sit down with you in your own parlor, face to face, and tell you how many thousands of people have been helped back to good health, increased strength and energy by this newer form of iron, I am sure that you would not hesitate for a moment to go to the nearest drug store and get a two weeks' trial treatment.

First of all, I want to be sure that this treatment is what you really need, and second, I want to make it very easy for you to try it at my expense.

Did you ever stop to consider how few people are suffering from a definite disease as compared to the vast number who are just weak, sick, nervous and run-down; people who are always ailing, complaining and doctoring without ever seeming to get any better? One has pains in the back and thinks he has kidney trouble; another has pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and is sure he is suffering from heart disease; still others have severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine, and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I have made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. I then saw that if I could supply this iron in a form that would be easily taken up by the body, I would have the secret key to health for thousands of weak, nervous, run-down people. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. In the old days people often took metallic iron which some physicians claim the body cannot absorb. In compounding this newer form of iron, which I call Nuxated Iron, I used a special form of iron which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test and see if you cannot be like other people whose blood is rich in iron, who possess great strength, force and energy. Cut out my trial coupon and go to your own druggist and get your first trial package of Nuxated Iron. Then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while are today in good health and filled with abundant strength, energy and endurance through the use of this newer form of iron. It would seem that every run-down person who wants to get back their old-time strength and health would go at once to their druggist and make this trial at my expense.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN RESCUED FROM SMOKE

At 1:25 this (Thursday) morning as Felix Lenkiewicz was on his way home from work, he discovered a fire in the American Confectionery store in the Bailey building at 350 Main street, and turned in an alarm from Box 223 in front of the post office.

The blaze was in the rear end of the store and the tenements above were filled with smoke. As soon as the firemen arrived they gave their first attention to getting the people out of the building upstairs. One woman who was taken out of the tenement above the confectionery store, fainted when she reached the sidewalk and was carried into the Milea house next door.

A woman and two babies were carried out of the smoke-filled tenement over the store adjoining that where the fire was. They were put into Chief Staiton's automobile and taken to a relative's in the neighborhood.

A stream of water and some chemical were used on the fire and the recall was struck about 3 o'clock.

Marriage, Hey!

You said you were married, I think? Well, I suppose it is wise, after all. It settles, centralizes and confirms a man, I have heard. Yes, it makes the world definite to him; it removes his morbid subjectiveness, and makes all things objective; nine small children, for instance, may be considered objective. Marriage, hey! A fine thing, no doubt, no doubt—domestic—pretty—nice, all round. So you are married? —From "Pierre" by Herman Melville.

MAKE SUNDAY FIELD DAY FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

To meet the tragic emergency in the near East, members of the Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches throughout Connecticut will on Sunday, January 21, observed a Near East Relief field day, it was announced Wednesday by E. H. McDonough state director of the Near East Relief for Connecticut.

The movement is not to be confined to Connecticut alone, but will be country-wide.

January 21 has been selected for this general observance because it is the Sunday falling nearest the date of the Armenian Christmas, usually celebrated on January 19.

Even more widely than in the churches, will Near East Field day be honored in the Sunday Schools. For years American Sunday Schools have set aside a sum for the care of the Near East children. This year, almost without exception, they plan to increase the offering, and to celebrate Near East field day with pageants and songs. Quite generally throughout Connecticut, the Sunday Schools have adopted as their Near East slogan the Biblical phrase, "Redeem the children appointed unto death."

An indication as to the actual conditions existing now in the Near East, is given in the following cablegram recently received from Syria:

"Without overdrawing appropriations cannot continue feeding twelve thousand absolutely destitute Greeks stranded Aleppo, Tripoli, by interruption transport Greece, Moslems threatened extermination refugees account typhus smallpox epidemic, obliged furnish mersline money milk starving refugees. Cable appropriation."

The Willey place is on a crossroad about half way between Millington green and Salem. It is about two miles from Wilbur's place, making Wilbur the nearest neighbor to the Willey family.

NORWICH ROTARIANS MAKE RECORD FOR 100 PER CENT. ATTENDANCE

Five thin, but graceful men conducted the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel and covered themselves with glory for the snappy meeting and excellent menu provided. The committee of thin men was William H. "Billy" Oat, J. Lincoln "Link" Crawford, Lewis M. "Lew" Young, P. Russell "Budge" Smith, and Charles J. "Oliver" Twist. The slenderettes equalled if not surpassed the efforts of their more corpulent brothers, the "fat boys," who conducted the meeting two weeks ago.

The business session of the meeting was conducted by Senator William G. Park, president and E. LaRue Bliven, alleged thin man, was the song leader. J. Nelson Weymouth, who checks up on those absent at the meetings and an authority on attendance records, announced that the Norwich club had established what it believed to be an eastern record for attendance—three consecutive meetings with a 100 per cent. attendance. One of the fundamental requirements of Rotary is regularity in attendance and if this is any standard then the Norwich club is way out in front in Rotary. Mr. Weymouth's announcement was not in the least coldly received but was greeted with enthusiasm and a firm determination to keep going. The attendance contest that started with the first meeting of the year finds the two teams into which the club has been divided on an even basis. There were three absentees at the meeting Wednesday but the team captains have the assurance of these members that they will make up their deficiency by attending the meeting of some other club during the week.

President Park called attention to the announcement that the spring conclave of the 30th district would be held at New Haven on March 15th and 16th and asked for a show of members who intended attending the meetings. There was a large number signified their intention of attending the meetings.

The musical features of the meeting contributed by the members and guests included a really delightful solo by Adelard Morin; some close and confined harmony on the time-worn masterpiece, Sweet Adeline, by Ellen Learned, Henry LaFountaine, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell and L. P. Wheeler; and a powerful hit by Bert Jager and Frank Walsh of Providence.

When the meeting was turned over to the thin men, J. Lincoln Crawford, acting as chairman of the committee, introduced Miss Kern and Miss Rush, two talented vaudeville artists, who are appearing at Broadway theatre in a musical number. The two young women attractively presented several vocal numbers, a violin selection or two and several of other numbers. They were very generous in their responses to repeated encores and their selections were a real treat.

At the close of the meeting the committee was given a rising vote of thanks as were Joseph Curtis and Lew Young for other services rendered the club. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

GIVING FUEL ADMINISTRATOR POWER TO SEIZE COAL

Hartford, Jan. 17.—Authority to seize fuel any where in this state during the acute coal shortage, to search any premises where he has reason to believe that fuel is being hoarded or concealed, to requisition railroad lines, locomotives, freight cars, trolley lines and motor trucks whenever necessary, in his opinion, to alleviate distress, is conferred upon the state fuel administrator in a bill for introduction in the general assembly which has been prepared by Attorney General Frank E. Healy.

These powers, considered necessary for the proper control of coal distribution in Connecticut, would be retained by the fuel administrator during the existence of the emergency, according to the attorney general, and the emergency, would be considered legally terminated by a proclamation of the governor.

An appropriation of $100,000 is proposed in the bill for the use of the fuel administrator in distributing coal in the state and it is provided that $25,000 of this be available for administration expenses of the fuel administrator, who would be empowered to engage such clerical assistance as he required, and to appoint a deputy fuel administrator.

Provisions for paying a salary to the fuel administrator is made in the bill. The amount would be fixed by the state board of control, which would also be authorized to pass on the expenses of a fuel advisory commission created by the bill. There would be three members of the advisory commission, all appointed by the governor. Local fuel administrators would be appointed by the state administrator and would take their orders from him.

Heavy penalties are prescribed in the proposed legislation for persons or corporations convicted of obstructing the distribution of coal as directed by the fuel administrator during the emergency declared to exist. While coal dealers or others from whom fuel seizures were made by order of the administrator would have the right to appeal to the superior court, any legal action would not be permitted to stay the hand of the administrator, and it is presumed that any relief allowed would have to be in the form of a judgment of damages to be subsequently paid by the state.

Dealers would be compelled to sell coal to any persons designated by the fuel administrator or those authorized by him to give orders.

The fuel administrators have been greatly handicapped in their work up to date by the fact that they have no power to enforce their rulings, and in many localities the coal dealers refused to co-operate.

VERSATILE ARTISTS GAVE ENTERTAINING PROGRAM

They say it takes an artist of ability to hold an audience through the usual performance but when an artist can hold an audience through the performance and over an hour's delay in starting, that artist is one of demopstrated ability.

Such an artist as this was Miss Katherine Fahnestock of the "Versatile Artists," who appeared Wednesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. course. Miss Fahnestock, at the request of the entertainment committee of the Y. M. C. A., agreed to appear in her street clothes and tell a story for her audience while the late boat train was wending its weary way from Putnam to Norwich with the instruments and stage gowns of the troupe. Miss Fahnestock then presented herself as a protean performer and in a humorous way rendered a scene from Anatole France's comedy, The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife, and won her audience almost as soon as she appeared on the stage. Two reels of Charlie Chaplin in The Pawn Shop also aided to tide over the hour.

With the arrival of the missing instruments Miss Fahnestock, with Miss Georgia Price, her partner, made their appearance and were greeted with great applause, the audience previously having voted that they wanted the full program from these fine young women.

The program opened with a poem of welcome by Miss Price's partner and Miss Price then rendered a selection on her harp, her splendid playing evoking the praise of her audience. Later in the concert the harpist appeared as a violinist and her ability to bring out the harmonies with this instrument was equal to her power of drawing music from the harp.

Miss Fahnestock then became the accompanist in this part of the performance and here again she made good.

As the program continued the numbers grew better, Miss Fahnestock giving a series of readings which demonstrated her powers as a reader, and delightful impersonator. Other harp nuhibers and readings followed all of the same high type as those previously rendered.

The "Versatile Artists" filled their place in the Y. M. C. A. group of four entertainments and more than repaid their listeners for the long wait before the excellent program could be commenced.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND LOOKING FOR ATMOSPHERE

New York, Jan. 17.—Miss Agnes Claire Rogers, 18-year old Columbia student and cousin of the playwright, Eugene O'Neill, was found today in a rooming house in Washington square, seeking atmosphere in Greenwich Village, by police who had been looking for her since she disappeared mysteriously Monday night.

William B. Rogers of New London, who joined in the search for his sister, announced that she had been taken to the Riverside Drive home of her aunt, Miss Agnes Claire Brennan, and there the girl, warming her hands over a radiator described her adventure.

Miss Rogers, who is taking a course in dramatic writing at the university, explained that her desire for atmosphere led her to creep away from her home with her portable typewriter and $9.51. Her total resources when she was found consisted of the odd penny.

The police got a clue of her whereabouts from a Mrs. Helen Stone, a friend of the family who lives on the square and who read in the newspapers the story of the girl's disappearance and the fear of her relatives that her case resembled that of Dorothy Arnold's, who dropped out of sight several years ago and never was found.

"I had been in hard luck ever since I left home," the girl said. "I took a taxi with my typewriter and manuscripts Monday evening. The cab I hired developed tire trouble and I had to get another. The trip to the village cost me $3.

"At the rooming house they showed me one room for $5 without gas, and I new I couldn't write there, so I took the only other room for $6.50. The gas there was rather conservative so I had a hard time not freezing. I wrote all the time except last night, when I read a book on dramatic technique."

"The Fateful Prank" was one of the plays Miss Rogers completed while in the village.

ASKING $100,000 TO CHECK GYPSY MOTH

The gypsy moth has made an alarming spread over two-thirds of the areas of Connecticut, and the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station is to ask the general assembly to appropriate $100,000 to stop the menace growing any larger. Two years ago $40,000 was appropriated for the work but the board of control of the experiment station at a meeting in the office of Governor Templeton Tuesday pointed out that if the gypsy moth is unchecked all trees in the state will be destroyed.

When the appropriation was made at the last session of the legislature the ravages of the moth were confined to Windham and New London counties, but now, according to a report by Entomologist W. E. Britton, the moth has appeared in Hartford county, also along the upper edge of Litchfield county, in Waterbury and Wolcott in New Haven county and in Middletown and Durham in Middlesex county. It is believed that the moth eggs—which cold weather does not kill—are blown into Connecticut from Massachusetts, where the moth made a big start before anything was done to check it.

The federal government has projected a barrier strip crossing Connecticut from Bridgeport to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and about three years ago a quarantine was placed on forest and quarry products from New England prohibiting their shipment outside of the district.

WILL DETERMINE DAMAGES ON M'KINLEY AVE. LAND

Mayor Milo R. Waters has appointed Roy Robbins, John M. Lee and Harry M. Land, three disinterested freeholders of the city of Norwich as a committee to investigate the damage done to the proprietors of land adjoining McKinley avenue on the east, over whose land a building line was established and designated by the court of common council at a meeting held on the second day of October.

The land damage question came up after the establishing of such a building line on the property of Yetta Cohn at the corner of Briad street and McKinley avenue. The owners of the property on the corner desired to erect a building flush with the line of the sidewalk. Residents of that section petitioned for a building line which was granted and established, setting the building line back 15 feet. Damages were then claimed by the owner of the corner property, the appointment of the damage committee following.

ADVISES HIGH STANDARD FOR NEW ATTORNEYS

Austin Avery King of this city, who is now in the offices of a New Haven law firm, John James Floyd of Waterford, and Harry Sylvan Gaucher of Sprague were among a group of thirty young law yers who were admitted to the bar Tuesday in the superior court at Hartford to the practice of law in this state.

In addressing the candidates before they took the oath, Judge Frank D. Haines told them that if he could have some part in giving them an abiding sense of what the practice of the law requires of its true disciples, it would be very gratifying indeed.

Continuing, Judge Haines said in part:

"Out of many which merit serious attention, there are two commanding considerations, to which I ask your attention in the few brief observations which the time and occasion permit, and these are foreshadowed in what has already been said—study to know and understand the law in its underlying purposes, and aim at the highest possible standards of honor and justice in its application. Will you let me repeat that: Study to know and understand the law in its underlying purpose, and aim at the highest possible standards of honor and justice in its application.

"You have made a beginning, and a good beginning. It is no small achievement to meet the present requirements of study, and obtain the privilege of standing where you do today—and I congratulate you. But do not pause—do not relax effort and study—you have but just begun your work. You have learned the alphabet of the law, and now there are spread before you the great fields of legal literature and legal work, and you are to be permitted to enter and take your place, and do your bit, under a broadened horizon. Here are the problems of mankind, of nations, states, communities, individuals—in the solving of which you are, in some degree, to have a part; how large and how honorable part, the coming years will disclose, for each of you."

SAYS HE WOULD NOT TAKE FORTUNE FOR IT

O'Brien Declares Tanlac Ended Four Years of Stomach Trouble, Restoring Weight and Strength.

"Health is everything, and Tanlac sure did bring mine back. I wouldn't take a fortune for the good this medicine did me," declared James O'Brien, 41 Poets St., New Haven, Conn., valued employee of the Thompson-Sterritt Construction Co.

"I was in a terribly run-down condition and suffering from stomach trouble for four years. Nothing I ate seemed to do me any good, my appetite almost left me entirely, and I was gradually losing weight. I was so dull and listless on coming home from work I never felt like doing anything about the house, and I would get up mornings still all tired out.

"But since taking Tanlac things are entirely different. Four bottles gave me such a splendid appetite I can eat anything, have gained ten pounds and feel stronger than ever. I get real pleasure out of my work now, and simply can't say too much for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

J. Howard Burdick, superintendent since 1910 for the People's Light and Power company and the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, has tendered his resignation. Mr. Burdick is to leave here February 1 to take a position of importance with the Webster and Southbridge Gas and Electric company.

Mr. Burdick has been with the local lighting company, recently taken over by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, for the past 19 years. His service has not only been satisfactory to the public of the territory served, but so eminently so to his employers, who control the Webster and Southbridge Gas and Electric company, that they have offered him unusually attractive inducements to go with the latter concern.

Mr. Burdick's decision to leave Danielson will be received with regret in business circles and by many friends in Danielson and the other communities into which his work has taken him. While he will take up his new duties at the beginning of February, his family will remain here until June.

Mr. Burdick is a member of Mohah lodge A. F. and A. M. of the Bozrahian chapter and of Putnam lodge of Elks. He has just rounded out twelve years as an active member of the Danielson Fire department.

Who Mr. Burdick's successor in Danielson will be has not been announced.

While the public will not likely be permitted to peer behind the scenes and learn of all the fuss at Lebanon Circuit Court House when he presented the State Officers Albert L. Hall and Merritt Keab of the Danielson barracks one day last summer when they seized two truck loads of meat at Lebanon the police be entitled to at least the applause of the officers they summoned by Hart when he did not appear in the superior court at Willimantic on Tuesday does not represent a personal loss to him.

Hart has talked mighty frankly and caustically of officials since the court adjourned last summer when he refused to leave the city and tried to force the officers from the courtroom each day by flashing $100 bills and tossing them upon them, one at each session.

It was apparent from the first that Hart was not acting on his own accord that he did not owe the best of his loyalty as an agent for others who had retained him under subpoena. Interested by Hart attorneys that their case from Lebanon would be tried in the superior court, Hart was not saying to whom he referred.

Days passed before his bail was reduced and his release brought about. Since that time Hart has declared that he has made no effort to get on the witness stand leading to the belief that he was not saying to whom he referred.

STONINGTON

On Jan. 5th Mrs. Marcia P. Denison, widow of Paul B. Stanton and one of the noblest women of her day and generation, passed to her eternal home. She was born April 8, 1830, at the old Capt. George Denison homestead, one in a family of seven children of Oliver and Nancy Noyes Denison, and seventh in descent from Capt. George and Lady Ann Berrodell Denison, the pioneers who came to Stonington in 1664 from Roxbury, Mass., and built their house in Pequotsepos valley on land granted him by the town of New London.

Mrs. Stanton's family in direct line have owned and occupied this land ever since, and also the three houses there, which have stood upon almost the same spot. As Mrs. Stanton grew up, she attended the common schools and the Mystic academy, and with an unusually good mind she so trained it that much, both verse and prose, were memorized and retained throughout her long life and even at her 92d birthday, among her friends gathered about her, she recited verses and recalled events of her girlhood.

When Mrs. Stanton was married in 1884 and came to live at the home of her husband, Paul B. Stanton, one of the well known Stanton Brothers, whose landed possessions comprised many hundred acres on Quaquataug Hill and vicinity, and whose well kept farms were a delight to the eye. Their family was a large one and during the summer months, for many years, numerous relatives and friends spend much time there also. Much help was employed both outside and in, as was necessary in carrying on the farm work and in entertaining, as this was always a most hospitable home. Rich and poor were both ministered unto, and the latter never left their door without food and raiment when it was needed. Her motto was "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Mrs. Stanton's cheerful disposition and charming personality always remained with her and won for her a wide circle of friends who have enjoyed her hospitality, even in these later years, this having been rendered possible through the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Frink, who have managed the farm and ministered to her every desire for the past 36 years, even as a veritable son and daughter would have done. Thus her last years have been rendered unusually pleasant and peaceful, and the memory of her, and her delightful home, will long be cherished by those fortunate enough to have known her personally.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Phebe Ford, who resides in Mystic, and is well beyond the three score years and ten, and also a number of nieces and nephews, one of whom, Mrs. N. Stanton Gates, now occupies the old Denison homestead and has made it her pleasant duty to be near and cheer her aunts in their declining years.

A splendid company of men assembled in the hall to enjoy the entertainment provided and listen to the address of the evening. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Norwich was the speaker and he gave an able and inspiring discourse on The Testing of Democracy, and in this address he sketched the wonderful history of the growth of democracy in this country, stressing some of the dangers which threaten it at this time. Rev. Mr. Ricketts was listened to closely and all were agreed that he had delivered one of the very best addresses heard by the club.

The entertainment was in charge of the new entertainment committee, James Boyle, chairman, and it was a most excellent program highly pleasing to all. The program consisted as follows: Humorous readings by Mrs. Carl N. Mathewson; vocal duets by Mrs. Alfred Baldwin and Miss M. J. Marsden and selections by the male quartet, James Royal, Ray W. Green, Christopher Krauss, Philip Peterson.

The newly elected officers took their places as follows: President, Ray W. Greene; vice president, John Kingsley; secretary, Walter Lathrop; treasurer, C. L. Butler. The secretary read a careful report and the treasurer reported over $40 received for supper and dues.

Under unfinished business, there was a spirited discussion on the project of continuing the state road through Canterbury. This appears to be a matter of keen interest to a large number in the club and the matter which had been referred to the welfare committee was placed in charge of a special committee, chosen as follows: Benjamin Dawson, temporary chairman; Edward Hall, James Appleby, Henry Dorrence, Nathan Exley.

Elmer Greene brought up under new business the matter of installing the club suitable markers for the boundaries of the village and town, which was referred to the welfare committee. Six new members were added to the club.

A special guest of the evening was E. F. Sampson of the Moosup woolen mills.

The next meeting of the club will be the first anniversary and special plans will be made for it. It is hoped that the club will be able to meet in the church vestry which is being altered and repaired.

There was a delegation of men who visited the grange in Canterbury Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Thomas Hudson has returned to her work in the Lawton mills after two weeks' absence owing to illness.

Railroading in all its branches must take a deal of patience in these days. Robert W. Generous, who is employed in the Groton tower, waited so long for trains one day last week that he reached his work at 3 o'clock in the morning instead of 5 o'clock in the evening.

The net meeting of the Parent-Teacher association will be held at the Community house. The speaker of the evening will be, the president of the state association, Mrs. Littlefield of New Haven.

The officers of Plainfield grange, P. of H., No. 140, were installed at the regular meeting held on Tuesday evening at Grange hall by P. M. Mrs. Lillian Frink of Canterbury grange, assisted by Sisters Appleby with Sister Eloise Hawes, pianist, both of Canterbury grange.

Plainfield grange was organized in 1894, with 54 charter members; it now has 130 members and the membership is to be increased as soon as initiatory degrees will be conferred within a few weeks.

One interesting feature of the installation was that the retiring master, Edward Hall, who was one of the charter members, in surrendering his position, welcomed his son, William F. Hall, the newly installed master to the chair.

Another notable feature was that another charter member, Jason P. Lathrop, installed treasurer has occupied some station in the grange every year but one since its organization.

The grange has had a remarkable growth during the past year, owing to the untiring efforts of the master, Edward Hall. The programs of the meeting have assumed an usual interest as planned by the lecturer, Mrs. Beecher Brown.

NOANK

Noank fire company has plans for a fair to be held at Unity hall to raise funds for a motor fire truck. The amount necessary is $4,500.

At a meeting of the fair committee held Sunday afternoon, they voted to have a contest for the most popular boy in the village. The prize will be a coaster car. The prize for the most popular girl will be a flexible Flyer sled. This contest will be in charge of Walter Palmer. Donations from local storekeepers and from the towns of Mystic and New London are on display in a Pearl street window. The hall will be prettily decorated.

At a meeting of lumbermen from all over the state held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms in New London Saturday Ivan Crossman was elected president of the new organization, the Connecticut Commercial Fishermen's association. This organization is for the purpose of protecting the fishing industry. George W. Brown, also of the village, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Wednesday evening the members of the Noank Fire company commenced work on booths and decorations for their fair. The committees have worked hard to make the affair a success. The object for which the company is working is a worthy one in the village.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist church will be held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Charles Hadley, Sr. The conference will be presided over by Rev. William H. Bath of Norwich district of the Southern New England division. At this time reports and other business matters are brought before the conference.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet with Mrs. John Sawyer Thursday afternoon.

Gerald Chester of Newport, R. I., was at the home of his mother, Mrs. Phoebo Chester, over the week end.

A. E. Maynard of Groton has moved his household effects to the village. He has accepted a position as watchman at the Rossi Velvet company.

The body of Mrs. Mary Hammond, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Morrow, of Arlington, Mass., will be brought to the village for burial. Mrs. Hammond leaves two daughters in the village, Mrs. John Jenssen and Mrs. Peter Lunaas.

Mrs. Esther Carroll, who has been ill at her home, is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Emmeline L. Williams died very suddenly at the home of her daughter Mrs. Carolyn Andrews on Smith court, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Williams had been in her usual health but while calling on one of her neighbors complained of feeling ill and later in the evening passed away.

She was the widow of Owen H. Williams and was born in Mystic, Jan. 14, 1846, the daughter of Albert and Frances Fish.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one son Owen A. Williams of Los Angeles, Cal. and one daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Andrews of this place, also a son Ira L. Rathbun of Mystic, by a former marriage, a sister, Mrs. Mary J. Duchette of Cheshire, Conn.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Jan. 17.—Price changes in today's relatively dull stock market were generally small and indecisive, large operators adopting a hesitant attitude pending further developments in the European situation and the public manifesting little interest in the course of quoted values.

Inability or unwillingness to meet margin calls caused a rather large volume of overnight selling orders which gave the market a weak tone at the opening, the declines running from small fractions to 2 points. The stubborn resistance offered by some of the lenders caused a brief rally but the comparatively large volume of stocks offered at the higher levels discouraged buyers and caused prices to sag again.

The mid-day period was exceedingly dull with bear interests seemingly afraid to depress prices further for fear that constructive developments abroad would find them caught short of too many stocks and with operators for the advance disinclined to bid up prices on the possibility of further trouble in the Ruhr valley which would be likely to bring about a large volume of outside selling and another sharp reaction.

Intrepid traders who bought special stocks on the theory that domestic conditions warranted an appreciation in values regardless of developments in the foreign situation finally broke the apparent deadlock, extensive short covering accelerating the brisk advance that took place in the last hour.

Baldwin, Studebaker and California Petroleum were again the most active shares on the list, Baldwin sold between 131 7-8 and 132 1-4, closing at 131 1-2 for a net gain of 1-8. Studebaker was somewhat within a range of slightly more than 2 points and closed at 113 7-8, or 1-4 above last night's final figure. California Petroleum touched 30 3-4, but fell back later 1-4, where it represented a net loss of 3-4.

Industrials were slow to rally as they were the last to decline, the average of 20 leaders showing a slight increase over yesterday. Rails were largely neglected in the early selling but they succumbed to the second reaction and were slow in coming back. Losses of a point or more were registered in Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred, Great Northern Pref., Missouri Central, Northern Pacific, Pere Marquette A, Eastern and Wisconsin & Lake Erie Preferred. Atlantic Coast Line dropped to 110 1-4 for a net loss of 3-4.

Packard Motors displayed a sudden burst of activity, running 2 1-8 points on 19,000 shares, but interest was the only reason for the speculative commotion, which was blamed for the sudden rise in the issue, which sells around $12 a share. Beechnut Packing ran into new high ground, showing a gain of 2 3-4 at the close. American Beach Magneto Dupont, Willys-Overland and Manati Sugar were conspicuous for sharp all off 2 to 3 and better. Two of the outstanding stocks were Nash Motors and National Lead, up 3 1-2 and 3 1-4 points respectively.

Call money opened and renewed at 4 per cent and remained at 3 1-2 during the fourth hour, an announcement that rate until the close. The announcement that the treasury withdrawal of $31,000,000 from member banks would be temporary. The time money market was also easier. Some 60 day loans were arranged at 4 1-4 per cent and bankers' acceptance for all maturities was insisted on at 3-4 per cent for all dates.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary. Demand sterling was off to $4.64 1-2 but recovered to $4.64 3-4 where it was off about 1-2 cents on the day. French francs dropped to 7.40 cents on the new low record and Italian lire were down 3 points to 4.70 3-4 cents. Canada dollars displayed another new weakness, being quoted at 4.00 cents or one cent below marks to the American dollar.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 17.—An extremely sharp break in French and Belgian bonds, which carried a number of issues to their lowest levels in all time, was the outstanding development in today's bond market, which was decidedly reactionary in tone. French 7 1-2s dropped below 91, the previous low established last November, and the French municipals broke through their record lows of March 1921.

Soissons 7s slumped 4 1-2 points and new low records also were established by Algerian 5s off 2 3-4; Bordeaux 6s off 3 1-2; Lyons 6s and Marseilles 6s, off 2 each, and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s, Belgian 7 1-2s and 8s and Czecho-Slovakian 8s all down 1 to 1 1-2 points. A dozen other issues also registered losses of a point or more. British bonds yielding fractionally on reports that the British debt delegation would leave the country without reaching a definite agreement for the funding of the British war debt.

Weakness of sugar company bonds in sympathy with the reactionary trend of the sugar market was the feature of the industrial list losses of 1 to 2 points being recorded by South Porto Rico Sugar 7s, Eastern Cuban Sugar 7 1-2s and Francisco Sugar 7 1-2s. Cerro De Pasco 8s broke 3 points. Rooks were opened and closed on the new $100,000,000 Anaconda 6 per cent issue and the bonds were quoted on the stock exchange at slightly above the issuing price but this was not regarded as significant because syndicates invariably support their offerings until they are well distributed. The $50,000,000 Anaconda 15 year 7 per cent convertible debentures will be offered tomorrow at par.

Speculative and investment railroad mortgages suffered alike in the reaction in these issues. Texas & Pacific 5s broke 3 points; New Haven 6s, 1 3-4 and Erie Convertible 4s, series D, 1 5-8 while a flock of other issues were off a point or more. Local tractions yielded the most in the public utility division.

U. S. government bonds were irregular, the Liberty 3 1-2s and the third and new 4 1-4s showed net gains of 2 to 4 cents on $100 and the second 4s and first and fourth 4 1-4s dropping 8 to 12 cents. The others were unchanged.

Total sales (par value) were $13,746,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Selling in which foreigners took the lead, turned the market decidedly down grade today. With financial and economic considerations receiving more notice than was given to war war talk, prices closed heavy 7-8 cent to 1 7-8 cents net lower. May 119 5-8 to 119 3-4 and July 113 1-4 to 113 3-8. Corn lost 1-4 to 1-2 cent; oats 3-8 to 5-8 cent and provision 7 cents to 12 cents.

Pessimists regarding higher prices took the ground that declines in prices of late were equal to about 3 cents a bushel in the value of wheat. It was also pointed out that European quotations on grain failed to reflect advances on this side of the Atlantic and that Argentine wheat offerings in Liverpool were reported larger owing to a cut in vessel rates and in exchange. Deadlock of British debt funding arrangements and senate refusal to vote credits to foreign buyers of foodstuff were mentioned as additional bearish factors.

Profit taking on the part of traders here who had been active in purchasing wheat yesterday, broadened out in the last half of the day, price rallies meanwhile having been apparently due in the main to transient demand from shorts. Offerings during the final half hour especially were quiet urgent, and the market closed at the day's lowest level.

Despite relative firmness due to dwindling receipts of corn and oats finally receded with wheat. Bears put stress on figures showing that the stock of corn here was more than treble the amount on December 1. Packers selling weakened provisions.

De Lamar Heirers Wins $200,000 Tax Suit

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

The Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court has ruled that Miss Alice A. DeLamar need not pay the $200,000 transfer tax on the $5,000,000 which her father, Capt. Joseph R. DeLamar, willed to the medical schools of Columbia, Harvard and Johns Hopkins universities. Captain DeLamar left an estate of $23,000,000, bequeathing $10,000000 in trust to his daughter and ordering that if she died without issue the principal of the trust fund was to revert to the three schools. In addition he bequeathed $17,624,203 to the three schools, divided equally among them. This was $5,000,000 in excess of half his estate—the amount the law allowed him to bequeath without restriction to public institutions.

Miss DeLamar agreed with the three residuary legatees to relinquish her claim to the $5,000,000 excess and then surrogate Cohalan, of New York, upheld the State Comptroller's demand that the transfer tax on the $5,000,000 relinquished by the heiress must be paid, irrespective of any agreement.

VOLUNTOWN

The Connecticut Humane society has sent to the Voluntown Center school two posters appealing to children with regard to going good to animals and birds, also a large banner in red felt with white letters saying Be Kind to Animals.

The grammar room won the attendance banner for November and December of last term, and the cleanliness banner for November. The primary room held the thrift banner for both November and December.

In the grammar room the children perfect in attendance for the whole fall term were Flossie Bebo, Helen Bullock, Leo Derosiers, Floyd Magrey, William Magrey and Arvi Lybeck.

For the room winning the cleanliness banner in November Mr. Peckham also increased the incentive by offering at the beginning of the month a treat of fudge to the winning room. The grammar room was the lucky group.

In December the children sold Red Cross seals. This year about twice as many were sold as last year, which shows an increased rating in the citizenship of the children.

All of the children in the grammar room are writing essays on Thrift in keeping with Thrift week and to take part in the contest so liberally offered by the Chelsea bank.

An epidemic of chickenpox is lowering the attendance rating.

The annual speaking contest has been commenced, as the children have nearly all received the selections to be learned. The contest will probably take place in about a month. The winner in the town contest will go to a sectional contest to be tried out again with the winners of other towns.

John O. Peckham has offered a prize of $5 to the child in the eighth grade who will pass the highest tests at the end of the year.

The Center school had to close for two days, Jan. 16 and 17, in order to have the furnace fixed. One day will be made up on Saturday. On Wednesday the teachers will visit school in Sterling.

Mrs. Sydney Small, the only woman alderman of Toronto, Canada, has been visiting New York, Washington and other cities to study problems of municipal government.

Head Of Russian Church Arrested For Defiance

EVERYONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Patriarch Tikon, head of the Russian Church, faithful to his trust to the last, is now under arrest in the Donskoi monastery near Moscow, Russia. It all centers around his refusal to resign as Patriarch after the lives of priests were threatened. The Communist priests of Russia demanded power and wished to put in Tikon's place a degenerate Archbishop, who was totally unsuited for the important post. After much urging he finally signed documents temporarily placing either Agafangel or Vennamin as head of the Church, but when Tikon was held in the monastery, the Bolshevik representatives handed over to the "progressive priests" the entire machinery of the church administration.

About 8.30 o'clock Saturday evening fire broke out in the six-tenement house near the Oakdale mill. The family living on the first floor, by the name of Deaton, discovered the flames bursting through the roof. The fire apparently started on the upper floor, which was hired by two men who lived on farms but who worked at the mill through the winter and who had gone home for Sunday. The mill whistle was blown and a large number of men used chemicals from the mill and succeeded in putting out the blaze. The furniture of the Deaton family was considerably damaged. MAKE LEGISLATORS LATE AT HARTFORD

TRAINS RUNNING BEHIND SCHEDULE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, Jan. 7.—The house was called to order by Speaker Nickerson at 11.15. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Coolidge.

Many members on account of late trains did not reach the capitol till the session was nearly over. The first calendar of the session was on the members desks this morning. The house calendar contained eight items and that of the senate nine. Representative Stack of Bristol introduced a proposed bill that forbids soliciting the purchase of tickets for admission to any game, show, exhibition or gathering of any sort from the occupants of any moving vehicle. Joint resolutions were offered appointing judge and deputy judges in several city and town courts.

From the senate came the bill repealing chapter 24 of the general statutes which is known as the home rule bill. This is a duplicate of a proposed act incorporated in the report of the commission on uniformity of municipal charters.

It was explained by Leader Buckley that it would greatly expedite the work of the assembly to have all bills granting increase of salaries be first referred to the appropriations committee. His position was supported by Keith of Putnam and Southwick of Cromwell. It was so voted.

Announcements of county and committee meetings were made.

Superior Court Clerks' Salaries.

A proposed act by Buckley of Union fixes the salaries of the clerks and assistants in the several superior courts of the state. For New London the sum named was $7,000 of which amount $3,000 was to be paid to the assistant clerk.

In Windham county $3,500.

The court may tax, for necessary expenses in New London county, not exceeding $1,000, and the same amount in Windham county.

The clerk may retain such portions of the fees for declarations of intention for naturalization of aliens as clerks of the United States are permitted to retain. All other fees are to be paid to the state.

Adjournment was taken at 12.20, till Thursday at 11.15 a. m.

Sunday Entertainments

Representative Meech of West Hartford introduced a proposed act concerning Sunday entertainments. One of the proposals is that the state board of education may issue licenses for the holding of public concerts on Sunday, provided the program shall be submitted to and approved by said board and on condition that the parties receiving a license shall conform in all particulars to the program as submitted.

Senator Doty also introduced a similar bill. It authorizes the mayor of a city or the selectmen of a town to permit Sunday concerts in theaters or halls provided that "only standard symphonic compositions of a classical nature shall be played," and authorizing the sale of tickets from one to four o'clock Sunday afternoons. Nothing in the terms of the act shall permit the giving of vaudeville, moving pictures or stereopticon exhibitions in connection with the concert. The bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

SENATE

Joint resolutions were offered by Senator Rogers, appointing S. Victor Prince, judge and Louis Crandall, deputy judge of the city court of New London, both being reappointments.

Senator Suisman presented a bill for an old age pension law. It provides for the appointment of a board of three citizens to be appointed by the governor to administer the law, and who shall each be paid $15 a day. A superintendent at a salary of $6,000 a year shall be appointed and provision is made for the appointment of assistants. County boards are to be appointed. The minimum pension allowed is $25 and the person to be pensioned must have reached the age of 60 years. The bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Adjournment was made to 11.15 Thursday.

Notes.

The assignment of seats was printed in the journal this morning. The Norwich members are placed in numbers 18 and 20, front row, on the democratic side. Burton of Ledyard gets 207, rear seat on middle isle, King of Preston gets 116, Service 208 in middle rear section, Sullivan of Montville 157. Cronin and Payne of New London get 99 and 23, both in good positions. Edgecomb of Groton will sit at 213. Allyn of Ledyard will be found at 174. With a few exceptions none of the New London county members have what are considered desirable seats. Darbie of Killingly gets 61, Keith of Putnam 139, Fenton of Windham gets 98, Hyde of Canterbury 46, all desirable. The six women republican members are seated together, 139-149. Miss Green of Tolland will sit on the democratic side at 64.

Robert D. Byrnes, formerly of The Bulletin staff, is reporting in the house for The Courant.

Ex-Representative Pendleton of Norwich was a visitor at the capitol today.

Leader Buckley announced that next week there would be a Friday session.

The failure of the railroads to get the members there for the opening of the session also brought out the fact that in some of the western part of the state members had in order to get home, avail themselves of freight service.

The railroad committee held a meeting after adjournment, attended by several of the members of both houses, which developed into a general experience meeting, about all the members being unable to reach the capitol. Representative Dunham of Wethersfield will introduce a resolution Thursday citing the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to appear before the committee and make arrangements for better conditions. It was brought out that the "Legislative Special" billed to leave Willimantic at 9.45 on Tuesday consisted of one coach which was crammed to suffocation, as many standing as were able to obtain seats.

The Hampton contested election case of Jewett vs Lewis, will be heard next Wednesday afternoon by the house committee on contested elections.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Smith of Avon to amend section 1159 of the general statutes to exempt the widows of soldiers from the payment of a personal tax. Referred to committee on finance.

Representative Sullivan of Montville while not a follower of Dr. Coue offers the following: Day by day in every way they are getting later and later—the trains.

Representative Smith of Groton has not been able to be present this week as he is confined to his home by a hard cold.

A bill offered by Andrews of Danbury would exempt from taxation all property belonging to the United States or this state, any town, city or borough; parsonages of any ecclesiastical society to the extent of $500; buildings and the lands on which they stand used exclusively for scientific, literary, benevolent or ecclesiastical society, all lands devoted to cemetery purposes, the property of any soldier, sailor or marine receiving a pension annuity or compensation who while in the service of the United States, lost a leg or arm or suffered other disabilities, property to the extent of $3,000; any person who has served twenty years in the National Guard to the extent of $1,000. The bill is a lengthy one and contains many exemptions not now allowed.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither. He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. INFANT MORTALITY RATE HIGHER IN PAST YEAR

The total number of deaths under one year in Connecticut for the first six months of 1922 was 1,313, which is 5 more than during the same period of 1921 but 303 less than for 1920. During the first six months of the past year, there were 15,835 births compared with 17,225 births for the same period in 1921.

The infant mortality rate is the number of deaths per 1,000 living births, so that although the absolute number of deaths is only 5 more than the corresponding period of 1921 yet the rate for 1922 will be higher since the number of live births is less by 1646.

The infant mortality rate for the six months period of 1921 was 75, and for the same period of 1922, 83.

Investigation of the record of infant mortality for the first six months of 1922 reveals that the largest number died before the end of the first day. This is similar to the records of other years for the first day of a baby's life has always been the hardest.

The number of infants who died during the first 24 hours of life was 295. Six hundred and eighty-five infants died under one month of age and of these the cause of death was described as "prematurity" in 272 cases. The remaining causes of death for the group dying under one month of age were given as follows: Congenital malformation and debility 83, causes peculiar to infancy, themorrhage, icterus, etc.) 64. Respiratory conditions 58. Injuries at birth 56, other causes 168.

SENATOR M'LEAN—FAITHFUL WORKER, EFFECTIVE SPEAKER

Senator George P. McLean, of Connecticut, who will be in charge of the administration Democratic program on the senate floor, by reason of his being chairman of the committee on banking and currency is not given to treading upon the floor, says the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. He is a faithful worker on his own and the finance committee and at times a most effective speaker. He prefers, however, to make less speeches and really have something worth while to contribute to the senate discussion rather than indulge in frequent comment on all manner of public questions. He is given credit for a deep knowledge of financial problems, which enables him to spike many ill-advised proposals which reach his committee.

One of Senator McLean's colleagues who admires him very much thus describes him:

"George McLean is like a big, large bass, loafing under a lily pad with just enough expenditure of energy to keep his position. He looks along there keenly alert to everything passing up or down in the stream of legislation. He takes notice of many things, but he gets excited over very few of them. But when something comes along that interests him or something he wants to bat reaches out and grabs it with as little fuss as possible. Then he goes back to his lily pad."

DAUGHTER STARTS APPEAL ON DENNIS MORRISSEY'S WILL

Mrs. Mary Bassette of Conway, Mass., daughter of the late Dennis Morrissey of this city, has taken an appeal from the probate court of his will, papers in the case having been filed in the superior court clerk's office on Wednesday. The suit is returnable before the superior court in February.

Mrs. Bassette takes the appeal on the ground that she is the daughter and sole heir at law of Dennis Morrissey, and has a pecuniary interest in his estate and is aggrieved by the decree of the probate court in admitting the will to probate. Emma Morrissey of this city is the executrix of the will.

WILL RETURN SILVER SERVICE TO CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin).

Washington, Jan. 17.—The silver service which the state of Connecticut donated the battleship Connecticut when it was put in commission some years ago is to be returned to the state for preservation when the battleship Connecticut is scrapped as is soon to be done. This return gift has been brought about by Senator McLean who urged the secretary of the navy to order the its return. The state must return it to the government if another ship is christened in honor of Connecticut, otherwise it will remain in custody of Connecticut and will be placed in the hands of the State Historical society.

POETRY

THE PLOW.

From Egypt behind my oxen with their stately step and slow
Northward and east and west I went to the desert and the snow;
Down through the centuries one by one turning the clod to the shower,
Till there's never a land beneath the sun but has bloomed behind my power.

I gild through the sodden rice fields with my grunting humped back steers,
I turned the turf of the Tiber plain in Rome's imperial years;
I was left in the half-drawn furrow when Cincinnatus came,
Giving his farm for the Forum's stir to save his nation's name.

Over the seas to the north I went: white cliffs and a seaboard blue;
And my path was glad in the English grass as my stout red Devons drew;
My path was glad in the English grass,
for behind me ripened and reaped
The corn that was life to the sailor man that sailed the ships of the world.

And later I went to the north again and day by day drew down
A little more of the purple hills to join my kingdom brown;
And the wheat which I sowed on the moor and the fir that I planted
Were the ships that my sails sowed and reaped.

Then the new lands called me westward
I found on the prairies wide
A toil to try my test during and a foe to test my pride;
But I stooped my strength to the stiff black loam, and found my master
As I loosened in swift that was training firm by a million buffaloed feet.

The sun of the west I sailed me beyond her the rich brown lines
Where her Panamanic treachery frees at last my mines.
I drove my cattle to pasture, her dust
my grain shed,
I painted her rich plains golden and taught her to wear a crop.

From Dane-ruled England I went with the stately step and slow
I have carried wheat to the gladdest nations that need and sow
I am the Power, the King, and I hold world
Sword must wrought may ring, but the triumph shall rest with mine!
—Will Ogilvie.

THE UNWILLING GYPSY.

The wide green earth is mine in which to wander;
Each path that beckons I may follow
free.
Sea to gray sea
But O, that one walled garden small and sheltered,
Belongs to me!

High on the mountain top I watch the sunset,
Its splendid fires flare upward and burn
low
Ah, once to know
Down in the twilight lowlands dim and tender,
My own hearth-glow!

Night falls. A thousand stars look down upon me,
But though from inland plain to ocean's foam
My steps may roam,
One clear fixed star forever is denied me
The light of home!
—Josephine Johnson, in The Lyric.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Well, you see they set out to see which could beat the other flirting and it resulted in a tie."—Boston Transcript.

"After a man has sat around in the sunshine of your climate for a number of years, what makes him think he's a philosopher?"

"The fact that he sits around in the sunshine and lets the world go by. If he didn't have a great deal of philosophy in his make-up he couldn't do it."
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Teacher (exasperated)—You children need to have your ears cleaned out—you don't seem to hear anything I say (pausing)—but for heaven's sake don't clean more than one, or my words will go in one side and come out the other!

FRENCH AND BELGIANS ARE TO EXTEND SEIZURE OF GERMAN CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

Orders Are to be Promulgated at Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort Within a Few Days—Occupying Forces in the Ruhr Are Tightening Traffic Control—Are Seizing All Empty Freight Cars and Canal and River Barges—Mine Owners Have Been Summoned to Appear Before the Occupational Officials—The French Are Preparing to Issue Currency Throughout the Rhineland and the Ruhr.

Duesseldorf, Jan 18.—Measures similar to those decreed at Coblenz by the interallied Rhineland commission—seizure of the customs receipts, seizure and exploitation of the state forests, and collection of the poll tax—will be promulgated at Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort and in all the Ruhr occupation zones by decree of General Degoutte, it was stated here this afternoon. The proclamation is expected within a few days.

TIGHTENING TRAFFIC CONTROL IN THE RUHR

Essen, Jan. 18.—Active steps were being taken today by the occupying forces to tighten the traffic control in the Ruhr along the lines indicated in the control commission's statement of last night. It became evident today that the new measures included the seizure of all the empty freight cars and canal and river barges within the occupied area. In order to offset the alleged movement in unoccupied Germany against permitting such means of transportation to enter the Ruhr.

Occupation of railway stations by troops in various parts of the region has been extended noticeably within the past twenty-four hours.

Besides the item on today's program of the occupational forces which called for the summoning of six of the nine owners, including Fritz Thyssen, to appear today before a military court, it was stated that fifteen others would receive instructions from the occupation officials in the course of the day to make similar appearance.

The understanding this morning was that the owners were called ostensibly for the purpose of being informed of the manner in which their properties would be seized and operated for the production of coal on reparation account, and that they would be told they were to be held responsible for the payment of the coal account of their private means.

Representatives of the military authorities at Essen conferred yesterday with representatives of the railway men's officials and advised them to continue their work without friction with the authorities. Replying to a question as to the right of the men to strike, the representative of the occupational forces declared strikes would not be tolerated.

WILDEST RIOT IN HISTORY OF FRENCH PARLIAMENT

Paris, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—After what is said to have been the wildest rioting in the history of the French parliament, during which fifty deputies engaged in a free for fist fight on the floor, the chamber of deputies this evening by a vote of 371 to 143 decided to suspend the parliamentary immunity of Marcel Cachin, the communist member.

A commission of the chamber which investigated charges that Cachin recently had been engaged in communistic activities in the Ruhr recommended that the deputy's parliamentary immunity be lifted so as to permit of the prosecution of Cachin by the government on a charge of conspiring against the security of the state in connection with plans to call a general strike in the Ruhr and in French cities in protest against France's seizure of the Ruhr.

Several deputies, notably radicals, during debate expressed disapproval of the government's action. They declared that M. Cachin was being persecuted for his opinions, and that the evidence adduced by the government as yet established the crime alleged.

This aroused the fury of the members of the right. Leon Daudet was responsible for hurling epithets across the chamber which were more picturesque than parliamentary. The members of the left replied in kind and beat the Devil's tattoo" on their desks.

Francois Arago, vice president of the chamber, was presiding. He was compelled to suspend the sitting for a time. When the sitting was resumed, however, the uproar steadily grew worse, and finally after a warm exchange of insults, the right and communists rose in a body and, bowling over the ushers, attempted to storm the presidential desk.

The members of the right, led by Prince Joachim Murat, flew to the rescue. When the two bodies met fists flew.

The cooler among the deputies rushed in to try and part the combatants, but their efforts had the usual effect of increasing the vigor of the scrimmage. Eyes were blackened and lips and ears were swollen in the melee. M. Arago stood at his place above the tumult, wondering what it was all about and vainly asking someone to explain. Finally he again ordered the sitting suspended, but the battle went on for several minutes until reinforcements of ushers were brought up and succeeded in parting the belligerents and forcing them into the lobby.

After the excitement had subsided and the fighting spirit had cooled down the sitting was resumed and the motion to suspend the parliamentary immunity of Cachin was voted.

MORATORIUM DISCUSSION HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Paris, Jan. 18.—(By The A. P.)—Formal discussion of Germany's request for a moratorium, which was to have begun tomorrow in the reparations commission, has been postponed for a few days, and it now seems probable that initial consideration of the question will not come up until next week.

Among the most important reasons advanced for this delay is the reliably reported effort on the part of Italy to arrange a compromise between Paris and Berlin, with Italy as mediator of the present differences.

Although Italy approved the French policy of economic seizures in the Ruhr valley, it is now clear that Premier Mussolini does not approve of the extensive military operations which the French declare were made necessary by the German policy of passive resistance.

In well informed diplomatic circles it is explained that, while Italy does not intend formally to withdraw her present co-operation in the Ruhr movement, all the efforts of Signor Mussolini are being directed toward an agreement between France and Germany which will make extensive military operations unnecessary.

Italy has requested that an Italian plan yet unrevealed be discussed at the same time as the French plan, when the commission takes up the question of granting a moratorium, and France is believed to have consented to this. England, it is pointed out in an authoritative quarter, would look with interest on Italian intervention in the present situation, but would be strongly inclined to remain out of any possible compromise arising from it on the ground that a compromise would not solve a problem which needs drastic treatment.

On the other hand, certain important reparation experts have been working on a plan during the last two weeks which it is hoped may pave the way for an allied settlement, including Great Britain, on the whole question of reparations.

HOW BERLIN VIEWS AFFAIRS IN THE RUHR

Berlin, Jan. 18—(By the A. P.)—A late hour tonight official quarters here were without information with respect to the execution of the French threat to cite Fritz Thyssen and other industrialists before military courts because of their refusal to obey the orders of the allied economic mission.

The Ruhr situation in general, as view at government headquarters, appears still to be far from clarified. The impression was gained that the French were not making any tangible headway in their attempted enforcement of reprisals. The interception and sequestration of a dozen or more Rhine barges and detention of rolling stock at several points were the only measures of confiscation reported to Berlin today.

It is believed here that sharp intervention in the Rhine traffic will result in the complete cessation of all coal transportation by water, as it is thought the shippers and sales agent will not risk having cargoes seized. Attempts on the part of the occupation authorities to influence the organized railway workers also are reported to have foundered on the stubborn refusal of the men to recognize the French authorities.

Coal shipments to points outside the occupied zones, it was reported tonight, continue of normal volume. They are said today even to have shown a slight increase over Tuesday's movements.

The League of German Industrialists today addressed a congratulatory message to Fritz Thyssen, commending him and his fellow industrialists for their corageous attitude of resistance and assuring them of the league's moral and material support and its determination to stand by the Ruhr population.

CLAIMS ALLIES HAVE GONE BEYOND NEUTRAL ZONE

Paris, Jan. 18.—Herr Von Hoesch, German charge d'affaires at Paris, in a protest made last evening to the French government, it is officially announced, declared that the extension of the Franco-Belgian military occupation had gone beyond the neutral zone established by the Versailles treaty and had reached the proximity of territories occupied by German garrisons.

The French government replied today in effect that the measures taken did not constitute military operations, but were in accordance with the notification given Germany on January 10. The reply added that the resistance of the German industrialists to the orders of the allied authorities for the delivery of coal had forced the allies to proceed to requisitioning.

200,000 BAVARIAN FASCISTI ARMED TO RESIST FRENCH

Munich, Jan. 18 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Adolph Hittler, leader of the national socialists, the nucleus of the Bavarian fascisti organization, announced today that on Sunday he would review 200,000 Bavarian fascisti armed to resist French occupation.

FRENCH ARE PREPARING TO ISSUE CURRENCY

Duesseldorf, Jan. 18.—(By The A. P.)—Closing of the Mayence branch of the German reichsbank had been expected by the French, who declare they are making preparations to issue currency throughout the Rhineland and the Ruhr in the form of a mark or thaler as soon as the shortage of German paper marks becomes acute.

If these arrangements are not completed in time to cope with the crisis, the French say they will allow French and Belgian francs to circulate in the occupied area at a forced rate, to be determined later.

ALLIED TROOPS TO REPLACE AMERICANS ON THE RHINE

Washington, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—The Italian government, it was stated tonight, in well informed circles in reference to certain published reports, is not negotiating with the French government with the view of sending troops to the Rhineland in place of the American troops recently withdrawn. In the same circles denial was also made of published reports that Italy was contemplating sending a high commissioner to Coblenz.

Wallace Reid, Motion Picture Actor, Dead

Had Been Close to Death Several Times in Fight to Overcome the Drug Habit.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 18.—Wallace Reid, motion picture actor, died today at Hollywood.

Reid, at the height of his career as a motion picture actor, collapsed several months ago and after two months absence from the studio on which was was reported to be a nervous breakdown and eye trouble the family made a sensational announcement just before Christmas that he was a victim of drugs and under treatment in a private sanitarium.

The announcement by his mother-in-law was to the effect that more than a year before, while working in studios in New York under a strain of illness, he used drugs for a stimulant to hold him up through production of a picture which later gained fame as one of his best. This was revealed later to have set the drug habit upon him and finally last fall, he broke down at the Hollywood studios and went under a physician's care.

It was a fight to the finish to conquer the drug habit has family made known and during the past month was close to death on several occasions. At Christmas he rallied and indications were that he was on the road to convalescence and only a few days ago his condition was reported showing such signs of improvement that his return to the screen was set for next July.

Reid was born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1892 and educated in New York. His stage career began in vaudeville with his father in "The Girl and the Ranger" and later he entered the motion pictures in the early days of this industry, associating with Selig, Vitagraph and Universal.

His entrance was as a general utility man and he wrote, acted and directed. He was later employed by D. W. Griffith in the production of "The Birth of a Nation" and entered the Lasky employ in Geraldine Farrar's "Carmen."

The end came about 1.30 p. m., in the sanitarium where the actor was taken about a month ago after a nervous breakdown said by his family to have been due to his fight against the narcotic habit.

Reid's wife and children were with him when he died.

HERRIN JURY LOCKED UP FOR THE NIGHT

Marion, Ill., Jan. 18 (By the A. P.)—The jury of Williamson county farmers into whose hands the fate of five men charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman, one of the victims of the Herrin riots, was given shortly before noon today, continued their deliberations tonight without being able to arrive at any verdict.

One report during the afternoon was that the jurors stood 10 to 2 for conviction. Another placed the count at 7 to 5 for acquittal. No grounds could be found for either rumor.

Under the instructions given by Judge D. T. Hartwell, the jury will return separate verdicts for each of the defendants. At the same time the jury will fix the punishment, if any, ranging from death to fourteen years' imprisonment.

"It's murder or nothing," Judge Hartwell said after the jury had retired. He had refused to give any instructions regarding a manslaughter verdict which would carry only a sentence of one year in prison, or to give any instructions regarding self-defense, extreme provocation or justifiable homicide.

"The jury is instructed," the court declared, "that under the law of Illinois it is not unlawful for a person to mine coal without being a member of the United Mine Workers and should any person, be assaulted or killed for no other reason than that they were mining coal without belonging to the United Mine Workers, such assault or killing cannot be justified on the ground that they were mining coal without belonging to the United Mine Workers."

The court also held that if the evidence showed that if the defendants took the prisoners from the mine as a part of a conspiracy which resulted in murder, they were as guilty as though they had taken part in the killing, even if they were actually miles from the scene at the time of the slayings.

At 9.30 o'clock Judge Hartwell announced that he had ordered the jurors locked up for the night and left his office for his home. He said he would be ready to receive a verdict at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, if the jury reached a decision.

ABSOLUTE CENSORSHIP PREVAILS AT HARRISON

Chicago, Jan. 18—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, declared tonight that an "absolute censorship prevails at Harrison, Arkansas."

Mr. Stone said union officials had been unable to get reports from their representatives there on the lynching of one striking railroad man and the whipping of several others.

"The telegraph and the telephone are censored", Mr. Stone declared. "The Western Union office is in the depot of the Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad and the railroad controls absolutely everything that is sent out. We haven't heard from any of our people since the trouble started."

Chicago, Jan. 18—Daniel Hayes, president of an Idaho land company bearing his name, and seventeen co-defendants, are to go to trial in federal court here next Monday on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with land sales centered in Madera and Merced counties, California.

New York, Jan. 18.—Prohibition scored a decisive victory today when a decree issued last September by Federal Judge Manton closing for a year the premises in Columbus circle of the Fifty-eighth Street Restaurant corporation, formerly Reisenweber's, was upheld by the United States circuit court of appeals.

British Opinion of War Debt Refunding

Cabinet Dissatisfied With Final Terms Submitted by the American Commission.

London, Jan. 18—(By the A. P.)—Observers who seek the cause of the present delay in the debt funding negotiations with the United States must be satisfied with the phrase "practical politics" according to British official opinion as expressed this evening.

The British cabinet is plainly dissatisfied with the terms the American debt funding commission finally offered Stanley Baldwin, the chancellor of the exchequer, at the head of the British mission in Washington, believing that what the ministry considers to be the relative economic and financial conditions of the two countries warrant an easier settlement for Great Britain.

Other official circles, whose duty it is to keep advised of the actual conditions in the two countries, express the opinion that the American terms are liberal to the point of generosity, or at least as liberal as any British commission can ever expect.

Prime Minister Bonar Law is declared to share the latter view, for he is an economist as well as a politician, and Mr. Baldwin is believed to be entirely satisfied with the American terms, but to see plainly that his duty is to return to England and outline the full situation before the cabinet.

The desire of the British government to hold out for the best possible settlement will be understood in America, according to official circles, when it is realized that a virtually new government is dealing with a problem which seriously affects the taxpayer.

The American commission, it is pointed out, has had a great advantage over the British mission because it was right at home where its members could have daily conferences with the government leaders and determine the limit of concessions to which congress was likely to agree.

On the other hand, Mr. Baldwin had reached a point where the exchange of information with Downing street by cable had become impracticable, and the only thing to do was to return home, but official circles are confident a basis for a settlement will be reached shortly after his arrival in London.

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBT REFUNDING COMMISSIONS

Washington, Jan. 18—Discussions between the American and British debt commissions were adjourned today, but with an understanding that the negotiations for the refunding of Great Britain's huge war debt to the United States would be continued through the British embassy here after the arrival at any British mission at London at the end of next week.

Upon the conclusion of the final joint session of the commissioners, an official spokesman voiced the expectation that the consultations which the British group are to have with their cabinet immediately in principle in time for action by the American congress at the present session which ends March third. It was agreed that unless there could be an understanding within that time a reparations arrangement could not become operative under one year.

The official spokesman declared there was not anything that should stand in the way of an understanding within the very near future. Generally speaking he said, a plan had been shaped up, but there remained for final determination the more important points, including the exact interest rate and the amounts of the annual payments to be made by the British government. On these, he continued, the commissions were not very far apart.

In declining to discuss details of the various suggestions for a settlement put forward at the joint meetings, the commissioners said these had been of only the most tentative form and that their public discussion at this time might prove embarrassing to the future negotiations.

Coincident with the adjournment of the debt discussions, it was made known that Ambassador Harvey who was recalled from London before the arrival of the British mission in this country, would return to his post in the very near future. It could not be stated, however, whether he would arrive over seas in time to participate in the debt discussions in the British capital should such participation be found desirable by the British.

PLANNING FOR PASSAGE OF THE SHIPPING BILL

Washington, Jan. 18.—Administration leaders in the senate are planning to redouble their efforts to secure passage of the administration shipping bill, now sidetracked for farm credits legislation.

Chairman Jones of the commerce committee, in charge of the bill conferred today with Chairman Lasker of the shipping board, and it was indicated that as soon as the credit program is out of the way, strong pressure will be brought to bear to complete consideration of the shipping measure before congress quits on March 4.

Opponents of the bill still predict that it never would be brought to a vote. Various groups in the senate are making plans to bring legislation on other subjects to the front when the credits legislation is passed.

The deer, believed to belong to a herd which roams over northern West chester county, were apparently driven in to the city by the heavy snows, which have made it difficult for them to obtain food.

GERMANY TO REQUEST THAT BRITAIN ACT AS MEDIATOR

German Government is Sending a Confidential Mission to London—British Official Opinion Deems Attempts Being Made to Mediate Between the French and the Germans Are Entirely Premature.

London, Jan. 18.—The German government is sending a confidential mission to London to request the British government to mediate between France and Germany, says a despatch to the Times from Essen.

TALK OF MEDIATION NOW REGARDED PREMATURE

London, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—The attempts being made, particularly by Italian representation to the allied ambassadors in Rome, to bring about mediation between the French and Germans are entirely premature, according to British official opinion. Likewise it is held that all talk of invoking action by the league of nations, of the good offices of America, are, for the present moment, useless.

It is believed here that no power can divert the French from a coercive policy of obtaining reparation while they are in their present state of mind. Interference would only be likely to delay the time when they are to decide whether military methods of exacting payment from Germany are a success or a failure.

The British see little hope in the situation, information reaching Downing street today indicating that the German attitude is constantly hardening and that German labor and the socialists are supporting the Berlin government to a man.

FRENCH, ITALIANS AND BELGIANS AT COBLENZ

Coblenz, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)) —Three hundred French, Italian and Belgian controllers of customs, finance and forestry will arrive here tomorrow together with several hundred uniformed customs officers for the purpose of inaugurating immediately the control commission's plans. The German officers will be left where they are.

It is expected that only a few million marks will be found in the customs houses, but control of the customs means that any goods sold abroad will be so controlled that foreign currency paid for the would remain in the hands of the customs officials, who will apply the present German law, heretofore not enforced.

The total exportations from the Rhineland annually are placed at 50,000,000,000 gold marks; they include 70 per cent. of all German dyes, quantities of Crefeld Textiles and machinery, locomotives and electrical appliances manufactured at Cologne and the products of the Krupp plant with ten furnaces at Aix-la-Chappell.

It is planned to levy an export tax of from one to ten per cent., then through Central bank receive the foreign money peyment which will be held, but the industrial concerns will receive the equivalent of it in marks or whatever paper money may be issued later.

The customs between the Rhineland and France and Belgium will remain for the present, in order not to disturb prices in those countries. The same applies to Germany.

There will be no attempt to establish a customs barriers along the Rhine, but a strict watch will be kept to prevent the Ruhr and Rhineland industrial from trying to ship out through Germany without registering their exports. The import duties will be collected in the usual manner and the various existing customs clearing houses will be continued.

Forestry exploitation will yield 20,000,000,000 gold marks yearly without intensive or destructive operations. The two largest forests are in the Palatinate, and a third is in the rear of Belgium.

STATEMENT BY "CITIZENS' COURT" AT HARRISON

Harrison, Ark., Jan. 18—Virtually winding up its work of investigating the depredations on railroad property which were said to have occurred during the past two years and to have recently reached such proportions as to cause officials to threaten the suspension of operation of the Missouri and North Arkansas railway, the "committee of 1,000" and the "citizens' court" tonight issued a statement of the result of their efforts. According to the announcement the committee and court will prepare the evidence collected for presentation to the state courts and the legislative committee appointed by Governor McRae yesterday to investigate the riots on the railway and the lynching here of C. E. Gregor, an alleged striker, who was hanged Tuesday from a trestle.

The statement issued by the self-appointed tribunal says in part:

"We welcome the visit of the legislative committee. We are congratulating ourselves on having wound up this situation with a minimum amount of tragedy and unpleasantness. What the civil and court authorities were unable to handle in the past two years the citizens have accomplished in two days' time.

"Some men who have suffered from the strike are still more or less 'hard boiled' but they are few in number and the people of the entire region are ready to forget and forgive animosities."

NEWT GRAY A MEMBER OF THE MASKED BAND

Bastrop, La., Jan. 18.—(By th eA. P.) —Fred Eubanks, of Mer Rouge, testified today in the state's inquiry into the slaying of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richard, that Newt Gray, a member of the Morehouse parish Ku Klux Klan, was one of a masked band which way-laid him on the road from Bastrop on the evening of August 24, the day Daniel and Richard were last seen alive.

"Did you recognize anyone?" a state's attorney asked.

"Yes sir, Newt Gray," the witness replied.

Gray was questioned Monday concerning his whereabouts on the night of the disappearance of Richard and Daniel, but was allowed by the court to refuse to reply. Judge Odom ruling that any testimony which might be incriminating could not be required of a witness.

The "torture machine" with which the bodies of Daniel and Richard were supposed to have been broken and bruised came in today's interrogation in an indirect manner. T. B. Pratt, Jr., was questioned about the equipment of the small sawmill operated by his father and himself, the length of the carriage upon which logs are sawed, the kinds of "dogs" used to hold the logs in place on the carriage, and the number of teeth in the "dogs."

CLOSING SESSION OF THE AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE

Boston, Jan. 18.—The New England agricultural conference ending a session begun at the suggestion of the New England governors, was given a program today for development over the next decade.

Asserting that agriculture and industry were interdependent in New England, Roscoe C. Edmund of Springfield, as committee chairman, made the following recommendations for the program to advance the farming interests:

Organized co-operation locally and in wider units between business associations and agricultural agencies; food surveys with a view to the greater utilization of farm products in local markets, advertising and pushing greater home consumption of New England farm and factory products; orderly marketing of farm products through better organization and the establishment of necessary facilities; co-operation in rural credits, including the establishment of local agencies for appraisal of farm risks; development of better transportation, terminal and port facilities; establishment of a federal board of review authorized to adjust immigration regulations to fit particular needs; adequate measures to suppress agricultural diseases and pests; greater support for research in marketing and production; cooperation between the state departments and colleges looking toward a New England board of agriculture.

AMBASSADOR HARVEY NOW IN NEW YORK CITY

Washington, Jan. 18—Ambassador Harvey, who has been a guest at the White House since January 3, left late tonight for New York. Although no definite statement was made, it was indicated that he might return to Washington some time next week before leaving for his London post.

The departure of Mr. Harvey coincided with that of the British debt commission which left Washington during the day, adding emphasis to the belief that the ambassador's visit to Washington was occasioned primarily by the debt negotiations. During his stay here, however, he has discussed European questions with Secretary Hughes and members of the senate foreign relations committee while his advice is understood to have been valued by President Harding in connection with the European reparations complications.

It is understood that Mr. Harvey expects to attend to personal matters in New York, as he was there only about 24 hours upon arriving from London. The possibility was said to exist, however, that events might require his departure for England without returning here. It was stated officially today that whatever his immediate plans, it was expected that he would sail for his post within a short time in order to be present for negotiations involving the refunding of the British war debt to this country.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
21 Church Street Telephone 1843

The joint meeting of members of the New London and Tolland county farm bureaus and the Windham County Farm Association engaged in poultry raising, held Thursday in the chamber of commerce parlors, was attended by forty-five of the leading poultry raisers in the three counties. The purpose of the meeting was for the discussion of the best method of cooperative marketing of eggs. Paul Mehl, market agent specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural College, presided. Connecticut poultry raisers have no organized system of marketing at the present time, and each raiser carries on his business individually, unlike the raisers of the western states and New Jersey who have an organized system.

Present at the meeting were 20 from Windham county towns, and the remainder were from the other two counties representing owners of 25,000 hens laying 3,750,000 eggs per year. One session was held in the morning at 10.30 o'clock and the following men related their experiences in egg marketing: Charles Brenn of Scotland, Thomas Moore of Central Village, John Labelle of Killingly, H. Benton of Andover, Fred Kannahan of Lebanon, E. M. Searls of Pomfret and A. E. Anthony of Mansfield. Roy Jones of Storrs and Paul Mehl, poultry specialists, then gave talks on the subject.

The afternoon session opened at 2.30 o'clock and was devoted to the forming of an organization. A nominating committee of five was chosen to appoint an organization committee and another on grades and rules, four to a committee; and from these two committees, a general committee of three to handle the affairs of the organization.

The election of officers then followed.

A hearing was held before Deputy Motor Vehicle Commissioner Snow at the capitol in Hartford, Wednesday afternoon in regard to the automobile accident which took place on Main street in this city, Sunday evening, July 16, 1922, at which time Thomas F. Shea, proprietor of the Elite restaurant, No. 829 Main street, was knocked down and run over by an automobile owned and driven by "Jack" Oguschewitz. The story of the accident was repeated at the hearing in Hartford.

Those who testified were Thomas F. Shea, John Shea and Officers Frank McLean and Roderick Lariviere of the Willimantic police department. Deputy Snow cautioned Oguschewitz to be more careful in the future when operating an automobile on the streets and never to take chances in attempting to pass by people who might be crossing the street. He then announced that the operator's license of the accused would be suspended for sixty days.

Thomas F. Shea was a patient in St. Joseph's hospital for several weeks as the result of the accident and sustained a number of fractured ribs.

In the local police court last September Oguschewitz was charged with reckless driving but the evidence in the case was not strong enough for a conviction and the accused was acquitted.

The stockholders of the Willimantic Industrial Company elected the following directors for the ensuing year: Robert B. Hirsch, George F. Taylor, Frank Larrabee, Fred D. Jordan, M. E. Lincoln, Walter B. Knight and Ernest Rossie.

The officers as elected follow: President, George F. Taylor; vice president, Walter B. Knight; secretary-treasurer, M. E. Lincoln; assistant treasurer, F. M. Lincoln; auditors, Fred A. Sanderson and H. D. Pollard.

Thursday morning was the coldest yet experienced in this city, and the night force of patrolmen of the local police department all state that they are willing to testify to that fact. At daybreak the thermometer at the police station registered six below zero and at sunrise and shortly after the average readings were two below in the city and as cold as eight below at six o'clock at the pumping station. As usual the record figures were received from Dion's store on Chapman street where the mercury sunk to 10 below. A number from surrounding towns reported five and six below zero at six o'clock. The weather took another turn during the day, however, and in the afternoon became comparatively mild with the prospects of rain.

COM'R CHANDLER TALKS BEFORE WILLIMANTIC CHAMBER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 18.—At the regular supper and meeting of the Chamber of Commerce which was held on Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, George B. Chandler state secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and compensation commissioner of the first congressional district was the speaker. President Valentine L. Murphy, presided over the meeting.

Senator W. P. Dillingham had been secured to deliver an address on Immigration, but late Thursday afternoon a communication was received from him stating that he had missed train connections at White River Junction, Vt., and that he would be forced to cancel the engagement for the evening. A few hours later another communication was received from him in which he stated that he had just received a telegram from his home in Vermont advising him of the death of a near relative. Upon this announcement it was voted by the members of the chamber to have the president and secretary draw up a resolution expressing the regret and sympathy of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce for the aged senator's bereavement and to forward a copy to Mr. Dillingham.

State Secretary Chandler was then introduced by W. C. Norris of the entertainment committee. Mr. Chandler delivered a stirring address on Immigration which held the undivided attention of his large audience.

The sense of Mr. Chandler's speech was that only races which have a capacity to amalgamate and diffuse into the American race which would be allowed to enter this country. He believes that the solidarity of race groups is a dangerous social and political problem. As an example he mentioned the fact that some men are nominated for offices not because of their ability in fulfilling the office but because they are a drawing card for the voters of a very powerful racial group of that vicinity. The secretary named a number of races which are easily or oven mechanically Americanized and said that the influx of immigrants from southern and eastern Europe is the real cause of our danger. Public schools and successfully conducted night schools for adults are a solution of the Americanization programme but in either case it generally takes three or more generations to thoroughly Americanize the foreigner. Intermarriage, however, is one good way to obtain a homogenious type of an American from the foreign element.

He stated that in his opinion there would never be a proper immigration bill passed, probably for the reason of industry in which the business man is always calling for more help, also the voting power of the racial groups who wish to allow members of their races to enter this country.

He believes that party spirit is a saving and preservation of our institutions. The idea of an immigration bill he said was to inspect every immigrant who wished to come here before he left his own country, in order to determine whether that person is fit mentally, morally, or physically to become an American and enjoy American rights and freedom. He remarked that if he were doing the selecting he would not restrict it to three per cent., but would allow the immigration of any person who was it to come to this country and would not live here for generations as an alien and as the parent of alien children.

In summing up his talk Secretary Chandler stated that if all racial groups consisting of immigrants who come into this country, retain their native language and adhere to their native lands although drawing the riches of this country and to sometimes oven distinguishing themselves by living in a certain section of the city, could be broken up, then the problem of immigration would be practically solved. Secretary Chandler was given a rousing vote of thanks for his interesting talk. Before the meeting adjourned W. C. Norris announced that the next monthly meeting would be held February 6th and that at that meeting a debate would be heard whether or not the Eighteenth Amendment is a financial and social benefit to this country.

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK.

Geoffrey Dawson, who has been named again as editor of the London "Times," left the editorship of that paper because of repeated disagreements with Lord Northcliffe and became secretary of the Rhodes Trust, in which capacity he served as personal adviser to Lord Milburn, head of that powerful organization. ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Silver Wings" Coming to the Breed.

Remembered for her magnificent performance in "Over the Hill," Mary Carr, as the mother and leading figure around which the plot of "Silver Wings" revolves, adds greatly to her growing popularity. No less successful are her several children, who appear with her in the supporting cast.

"Silver Wings" is one of those photo-dramas, unusual, to say the least, which moves one to wonder. It is not easily forgotten. Portraying the part of Anna Webb, Mary Carr is the mother of a numerous brood, among which is Harry, her favorite. She yields to his ever desire, to the extent that this boy loses his sense of proportion just as he grows into manhood. Meantime, the family has prospered, and as it draws away from the poverty of early life, Harry's ambitions take fanciful flights. He is drawn into the meshes of unscrupulous promoters and the uncertain paths of night life.

These entanglements lead gradually into embezzlement, which he places on the shoulders of his brother, John, who from childhood had been the weakling of the family. John, in desperation, disappears rather than tell his mother of Harry's duplicity. In the meantime Harry chooses the engagement of his sister to a workingman and she leaves. Harry then has a free path in the family and he quickly brings the mother to financial ruin.

The reuniting of the family again comes with the finding of Harry in a cheap Bowery lodging-house where he attempt suicide after two years of the direst poverty. Even under these circumstances mother love is the dominant theme, and in her declining years the mother forgets the misdeeds of the errant son and once more the family starts out to retrieve its fortune.

Not only is the photography flawless but Mrs. Carr is surrounded by an excellent cast and marvelously directed by Jack Ford and Edwin Carewe. In "Silver Wings" William Fox has left nothing undone to provide screen followers with the best in photoplays.

"Silver Wings" will be shown at the Breed theatre for five days, starting Sunday.

Pleasing Programme at the Broadway.

A fine variety of Keith vaudeville was presented at the Broadway theatre yesterday that pleased a filled house.

The bill opened with Cornell, Leona and Zippy in varieties a-la-carte. They sing and dance while ppy, the dog, does imitations and furnish quite a little comedy.

Reiff Bros. call themselves the singing and dancing humorists and succeed in putting over their act very nicely.

Hayward and Irwin are two girls with pleasing personalities. Their songs and comedy were well received.

The Four Miners are great singers and are one of vaudeville's greatest singing quartettes. They have a good variety of songs in ensemble and solos and were merited by the applause they received.

The shocks and shivers of a thriller the heart-interest of a poor-rich romance, the quaint comedy of a rural home and the volcanic action that leaves not a dull moment—all of these will be found in good measure in the six reel feature now at the Broadway theatre, "The Curse of Drink." The stars alone are worth seeing in themselves—Harry Morey, Edmund Breese, Marguerite Clayton, George Fawcett and Miriam Batista, child-prodigy of filmland.

"Ebb Tide" is Startling. Now at the Strand.

There came to the Strand theatre last night a new Paramount picture, "Ebb Tide," which proved to be one of the most startling photoplays of the year and a worthy successor of Mr. Melford's previous great successes, "The Sheik," and "Burning Sands."

"Ebb Tide" is a picturization of the famous story by R. L. Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne of a man who has sunk to the lowest level of degradation—the "ebb tide" of man's affairs. His regeneration forms the theme of the story. James Kirkwood plays the man, and Lila Lee is seen in the leading feminine role. Other featured parts are in the capable hands of Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan. The story is enthralling, and the situations as a rule are highly dramatic. George Melford has made a picture that does full credit to Stevenson's powerful imagination.

Altogether, this picture is one that will amaze and entertain all who see it, for it treats of a phase of life with which few are familiar. The work of the featured players.

A comedy and news complete the programme.

Breed Theatre.

Coming to the Breed theatre today and tomorrow is a new Fox picture starring Charles Jones. It is called "West of Chicago." Supporting Jones is the vivacious, winsome Renee Adoree, whose acting in Fox productions of late has been the subject of a great deal of very complimentary comment.

According to advance notices, this photoplay is filled with thrills. The action takes place near the Mexican border. To quote the producer:

"Startling scenes follow each other in rapid succession. A powerful sweep of dramatic strength carries the mind of the spectator right along to the end. Romance is deftly woven in the story, and there are many touches of comedy."

In previous photoplays Charles Jones' acting has been particularly noteworthy. If all the other elements required to make a good motion picture are on a par with the work of this star, a night of real entertainment is assured theatre-goers.

Adding up the advance news with the possibilities of the picture, the Breed theatre should play to capacity audiences.

Charles Hutchinson will also be seen in the last chapter of "Go Get 'Em Hutch," and the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Free Moving Pictures on Scientific Poultry Raising and Management.

Five reels of moving picture film comprising in all seven thousand feet will be shown at the Grange hall, Norwich, Monday evening, January 22, 1923, at 8 o'clock, free to the poultry raising public.

These pictures are chuck full of helpful suggestions that an interested poultry raiser can put into practical use for his personal benefit. The electric incubator and its operation throughout the entire incubator period are shown; then you will have an opportunity to see how best to set a hen, nest her, feed her, and in general give her the care that she requires in order to secure maximum results.

The interior arrangement of the laying and breeding houses, sanitation and ventilation is another subject that is treated in an understandable and helpful way.

Some standard bred to perfection specimens of the popular breeds of fowl will also be shown and the amount of feed each bird consumes per year and what it should consist of. The cost of raising young chicks and producing a pound of gain which is of great importance at this time of the year and also interesting shown.

Then to give the poultry raisers an opportunity to see what the big fellows are doing, two reels are devoted exclusively to visits to Oak Dale Farm, Leroy, Minn., the largest single comb white leghorn plant in the United States and the other reel to spending the day with M. Cecil Sheppard the Ancona King at Berea, Ohio.

Always a Reverse Side.

Seems that most of the plans for prolonging life are also plans for making it miserable.—Nashville Tennessean.

ATHLETIC RELATIONS SEVERED BETWEEN COLGATE AND LEHIGH

Hamilton, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Colgate and Lehigh universities have severed athletic relations, according to announcement today by Graduate Manager W. A. Reid of Colgate University. The action is the outcome of a contest played last fall at Binghamton in which unnecessary roughness resulted in severe injuries to members of the Colgate varsity.

According to agreement Colgate was scheduled to play Lehigh on November 3, 1923, but refused and made arrangements to meet the United States Naval Academy on that date. Lehigh recently wrote the Naval Academy officials asking that the game be cancelled. Since then the presidents of Lehigh and Colgate have conferred and word was received from Lehigh today that relations had been severed and that Colgate was released fom all obligation.

WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY AT RYE, ON OCT. 1 TO 6

New York, Jan. 18.—The United States Golf association today announced that October 1 to 6 had been fixed tentatively for the 1923 Women's National championship at the Westchester-Biltmore club in Rye.

The women's championship committee had recommended that the event be held a week earlier, to avoid a conflict with the Canadian Women's championship. The October date, however, it was said, was tentatively selected because, if held earlier, the woman's championship would follow too closely on the heels of the men's national amateur tournament, booked at Chicago, September 10 to 16, and handicap the work of officials handling both events.

A conference probably will be held soon to reach a definite decision.

Entries in this year's woman's tournament will be limited for the first time. Only players with handicap ratings of 14 or under will be permitted to play in the qualifying round. The handicaps will be certified to the U. S. G. A. by the regional golf association.

Players with similar handicaps will be paired in the qualifying test and in the match play among the 32 survivors. The numeral system will be followed. Under this system, half of the draw will be composed of players qualifying in the odd-numbered positions—1, 3, one, three, five, etc.—while the other half will include the even-numbered contestants.

HARVARD TO CHANGE METHOD OF GIVING LETTERS

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 18.—A change in the method of awarding the varsity football "H" was approved by the Harvard Athletic committee tonight at the the suggestion of the student council. Henceforth, it was announced, the football letter may be awarded to men who do not figure in the annual Yale game, provided the head coach and the captain of the team select such men. The change, it was said, would make unnecessary the system of rushing substitutes into the Yale game to qualify them for their letters.

The committee authorized an appropriation of $500 toward the expenses of an Oxford-Cambridge tennis team to come here next summer.

The varsity fencing, tennis, lacrosse and gymnastic schedules were made public. The lacrosse programme includes the following dates: April 17, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 19, Rutgers at New Brunswick; 21 Crescent Athletic club at Brooklyn; May 2, Hobart; 5, Princeton; 12, Syracuse; 19, Cornell; 26, Yale at New Haven.

TRAINING STABLES NOW HAVING BUSY TIME

Among the winter training camps for trotters and pacers, now at the summit of activity in all parts of the land, the stables of Thomas W. Murphy and Walter R. Cox are the busiest, with each having more than 100 horses in training. This is the season when the owners are at constant expense, with nothing coming in to compensate for it. Sulkies and carts used last year have to be repaired or replaced, the harness has to be overhauled, while the shoer is taking stock. Horses that were blistered or fired last fall are being jogged and the dentist is paying his visits. All these items and numerous others make a serious cut in paying last season's winnings.

Top-liners in training in the Murphy stable are Peter Manning and Margaret Dillon. The Azoff gelding will be given special preparation to reduce the world's records, while Margaret Dillon will be raced in the free-for-alls. For the fast trotting classes Murphy has Czar Worthy, Princess, Atawah, Rose Scott, Plain Mac, Hope Frisco, Carmilita Hall and Peter Drew. Iskander, Lambert Todd and Dixie Direct, three pacers that won all of their engagements in 1922, have been purchased to strengthen the stable where it was weak last season. Worthy Son was also selected for a stake horse. For the futurities Murphy will have a sister to Rose Scott, Real Frisco, a half brother to The Real Lady, and Conclave, 2.10. During the last fourteen years Murphy has won $1,456,006.53 in purses.

Last season Cox topped the list of winning drivers with forty-five victories, while he gathered in $65,418.11. If not handicapped by lame horses, the chances are that he will repeat with Abbedale, The Laurel Hall, Sunflash, John Henry, The Great Volo, Grayworthy, Sunvity, Let Fly, Emma Harvester, Ethelinda, El Colora o, Baron Etawah, Volgoda, McGregor the Great, and the recruits, Peter Piaff, Lee Wynolot, Mary Kenna, Don Caton, Fair May, Max Frisco and Frances Hale.

W. K. Dickerson is busy at Goshen with the Arden Homestead Stable. It includes Pluto Watts, Alta Quest, Atlantic Star, Zombro Dillon, Mary Vo and Silver Frisco, 2.13 3-4. They will be seen in the matinees, the Orange County Circuit and on the mile track meetings after the stables reach the eastern loop.

Fred Hyde, at Goshen, is starting the 1923 preparation of Mary O'Connor, with which he won eight out of sixteen races last year; Iva Lou and Sir Etawah, the only colt that defeated Trumpet.

At Brook Farm Lyman Brusie's group includes Edith Worthy, Queen Etawah, a sister to Princess Etawah; Errorless and the Belwin pacer, Palmetto, with a two-year-old record of 2.07 1-2.

Lees's String at Monroe.

William Leese is wintering at Monroe. He had a good season in 1922 with Hilda Fletcher, Mr. Kent, Miss Affection, Worthy Etawah and Julia C., and expects to repeat this year. Out of seventy-seven starts he won twenty-seven races, while he finished second in fifteen, third in twenty-two and fourth in thirteen. It is reported that Ve. Patchen will be one of his pupils this year.

Arthur Marfin is located at Oneonta, N. Y., with Captain Sanford's stable. According to report, this stable will be seen in 1923 on the larger ovals with Silky Mac, Son of Peter, Captain Mack, George W., and Bingen Rivers.

The perennial Sliqua is wintering at Stony Ridge, N. Y., while State Post is at Mineola with Trumpet. Etta Rico and the colts which Charles Welland purchased at the Old Glory sale. He may have another youngster that will prove a leader in the Bay State Circuit.

The Hillandale Farm horses are in the home stables at Mamaroneck, with Harry Flemming in charge. Nothing has been said yet as to what will be done with Nedda this year. The Atlantic Express youngsters will, however, be in evidence with Escotillo in the offing as a free-for-all candidate.

W. T. Crozier and James Small are at Charter Oak Park, Hartford. The latter had Frank Whitcom's stable, while Crozier is busy with Peter Striper, Ed Mack, Harkness E., and Great Expectations, all of which were winners at Cherry Park in October, and the San Francisco pacer, Sparkie.

Roy Martin has his horses at Rockville, Conn. His group includes the useful trio, Hollyrood Fancy, Hollyrood Frisco and Guesswork. At Windsor, Conn., Harry Brusie is looking after the comfort of Sakura, Dr. Nick, Gold Quartz, Mauna Loa and Mauna Lea. The H. L. Hendy horses and the trotters owned by David Young are wintering at Springfield, Mass. The latter has a clever pair in Little Mary and Peter Uister.

Fred Chamberlain is busy with a stable of youngsters at Northampton, Mass. He hopes to find another Millie Irwin. At Greenfield, Roger Rourke has over fifty head which he purchased at the auctions so as to be in a position to supply the Bay State Circuit patrons with racing material. He passed out the clever pair, Baronatta and Iskander.

The Irish Lad at Worcester.

Edward Moulton is wintering The Irish Lad and Leon Gambetta at Worcester, where Van Houton arrived recently with Bill Sharen. W. R. Flemming has the strongest stable at Readville. His list includes Alliewood the Great, Lord Frisco, The Sherwood, Victory Loan, Succharose, The Ultimate, Old Partner, Peter Look and Rochelle Maid. Rodney is busy at Readville with Watts-in-Bond and Chop Suey, while Jack Monroe has Ada Mac and Miss Azoff. He may find another Margaret Dillon. The colts by Chestnut Peter and Peter Mozart take up the time of Norman Tallman and Henry Titer.

At Combination Park, Frank Fox, Lester Dore and Joe Johnson are busy with a clever lot of trotters and pacers. Fox still has old reliable Red Russell. The Johnson outfit includes Anoakie, Peter Kennedy, the reliable pair, James Albert and Berney Hayt, and the Wolfenden trio, Native Judge, Peter Hopeful and Forest E.

Sam Hastings has sent Arrow Tranby and Henry Direct to winter with his other horses at Barton, Vt. Wes Gibbons is wintering at Palestrina at Readville. If she comes out sound next spring it will take a star to catch her.

A hop to New Jersey finds Tommy Berry located at Flemmington after a busy season with Parker Boy, Bovola, Tonka Patch, Betina and Moko Dillon. Last year Berry won thirty out of sixty-nine races, eleven of them being credited to Parker Boy.

Herman Tryson's tab for 1922 gives him twenty victories out of sixty-eight starts. His best pupils were Mrs. Yerkes, Lord Gale, Grovertown, Idol Bergen, Guy Worthy and North East. All of them will be raced again in the Tyson stable except Mrs. Yerkes. She has been sent to Murphy. During the fall Old Glory sale Mary Rose and Finvarra were added to the Tyson outfit.

Pitman has his horses at Trenton, N. J. The best of the lot on public form are Hazel Kuestner and Peter Buskirk. The former won eight races last year.

REFUNDING THE DEBT.

In connection with the debt refunding deadlock there is nothing to indicate that the situation is hopeless. Both commissions are under the control of their creators. They have entered into negotiations with a full recognition of the fact that whatever agreement they reach must be approved by their respective governments. This means of course that the visitors have not been willing to give their sanction to something they do not believe would meet with approval, while the American commissioners have had certain limits fixed within which they can act.

While there is a desire to have the matter adjusted as soon as possible, the chief reason for preventing any needless delay at this time lies in the fact that the agreement must be reached within a few weeks if it is going to be ready for action by the present congress. Inasmuch as congressional approval must be had failure to get it before the present congress means a delay of a number of months unless there should be a special session called. Just now efforts are being made to avoid that.

Because of the lack of a detailed report concerning the progress of the negotiations the prospects of an early agreement are not clear. From the reports the one big obstacle seems to be in the rate of interest to be paid. Here the American commission apparently feels that the rate should not be less, by any considerable amount, than this country is paying on the money borrowed to loan to Great Britain. The visiting financiers figure on a rate that might prevail under normal conditions or when money was available in almost any sum.

The discussions thus far have served to inform the respective commissions more clearly as to the views of the other. Even though an understanding between the commissions was thought possible before a suspension of the negotiations it doesn't appear as yet that the temporary halting of the discussion will necessarily mean a permanent deadlock. Feelers have been put out and now the impressions gained from them can be studied.

FEED THE BIRDS.

Such appeals as are being made in behalf of the birds are timely and well directed. Heavy snow for a prolonged period deprives them of their food supplies and it is a case of turning up their toes unless they receive something to prevent them from starving.

Food sources in winter may be limited but the greater part of what they would ordinarily get with no snow on the ground is shut off from them when ice and snow prevail.

Those who do not appreciate the birds, and know their value, are small in number. Whether it is the songster or the game bird that the most interest is given to, it is clearly evident that this is the time to go to their assistance with food. Sometimes we do not understand how they accomplish it but our winter birds withstand the severest weather if well fed. We want them for the pleasure they give and the good they do. It is therefore incumbent upon us to see that they are given sufficient crumbs, meat scraps, suet tied to a tree, or in the case of the game birds grain, chaff from the barn floor or most anything in the food line that can be gotten where they will find it will meet the situation.

There are those who make a point of feeding the birds regularly regardless of the winter. They take delight in their company and they like to encourage it. Great numbers of others are impressed by what bird lovers do in this respect, but too often is it the case that they fail to think of it until the emergency has passed and others happen to relate what they have been doing, and tell of the pleasure they get out of such philanthropy.

It is because of so many instances of this kind that those who have their thoughts on the birds much of the time feel impelled to set forth the need for relief when conditions like the present prevail. Help now means the prevention of starvation for many thousands of birds.

DISPROVE GERMAN CLAIMS.

No substantial encouragement is given to sympathizers for Germany by the reports to the effect that a surplus supply of coal that will serve that country for two months has been piled up outside the Ruhr valley, and that when that is gone the necessary amount of coal will be imported.

That of course indicates that Germany isn't so bad off as it has been represented to be. It is not only able to keep going but so well prepared that it doesnt intend that the move into the Ruhr basin by the French will interfere with the industrial operations of the country.

Possibly that may be a good thing for Germany, but does it create greater confidence in that government? It is to be remembered that Germany has been maintaining that it couldn't pay. That it was not able to respond to the demands made in the form of gold marks, in the shape of coal, wood and other things. Because of this inability to pay it has ceased to keep its promises and given the impression that it was not that it didn't intend to live up to the terms of the treaty of Versailles, but that the terms had been fixed so that it was an absolute impossibility for it to do so. In other words Germany has represented that the demands were greater than it could supply, and greater than it ought to be expected to produce in the way of reparations.

A two months supply of coal for Germany may not represent such a great quantity in comparison with its total output. But the very fact that it has held out that amount while it was saying that it could not produce the supply places it in an unfavorable light. In fact it misrepresented the situation and the admission now made strengthens more than ever the attitude that France has been taking right along. The reports substantiate the decisions that Germany is in default through intention. It indicates anew that while Germany can pay it doesn't intend to if it can help it.

CONNECTICUT FARM EXPOSITION.

In every way the effort should be made to make the agricultural production in Connecticut bigger and better. In most every direction inquiry will show that this state has a large acreage of what amounts now to little more than waste land, that by the application of the proper attention and methods that acreage could be made productive and there could be made available for the market a much great quantity of the provisions that the people of this state require. Not only is this true of vegetables, but of fruit, lumber, dairy products, grain and to a certain degree the meat supply.

The need of awakening the people of the commonwealth to the opportunities that lie in this direction, either for those who now own the land that is available for such purposes, or others who might be interested, is being more and more recognized. Delay simply means a continuation of the waste that has been going on for years.

Connecticut is rated as a manufacturing state, and yet that doesn't mean that there are no agricultural opportunities. There are those who have long since been convinced of what Connecticut can produce in the way of necessities, and they have proceeded to demonstrate it. Such cases of agricultural, horticultural, poultry, dairy or forestry work furnish the best incentive to others. It is an old but excellent saying that what has been done can be repeated, and with such an idea in mind there is a goal to struggle for.

Undertaken for such a purpose the Connecticut winter exposition to be held next week at Hartford should serve as a great object lesson as to what is obtainable from the soil of the Nutmeg state. The importance of directing attention to the Connecticut farm possibilities is thereby emphasied and in the effort to increase such production too much attention cannot be turned in that direction. Tillers of the soil and Connecticut as a state need all the benefits that can be obtained from such an exhibition. It should be as highly instructive and beneficial when an exposition deals with farm activities as when other interests are dealt with.

THE HOME RULE LAW.

The report of the committee there has been looking into the question of uniform charters for the cities of the state reports to the general assembly and recommends that it repeal the existing home rule bill.

It was not so long ago that this piece of legislation was warmly welcomed, inasmuch as it gave the communities a chance to have control over affairs which directly affected them, instead of having such matters continued in the hands of those who were not interested. There was an advantage given to the cities that they didn't have before. They were not obliged to exercise it if they did not desire to, and there have been cities which have continued to go to the legislature for their charter changes.

It was under the provision of the home rule act that Norwich undertook to bring its charter up to date last year. Unfortunately that effort failed, but it failed through the act of the people of this community rather than by the act of a legislative body made up of representatives from the entire state. The home rule bill gave the people of Norwich a chance to be heard concerning its own interests instead of leaving it to outsiders, and Norwich continues to have what it voted for even though it keeps in force an antiquated charter that ought to be modernized.

If there are weak features regarding the law which the committee has discovered it would be interesting to learn why they could not be strengthened without destroying the whole law and removing advantages now possessed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The question now is whether the shovelers or winter will suffer from a broken back first.

The man on the corner says: There are times when those who want an old fashioned winter have their appeals answered.

The fact finding commission has dealt with the coal situation in such a way that the final report will be awaited with keener interest.

It is to be hoped those wanting an old fashioned winter will cry enough before winter has gone all through its category of storms and cold waves.

Perhaps the fact that Bergdoll has decided to remain in Europe is a sufficiently good sign that the possibility of another war over there has disappeared.

If a snow storm means that Old Harry is shaking his featherbed there's reason to believe that he has been cutting the ticks preparatory to using mattresses.

Even though hundreds of millions have been lost in worthless investments the past year there will be those who will be interested in those 18,000 German marks for a dollar.

When a commission associated with the national board of review of motion pictures refuses to include Arbuckle films in its approved list it shows its interpretation of the public sentiment as expressed since the Hays decision.

FAMILY ADVICE

"I just saw some of the loveliest pictures that Minima Buttle has had taken of herself," began the tolerably young married woman. "They are perfectly beautiful and I am crazy to have some, like them! Then when little Hollister and Arabinta are grown up they will be so glad to have them to see how I looked when they were babies!"

"Having pictures taken is an awfully serious thing," warned the tolerably young woman's cynical brother. "I once was acquainted with a remarkably contented married couple who had lived together in peace and amnity for years until the wife had some photographs made for her husband's birthday. He took one long studious look at them and murmuring, "Has she really, actually looked like this all the time?" he ran hastily down the primrose path as though in terror of his life. And she got no alimony, either, because he had spent it all before the judge got the decree written out.

"So if I were you—you're a good looking girl, Lobelia, but I wouldn't tempt fate and cause your devoted husband really to look at you and see you.

"Anyhow, little Hollister and Araminta fifteen years from now would not believe on a bet that you ever had looked like the picture. Their imagination will be green and crude and they won't be able to imagine backward.

"'What!' they will say. 'It isn't possible that our fat, slightly wrinkled mother with the iron gray hair ever looked as perky and thin and vampish as this photo! The photographer was just kidding her. Anyhow, photographs have gone out of style and let's throw the queer thing into the bottom drawer!'"

"You are a happy woman now," chimed in the frivolous cousin who was calling with the cynical brother at the time. "Nothing is so apt to ruin a person's whole life as a bout with the photographer. You haven't a care on earth and nothing to worry about, so why take on a bunch of photographic proofs? Hortensia Hemp is invariably getting her picture in the papers for something or other so she has to have new ones frequently, and whenever you arrive at Hortensia's abode you have to stop abruptly in the entrance door because the entire living room floor will be covered with large rows of large-size proofs. There are views of Hortensia looking upward, downward and sideways, full face, side face and over-the-shoulder effect.

"There will be so many views that at first glance you might think it would be no trick at all to select three or four as ideal and stick a stamp on them—but no! 'I like this one,' Hortensia will murmur. Whereupon her maternal aunt will moan, 'Goodness, gracious! Don't have that one finished! Look at the way it shows up your nose! Goodness!'

"Little brother says he thinks such a one is swell, whereupon Hortensia drags it from him. It positively is the worst of the lot—will he look at the way her eyelashes are sort of smeared and the queer expression on that ear?

"They appeal to me and I warily select a couple. Hortensia bursting into tears as I do so. She thought I was a friend of hers, she did, and if I think that caved-in face like that looks like her, good-by!

"Hortensia confided to me once that she had had 1,000 photos of herself taken since first she smiled upon this sphere and that up to date not one of them had ever been thoroughly approved of by everybody. If it was her father's favorite her mother abhorred it and if it was fiance's particular pet all his friends, first viewing it, would ask who was the wreck and was it wished on him. If folks had to admit that the features were excellent they moaned about how sad it was her beautiful coloring failed to show in a black and white print, and if she had 'em tinted they said my, why did she do that? How artificial they did look to be sure!

"From a happy, blithesome girl Hortensia is becoming a nervous, blighted being, and if she'd only quit having pictures taken she might hope to get over it, but she's got the habit, which in some ways is worse than cocaine! No matter what a nice picture you might get now, when little Arminta sees it as you hand it to her when she starts to college she will shriek with laughter.

"'That dress!' she will gurgle. 'And your hair! Mother! Did you really do your hair in that simply ridiculous way when you were young? How perfectly awfully funny? Why, I wouldn't have any of the girls see this for worlds!' So you'd better leave her out of the calculation!"

"What's the matter with the picture you had taken ten years ago in your wedding dress?" argued the tolerably young woman's husband in real curiosity. "Why, that's a fine picture of you, Lobelia!"

"You see?" demanded the cynical brother, "Don't wake him up!"

"I don't care!" the young married woman said in exasperated tones. "I liked Minima Buttle's pictures just terribly and I shall have mine taken anyhow, and I don't believe one word any of you have said!" — Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Marie de Medici, Wife of Henry of Navarre

Marie de Medici, daughter of Cosimo and niece of the infamous Catherine de Medici, became the wife of Henry IV of France, better known as Henry of Navarre, in the first year of the seventeenth century, shortly after he had divorced her equally noted cousin, Margaret of Valois. Beautiful, brilliant, carnal, shallow, but above all vain and luxury loving, Marie swayed the French court to a marked degree.

She, like so many women of the nobility and royalty, did not love her husband, nor, apparently, did he love her. It was a marriage of state and they went their own several ways with the utmost unconcern. Marie filled the court with gay and brilliant people, and had as her particular favorite, the dashing Duke of Buckingham. Her greatest interest seems to have been art and architecture. She was at the head of the decadent renaissance period for art and decoration. It was Marie who built the Hotel de la Force, the Louvre and an endless number of palaces in the utmost ornate baroque style.

Many artists were presnt at her court notably Peter Paul Rubens, that engaging diplomatist-painter, who is said to have been deeply infatuated with the beautiful queen. He painted 24 life-size portraits of Marie, among the treasures of France today. They show her in various episodes of her life and were one more proof of her vanity. This was again manifested by the great number of banquets which she had set up in honor of all guests of state and family visiting Paris. She spent much time brewing beauty potions and love charms, for she, like most people of her day, was highly superstitious. Also she was one of the early exponents of the milk bath as a beauty inducer.

Her Henry, however, who was far more interested in his first wife, Marie meant nothing but the mother of his son, who became Louis XIII. She lived in queen of France in the most magnificence until the assassination of Henry in 1610. Then Marie returned to Italy to continue her luxurious existence, in spite of the enmity of her aunt, Catherine.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

There are in France many soldiers who, no matter how they try to seek or disguise themselves in civil clothing bear inevitably the hallmark of their profession. The commander of the French army of occupation, General Marie Joseph Degoutte is not of this type. Though he wears the regulation military moustache and, though behind his glasses his eyes shine keenly and sternly, he gives one the impression of a scholar, a student, and at the same time a cultivated man of the world, rather than of a warrior. Like so many other great French soldiers, General Degoutte graduated in the hard and arduous colonial school. He was commissioned to the French Zouaves, and with that fine battalion he earned decorations for fighting in Tonis, Madagascar, China, Algeria and Morocco. At the outbreak of the Great war he held the rank of colonel. He speedily revealed his military genius and rapidly won promotion. On this side he is best remembered as the French general who led the American and French troops to victory at Chateau-Thierry.

TEST OF RESPCT FOR LAW.

What about the enforcement of law?

That splendid American, the Honorable Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state, says: "Everybody is ready to sustain the law he likes. That is not in the proper sense respect for law and order. The test of respect for law is where the law is upheld even though it hurts."

Law must be, and must be obeyed. Yet there are those who argue that the breach of the prohibition law is excusable. Some say it is laudable, while others are defiant and make it their business in life to forward their sinister work of doing those things that the law prohibits. There are others that go still further, and in their wild thirst for gain the lives of their victims count not, and murder is added to fraud, when they trade upon the weaness of their fellows and for fabulous prices sell deadly poison.

When I begin to analyze the crowd opposed to prohibition I must confess I am impressed neither with their quality nor their reasoning. Clean and loyal citizens, opposed to prohibition, place their reputation in jeopardy by such association. How sorrowful that opposition to prohibition has united, as in a great dragnet, the good and the bad, so that the respected citizen and the professional brewer are cogitating and co-operating together for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment! But—"they shall not pass."

The prohibition law sprang from the soil and the soul. It germinated in remote and sacred places where mothers pray and fathers plank. The country church, the country W. C. T. U., the country home and school took the lead—the west far in advance of the east. Long and wearisome has been the struggle. Shall those who fought and gained it never go back? "Kansas," William Allen White says, "and states of her tradition and her kind would no more lose their forty years' fight for prohibition than they would lose their four years' fight against slavery."—Extract from address by Commander Evangeline Booth made before the National W. C. T. U. and published in The War Cry.

Stories That Recall Others

The Nerve of Some Persons.

Doris is a 17 months' old daughter, who, while off a visit recently to the grandparents of her mother started to toddle into another room after her mother, Mrs. Margery ——, only to have the door closed in her face.

"Well, Margery!" the little girl exclaimed in pained surprise.

Patrol Wagon, a Taxi.

A much inebriated individual, hat awry, the smell of liquor heavy on his breath was halted one night by a policeman as he was weaving, his way along most uncertainly.

"Where are you going?" asked the officer.

"I'm g-g-going down to n' eye speshulest t' git a p-pair o' glasses so I kin see," he hiccoughed.

It was a case for the patrol wagon, which soon responded, but before the man would enter he asked:

"Officer, how much is this taxi going to cost me?"

When assured that the charge would be nominal he entered the wagon.

WAS WEAK, DEPRESSED AND NERVOUS

Says Wincarnis Gave New Health

"I feel in duty bound to write and thank you for the wonderful benefit I have received from your splendid 'Wincarnis.' For months I had been depressed and nervous, and so weak I could hardly walk, and I felt I wanted to be always sitting or lying down. But your 'Wincarnis' has put New Life into me. I can now go about my work with a new vigor that makes my household duties a pleasure, instead of a burden as before. I cannot properly express my gratitude for the grand health your life-giving 'Wincarnis' has given me. It is splendid to feel so strong and well. I have told my neighbors about 'Wincarnis,' and I feel I want to tell the whole world what a splendid tonic and restorative it is."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SALONIKI

SALONIKI, safely outside both Eastern and Western Thrace, but near enough to those troubled regions of Greek and Turkish rivalry to be in easy reach of refugees, has had a tremendous problem thrust upon her, dispatches state, by the tens of thousands of Greeks who flocked there both by land and sea.

"Saloniki does not stand at a great world cross-roads, and its name, therefore, is not so familiar as that of Constantinople," says a bulletin in regard to the city, issued from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "In past and present importance, however, it is second only to its great sister of the straits.

"Saloniki, too, reaches far back into the past. Cities rose and fell on its site more than half a millenium before Christ, and the present town was founded before 300 B. C. Its rather queer name represents the last three syllables in the name of Thessalonike, half sister of Alexander the Great. It became a 'little Rome' during the height of that empire's power: a free city, capital of the surrounding regions, and the home of a many Roman colonists. Cicero lived there for a time in exile; Nero and Trajan decorated the city; and it was the temporary home of the Emperors Galerious, Licinius, and Theodosius.

"Under the Byzantines, Saloniki was the second city of the Empire; and it has remained ever since the rival of the City of the Straits whether the latter has been called Byzantium, Stamboul, or Constantinople. Saloniki might be called 'the extention university of the Near East' for from there went forth St. Cyril who carried to the Slavic world to the north the Cyrillic alphabet in which its literature has been wrought.

"It is not surprising that so ancient a city should contain interesting relics of its past. What is surprising is that these should be so little known to the world.

"The oldest and most accessible of Saloniki's antiquities is the street of the Vardar which cuts the city in two at the foot of its hill. It is a part of the old Roman highway from the Adriatic to the Bosporus, which earlier still was the Royal Way of the Macedonian kings.

"The street is not particularly impasing. There is little to remind the beholder of the Janissaries of yesterday, the Roman legions, the phalanxes of Alexander, and the Immortals of Xerxes, all of whom trod its surface. And if you would dream of these marches of the past you must do so to the somewhat incongruous clang of an American electric car, driven by a modern Greek or a Spanish Jew, under the Roman Arch which spans the street of the Vardar.

"The finest remains of the city are the twenty-two churches which somehow survived the turbulent Middle Ages. There they stand, turned back into churches after five hundred years of use as mosques. They illustrate the story of Bybantine architecture more beautifully in certain ways than do those of Constantinople. One especially interesting fact in connection with those churches is that they make among them a museum of the lost Byzantine art of mosaic. Nowhere else are such beautiful examples of mosaic of this period seen, save in Constantinople and Ravenna. The finest of mosaics in Saloniki, and one of the finest in the world, is the dome of the Church of St. George.

"Once ruled and built by Rome, and later by Venice, and numbering among its inhabitants Greeks, Serbians, Bulgarians, and Turks, Saloniki's atmosphere may be said to have been compounded from that of every adjacent nation. But it reaches still farther afield, and has an important contract with Spain. One of its largest racial elements consists of Spanish-speaking Jews whose ancestors were driven from Spain by Columbus' royal patroons.

"One must not think of Saloniki as a new Grecian acquisition far from the heart of Greece. One could maintain that it is the very heart of Greece just across the bay, ever in sight from its hills, towers Mt. Olympus, inspiration of the life and literature of old Greece."

Infection and Contagion.

Infection is the spread of disease through the air, through water or some other distant means. In pathology, infection means the communication of disease as by entrance of pathogenic germs into an organism in any manner; distinguished from contagion, in which direct or indirect contact with a diseased individual is implied. Contagion means the communication of disease from person to person by contact with the body of a diseased person.

FORD AGENT INTIMIDATED BY STRIKING DOCKWORKERS

Cork, Jan. 18.—When Edward Grace, manager of the Ford plant here, attempted to remove a quantity of goods for his firm from the steamship Glengarry today, striking dockworkers ordered him to cease. Mr. Grace persisted and, in view of the threatening attitude of the strikers, drew a revolver, but the men warned him that if he fired he would immediately be shot.

The manager thereupon took refuge in an adjacent cottage and the crowd burned his lorry. Mr. Grace was rescued by the military, who escorted him from the scene.

NEW ORGAN AND TRUST FUND ARE GIVEN CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Reports of an active and successful year in church work an the announcement of gifts totalling $20,000 to the Central Baptist church made its 83rd annual meeting held Thursday evening one of the most notable annual meetings that the church has held in a long time.

The gifts were $15,000 from Mrs. Charles W. Gale for a new organ for the church, to be known as the "Gale Memorial Organ," in honor of her husband, the late Col. Charles W. Gale, long the choir leader at the church, and a trust fund of $5,000 from George W. Carroll, in memory of his parents, the late Deacon and Mrs. Lucius W. Carroll. The income from the trust fund is to be expended annually for Christmas presents and the Christmas entertainment of the Sunday school.

Both announcements were complete surprises to the congregation, having been kept a secret by the officers to whom they had become known recently and both were greeted by long continued applause.

Reports of Church Work.

Following a largely attended supper at 6.30, the annual meeting of the church was called to order at 7.30 by the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., who was chairman. The annual reports of the church and Sunday school officers and organizations, which were presented in the usual printed pamphlet, were read and accepted.

That of the church clerk, George A. Ashley, showed a present membership of 810, of which 570 are resident and 240 non-resident. There had been 22 received by baptism, 13 by letter, 16 decreased by death, 22 by letter, net loss 3.

The report of the church treasurer, John P. Post, showed total receipts of $17,253.24 and a balance on hand of $209.10 at the end of the year. The sum of $2,000 has been paid off on the church debt, leaving $4,000 due.

Gift to Retiring Officer.

When Charles D. Noyes, president of the board of managers, presented the board's annual report, he called attention to the fact that this report marked his retirement as president of the board, a position he had held for the last ten years.

In behalf of friends in the church, Deacon Shepard B. Palmer presented Mr. Noyes a handsome silk umbrella in appreciation of his services during the decade in which he had held the office. Completely taken by surprise by the gift, Mr. Noyes responded briefly with words of thanks for the kindly feeling which it expressed.

A suggestion that the by-laws of the church be suspended in order to allow of his reelection to the board of managers was opposed by Mr. Noyes and was not pressed.

Officers Elected.

The following officers and committees, whose names were presented by the nominating committee, were unanimously elected:

Clerk, George A. Ashley; assistant clerk, Joseph S. Adams; treasurer, John P. Post; assistant treasurer, Edward Y. Messenger; deacons (for 6 years) Charles R. Gallup, James M. Young; board of managers (5 years) Charles W. Burton, Henry H. Pettis, Willis B. Hill; trustee (3 years) Charles D. Noyes; nominating committee, Willis P. Hill, Richard Arnold, Harrison C. Noyes, Harold S. Burt, John W. Hill; printing committee, Charles D. Whitney, Gilbert S. Raymond, Miss Helen B. Moore.

Carroll Gift Announced.

Mr. Noyes announced the gift of $5,000 by George W. Carroll, speaking of the great service that had been given to the church by Deacon Lucius W. Carroll, who died in 1887. He had been one of the outstanding men in the community in manufacturing and financial lines, said Mr. Noyes, and had been invaluable, with his optimistic spirit, to the church in times when a deficit was the annual experience. But under Deacon Carroll's influence and aid the deficits were always met and the church always paid its bills. If any name would be imperishable on the church records, without being represented in the trust funds, it would be that of L. W. Carroll, but it was a great pleasure to announce the offer of George W. Carroll.

Mr. Carroll, the donor, was called upon and responded with a few words expressing his pleasure at making the gift in honor of his father and mother and the hope that the income would make enjoyable Christmas time for the Sunday school.

The meeting passed a motion accepting the gift and brief tributes to Deacon and Mrs. Carroll were made by C. Edward Smith, John H. Powelson and G. Fred Noyes.

The meeting expressed its appreciation by a standing vote with a moment of silent prayer.

Organ Gift Announced.

The pastor announced the gift of $15,000 for the "Gale Memorial Organ" from Mrs. Gale, expressing the pleasure of the church that her health was so much improved that she was able to attend this annual meeting.

The gift was accepted with thanks by a motion presented by Shepard B. Palmer and F. L. Arnold, S. B. Palmer and C. D. Noyes were appointed a special committee to arrange for the installation of the organ.

Mr. Noyes briefly acknowledged the gift on behalf of the church with mention of the extreme fitness that it should be called the "Gale Memorial Organ," after one who had for so many years given of his time, talent and money for the music of the church.

Mr. Arnold told the meeting that it was the expectation that the organ could be installed by the first of September and that it would be a three-manual instrument that would be the finest organ in Eastern Connecticut.

After a discussion of the proposal to abolish the assignment or seats in the church, which was brought up by Charles S. Storms, the matter was left to a committee to confer with the board of managers and report within a month.

The meeting voted to send greetings to several sick members of the church.

Read Sketch of Church

Before the business meeting opened Miss Jennie L. Spencer read an interesting sketch of the church history which she had prepared for a Baptist publication in the state.

The entertainment committee of the church, Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman, served a hot roast beef supper for over 100. Miss Alice M. Dean was in charge of the waitresses, Miss Helen R. Moore of the tickets, and the following served as waitresses: The Misses Eugenie Dean, Helen Storms, Adelaide Brown, Gladys Rice, Leila Phillips, Edna Phillips, Ruby Vaughn, Dorothy Gregson, Madeline Ver Steeg, Helen Baker, Mildred Cass, Viola Hill, Olive Linton, Belle Rathbone, Nellie Rathbun and Mrs. Joseph S. Adams.

VAIL MEDAL PRESENTED TO JOHN B. WALSH

An honor of distinction was conferred on John Brendan Walsh of Harland road Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel, when on behalf of the 2,500 employes of the Southern New England Telephone company, Vice President H. C. Knight presented to him the Theodore N. Vail medal for noteworthy public service rendered by Mr. Walsh to Putnam on Nov. 9, 1921.

In presenting the medal, Mr. Knight said in part: Many of us have never been tried, never been in some situation that calls for immediate action to test our manhood or womanhood, but we all hope that if such a time should arise we would not be found wanting.

The man on whom I am to confer this distinction tonight would probably say his service was nothing, or that he was in no danger. It isn't the danger that characterizes his act as noble, it was the duty performed in such a noble way.

The Vail medal was dedicated in honor of Theodore N. Vail, president of the Bell Telephone company, to be given for noteworthy public service, in which he was a firm believer. These medals are not given away promiscuously; the committee feels that only in cases of special service can the medal be awarded. To illustrate this point, I can say that this "hard boiled" committee handled hundreds of claims for 1921 and picked but two cases as worthy of the award.

Therefore, John Brendan Walsh, I read to you this citation: "This certifies that a bronze medal offered under the terms of the establishment of the Theodore N. Vail fund and known as the Theodore N. Vail medal for noteworthy public service, has been awarded to John Brendan Walsh, cable-splicer's helper, Norwich, Conn., for courageous and intelligent action in aiding the victim of a serious accident. On Nov. 9, 1921, at Putnam, Conn., seeing an elderly gentleman thrown from a wagon, and dragged by a runaway horse, he stopped the runaway, freed the man from the reins, carried him to the nearest building, and, although bystanders pronounced him dead, persisted in using approved methods of resuscitation taught in telephone 'safety first' practices, finally restoring him to consciousness before the arrival of a physician. James T. Moran, President, Southern New England Telephone company."

"Besides this citation, Mr. Walsh, I have here the Vail medal of bronze which we desire that you keep in your home where it may be seen. Again, I have a replica of the medal in button form which we desire you to wear daily. We hope you will be as proud of your award as we are to present it to you."

Following much applause, Mr. Walsh in a few words conveyed his thanks to the company and fellow employes by saying: "All I can say is that I appreciate the award very much." Mrs. Walsh also shared in the honor of the award with her husband, one of the two out of hundreds to receive the coveted medal for courageous service.

The banquet, which was served at 8 o'clock in the main dining hall, found about 130 employes from Norwich, New London and Willimantic, and officers of the company from New Haven, New London, Norwich and Willimantic enjoying the following menu:

Fruit Cocktail.
Roast Lamb.
French Fried Potatoes.
French Bread.
Neapolitan Ice Cream.
Assorted Cakes.
Coffee.

Joseph N. Weymouth, manager of the Norwich exchange, acting as master of ceremonies, appointed Ambrose Osborn, district traffic manager, as song leader for the evening, and Mr. Osborn kept things humming in the ing all present, adding to the enjoyment of the banquet.

Following the banquet, Mr. Weymouth introduced as the first speaker of the evening the most democratic man in Norwich, Hon. Mayor Milo R. Waters, who spoke in part as follows: "For once I am glad that I can talk to a telephone girl and hear her say something besides 'Excuse it, please.' I welcome the New Haven men to Norwich on this occasion. Often when the big boss comes it means the can for someone, or a jacking up for the local end of the business, but tonight these men come here for a good purpose. Let me say that in Norwich is a fine service, and there have been few complaints of the service during the past year, showing the loyalty and support the local employes are giving in working together for the success of their organization. Norwich is proud of its force, and also welcomes the New Haven guests and hopes to see them here again on an equally good mission."

The entertainment program of the evening was one that was enjoyed from start to finish. Raymond Woods, accompanied by Miss May Woods, gave several fine cornet solos, his audience holding him for several encores. The opening number was followed by four dance numbers by Miss Marian Kennedy and Miss Ruth Skaling. These two lassies met with favor in their interpretation of sword dances and the Highland fling, which were executed to perfection. The closing number of the evening's program was under the name of The Bamfords, of Hanover Minstrels. This company, comprising Mrs. Thomas Bamford, pianist; Mr. Bamford, bone clacker and impersonator, and Joseph Allard, bone manipulator, gave a series of entertaining numbers. Featured was the dancing fight of the bone shakers. Their demonstration of ring ability, while keeping perfect time with the bones to the music of the piano, brought forth instantaneous applause, and they were repeatedly recalled for encores. In closing, Mr. Bamford gave several impersonations of barnyard noises, including the cat, dog, pig, rooster, turkey and others, receiving a fine hand on the conclusion of his act.

The address of the evening was then given by H. C. Knight, vice president of the company. In opening his remarks, Mr. Knight stated that he was pleased to see that the evening's affair was being conducted in the name of the Norwich council, Telephone Employes' association. I am mighty glad, he said, to be with you again after an absence of over a year, and I hope to come more often in the future. To the Norwich council goes the prize for providing a bang-up good time at meetings, and I have enjoyed myself throughout the evening. For the company, I wish to thank your mayor for being present with us on this occasion. To come back to the thought which is uppermost in my mind, that of the Telephone Employes' association, let me say that I, and, when I say it means the company, for tonight I speak for the company, am heart and soul back of such an organization for many more reasons than I will give tonight. One reason I believe in it is because through our organization it is possible to get more nearly the atmosphere of united action that a small group can reach. People in the world were made to get along together, we all know we do not want misunderstandings and friction.

In a large group it is hard, however, to think alike and settle disputes before they go too far, as can be done readily in a small group. However, any organization that works to bring about some such condition has my backing, and this is why your company is back of your organization. We have worked on the problem, what can we do to retain more nearly the ideal relationship of the small group. The best avenue toward that goal is the system of representation, whereby we can meet representatives of people we cannot often meet personally.

Your organization is founded on the principle of "the interest of all of us in the operation of the business of providing public service is mutual." This is the perfect foundation and one that never can be improved upon. I am against setting up barriers, forming groups, we don't want fights for rights, what we want is what now prevails, the gathering of representatives, with open minds, met together to settle questions and form the future policy of the business. Such a program is ours. That's why I'm back of our organization.

The presentation of the Vail medal to Mr. Walsh followed, after which a short recess was taken, and then dancing was enjoyed until midnight, music being furnished by Swahn's orchestra.

LIPTON'S INSTANT COCOA

Eight Babies in 24 Hours

From all indications the population of Norwich should not suffer a loss in 1923. Only recently one doctor reported five maternity cases in 24 hours, all of them boys. Now comes a story of another doctor on the West Side who put in a busy day recently during which 8 new future citizens of Norwich came into this world. This doctor, however, takes pride in saying: "Thank goodness, my babies were not all boys".

CANNED BEEF IN TIME OF KING TUTENKHAMUN

Luxor, Egypt, Jan. 18.—(By The A. P.)—What is believed to be the oldest specimens of canned beef in the world were discovered today by excavators in thetomb of King Tutenkhamun. While it was not wholly palatable, being 3,350 years old, and meat is in an excellent state of preservation.

The meat had been embalmed and was contained in elliptical receptacles resembling huge Easter eggs, forty of which were found. Still other meats found were haunches of venison, trussed ducks and joints of game. These were packed in wooden boxes, shaped according to the nature of the contents. Noticeable among this discovery was a giant duck.

The excavators also removed today four bronze candlesticks of great beauty. One of them contained a perfectly preserved candle.

LONG LANE FARM GIVES LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

The directors of Long Lane farm, the state institution that was formerly known as the Connecticut Industrial School for Girls, at Middletown, have submitted to Governor Templeton a printed copy of its biennial report. It is for the period ending June 30, 1922.

At the close of the biennial period there were 153 girls on parole. Of these 86 were with relatives, 44 in families, 7 in other institutions on account of their health, 5 with relatives in other states, 4 in boarding homes, 1 in a boarding school, 2 attending high school and earning their own board and 1 in free home. During the two years 184 girls were admitted to the institution, 170 were paroled, 77 discharged on reaching the age of 21 years and 31 discharged for good behavior while on parole. During the 56 years of the existence of the institution "it has affected the lives of some 2,693 girls who have been trained and educated within its walls" The expenditures of the institution from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1921, amounted to $133,001.30, and from July 1, 1921, to June 30, 1922, to $140,-876. The receipts from the farm for the year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to $25,574.40, and the expenditures to $58,942.57, leaving a net income of $4,631.83. The superintendent recommends the housing of the girls in small buildings, each to accommodate not more than 15, and preferably 10.

The directors of the institution emphasize that it is not a reformatory, when they say in their report that one of its greatest obstacles is the misunderstanding, more or less prevalent throughout the state, that this is a reformatory. When it is remembered that girls are not admitted after the age of 16 years, the mistake of regarding it as a reformatory is at once apparent. That which is not yet formed cannot be reformed. The girls who come to this school are in the formative time with regard to character even as they are physically. Therefore, the aim of the school is to provide for them a home in which they have care, for their health, training in home life, a common school education and an atmosphere in which they shall learn rightly to appraise correct living for themselves and their fellows in the community; to help them while in their formative years to acquire habits of correct living, and thinking, and the moral strength which will enable them to overcome faults, and weaknesses. Training, not punishment, is the object of the school in all its dealings with them.

The report further states that "the girls receive instruction in the faith of their parents and attend daily chapel service and Sunday school. Colored girls are received upon the same basis as white girls and have the same training, the same opportunities and the same advantages." The girls do much of the work on the farm from the close of the spring term until the opening of school in autumn. Girls on parole in families and working for wages are encouraged to make systematic savings from their wages, which are deposited for them in a local savings bank for their benefit. On June 30, the amount so deposited out of the savings of girls was $4,019.04.

NORWICH, CONN.

BATTLESHIP CONNECTICUT IS GOING TO JUNK HEAP

Of all the ships of the United States in modern times, the nearest to the hearts of Connecticut people, has been the good ship Connecticut. And now comes the news from Washington that she has been decommissioned and is headed for the junk heap.

During the long history of the boat from the time she was launched in September, 1904, up to the time she was laid up in Bremerton, she has numbered among her crew men from the state after which she was named. For many years the flagship of the Atlantic fleet and the largest ship in the navy at the time she was put in commission, she was the pride of the navy and has a record of which any of her crew may well be proud.

When the Connecticut was put in commission and launched, Connecticut people feted the officers of the new and formidable addition to the sea forces of Uncle Sam and presented to the boat a complete silver service. This service will now probably be kept on exhibition at a naval base.

Interest in Ship

Thereafter the people of Connecticut took a special interest in the ship that carried the long period of her history, even during and after the last war, when she was undoubtedly regarded as an antidiluvian craft, she played a prominent role in the sea annals of the nation.

She was the last of the old "three stackers" to be mustered out of the service and was the last battleship that had worn the glistening white paint and ornate figure heads during the old navy days. When the grim gray color that now covers the sides of Uncle Sam's business-like war vessels was adopted by the navy department the Connecticut with the other ships, donned the new garb and continued her service to the country.

When Theodore Roosevelt, as president, sent the fleet on its world-famous cruise around the world, the Connecticut was the flag ship during the complete voyage, although the command of the trip was changed at San Francisco. Roosevelt directed the fleet of 16 battleships to go around through the straits of Magellan to San Francisco. That part of the voyage was under the command of Admiral Bob Evans, who paced the decks of the Connecticut and directed the progress of the fleet from it. At San Francisco, Admiral Sperry took command, and he also led the way on the huge ship.

The stately Connecticut with its powerful appearance and seven-inch guns, did much to impress the people at the foreign ports which she touched and had considerable to do with making the voyage the great measure it turned out to be.

New Zealand and Australia, the Philippines, China and Japan and home through the Sues Canal was the main route traveled by the ships. On the way the jack tars aboard the Connecticut had ample opportunity to visit the strange lands and made the most of it, visiting all the points of interest along the way.

Messina Earthquake

It was while the fleet was well along on its cruise that the horrible earthquake disaster was visited upon Messina, Italy. The Connecticut was the first ship to rush to the aid of the 200,000 stricken inhabitants and the officers and men rendered such invaluable succor to the sorely situated people that the King of Italy bestowed gold medals upon every man jack of them. This was the first and only time in the entire history of the American navy that any foreign power had so singularly honored any United States ship. Her complement was 891 men.

During President Wilson's administration when the Mexican situation reached its most acute stage and United States vessels were sent to Mexican waters, the Connecticut was one of the ships to go. She was sent to Vera Cruz in 1914 and held herself in readiness to enter into any of the activities that the government might have seen fit to prescribe for her to relieve the tense situation that existed down there.

The Connecticut is not a large ship according to the standards of modern navies, nor is she by any means modern in her equipment or design. Her normal tonnage was 16,000 tons. She measured 456 feet. She was the last of the "three stackers" to be used in the service of the country and her seven-inch guns had long ago become obsolete when the United States entered the last war. For all that the Connecticut was thrown into the naval activities of the country and before the war had come to an end had made a record for herself in the matter of transporting soldiers from the other side that would be hard to beat.

Used as Transport

When hostilities had ceased on the other side and this country was faced by the gigantic task of bringing back great numbers of doughboys, the Connecticut plied back and forth without cessation. In all she carried about 30,000 men from Europe, where they had been stationed during the horrible conflict, back to their native shores.

The Connecticut seemed to be fated to be a flag ship of some fleet or another. For a considerable time she was flagship of the admiral in charge of the auxiliary vessels of the Pacific fleet, consisting of supply ships, hospital ships, tenders and all other of an auxiliary nature.

For two years she was under the command of Captain G. L. P. Stone, who is famed throughout the navy for his remarkable memory, rigid disciplinary methods and square treatment of his men. It has been said by "gobs" that he never forgot a face no matter how much time passed since he last saw a man and that it was considered very bad taste and quite indiscreet, as well, to try to put anything over on the "old man."

Liked by All

The last officer to have command of the ship was Rear Admiral J. V. Chase, whose flag was taken down in Bremerton, marking the ceremonies accompanying the de-commissioning of the ship.

It is an interesting commentary upon the popularity of the Connecticut that all men in the navy, no matter aboard what ship they may have served, have nothing but enthusiastic words to say for the old flagship. All agree that she is now an oldtimer and that she has outlived her usefulness. But all those who were in the navy while she sailed proudly as the flagship of the whole Atlantic fleet have a kindly feeling for her whether they sailed with her or with some other ship. And that is an unusual thing for "gobs" are always ready to knock another ship.

It is not likely that the fine old boat will be cast unceremoniously upon the scrap heap at once. She will eventually be broken up of course, and when she is there will be many a tug at the heart-strings of those who served aboard her. She will first be dismantled and the hull will in all probability be kept in a naval yard where it is probable that she will be kept on exhibition. So the dismissal from the navy of the flag ship that was once the pride of the navy and which called forth remarks of admiration from the lips of foreign potentates when she led the way around the world in 1908 will be softened somewhat by a period of well earned rest away from the buffetings of creaking waves.

PUT IN BILLS FOR TRUNK LINE ROADS IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, January 18—The house was called to order at 11:30 by Speaker Nickerson. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Coolidge.

Trains being late as usual, the attendance at opening was small. Representative Dunham, presented a joint resolution directing the joint standing committee on railroads to investigate the services of the steam railroads. It directs the committee to investigate the character and adequacy of the services provided by any steam railway company chartered in the state and to report such recommendations and legislation as it may consider the public may require.

The committee is authorized to cause the attendance of any witnesses and production of books, papers or documents by subpoena or subpoena duces tecum as the circumstances may require and may cause to be presented before the general assembly for the imposition of any penalties, as it may determine, on any person failing to answer.

Schultz of Hartford offered a bill providing for the election of the members of the public utilities commission, two of whom shall be of the same political party. They are to be nominated by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

He also offered a proposed act increasing the compensation to three quarters of average weekly earnings before the injury and the amount a man may be able to earn thereafter.

A bill by Mr. Dunham of Wethersfield exempts from taxation all property of the United States and of this state, except property used for residential purposes by the employees of public institutions. This will affect such institutions as provide tenements for their employees and for which towns have to afford school facilities and receive no compensation.

Mr Crow of Eastford offered a bill including in the trunk line system the highway leading from Phoenixville to the Massachusetts line through the towns of Eastford and Woodstock.

Mr. Rogers of Salem offered a proposed act including in the trunk line system the Norwich and Essex turnpike in the towns of Salem, Bozrah, Montville and Lyme. Passage of this bill will give a connection with the New London-Hartford road and will allow a safe route to Gardner Lake residents.

By Mr. Payne of New London an act was introduced providing for an appropriation for the state terminal at New London.

By Mr. Hayde of Brooklyn, an act to include in the trunk line system, the highway leading from Brooklyn Center to Pomfret.

By Mr. Adanolfi of New Haven an act concerning the salaries of clerks of courts of common pleas.

NOTES

The house and senate both adjourned till Tuesday next at 11:15 a. m.

On request of Commissioner of Dogsic Animals Whittlesey an amendment to existing statute was introduced, which reduces from six months to three months the period required for cattle to be in the state in order that owners may be reimbursed by the state for cattle condemned and killed because of reaction to the tuberculin test. Referred to Judiciary committee.

FINAL VOTE IN SENATE TODAY ON CAPPER BILL

Washington, Jan. 18—Arrangements for a final vote tomorrow on the Capper bill, the first of the farm credits measures to be taken up, were made by the senate late today after another day of general discussion. In view of the delay on the bill, which was scheduled to pass tat Monday, leaders today obtained unanimous consent to close the debate tomorrow at 2 o'clock and a vote, expected to be almost if not entiely unanimous, is due to follow.

All attempts to amend the bill were defeated successfully today. The senate rejected, 45 to 31, a rider by Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, designed to amend the section increasing lending law and, by a vote of 48 to 31, an amendment by Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, proposing private management of farm loan banks, when federal capital is returned.

Another amendment rejected was by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, proposing that loans be made to farmers on chattel mortgages by the cooperative credit associations provided in the bill.

This was opposed as a "pawn broking" amendment by chairman McLean of the banking committee declaring it would enable borrowers to obtain loans by using chattel mortgages on watches, overcoats or furniture."

Senator Simmons replied that the senate "would be subject to accusance under regulations of the farm loan board and would be safe for the hotel loans." He added that his amendment was offered as a "test" of the real benefit proposed to farmers and declared that which, he contended, would not be of great value generally to small agriculturists.

Senator McLean said the bill did not propose to establish pawn brokers' associations and authorize to get chattel loans from other sources.

Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, offered an amendment providing that the proposed associations may loan on real estate up to their full value. He said the farmers could not get necessary credit solely upon their crops. His amendment was opposed by Chairman McLean and Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, who said the through the farm land banks the natural demand for loans on other and long time securities. The amendment was left pending for disposal tomorrow.

JAP BUTLER IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF CHAUFFEUR

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 18—A breakfast table tragedy in the fashionable mansion of Commodore William Ewan, prominent member of the Seawanhaka Yacht club, today cost the life of his chauffeur, Robert Stuart. As a result, the commodore's Japanese butler, Isaw Namba, is in jail charged with murder.

A quarrel between Stuart and Namba over the latter's failure to serve the chauffeur eggs for breakfast led up to the fatal stabbing affray, according to Commodore Ewan.

The commodore and his wife were at the breakfast table and overheard the dispute, but their first intimation of the stabbing was when Stuart staggered through the door with blood welling from a wound in his breast.

Before he fell unconscious into the arms of his employer, Stuart is said to have declared that Namba had stabbed him with a long butcher knife. The knife was later found, stained with blood in the kitchen.

After carrying the injured man to the library, Commodore Swan summoned Dr. Richard Derby, son-in-law of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who ordered Stuart taken to the Glen Cove hospital. He died, however, before an operation could be performed.

Assisted by Constable Townsend, Commodore Swan located the Japanese butler cowering in the kitchen. Namba was placed under arrest and submitted without resistance.

The butler had been in the employ of Commodore Swan for only a few weeks and had come to him highly recommended, he said. The servant had come to the United States from Japan four years ago.

Namba bore credentials, according to the commodore, showing that he had previously served former Governor Edward I. Edward, of New Jersey, at the executive mansion at Sea Girt. After his arrest, the Japanese was taken to the Nassau county jail at Mineola, and held without bail.

It is easy to discourage a man who realizes that he isn't entitled to anything

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Look years younger! Try Grandma's recipe of Sage and Sulphur and nobody will know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS CONCLUDED

Washington, Jan. 18.—The committee of 100 on foreign relations of the National Civic Federation concluded its national two day conference today with instructions to its executive committee to commend the secretary of state for his "tactful efforts" for peace in Europe and to conduct an immediate investigation of propaganda of "foreign governments or organizations" in this country.

Alton B. Parker, who presided, announced he would name the executive committee and call it in session probably in New York within the next ten days. Appointment of the committee was recommended yesterday by a report declaring the purpose of the committee of 100 to be the collection and dissemination of facts on foreign affairs relating to the nited States.

Denouncement of pacifists and demands for maintenance of military preparedness by the nited StUates were voiced today by Major General Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A., retired, Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago; Robert Underwood Johnson, former ambassador to Italy and other speakers.

General Edwards declared that if the United States had spent one-tenth of one per cent. of its war costs during the forty years prior to the World war it would not have lost a man in battle.

Mr. Johnson expressing sympathy for France in its invasion of the Ruhr, declared:

"France is not only justified but is entitled to the sympathy of America and the whole world in attempting to carry out justice."

JUDICIAL USURPATION OF MONARCHIAL POWERS

New York, Jan. 18.—Declaring that judges of the United States courts were the great obstructionists to progressive laws, because they were appointed for life and therefore not responsible to the voters, Justice John Ford of the Supreme Court of New York tonight warned against what he termed their judicial usurpation of monarchial powers. Addressing the Bedford Community council in Brooklyn he said:

"The sooner American citizens get rid of the idea that a judge is more honorable than a legislator, and that a court is more entitled to respect than a legislature, the clearer will become our perception of the evils of judicial usurpation—the most threatening present day danger to our democracy."

Pointing out that United States courts had declared unconstitutional such measures as the child labor law and the minimum wage law for women, Justice Ford said that the decisions were made without regard to the will of the people.

Denouncing government by injunction in labor disputes, Justice Ford declared that the courts rapidly assuming legislative authority in addition to their judicial capacity. He also protested against the attitude of the judiciary in feeling that they were immune from criticism.

NO OPINION BY U. S. ON VERSAILLES TREATY

Washington, Jan. 18.—The state department took steps today to correct any impression that the Washington government has attempted to pass judgment on the application of the terms of the treaty of Versailles to French occupation of the Ruhr. It was flatly denied that Secretary Hughes, in his conversations with Ambassador Jusserand, had ever expressed the view that France had the right in a legal sense to carry out that occupation.

The denial was prompted by publication in a French newspaper of an article saying that Mr. Hughes had so informed the ambassador at the same time, however, expressing American disapproval of the expediency and wisdom of the course the French authorities had decided to adopt.

Since the United States is not a party to the treaty it is obvious that no American official would put himself in the position of seeking to express an opinion as to what obligations the document imposed on the signatory powers. They alone could be the judges of the scope and meaning of the pact and no non-signatory power, it is held, could interject its opinions with diplomatic propriety.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS RECOVERING FROM COLD

Washington, Jan. 18—President Harding was reported tonight by Brigadier General Sawyer, his physician, to be making favorable progress toward recovery from the attack of grippe which he has been suffering for the past few days. Dr. Sawyer said, however, he deemed it inadvisable for the president to go to his office tomorrow, and had advised him to "stick pretty close to his room."

The president remained in his room today and was said to have rested reasonably well.

WHITE HOUSE CHIMNEY FIRE CAUSES FLURRY

Washington, Jan. 18—A flurry of excitement was caused at the White House late today when a chimney caught fire. Flames shot into the air, but before door keepers and attendants who rushed to the roof could reach the blaze it had subsided.

A GLASS OF SALTS CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyperacidity meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. This evening eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas, vent undigested food or have heartburn, dizziness, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and dinner, and drink a coffee cup of hot water one hour before retiring. It is best to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help nature for one week to remove the gas-making poisons that are now in the bowels and thus promote a fine flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This painless salts is used by many stomach victims with excellent results.

COLUMBIA

The January teachers' meeting was held at the Center school Jan. 2d. E. S. Russell, the supervisor, presented a lesson in civics to grades 7 and 8, the aim being to bring before the children several occupations with their advantages and disadvantages.

The Christmas exercises held at Hop River village consisted of recitations, songs and a play. About 50 visitors were present.

At Old Hop River the Christmas exercises were held Saturday, Dec. 23d. Much credit was given the children for their good singing. The program was greatly added to by a violin solo played by Helen Greene, grade 8, and a violin and cornet duet by John Tolokan and Peter Tolokan.

The children who have completed the speed test and taken and passed the first test of progress are Victoria Golob, Martha Chowanec, Peter Tolokan, John Tolokan, William Macht and Laura Mathieu. Victoria Golob is still the leader, completing several of the tests in two minutes with accuracy. All of the children show improvement in speed and accuracy.

The children in Mrs. Cummings' and Miss Jones' school are writing letters to be exchanged at the next teachers' meeting and delivered to those addressed. This is done in a language period for letter writing practice. Seven children were perfect in attendance for the fall term at the Old Hop River, namely: John Bobeck, Michael Bobeck, Louis Depathy, William Macht, Spencer Macht, Frederick Macht and Laura Mathieu. It was stated that all the teachers could help the work of inculcating school interest if they would bring their points of interest to the monthly meetings.

Benton, Thomas Rickard and Madison Woodward were elected members of the committee. E. E. Tucker, agent of the Tolland county farm bureau, was present and made an address.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

These are days of trials and tribulations for the wild life hereabouts. One hears strange recitals of the efforts of the denizens of the woods to provide themselves against starvation. Even the most timid of these creatures are being forced to boldness in their quest for food. As illustrative of this, a local man reported seeing a flock of seven quail industrially scratching on the ice-covered surface of the state highway near Dayville Thursday morning. From Central Village, from Brooklyn and from other points hereabouts requests are coming to Deputy Game Warden F. E. Kies for grain to feed flocks of quail, partridge and pheasant that are known to be in want. Their supply of food is almost entirely cut off an dthey are venturing into farm yards and under barns in search of something to eat. Shy as they usually are, these feathered creatures are now assuming unheard of risks in their battle against hunger. Some have even joined flocks of hens, let out for a time, in search of food.

Deer, too, are having a time of it. Charles Williams' farm, northeast of the borough, was visited by a herd of four this week. Out in the orchard they dug in the deep snow for frozen apples. And how the snow did fly under their flying hoofs! An eye witness of the incident said the air was filled with clouds of snow as they whipped through it and down to the grass. An almost identically similar happening was reported from the town of Plainfield, where another herd, engaged in a snow digging campaign attended to discover hidden apples.

Deer have been reported repeatedly within the limits of the borough during the past ten days. This week one wandered into a lumber yard on Furnace street, crossed, leaped a high fence onto the railroad track, then circled back and up through what was once known as Hubbard's grove to Broad street and eastward toward the woods a mile to the east.

These incidents are illustrative of the fight for life now being waged by New England's wild birds and animals. Those who feed them do a real service. And those who cannot feed them but happen to know where these dumb creatures should congregate with Deputy Warden F. E. Kies and he will arrange to have grain provided for them.

This is gift week for the fire department. Captain C. A. Hamilton of the Captain Tool Company has made announcement of a gift of two sets of gloves from Andrew E. Nicoll. These gloves will be appreciated by the men who have to answer alarms and fight fires these bitter winter days. January has up its record of cells Thursday, when a double three alarm brought the department out at 4:37 p. m. for a fire on Cutler lane on Broad street.

This evening members of the Girls' club will give a Gentlemen's night social. The affair is to be held in Pellett's hall. An entertainment is to feature the early hours of the evening. Then there is to be a period of general amusements are to be served. Members of the club have issued invitations to the affair.

Antonio Longo, familiarly known as 'Tommy' and one of the star guards of the Killingly High School basketball team of last year, is going along well in athletics at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. Tommy showed 'em something this week when he engaged in shot putting, a new pastime for him, by the way, when he heaved a 16-pound shot 37 feet, exceeding by a foot the best record previously made at the college. Tommy has a wonderful hand and arm and all kinds of power behind them. He used to do a stunt of reaching over with his sturdy right hand and picking up a basketball as though it were an orange when he was playing for Killingly high, and his friend say he will do even more elaborate things than that as his college course goes along. Tommy will be with the Storrs college team at the big indoor meet with Northeastern university in Boston on March 22. If he does all his friends here hope at that time he will chuck up the shot out of Suffolk county.

Thursday afternoon at the Whaples home in East Killingly funeral services for Mrs. Susanna Whaples were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church. The services was attended by numbers of relatives and friends. The bearers were Robert Smith, Joseph Mondo, Andrew Shippee, Henry Anderson. Burial will be in East Hartford. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Thursday morning the temperature touched one of the low points of the winter in Danielson, the mercury registering 6 degrees below zero at Woodward's just before dawn. There was a rapid rise in temperature during the early morning and by the noon hour the advance was almost to the thawing point, with the rise continuing during the afternoon and evening hourrs.

William H. Johnstone, known as the Man of the Bowery, is to speak Sunday afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church. According to the advance notices Johnstone is a brand seized from the burning. He was converted at the Jerry McAuley Mission in New York, in 1909, after seeing the inside of a gambler and whiskey drinker. Formerly, too, he was a baseball umpire working in eastern leagues, but that does not count against him. He will have a message Sunday for those who still believe that the only fun that may be obtained from life isthrough hitting the high spots. He also is scheduled to speak at Brooklyn on Sunday.

PUTNAM

Following a meeting of the Arcanum club it was announced Thursday morning that a plan to take over the Gardner property on South Main street had been ratified and within a few days an announcement may be expected to the effect that the actual transfer of property has been made.

Thus the future of the Arcanum club is provided for. Insofar as having a good home is concerned, and there is joy in the ranks of an organization that has been identified with the social life of the city for more than thirty years and now promises to endure indefinitely.

As previously set forth in this column, the club now has a membership of 110 resident members and 10 non-resident members, the maximum membership quotas under the club rules. The future seems exceptionally bright for the club.

Having taken over the property, which will be paid for by funds pledged by its members, attention will be turned in the spring to making such changes and improvements as seem desirable, and it was indicated Thursday that in making these changes the club may spend from $2,000 to $4,000 above the purchase price.

The changes contemplated will provide a reception room, a lounging room, hallway, a large billiard room, one or two smaller rooms and a kitchen, all on the lower floor. Attention will also be given rooms on the second floor to fit them for the uses of the club.

The club numbers among its members some of the best known professional and business men of the city. It is cosmopolitan, however, and any sizable gathering of its members is representative of a wide variety of the city's personalities and activities.

In advance of the annual meeting of the Putnam Building and Loan association to be held on Tuesday evening of next week Judge M. H. Geissler as secretary has given out figures from the 14th semi-annual report, which shows the same splendid success of operation as has characterized the association's activities since it was organized seven years ago. Not a cent of loss has been encountered in the seven years, every dollar paid in by shareholders has been loaned and is earning interest and applications are on file for loans sufficient to use up the income of the association for months to come. The association has clearly established that it is a real benefit to those who would build homes in this city or buy homes already constructed with money made available by the association. At the end of seven years of its existence the association now has assets of $134,370.77. Of this amount $125,900 is represented in first mortgage loans, $4,604.50 in share loans, $1,000 in Liberty bonds, $2,486.72 cash in the bank and sundry small items to make the balance of the total assets. As liabilities lists $121,619.54 due to shareholders, a contingent fund of $1,000 and a surplus fund of $1691.23.

In the past six months the association has earned $3,130.88 in interest, $3.70 in fines, $121 in subscription fees and profits of $65.12 on withdrawals. The entire expense of administration in that period was only $163.49.

Following the annual meeting next week the 15th series of shares of the association will be opened for subscription. It is anticipated that only a little special activity will be needed to place several hundred of these shares. No special drive to interest the public in any issue of shares has been made for several years, the association merely issuing such as have been applied for and yet many shares have been issued.

Extreme cold weather Thursday morning proved another source of trouble for the railroad passenger service. Nearly all of the morning trains through this city were off schedule or were knocked off time by prolonged waits here for connecting trains that failed to arrive on time. One of the lamest of the lame ducks was the north-bound passenger train from New London for Worcester due here just before 10 a. m. An improperly functioning locomotive delayed this train, which did not get away for Worcester until just before noon. When it did go it had two locomotives ahead—one a freighter, which was doing the pulling, the other the regular locomotive which was furnishing steam to heat the train.

Promise of warmer weather for today did not brighten the forecasts of the railroad men for more dependable service. The motive power seems to be in seriously crippled condition and it is said that it is not likely that much improved service can be anticipated with any assurance until this is overcome.

Albert M. Winslow, who died the past week in Worcester at the age of 71 years, formerly was a resident of this city. He was born here in 1851, prior to the incorporation of Putnam as a town, and lived here for many years. Old residents will remember him as a drum major for the old Mechanic's band. He had been living in Worcester for many years and for the past 23 years had been in the employ of a wholesale grocer house. He leaves his wife, a brother, A. Clinton Winslow of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Ida E. Weaver of Haverhill, Miss Susan I. Winslow of Winslow of Woonsocket and Mrs. Carrie A. Harris of South Woodstock.

Putnam High school's basketball team has been traveling at top speed of late and has been the victor in several league games, the pace at which it is traveling seeming to assure its winning another championship this season. Its particular brilliant feat of late was in winning two league games in one day—one from Tourtellotte Memorial High school, the other from Woodstock academy team. Plainfield High is another of the league teams to lose recently to Putnam. Killingly, which Putnam defeated at Danielson in the early part of the season, is scheduled for an early return game in this city. This should be a fast contest, as Killingly has materially improved since defeated by P. H. S. during the first part of the season.

Deer, game birds, hawks and crows are being driven by the shortage of their food supply to unusual boldness in their search for something that will keep them from starvation. Their presence within the city limits has been commented upon several times during the present week. Crows particularly are making daily visits to the Arch street and South Main street sections and have been seen hunting food in dumps and other such places. The heavy blanket of snow covering the ice-sheathed earth puts the birds and deer up against a food problem with which they cope only with great difficulty.

Joseph Plessis, Frederick W. Seward and Frank Smith, members of the Board of relief, have given notice that they will begin their sittings to hear those who are dissatisfied with assessments as fixed by the board of assessors, or other grievances of this nature, on February 1. These hearings will continue throughout the coming month.

Dr. Melville E. Osborne will be in charge of the Sunday morning service at the Methodist church. Dr. Osborne is a worker in the interest of the Centenary and will be accompanied by a missionary for the presentation of a pageant representing the mass movement in India.

Severe weather and impassible roads during the past two weeks have caused the suspension of services in a number of churches in outlying towns in this part of Windham county.

The annual Valentine tea under the auspices of the Womans board of the Day Kimball hospital is scheduled for February 17. This year the proceeds are to be devoted to increasing the fund for the nurses home, a project launched a short time ago. The fund is now well in excess of $4,000.

Attention is being called by game officials to the fact that the season for shooting ducks is now closed and will remain so until the early fall of this year.

Henry A. Benjamin of Haverhill was a visitor with friends in Putnam on Thursday.

Mrs. F. A. Morrell of South Main street has gone to Florida to spend the remainder of the winter.

The junior prom at the high school this evening will be one of the big social events of the school year.

William J. Jarvais of this city has been appointed a special deputy sheriff. Mr. Jarvais is regularly assigned as a special deputy of the commissioner of domestic animals.

LEBANON.

The postponed business meeting of the Baptist society was held at the home of Mrs. Ida Abel on Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with prayer by the pastor, Rev. E. L. Nield, followed by a report by the pastor and officers. Officers were elected as follows: George E. Briggs was re-elected clerk; George L. Randall, treasurer, and A. A. Boothby was elected trustee for three years. The treasurer reported all bills paid and a good balance in the treasury.

The Ladies' society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. C. S. Goodwin on Thursday afternoon. White Cross sewing was done. Light refreshments were served.

In spite of the bad weather and traveling on Sunday morning, there was a good attendance at the services at the Baptist church. The pastor took for his text John 9: 23, 24, 25.

ARE WE, CITYWISE AND COUNTRYWISE, BECOMING A NATION OF WEAKLINGS?

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

Of course you read the stories of "hold-ups" and "gangsters" and "gunmen" in the papers. I say "of course," for how can you help it? To deny it would be as incredible as for you to say that you didn't hear anything when a July thunderstorm was slambanging its crashing course among the hills.

One day a mail-truck is stopped on a city street and robbed of its registered-mail bags.

Next day a bank messenger is held up on an adjacent corner and relieved of his bag, after being slugged over the head with a black jack to keep him temporarily quiet.

The day after a couple of men saunter into a jewelry store and while one pokes a revolver into the clerk's ribs, the other gathers up a few pecks of diamonds, gold watches, etc. Then they both walk out and melt into the crowd.

Perhaps the same day on another page you'll read of another gang breaking into a fur store, bringing a few thousand dollars worth of furs out and putting them into a waiting truck at the front door and then driving calmly off.

Then will come along the story of how another gang set on two employes at the door of the United States mint in a big city and carried off two or three hundred thousand dollars of government money.

And so on and so on, till you finally lay the paper down and pick up a copy of Josephus' Jewish Wars, or The Exploits of Dick Turpin, or something else a little less highly flavored with loot and pillage.

I wonder if, in reading these regular every morning chapters of crime, you have noticed one feature which has more and more forcibly impressed itself on my backwoods mind?

Three times out of four the voracious chroniclers of crime report that these affairs take place "at a busy corner" of two much-frequented streets; or on a sidewalk, "crowded with passers"; or before the eyes and in the immediate presence of "a crowd estimated at a thousand persons"; or "next door to a police station."

Now the thing that strikes me is, not that the criminals do their jobs so nonchalantly right in the midst of traffic, but that no one or two or two score of these gaping bystanders ever try to prevent the robbery or capture the robbers. According to the reporters' tales there are almost invariably enough such to overwhelm and bury the criminals by sheer weight of numbers. But they don't. They don't even try. The idea of interference never seems to enter their heads. They stand around in a ring, just as they would if a man had slipped on the icy walk and broken his leg. They are as excited, almost, as they would be over a disputed home run in a league ball game. They crowd and push each other to get to the front row, and stand there with mouths open to see what'll happen next. It isn't till some disappointed spectator on the outskirts has bethought himself to call for an ambulance or telephone the police or ring the fire alarm, that any attempt is made at rescue or capture. By that time, the thieves are a mile or two away, safely hidden in the back room of the "fence" with whom they are negotiating a disposal of the plunder.

Now, it would seem natural, under the law of chances, that in any such crowd as is usually described as hovering around these crimes there would be at least a few men. "Men," I say, not merely male persons wearing pantaloons. Of course the criminals take into account and act upon the element of surprise involved. They also are usually armed while the members of the crowd, being mostly law-abiding citizens, have been disarmed by some supremely and incredibly idiotic anti-revolver law. Also so appreciate the feeling which always actuates any crowd of expectation that somebody else will take the lead. The point is that no one else does. While everybody is waiting for everybody and in the meantime is taking it out on wholesale rubbering, the crime is committed and the criminals disappear.

It would certainly seem as if in any large number of onlookers at such a spectacle there ought to be some few, at least, who were as quick of thought as fertile in resource, and as prompt of action as the criminals.

What is the reason there are not?

I've puzzled over it a good deal. I've vainly searched for some theory that would serve as an explanation of this seeming absence of initiative and efficiency in these often-reported city crowds at spectacular crimes.

One by one, every theory I've been able to devise has been knocked galley-west by the facts. I mean, every theory that doesn't involve actual degeneracy. That last I so dread and hate that I feel a little ashamed of just suggesting it, this way. But what else offers an answer?

D'ye suppose such things could have happened in the days of our grand-dads? D'ye suppose men in whom revolutionary traditions or even Civil war memories were alive would have gathered around a Jewelry Lane show-window by the hundreds to see a couple of thieves loot the cases, and then would have courteously opened a lane for them to walk through to the waiting auto which is usually represented as standing just around the corner, "with its engine running?"

The first tendency of a countryman like me is to seek the solution in some chance which city life has wrought in its citizens. I suspect, if you've ever thought of it, you've taken a similar tack. "Such a thing couldn't happen in the country," we say, rubbing our palms together in unctuous self-satisfaction.

Well, I don't know as it could. But I've just had, right before my eyes, a case of rural degeneration which impels me to drop the stone I had picked up to fling at the city. I'm not so sure as I was about the windows at home. Here are the facts:

It has been snowing, off and on, for about a week. Also, there has been one day and night of high wind. Also, it has been fairly cold, hugging the zero mark rather persistently. There may be twelve or fifteen inches of snow in protected spots where it didn't drift. There are occasional drifts from three to four feet deep. It is what the old folks would have called "snug winter weather," and then gone about their work, paying no more attention to it. I have seen more snow and higher winds and worse drifts dozens of times.

When I was a lad of not more than six or seven years, I used to find my way to schoolhouse, a good mile, in company with a dozen other kids and kidlets of approximately like age, over worse roads than any that now intervene. When such a storm came on some one of the farmers would hitch to the old wood-shod sled, with a plow chained to one rave, and break a first path. After that we schoolchildren and the rest of the public took the going as we found it and thought it rather a lark.

Our small boots were well greased, our small trousers carefully tied down over the boot-legs, our mufflers wound around our necks and tucked into our coat fronts, our thick yarn mittens drawn on, and we were started to school, ten minutes earlier than usual, to make up for the time our wise mothers knew we would take chasing each other into eligible snow-banks. Even the school-ma'am borrowed her big brother's rubber boots, and plowed her way along with us. And if any of the older folks had to go to the store for a pound of tea, or haul a few loads of wood to draw, or a visit to make over at Aunt Betsy's, why, they just hitched up and went. Perhaps they put a shovel on, in readiness for some unbroken stretch of road or some new drift. But they didn't stay home and "hive up" just because there was a little snow.

But that was years and years ago. Things are different, now. To happen to live on a road which, while not a state road, is still a line of main traffic. So far as I can learn, there isn't a drift for ten miles either way more than four feet deep, nor any other obstruction. Yet I am as truly marooned on this main highway as if I were in an Esquimaux's igloo in northern Greenland.

For four days not a single youngster has gone or been carried past on the way to school.

For four days neither butcher nor baker nor grocer's delivery has been seen.

For four days not even the United States mail-carrier has deigned to show up.

It is five days since some mechanics began a small job in the house. They tore the insides half out of it that day—and I haven't seen hide or hair of 'em since.

The telephone is still working, at intervals and after a fashion. Appeals made by it to grocers, postal authorities, workmen, etc., bring the stereotyped answer: "Can't get there on account of the roads."

It's snowing again, lightly, as I write. If it keeps on long enough to add a few inches more to the covering, doubtless it will be several days before any of these easily daunted moderns will dare tackle the road.

Yet the road isn't any worse—isn't really as bad as those which, sixty or sixty-five years ago, every old farmer negotiated as a matter of course, and even schoolmarms and school children in their A B C's scrambled uncomplainingly through. Roads which, as a matter of fact, the children looked upon as the beneficent dispensations of a genial Providence which was willing to give them an opportunity for some real fun.

But today the descendants of those same children can't get over them either for pleasure or business or duty!

Talk about possible city degeneracy! Here's a case of real and pitiful degeneracy, right out in the country, among the backwoods and in the great open spaces where, according to the novelists of the hour, men are men and not mannikins.

Now, dearly beloved fellow hayseed, are you going to explain such a thing as that?

I can't seem to convince myself that the men who daren't attack a snowed up road in Hardscrabble would be likely to plunge in and stop a burglary in New York city. The drifts are a good deal easier and less dangerous to handle.

Perhaps, reader, in your special neck of woods things are different. Perhaps your neighbors are tackling the snow with the same indifferent cheerfulness as their grand-dads used to. I hope so. I most devoutly hope so. I hope there are left some nooks of this fatherland of ours where men still live, not afraid either of Grand street bandits or Hardscrabble snow-banks.

But what I wish some inspired prophet would explain to me is what is happening to the American people as a whole. Are we losing our nerve? Are we slumping into what Grover Cleveland polysyllabically called "innocent desuetude?" Are we getting so used to having things done for us that we can't any longer do things for ourselves?

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Master—"Haven't you swept the shop out yet, John?"

Boy—"No, sir."

Master—"Then what on earth have you been doing?"

"Well, squire, how did you like the Russian dancers?"

"They didn't excite me none, to speak of," said Squire Withbee. "But there was one chap who could jump up in the air and crack his heels together five or six times before he hit the floor. I'm here to tell you he was pretty good."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The play was of the most mildly melodramatic characters but the great scene was that in which the hero "oppressed but indomitable," confronts the sneeringly, triumphant villain "Sir Marmaduke," the hero exclaimed, "you have reduced me to beggary, broken the heart of my aged mother and eloped with my wife, but don't go too far."—London Opinion.

Father—Yes, my son; I wish I could be young again. Wouldn't it be funny if I should once more become a little boy.

Tommy—Maybe it wouldn't be so awful funny for you, pa. If you got to be littler than me I think I'd square up a few things.—Boston Transcript.

"You didn't agree to get the lady a divorce?"

"No," said the lawyer. "She told me she was a Broadway wife with a Main street husband, and while I can understand why she wants her freedom, the chances are the case would be tried, before a Main street judge."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Don't laugh at me, boy," said the sensitive golfer who had fozzled.

"I wasn't sir," replied his caddie. "I was laughin' at another man."

"And what's funny about him?"

"He plays golf very much like you, sir."—Kansas City Star.

The weather has been unsettled lately, probably following the example of industrial conditions.—Kansas City Star.

She: "In days gone by, when a woman accepted a man, it was a sign that she loved him. It is different now."

He: "So it is. Nowadays it isn't even a sign that she is going to marry him."—Exchange.

"Here's a young woman," said the editor of "Advice to Girls," "who wants to know how to overcome the habit of blushing."

"Tell her to run around with a flock of flappers for a few weeks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Dobson—How many years have you been married?

Todson—Haven't been married a year.

Dobson—What? I know better.

Todson—Well, my wife was 24 when we were married and she's still 24.—Detroit News.

THE SEEKER

Friends and loves we have none, nor wealth, nor blest abode.
But the hope, the burning hope, and the road, the lonely road.

Not for us are content, and quiet, and peace of mind,
For we go seeking cities that we never shall find.

There is no solace on earth for us—for such as we—
Who search for the hidden beauty that eyes may never see.

Only the road and the dawn, the sun, the wind, the rain,
And the watch fires under the stars, and sleep, and the road again.

We seek the city of God, and the haunt where beauty dwells.
And we find the noisy mart, and the sound of burial bells.

Never the golden city, where radiant people meet,
But the dolorous town where the mourners are going about the street

We travel the dusty road till the light of the day is dim
And the sunset shows us spires away on the world's rim.

We travel from dawn till dusk, till the day is past and by.
Seeking the Holy City beyond the rim of the sky.

Friends and loves we have none, nor wealth, nor blest abode
But hope, the burning hope, and the road, the lonely road.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET SHOWED STRENGTH.

New York, Jan. 18.—Discouraged by their inability to bring out more stocks in their recent drive, bear interests virtually abandoned their operations on the short side in today's stock market and operators for the advance had little difficulty in bidding up prices. Net advances of 1 to 3 points were quite common at the close with a number of specialties recording substantially higher gains.

Bullish interests were encouraged by the less bellicose nature of the foreign news dispatches and the continued improvement in domestic conditions as reflected in increased car loadings, particularly of general merchandise; higher crude oil prices; resumption of dividends by Republic Steel Preferred and the high rate of production and stiffning price tendency in the steel industry; the good showing being made by industrial companies in their current earnings statements, and the continuance of low money rates.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to weakness but largely for individual reasons. Demand sterling closed around last night's final quotation, $4.65, early weakness being attributed to the failure of the British debt mission to reach an agreement with U. S. government representatives before their departure home. The weakness in francs reflects the doubt of the financial community as to France's ability to collect her reparations payments by force while the further slump of German marks to .0042 cents each mirrors the seeming hopelessness of stabilling the German unit of currency. Closing exchange rates were at or near the high levels of the day, marks rallying to .0047 cents.

One of the features of the stock market was the heavy trading in Anaconda, which was depressed nearly 3 points to 45 1-8 and then snapped back to 48, recovering all its loss. Selling of this issue apparently was based on the speculative belief that the heavy fixed charges involved in the recent $150,000,000 financing program for the acquisition of the majority stock of Chile, would materially defer its return to a dividend basis. The day's sales aggregated approximately 60,000 shares.

Republic steel issues made a good response to the unexpected resumption of dividends on the preferred stock, the common gaining 1 7-8 points and the preferred, 2 3-4. Other steels advanced in sympathy, U. S. Steel Common rising nearly a point to 106 7-8; Bethlehem B rising 1 3-8; Crucible, 1 7-8; Replogle, 1 1-4; Sloss Sheffield, 2 1-2, and Gulf States Steel, 2 5-8.

Heavy short covering undoubtedly accelerated the advance in Baldwin, which closed 2 5-8 higher at 134, as against yesterday's low of 129 1-4. Studebaker registered a net gain of 3 points, closing at 115 7-8. Some of the other well known industrial issues to advance 2 points or more were United Retail Stores, Continental Can, Fisher Body, American Tobacco B, General Cigar, Postum Cereal, Otis Elevator, Reynolds Spring, United Fruit, Corn Products, Chicago Pneumatic Tool and Ohio Fuel, the last named gaining 5 1-2 points.

Most of the oil shares made a favorable response to another increase in Pennsylvania crude prices but except in the case of Cosden, which advanced 1 1-4 and Oklahoma Producers & Refiners, up 1-2, the volume of business was comparatively light. Motors were active at higher prices, Hudson, Hupp and Chandler gaining at least a point. Rail shares again lagged behind the rest of the list, but Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, Southern Common and Preferred, Pere Marquette Common and Preferred and St. Louis-Southwestern gained 1 to 3 points.

Call money held at 4 per cent throughout the day. Time money was only moderately active with a slightly easier tone, some 30 day loans again being arranged at 4 1-4 and at 4 1-2 for 60 and 90 days. Bankers offer plenty of funds at 4 3-4 for the longer maturities but brokers are holding out for 4 1-2.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 18.—Liquidation of foreign bonds and the lively competition afforded by the large volume of new offerings continued to have a depressing effect on prices in today's bond market although in no part of the list was the reaction as sharp as yesterday's.

New low records were again established by Belgian 6s, 7 1-2 and 8s, French 8s, Soissons 6s, Prague 8s and Serbian 8s, the losses running from fractions to 2 points. Final prices showed slight recovery. Swedish 6s dropped 2 1-4, Bolivian 8s, 1 5-8 and Brazil 7s, 1 1-2, Uruguay 8s, Cuban Railroad 5s and Danish municipal 8s series A, all moved to higher ground.

A gain of 20 cents on $100 in Liberty 3 1-2s featured the U. S. government group, other issues in which showed losses of 2 to 4 cents.

Railroad mortgages were mixed with the speculative liens showing the best recuperative power. International & Great Northern Adjustment 6s, Canadian Pacific 4s, Illinois Central Refunding 4s and Norfolk & Western Convertible 6s dropped 1 to 1 1-2 points whereas Texas & Pacific firsts gained 3 -4 and Erie Convertible 4s, Series A and D; Frisco 4s, Pennsylvania 5s, "Soo" 6 1-2s and Southern Railway 4s rose 1 to 1 3-8.

A break of 3 3-4 points in Chile Copper 7s was easily the outstanding feature in the industrial division, other weak spots in which were American Smelting 5s and Francisco Sugar 7 1-2s. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s and Wilson Convertible 6s each moved up 1 point. Brooklyn Rapid Transit stamped 7s and Denver Gas 5s were the weak spots among the public utilities while Interborough stamped 5s and 7s closed higher.

Total sales (par value) were $11,635,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Almost complete stoppage of new export business in breadstuffs led to increased selling of wheat today and to consequent lower prices, despite bullish domestic crop conditions. The close was unsettled at 1c net decline to 1-8c gain, with May 1.10 3-4 to 1.18 7-8 and July 1.13 1-8 to 1.13 1-4. Corn lost 1-8c to 3-8c@1-2c, oats finished at 1-8c off to a like advance and provisions up to 12 to 22c.

Bears in the wheat market asserted that owing to the Franco-German clash and other European troubles the export trade had become demoralized for the time being, and it was estimated that a total of only 70,000 bushels of wheat had been purchased anywhere today for trans-Atlantic shipment. Notwithstanding that as a rule warlike developments tend to enlarge demand for grain, the financial outlook in Europe appeared to be regarded by most traders as so unpromising that there was general doubt whether this would be the result should a conflict break out at present.

Misgivings as to the crop prospect for winter wheat in the southwest and west were added to by continued lack of moisture and by indications of a cold wave. Especially during the last part of the day, this brought about some demand for July and September contracts, and rendered prices for those two months relatively firm. May wheat, however, in which activity was greater, showed a decided absence of power to rally, and finished heavy at about the bottom figures of the day.

News of a general drought in Argentina had a steadying influence on corn and oats.

Provisions were strengthened by higher quotations on hogs.

DETAILS OF SINKING OF AN ITALIAN FREIGHTER

New York, Jan. 18 (By the A. P.).—One hundred and fifty words or so, sent by wireless from Captain Manganaro of the steamship Giuseppe Verdi to The Associated Press tonight, painted a swift, grey picture of the sinking yesterday of the Italian freighter Montello and the rescue, through mountainous seas, of her crew of twenty-nine.

Her rudder broken, and her hold filling, the Montello was badly crippled when, in answer to calls of distress, the Giuseppe Verdi hove alongside. All through one night the two ships rode within sight of each other, helplessly waiting for the waves to abate. At daybreak the Montello, riding deeper and more dizzily, still was signalling distress. One small boat put bravely out from her side, crowded with twenty-one men.

Bucking the savage lane between the sinking freighter and her rescuer, the lifeboat was within touch of the Verdi when a great wave smashed the boat against the liner's side. Among the splinters, the twenty-one sailors struggled.

A volley of lifebelts, thrown from the Verdi, saved all twenty-one. Numb with the cold and the wet, they were pulled aboard and hurried to bunks.

On the Montello, eight others were waiting. Another launching from the Montello was impossible. The Verdi finally chanced one boat, in command of First Officer Stagnaro. To make the narrow passage to the Montello was the work of hours, but Stagnaro brought the sailors back.

All twenty-nine are rapidly recovering from exhaustion and cold, on board the Verdi, which reported it would arrive late, because of its mission of mercy, tomorrow.

The Montello sailed from Philadelphia Jan. 10 with a cargo of American and Canadian wheat, bound for Marseilles. She was a freighter of 6,105 tons gross. She was built in 1918. Francisco Suriese was in command.

The aim of American colleges should be to fit students to be citizens, President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard university, said in his annual report.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

MINERS PLAN TRI-STATE COMPETITIVE FIELD

New York, Jan. 18.—(By The A. P.)—The old "central competitive field" basis, upon which wages and working conditions in the bituminous coal industry have been determined almost continuously since 1898, was scrapped today by operators and union officials, conferring on 1923 wage contracts.

In its stead a new "Tri-State" competitive field was mapped, consisting of Indiana, Illinois and Ohio, and eliminating Pennsylvania upon the tri-state basis the conferees now hope to proceed with the establishment of standard wage rates which operators and miners throughout the United States may use as a guade in peacefully working out contracts this spring.

Miners and employers declared, at the close of today's sessions, that they were reasonably certain to complete their work within a week. The interim to April 1 then would remain for the negotiation of new wage scales throughout the industry, existing contracts expiring on that date.

Agreement of both parties to the negotiations to proceed as a tri-state basis was looked upon as a big stride toward the elimination of all possibility of a strike this season.

BRITAIN WOULD OWN SOIL WHERE SOLDIER DEAD LIE

Lausanne, Jan. 18 (By the A. P.).—An earnest appeal that Great Britain be permitted to own in her own right the soil where her soldier dead lie buried in Gallipoli was addressed to the Turks today by the British delegation. The Ottoman delegates probably will accede to this request. About [illegible] hundred thousand British fell around Gallipoli in the great war.

There is a general belief in England that a number of British soldiers, chiefly Indians, but some English, are still prisoners in the hands of the Turks, and the Turks have agreed to release them and extend the right of search to representatives of the British army.

Thirteen of the eighteen articles of the accord for the exchange of populations were ratified today, but the official activities touched none of the vital issues of the Near East conference, on which agreement has yet to be reached among the leaders.

Ambassador Child is continuing his friendly efforts at mediation, especially on the problem of judicial privileges for foreigners in Turkey.

CONFESSED DRUGGING OF AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

Berlin, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—The Englishman Jellin, arrested as a suspect in the mysterious death of Robert Nowak, is declared by the police to have made a full confession concerning the drugging of the victim, an American citizen who was found dead in his lodgings last Friday from chloroform or ether poisoning.

Jellin, who is said to have fled to Paris after the death of Nowak, returned to Berlin yesterday and ran into the clutches of the authorities. His suspected accomplice, a man named Mueller, is still in Paris, according to the authorities, and his extradition has been demanded.

Jellin's alleged confession described in detail how he, together with Mueller and their women accomplices, drugged Nowak's coffee in a West End Berlin cafe and took him home in a dazed condition, put him to bed in a semi-conscious condition, covered his face with pillows saturated with chloroform, robbed him of his American money and then fled to Paris.

SUBPOENA FOR BOOKS IN THE SENATE OIL PROBE

Washington, Jan. 18—A subpoena for the books and records of the Hyva corporation, a Sinclair owned concern, was drawn up for service upon Harry F. Sinclaim today, by the senate oil investigating committee after Mr. Sinclair had refused to concede the right of the committee to go into all affairs of the corporation pending consultation with his attorneys and had failed to return to the committee session after two hours absence.

Directions were said to have been given by Chairman La Follette of the committee to Davis S. Barry, sergeant at arms of the senate, to serve the subpoena before night. Mr. Sinclair was understood to be at work preparing a statement setting forth his attitude by its counsel during the course of the committee demand as to testimony earlier in the afternoon.

Mr. Sinclair appeared a few minutes after the committee adjourned with the statement which as given out by him said that he would willingly supply any records bearing upon subjects under inquiry by the the committee but that he was "not willing to produce the records of the Hyva corporation that pertain to other matters not pertinent to the subject matter under inquiry."

Mr. Sinclair after giving out his statement went to the office of the sergeant at arms Barry and the subpoena was serviced returnable next Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The statement of Mr. Sinclair said: "You have asked me whether I will furnish a copy of the articles of incorporation and by-laws, ledger, stock record books and all books of record showing all business transacted by the Hyva corporation since its incorporation.

"In reference to the remainder of your question, I will answer that the Hyva corporation is organized under the laws of Delaware and is owned ninety per cent. by myself, nine per cent. by my wife and one per cent by my mother. It is not engaged in the production or sale of oil or gas or any of the by-products thereof. It is not engaged in interstate commerce in any manner whatever. Its operations have been confined to the purchase, sale and exchange of securities.

"The record in this investigation shows that the Hyva corporation issued $50,000 shares of its common stock for one million 'A' shares and 1,500 'B' shares of the Mammoth Oil company; that it also bought 191,200 additional 'A' shares. I send willing and ready to furnish you with all of the records of the Hyva corporation pertaining in any way to the disposition of whatever part of the Mammoth Oil company's stock that has been disposed of by the Hyva corporation, and also showing the number of shares of Mammoth Oil company stock owned or controlled by it, or which it holds in trust for others. If any. I also am willing to furnish you with all records of the Hyva corporation showing what stock it owns at this time in the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation or in any other oil company or corporation. Further, I am not willing to produce the records of the Hyva corporation that pertain to matters not pertinent to the subject under inquiry."

GAINED 12,846 TELEPHONES IN STATE IN YEAR

A net gain of 12,846 telephones in the state during the year ended December 31st, 1922, making 198,203 the total number in public service, is the third largest yearly gain ever recorded by the Southern New England Telephone Company. In 1920 the net gain was 16,696 and in 1916 it was 13,067.

At the close of the past year indications forecasted a further substantial telephone development during the current year and this fact reflects a generally healthy business condition throughout the entire state.

Of the five districts into which is divided by the telephone company, facilitate its business, the Hartford district with an increase of 4,206 telephones, and a total of 57,329 shows a larger net gain than any other. The New Haven district with a gain of 3,230 and a total of 50,074 is second; Bridgeport with 2,685 gained and a total of 43,026 is next; Waterbury district gained 1,326 and has 24,468 and New London district added 1,325 for a total of 23,306 and ranks next.

On December 31 there were 33,305 telephones in New Haven, a gain of 2,364 during the year. Hartford has 32,156, an increase of 2,650; Bridgeport has 794 more telephones than a year ago and a total of 26,180; Waterbury has 11,863 telephones, a growth of 884 last year and New London has 6,847 which is 351 more than a year ago. Norwich has 4,261, a gain of 263 and Putnam gained 91, having 2,123 telephones now.

An interesting study of how the business improvement has affected certain localities is furnished by the figures of the years telephone development when compared with the gains recorded in 1921. The 1922 telephone gain in New Haven is more than 50 per cent. greater, Hartford's improvement also is about 50 per cent. over 1921, Bridgeport advanced more than 100 per cent. over its 1921 gain, New London more than tripled its 1921 gain and Waterbury with 358 gained in 1921 took on 880 last year.

TRAIN MISSED AUTOMOBILE ONLY BY FEW INCHES

Peter Stefferson, engineer of the Corticelli Silk company, had a narrow escape Thursday morning at 6:20 o'clock while driving across the tracks at the South Golden street crossing. The travelling conditions on that street are bad and snow has been banked on both sides of the track, all combined making the place nearly impassable. Mr. Stefferson had started across the tracks when he saw the engine coming. He speeded up the truck and the train rushed by within a few inches of the truck.

It is said that the crossing conditions are a distinct menace to public safety and that an official of the company is to take it up with Mayor Michael R. Waters to see if something can be done to remedy this situation.

M'ALL FIELD SECRETARY ADDRESSES MEETING HERE

An interesting meeting was held on Thursday afternoon at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house under the auspices of the Norwich Auxiliary of the McAll Mission, the speaker being George T. Berry of New York, field secretary of the American McAll Association.

In his remarks Mr. Berry outlined the work of the McAll Mission during its 50 years of life. He dwelt especially on the doings of the mission in France, stating that never before has there been such a need of the gospel in France as in the present time. Thousands of men and women claim there can be no God, because of the terrible things through which they have recently passed.

The French have lost faith but they look for justice by the other allied nations. I believe that the French have done the right thing in going into the Ruhr valley, said Mr. Berry. The Germans, as the French see them, recognize only the power of military force and this is what France is showing them. Why should the French trust the Germans further? History shows that every 50th year for 1,500 years the Germans have invaded France. The allies should sympathize with France and get behind her in her struggle for justice.

Previous to the talk by Mr. Berry there was prayer by Rev. S. H. Howe and Mrs. W. Russell Baird sang several numbers. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. S. H. Howe and Miss Elizabeth Huntington spoke briefly, welcoming the speaker of the occasion to Norwich.

VETERAN MARINER HAS MADE HIS LAST PORT

Capt. Elisha F. Horner, veteran master of vessels, died Thursday at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital in New London, after being a patient there for six months, at the age of 81 years. Death was due largely to his advanced years. He had made his home for the past six or eight years with his daughter, Mrs. Richard E. Belden of New London.

Captain Horner was a native of Avon, this state, but a large part of his life, he had served on tow boats, barges and lighters of this section. He was a member of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F., and of Brainard lodge, A. F. and A. M., of this city.

He had been retired from service on the water several years ago and for a while had a farm in Niantic. He was a resident of Groton for many years.

His last service as master was in one of the Griswold hotel boats running in the summer between New London and the hotel. Captain Horner was also at one time the master of the Yantic, one of the two gasoline passenger boats which ran between New London and Norwich, under the ownership of Avery Smith.

Captain Horner was for several years employed by the Thames Tow Boat company, being mate on several of their tow boats and at one time captain of a barge owned by the company.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Belden, another daughter, Mrs. Jane Crandall, of East Greenwich, R. I. and a son, Fred Horner, Fairview, Groton.

INFLUENZA GAINED IN STATE IN PAST YEAR

In a report just issued the state department of health gives the number of communicable diseases in the state last year and comparing it with 1921. In tuberculosis a considerable decrease was shown, there were 1,805 reported last year, compared with 1,828 the year previous. Typhoid fever, 315 and 460, and whooping cough 2,109 and 2,905.

The report for the past week shows in the state a decrease in new cases of whooping cough, 69 in all and 73 the week previous.

Measles 337 cases and 367 cases the week previous. Scarlet fever 108 cases and 85 new cases the week previous. Diphtheria 87 new cases and 63 the week previous. There were 83 new cases of chickenpox reported in the state, 50 of influenza, 36 of mumps and 32 of pneumonia.

PROSPECTIVE FUEL SHORTAGE STIRS GOVERNOR TEMPLETON

Hartford, Jan. 18.—Empty coal bins, and prospect of much suffering among the people of Connecticut, led Governor Templeton to send to the general assembly today a message calling attention to the increasing seriousness of the fuel situation. He did not suggest a form of legislation but Senator Ellis, majority leader, offered a bill which had been drawn by Attorney General Healy and which would give broad powers to Fuel Administrator Russell to deal with the distribution of coal. Under the bill he would have the right of seizure of coal, and authority to prosecute where there were evidences of profiteering. The bill was ordered printed in the senate journal and it is expected that Tuesday it will be discussed as emergency legislation.

The legislative day was an active one compared with those which have preceded it. Business offered was considerable, and notable in it was the reintroduction from last session of two proposed constitutional amendments which are expected to be reported upon favorably. One would alter the veto power of the executive to the extent of removing the obligation of a blanket veto on measures in which there may be something to which he objects by permitting him to veto objectionable items and to approve the balance of the measure. The other would retire judges at 75 years of age instead of 70 as now made obligatory by the constitution.

A bill which was out of ordinary was that in the senate to incorporate Frederick C. Walcott, Jane C. Childs, Mary G. Walcott and Sterling W. Childs, of Norfolk, as the Childs-Walcott corporation with $100,000 capital without any specific object for incorporation given.

The advocates of a College of Pharmacy today asked for further time in which to organize. An equal rights bill, before many sessions, which draws to the capitol, when it is heard in committee, representative negroes of the state and the country, had as its new feature a provision which provides for prosecution of any one who shall publish the fact that discrimination had been shown against any person on account of color or race, through the press or other channels of publicity.

No resolution was offered today to have the general assembly appeal to the federal courts to dismiss the five federal trustees now administering the affairs of the Connecticut company. Those who will sponsor such a measure are said to be in the same predicament as those who last session desired to do the same thing. They are not agreed on the form of a communication from the legislature to the federal court of the second jurisdiction of New York which named the trustees.

Governor Templeton had a number of callers who have been closely allied with trolley affairs and belief was strengthened that the Connecticut legislature will try to get this Connecticut chartered company back into the hands of its owners so that $31,000 said to be paid in salaries to the federal trustees may be used in bringing back the nickel fare.

A five-cent trolley fare bill is expected next week. Mr. Schatz of Hartford put in a bill to stop companies raising fares without approval of the public utilities commission. He also offered bills for the popular election of members of the public utilities commission, and to provide for assistant compensation commissioners in each district whose duties shall be to find employment for partially disabled workmen who have received their compensation and to provide vocational training for them at a cost not exceeding $250 each.

The American Legion will offer no bonus bill and it is understood will take only a passive attitude toward such bills.

A little learning and a little widow are dangerous things.

COAL ENOUGH IN THE RUHR TO LAST INDEFINITELY

Essen, Jan. 18.—(By The A. P.)—If the amount of coal mined in Rhenish Westphalia in the past decade can be taken as a standard of measurement for the annual demands upon this region it still contains sufficient deposits to last two thousand years, according to estimates by scientific circles here. The total amount brought to the surface up to the present is estimated at three billion tons.

Scientists believe that even to a depth of 1,500 meters alone coal to the amount of 76,000,000,000 tons is awaiting the miner's pick and mechanical drill. Below that, if some day it becomes technically profitable to exploit it, there are thought to lie an additional 130,000,000,000 tons.

It is estimated that the deposits above the 1,500 meter level will not be exhausted for 4700 years at the rate they have been drawn upon during the last decade. The daily output of the Ruhr region alone, roughly, is about half the Westphalia output, has lately been averaging about 330,000 tons.

German commercial quarters assert that the Ruhr district itself uses only 9,000 tons daily, yet supplies half of all Germany's requirements. On the day the occupation forces began requisitioning coal, barges and railway gondolas, it is interesting to note that, according to the same German sources, up to recently the Ruhr acquired as many as 30,000 cars daily for all purposes, 20,000 of which were for coal shipments.

Reports reaching Essen today showed that the occupying forces were obtaining at least part of the fuel for which they care. In addition to the 120 cars of coal held up at the limits of the occupation zone, 14 barge loads were seized at Duisburg and sent to Mannheim. Much as the Essen citizens are grieved over these reports, their hearts apparently are sorriest tonight over the latest order of the Franco-Belgian military authorities forbidding the singing of "Die Wacht Am Rhine."

Anybody here heard singing this song or "Deutschland Ueber Alles" is liable to a punishment of 200,000 marks fine or six months' imprisonment.

The same penalities are provided for displaying any kind of a flag, whether the national colors or otherwise, or for wearing any kind of buttonhole insignia.

The citizens of Essen further felt the presence of their uninvited guests today when they tried to commemorate the fifty-second birthday of the German empire by laying wreaths on the Bismark monument and the monument of Wilhelm I. As soon as the military officials spied the floral piece honoring Bismark they ordered it removed by a German policeman.

The only troop advance reported during the day was the arrival of a French regiment of infantry at Herdecke, a few kilometers from Wetter, which was previously occupied.

There are now twenty-two foreign and fifteen domestic quarantines in force in this country aimed at controlling insect pests already present and guarding against the entry of others from abroad.

FIRED DOZEN SHOTS TO CAPTURE CASE OF WHISKEY

New York, Jan. 18—A launch with five men and a case of Scotch whiskey aboard, was captured after a chase through the craft on the North River today, in which a dozen shots were fired.

The fugitive narrowly missed several river ships in attempting to scurry to safety, but was halted in midstread opposite 59th street.

The men were bound for a christening in New Jersey, they said, when they were held in $5,000 bail each.

And many a good man who wouldn't bet on anything takes a long chance at the matrimonial game.

PENALTIES PROMULGATED BY RHINELAND COMMISSION HAVE BEEN EXTENDED

Ordinance Now Includes Seizure of the Customs Receipts, Seizure and Exploitation of the State Forests, and Collection of the Coal Tax—Fines of 100,000,000 Marks and Five Years' Imprisonment Have Been Prescribed as Penalties for Violation of the Ordinance—Seven Coal and Coke Magnates Are Held Prisoners by the Occupational Forces—German Bankers Brought to Terms by Stern Measures by French.

Duesseldorf, Jan. 19 (By the A. P.)—General Degoutte, the French commander, signed a decree this afternoon extending the penalties promulgated by the interallied Rhineland commission yesterday to include the occupied area of the Ruhr. Mines of 100,000,000 marks and five years' imprisonment were prescribed as the penalties for failure to comply with the ordinance, which provides for seizure of the customs receipts, seizure and exploitation of the state forests, and collection of the coal tax.

MINE WORKERS IN RUHR HAVE DRAFTED A PROTEST

Reckhinghausen, Jan. 19 (By the A. P.)—The workers' council for all the state mines in the Ruhr has drafted a protest to General Denvignes, announcing that all the men under its jurisdiction will cease work unless the properties are released from seizure, the troops removed, and those persons arrested released.

FRENCH ARE OVERCOMING OBSTRUCTION OF GERMANS

Duesseldorf, Jan. 19 (By the A. P.)—France is engaged in fighting its economic battle of the Marne along the lines of the river Ruhr and the Rhine canal.

Suddenly assuming the offensive in this titanic struggle, after having been on the defensive for more than a week, France tonight has taken the lead in the financial and economic operations, and the French mission has begun to have Germany retreating along the entire front.

Seven arrests, the extension of the Rhineland penalties to the Ruhr, the requisitioning of 21,000 tons of coal, the reopening of branches of the reichsbank and private banking institutions tomorrow after a half day's shut down, and failure by the railroad men to strike this afternoon as they had been ordered to do by the Berlin government, are the day's successes which a French communique might record were a communique issued.

The directors of the Bermandsgeuck, Westernhold and Rhine and Lahn works in the region of Bochum, and the director and sub-director of the Mulerschechte mine in the region of Gladbach, who refused to obey French orders to turn over their records and assist the French in operating their plants, were arrested and joined Dr. Schlutius, president of the Duesseldorf state finance department, and Mine Director Rochstein in the Duesseldorf central jail, where the French say they will be treated as political prisoners. French troops occupied the pits and coke ovens which the directors refused to hand over to them.

General Degoutte, the French commander, has lost no time in extending the interallied commission's Rhineland penalties to the Ruhr. The decree promulgated tonight goes into effect at midnight. This evening French, Belgian and Italian customs officers began arriving in Duesseldorf, ready to proceed with the collection of coal and other taxes. Engineers working directly under M. Loste, head of the industrial mission, are taking charge of state forests.

The German workers express a willingness to continue on their jobs, but the German customs officers are meeting this evening in Duesseldorf to decide whether or not to accept French supervision.

The French today continued to requisition coal wherever they found it in cars or barges in the occupied area.

Prompt action was taken today to meet the situation created by the closing of the doors of the Reichsbank in Duesseldorf and the consequent shutting down of all other banking institutions in the city. General Denvignes summoned Dr. Guppermann, director of the Reichsbank, and issued an ultimatum to him to reopen the bank tomorrow or spend the evening in jail. Dr. Guppermann agreed to reopen the institution. It is probable that all the other banks will follow the suit of the Reichsbank, as the reason given by them for closing today was failure of the Reichsbank to deliver them currency.

STERN MEASURE TO BRING GERMAN BANKER TO TERMS

Duesseldorf, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—The director of the local branch of the Reichsbank, which was seized today by the French authorities, announces that the bank will be open for business tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. The director says he had not intended removing the funds of the bank to the interior of Germany but was merely transferring currency to local private institutions when the French intervened and closed the bank.

The arrest of Dr. Schlutius, president of the state finance department, and Mine Director Rochstein, and the summoning of Fritz Thyssen, who had been ordered to report at headquarters this afternoon, gave an indication that the French had resolved upon carrying out the sterner policy which they had announced several times but never put into effect.

Dr. Schlutius had refused point blank to deliver the records and books of the financial commissariat of the Rhine province to M. Tannery, delegate of the French ministry of finance. "I am a German and I do not accept orders from the French, Dr. Schlutius told M. Tannery, politely but firmly.

"You have ten minutes in which to surrender the records," Mr. Tannery replied in similar vein.

Still smiling, Dr. Schlutius rejoined: "Don't waste those valuable ten minutes. My answer is no."

The soldiers were then called in.

"I bow to the inviolate right of bayonets," was Dr. Schlutius' parting shot as he was led to jail. The Germans spoke of him today with unconcealed admiration.

Finance Minister Hermes sent a telegram to Dr. Schlutius thanking him heartily for his "manly conduct in the face of military arbitrariness."

CONCESSIONS MADE BY THE REPARATIONS COMMISSION

Paris, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—The reparation commission today postponed consideration of Germany's failure to deliver full amounts of benzol to Italy, which the French had hoped would add another default against Germany to those already declared on coal and wood deliveries.

The commission also decided to limit action on Germany's payment of more than thirty billion marks as subsidies to German shipmasters against a renewed protest by the committee on guarantees at Berlin.

It was felt by the commission that it was necessary to complicate matters by acting on these problems now, inasmuch as the French plan will be ready, probably tomorrow night, and will be presented to the commission Monday or Tuesday when the question of a moratorium for Germany comes up for discussion. This plan has been revised up to date to meet recent conditions.

The reparations commission today reelected Louis Barthou president and the Marquis Salvago Raggi of Italy vice president for the one year term in accordance with the interallied agreement that distributes the offices of the commission among different countries.

TO COMBAT EXCESSIVE EATING IN GERMANY

Berlin, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Cuno today issued a manifesto to the various German states, pointing to the need to combat excessive eating and drinking.

The distresses of the vast majority of the population, he said, had been intensified by the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, and the government regarded gluttony, luxury and the abuse of alcohol as a provocation to all the suffering people which the states must arrest unless they desire to lost their status as moral factors.

After specifying the new measures which the government has submitted to the reichsrat, the chancellor urges the states not to wait for completion of the legislation, but to take whatever steps are possible under the existing laws, such as prohibiting the sale of intoxicants to youths, suppression of licenses and imposition of rigorous penalties for drunkenness.

SEIZURE OF REICHSBANK BRANCHES RESCINDED

Berlin, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—According to a semi-official statement this even the seizure of the reichsbank branches by the interallied Rhineland high commission at Mayence, Weisbaden, Worms, Bingen and Bonn today was later rescinded, deposits in the customs and finances offices being held.

The Frankfort Zeitung declares that the branch of the Reichsbank at Treves also was seized.

GERMANS NOT ALLOWED TO LEAVE RHINELAND

Coblenz, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—As soon as it became known today that the Berlin government had ordered German officials not to execute ordinances of the control commission, the commission issued an order forbidding officials to leave the Rhineland or the Ruhr region.

Disobedience of the order will involve five years' imprisonment and heavy fines.

FRENCH HAVE SEIZED 21,000 TONS GERMAN COAL

Duisburg, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.)—Coal to the amount of 21,000 tons, destined for the interior of Germany, was seized by the French today and diverted to France. The seizures which occurred in the regions of Duisburg, Langrene and Hoerne, were without untoward incident.

FIVE MORE COAL AND COKE MAGNATES UNDER ARREST

Duesseldorf, Jan. 19.—(By the A. P.) Five more coal and coke magnates were arrested this afternoon in the region of Bochum and Gladbach, northeast of Cologne, bringing to seven the total o fsuch prisoners held by the occupational forces.

COMMITTEE VOTES TO UNIFYY M. E. CHURCH

Cincinnati, Jan. 19.—The report of the committee of ten on unification of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was approved in a joint session of the two commissions this afternoon and then referred back to a reorganized committee of 16, which will work out details of the plan to be submitted to another joint commission meeting, which will be held on a date to be selected later.

A RUM CRAZED MAN ATTACKED EIGHT WOMEN

Cleveland, Jan. 19.—The search for a rum-crazed gunman, who for three days has caused a reign of terror ended tonight with the arrest of the malnpe after he had shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Carmelia Coco.

During his rampage the man attacked eight women and shot a man when he went to the rescue of a family.

HOUSE PASSED $33,000,0000 ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL

Washington, Jan. 19.—The army appropriation bill, carring $333,0000,000, was passed tonight by the house after the rivers and harbors bloc had put through an amendment increasing the item for waterway projects from $37,000,000 to $56,589,000 and the item for completing the Muscle Shoals dam and power project had been accepted.

The principal change in the military sections of the bill today was an amendment prohibiting the purchase from private manufacturers of ordnance at a cost higher than would be necessary for government manufacture. The bill originally provided that except as authorized, one of the money should be so appropropriated "at a price in excess of 35 per centum more than the cost of government manufacture.

A last minute effort by Representative Sisson, of Mississippi, ranking democrat on the military committee, to reduce the appropriations for the regular army and automatically reduce its size was voted down.

In putting over the increase for river and harbor improvement, the house swept aside the view of President Harding, who, according to Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, believed $27,000,000 or $10,000,000 less than the committee provided, was sufficient for river projects during the next fiscal year.

Attack on army engineers was made by Republican Leader Mondell who declared they had been preaching to members that sufficient sums had not been provided.

Chairman Madden, declared that in increasing the appropriation it was ignoring public opinion.

"This thing you are attempting," he exclaimed, "means a waste of money on creeks over which not one pound of commerce ever will be carried."

NEW HAVEN ROAD DENIES BREAKDOWN OF TRAFFIC

New York, Jan. 19.—E. J. Pearson, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, tonight denied a statement made today by William H. Johnson, president of the International Association of Machinists, that the New Haven faced a complete breakdown of traffic unless immediate action was taken to end the shopmen's strike.

Mr. Pearson said the situation was covered by him a week ago in a statement to shippers, this statement said that the traffic situation would have been adequately met through improvements to the property, except for the strike of shopmen. New forces recruited by the road, however, were maintaining current requirement and assisting in reducing the large volume of accrued repair work, the statement continued. With 80 signal towers being done by gas, this stops the prospects for an output of repaired locomotives in January and following months were said to be 15 per cent or more in excess of normal requirements.

"It is to be noted," the statement added, "that return of strikers would not increase the productive capacity of shops under the present condition that has been brought about, or expedite the recovery of conditions directly created by those who went out on strike."

The overcoming of the difficulties caused by the various waves of movement in transportation cannot be achieved immediately, the statement concluded, but through arrangements under way, cooperation of patrons and favorable weather, there would be continued and increasing improvement, and the very high costs now running against the road would be reduced.

DETECTIVES FRUSTRATE HOLD-UP MEN IN BROOKLYN

New York, January 19.—Three armed bandits late today shot two employes of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company in an ineffectual attempt to rob them of a $7,500 payroll. The bandits escaped.

The attempted holdup occurred in the fitter's school maintained by the company on St. James place, Brooklyn.

The bandits entered the school twenty minutes after George Gehrig, James McCable and Frank Main, assistant paymaster, accompanied by two detectives, had entered the building to distribute weekly pay envelopes.

The bandits pointed their guns at the employes and ordered "hands up."

At the bandits' command, the detectives, James E. Meher, and John Ross, immediately opened fire.

The bandits returned the fire. Between forty and fifty bullets were exchanged.

William Wills, a company chauffeur, received a bullet in the abdomen and was taken to the hospital in a critical condition. John Edwards, a clerk, was shot in the shoulder.

After the volley of shots, the bandits backed into the street and jumped into a black taxicab waiting for them with door open.

That sped away, but the detectives gave chase on foot, reloading their revolvers and firing several shots without effect.

THE RODOLPH VALENTINO INJUNCTION MODIFIED

New York, Jan. 19.—Rodolph Valentino, motion picture star, won a point in his legal controversy with the Famous Players Lasky Corporation today, through the modification of a temporary injunction in appellate court. The injunction, which forbade him from performing any service without permission of the Lasky Corporation, was amended by striking out clauses that would prevent him from engaging "in any other business of any kind or class whatever" and from "rendering any service for himself or als account."

The ruling will permit Valentino to engage in any business except appearing beforo the camera pending the trial of the suit for a permanent injuction.

DUKE OF YORK PRESENTS SAPPHIRE ENGAGEMENT RING

London, Jan. 19.—The Duke of York presented to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, the future duchess, an exquisite sapphire ring this afternoon as a token of their engagement.

Rev. Percy S. Grant Called Upon to Recant

Bishop Manning Insists Upon Belief in Our Lord Jesus Christ as God and Savior.

New York, Jan. 19.—Bishop William T. Manning, of the Protestant Episcopal church, tonight made public a letter calling on the Reverend Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, "to correct unmistakeably the impression which you have publicly given of your disbelief in our Lord Jesus Christ as God and Saviour, or if it is not possible for you to do so, then to withdraw from the ministry of this church."

The utterances of Dr. Grant, which had aroused widespread comment, were made in the course of a sermon last Sunday night, described by him as "not an attack upon anyone or anything," but "a straightforward talk in the interest of economic and social welfare."

Besides questioning the divinity of Christ, Dr. Grant attacked the consecration of churches as "an idea inherited from the age of witchcraft" and urged that consecrating of church buildings be stopped "if that prevents them from being used as forums."

Dr. Grant until 1919 had conducted open forums in his church, permitting the discussion of current topics, including politics with a racial tinge, until the late Bishop Burch called a halt on them.

The sermon which resulted in Bishop Manning's demand also touched on the subject of marriage and divorce—a subject in which Dr. Grant had shown much interest, particularly since Bishop Manning warned him, two years ago, that he could not carry through his announced intention of marrying Mrs. Philip Lydig, twice a divorcee, without violating the canons of the church.

Concerning marriage in last Sunday's sermon, Dr. Grant said:

"If we clearly understand that priests have no power to make marriage more than it is, its sacredness, we perceive, comes not from a priest, but from its essential characteristics, which have to do with the attitude and lives of the people involved, and cannot be preserved as something independent of their feeling, will and behavior."

PRESIDENT HARDING VERY MUCH IMPROVED

Washington, Jan. 19.—The condition of President Harding, who has been confined to the White House for several days with an attack of the grip, was declared by his physician, Brigadier General Sawyer, tonight, to be "very much improved." During the day he moved about his room after being confined for some time to his bed and it was said his fever had disappeared. Also, it was said, his appetite had awakened.

Dr. Sawyer said, however, that the patient would not be permitted to visit his office tomorrow and at the executive offices it was asserted that no engagements had been made for the early part of next week.

The regular Tuesday cabinet meeting, however, has not yet been cancelled and there is a possibility that the president may go to the executive offices Monday to begin cleaning up papers that have accumulated during his illness.

$2,453,456.95 APPROPRIATIONS BY STATE BOARD OF CONTROL

Hartford, Jan. 19.—Appropriations aggregating $2,453,456.95 were made by the state board of control during the period from January 6, 1921 to January 3, 1923, according to a report handed to Governor Templeton by Edward H. Wilkins, clerk of the board. It was the largest amount by far ever appropriated by the board of control in a two-year period, as the board, under the administration of Governor Lake, was the first which was ever authorized by the legislature to make deficiency appropriations, which account for $2,191,839.37 of the total. Salary increases allowed by the board to deputies, clerks and employes of state departments reached a total of $13,677.75. All the increases were made in a period of a year and sixteen days ended November 22 last.

TURKS REPORT THAT GREEKS ARE CONCENTRATING TROOPS

Constantinople, Jan. 19 (By the A. P.).—An official communique issued by the Turkish government declares that the Greeks, "taking advantage of the allies' negligence," are concentrating troops along the entire length of the Maritza river and have established strong contingents at Karagatch, in violation of the Mudania armistice convention.

Some of the Greek detachments, according to the Turkish statement, actually crossed the Maritza and fired on the inhabitants of a Turkish post, causing some casualties.

A Concerted "Dry" Drive in New York

To Put Padlock on All Establishments Convicted of Prohibition Law Violations.

New York, Jan. 19.—Thousands of New York saloons, cafes and restaurants, a large number of them in the White Light district, may be closed in the near future as a result of decisions made at the second of two conferences on prohibition enforcement, ashore and afloat, attended today by E. C. Yellowley, acting head of the state enforcement forces.

Padlocking of virtually all establishments convicted of prohibition law violations, it was stated, would follow the beginning today of united action by federal and local authorities.

Concerted action by prohibition enforcement authorities, federal judicial forces, the customs service and the New York police against rum law violators was decided upon at the two conferences. The first was with customs and port authorities, the second with representatives of the federal prosecutor's office and the New York police department.

The second meeting followed the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals, affirming a decree closing Reisenweber's restaurant for a year for violation of the Volstead act. It was stated that injunctions similar to the one filed against Reisenweber's would be filed against other violators.

This decision was supplemented by an order from Police Commissioner Enright. Inspecting Chief Inspector Lahey to proceed with a clean-up of reported blind pigs and speak easies on the water front.

Reports current during the day that rum runners were planning to visit the big liquor fleet off Sandy Hook and make a dash for Long Island ports with whiskey this evening, had failed to materialize at dusk, and there were no outward indications of a sortie, according to a dispatch from Highlands, N. J., to The Associated Press.

The correspondent reported that two small craft had visited the fleet during the afternoon and returned, riding deeper in the water than when they went out. Other small boats of the fleet tied up in the Shrewsbury river went out for the first spine they had taken since their rum running activities were checked last week, but none went near the liquor fleet.

TO FIX THE SOUTHERN BOUNDARIES OF TURKEY

Lausanne, Jan. 19 (By the A. P.)—Marquis Curzon, chief spokesman of Great Britain at the Near East conference, informed Ismet Pasha today that as chairman of the conference's territorial commission, he was ready to discuss next week the question of fixing the southern boundaries of Turkey. This means that the frontier between Turkey proper and Mosul, with its oil fields, which England claims, may come up for consideration.

Efforts by the conferees today to complete the details of the project concerning exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey failed, although further progress was made chiefly through the mediation of M. Delacroix, of Belgium.

OBITUARY.

Col. George D. Russell.

South Norwalk, Jan. 19.—Col. George D. Russell, formerly lieutenant colonel of the old Forty-ninth regiment of the New York National guard and commander of the former Thirteenth regiment of Brooklyn during the Spanish-American war, died suddenly at his home here last night from heart failure, aged 74 years. He was a former councilman and police commissioner of the city of Norwalk and for a number of years was proprietor of the Norwalk hotel. Colonel Russell is survived by a widow, one son and two daughters. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon, interment being in Norwalk cemetery.

Col. Edward H. Taylor

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 19.—Colonel Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., 93, noted Kentucky distiller and stock man, died at his country home, "Thistleton" near here late today after a brief illness of pneumonia. Three sons and five daughters survive. Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock at "Thistleton," and Rt. Rev. Lewis Burton, of Lexington officiating.

From 1886 to the day prohibition became effective Mr. Taylor's name was known around the globe, for he had given it to "Old Taylor" whiskey, made in his distillery, pronounced by expert distillery to be the finest plant of the kind in the world.

Colonel Taylor, in addition to being the manufacturer of whiskey, also was the owner of a herd of Hereford cattle that gained fame for him second only to that of his liquor.

A Fund of Information You Should Have.

Disraeli, who for six years was prime minister of England, said: "It has been my observation that the most successful man in any undertaking, is the man who has the most information."

It doesn't require any particular information just to go out and buy something. But to buy the best of that something at a price that is satisfactory to you—that is a successful purchase. To make such purchases you must have information.

Advertising gives you just that kind of information. That is why it is a paying proposition for the man or woman who handles a pocket-book to study the advertisements in The Bulletin — REGULARLY — EVERY DAY.

To those who use it properly, newspaper advertising is a source of economy and satisfaction that never runs dry.

If you would learn the facts about the things you need to make you comfortable and happy, read The Bulletin's advertisements.

ANOTHER MASKED PARTY ON BASTROP-MER ROUGE ROAD

Judge Odon, Presiding at Open Hearing, Announced Another Hold-Up Late Thursday Night, Had Been Officially Reported to Him—Evidently Were Looking for "Mr. Knight"—R. A. Whetatone, State's Most Important Witness, Called to Testify at Investigation of Operations of Marked Bands in Morehouse Parish.

Bastrop, La., Jan. 19 (By the A. P.)—A black-hooded band still is operating in Morehouse Parish. Such was the official statement made late today by department of justice officers to Judge Fred M. Odom, presiding at the open inquiry into masked band activities here.

The department of justice report names Sidney Rogers, a youth residing near Mer Rouge, as the victim. Rogers, according to the report, claimed he was stopped by six or eight black hooded men, one of them holding him up with a pistol. He said they demanded to know if he was "Mr. Knight." When he identified himself he was told to move on.

The federal officers' report said that the man wanted was J. M. Knight, a grocer of Mer Rouge.

Neither J. M. Knight nor Sidney Rogers are witnesses at the open hearing.

Judge Odom announced that he has ordered a full investigation.

J. M. Knight, according to the official report could give no reason why the hooded band was after him.

SURPRISE AT THE BASTROP HEARING ON MASKED BANDS

Bastrop, La., Jan. 19 (By the A. P.).—State's Attorney General A. V. Coco, conducting the investigation here into the operations of masked bands in Morehouse parish, sprung a surprise today when at the open hearing he placed R. A. ("Berry") Whetstone on the state. Whetstone, regarded as the state's most important witness in its effort to identify the kidnappers and slayers of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, almost at the beginning of his testimony named T. Jeff Burnett, former deputy sheriff, now under arrest on a charge of murder, as one of the members of the masked band that had Daniel and Richard in charge the evening of Aug. 24, at a point on the Bastrop-Mer Rouge highway two miles from Bastrop.

Whetstone, since stating several weeks ago that he had identified one or more of the masked men, has been in charge of the authorities at an unannounced place, and when he unexpectedly appeared in the court room he was escorted by Detective Chief Glynn of the New Orleans department. He left the room accompanied by Glynn immediately after concluding his testimony, was joined by agents of the federal department of justice and, in the absence of an announcement as to his whereabouts, it was assumed he was taken to Baton Rouge or some other city.

Newt Gray, declared yesterday by Fred Eubanks to have been a member of the band which kidnapped Daniel and Richard, was named again today as one of the party.

Mrs. J. H. Inabet of Mer Rouge testified that after attending the barbecue and basket[illegible] games in Bastrop on Aug. 24 she started for home in an automobile driven by Thelma Dade, granddaughter of J. L. Daniel and niece of Watt Daniel. The car, she said, was held up by the masked men and when it was ascertained no men were aboard it was ordered to proceed. Miss Dade saw her grandfather and uncle both blindfolded and guarded by hooded men and became so agitated that Mrs. Inabet had to take her place at the wheel of the car.

Mrs. Inabet said the mask of one of the hooded men was torn, that she recognized him and, upon being pressed for his identity, declared it was Newt Gray.

Whetstone's experience with the hooded band was unlike that of other persons held up. He resides at Oak Ridge and walked to Bastrop to attend the celebration. He left for home in the evening, about with the expectation that he would be given a lift by a passing motorist, and while walking saw an automobile parked near the highway. He assumed it was a party of motorists, but upon approaching discovered the persons about the are were black-hooded men.

He almost reversed, then before he was observed, he said, and when fifty feet away one of the men called him by name. The party forced him to join them, he said, and he sat upon a log for thirty minutes in the midst of the group. He noticed wires hanging down and discovered that the telephone lines had been cut.

"Pretty soon," he continued, "the crowd came from Bastrop and all of them got up. Then about twenty minutes later someone told me they had Watt Daniel, J. L. Daniel, W. C. Andrews and those other fellows. Then I got loose from them and caught a car and rode to Oak Ridge."

Asked if he recognized any of the masked men, Whetstone replied:

"Yes—T. J. Burnett."

"Are you positive?"

"Yes; he had his mask up."

"Did he ever indicate afterward that he knew you had recognized him?" Attorney General Coco, examining him, questioned.

"Yes, every time I would see him he would smile at me just as if to say, 'Well, you know'."

VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL IN HERRIN MURDER TRIAL

Marion, Ill., Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.)—After nearly 27 hours' deliberation a jury of Williamson county farmers today delivered a verdict of not guilty in the first case resulting from the killing of twenty-one non-union workers during the Herrin riots last June.

The end of the long trial came as suddenly that both spectators and the five defendants who were charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman, one of the victims of the outbreak, appeared dazed.

Word that the jury had reached a verdict was received by Judge D. T. Hartwell at his office at 1.30 o'clock this afternoon. He immediately notified the attorneys and ordered the defendants brought from the jail a block away. The news spread and the court room filled swiftly.

After warning the spectators against any demonstration, Judge Hartwell ordered the jury brought in at 1.50 o'clock. Five minutes later the last of the separate verdicts had been read and received in dead silence. While the defendants sat almost motionless in their chairs without any sign of emotion, the jury filed out by one door, the spectators left by another and, just ten minutes from the time the jury was brought in, the court room was again empty.

All of the jurors refused to discuss their verdict and melted away in the crowds that gathered in little groups about the square to discuss the findings. Several jurors indicated, however, that the verdict resulted from the alibis submitted by the defense for all of the five accused and because they considered that "a reasonable doubt" existed regarding the guilt of all five defendants.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription, that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4613 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. A case—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

A woman's idea of a happy demise is to be crushed to death in a shopping crowd.

Poultry Show.

The Madison Square Garden Poultry Show will open Wednesday, Jan. 24th and continue through Sunday, the 28th. This recognized instrumentionally as the world's leading poultry exhibition. Secretary P. Lincoln Orr, who has just returned from London, England, where he opened the big Crystal Palace Show with the Prince of Wales, brought back a large entry of Lord Dewar, consisting of pit games, bantams and several varieties of poultry. This foreign entry, with others from almost every province of Canada, insures the warmest possible competition for the thousands of chickens, bantams, turkeys, ducks, geese, pigeons and cavies that will be shown from practically every state in the Union.

It will take the fifty-one judges about two days to place all the awards. These men must examine and handle each separate specimen, looking carefully for defects and standard qualifications. The expenses of a number of young men poultry students are being paid by the garden poultry show management this year. They come from various parts of the country so they can have this valuable schooling in judging.

Friday morning, during the show, there will be championship contests in judging by student teams from the state poultry schools of Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina and Pennsylvania. Boy and girl teams will also have their separate judging contests.

Special features of general interest will make each day well worth while attending for everyone interested in poultry, waterfowl, pigeons and cavies.

Silver Wings, a New William Fox Triumph at the Breed Sunday.

What is rated as one of the most important motion pictures of the season will be seen at the Breed theatre tomorrow when the first showing of the special William Fox feature photoplay, Silver Wings, starring Mary Carr, the famous mother of Over the Hill, will be shown. The engagement will be for a period of five days.

Its metropolitan debut in one of the largest theatres reserved for William Fox premieres was the holiday event of the New York amusement world. Since then a Fox presentation has been progressively arranged in other important centers of the country. The reception accorded to Silver Wings in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, San Francisco and other large cities of the country have been an echo of the praise won by this photo-drama in New York city.

That Silver Wings is William Fox's finest and most human production is the opinion of all who have witnessed it. It is the most lifelike reproduction of mother love ever produced in America. The critics who viewed it at a private showing have hailed it as containing a moving story, swift in action and filled with a masterly sense of suspense and climax.

"Every dressmaker's shop in Paris is filled with American women and men, too, for they seem to enjoy the shopping. And, by the way, it does my heart good to see lots of American men again. Europeans can't touch them."

TENDLER WINS OVER PAL. MORAN IN SLASHING 15-ROUND SLUG FEST

New York, Jan. 19—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, was awarded the judges' decision tonight over Pal Moran of New Orleans, in a slashing fifteen - round battle at Madison Square Garden.

Tendler gained his victory after one of the bloodiest and most terrific fights ever staged in the Garden in some time. The rugged, shifty southerner stood up under a smashing attack from the fourth round to the last, and although apparently on the verge of a knockout several times managed to weather the storm. Moran rallied after each of Tendler's onslaughts and stood and battled toe to toe with the Quaker City southpaw.

Tendler had Moran in evident distress in both the fourth and fifth rounds but the latter came back strong in the sixth, staggering the Philadelphian with rights to the jaw and cutting him badly about the face.

Tendler piled up a big margin on points in the closing rounds. He punished Moran severely about the body and tried hard for a knockout with his famous left, but Moran refused to give ground and fought back gamely.

Ring critics were agreed that it was one of the hardest-won victories of Tendler's career, and that while apparently in good condition, he did not display the sensational form he showed last summer against Benny Leonard, the champion.

Both fighters were badly cut about the face and head as a result of the free swinging attacks which characterized most of the rounds.

Tendler had a slight advantage in weight, entering the ring at 133 1-2, while Moran weighed 124.

The Detailed Account

Both fighters began cautiously and there was little action in the first three rounds. Moran outboxed Tendler, blocked the Philadelphian's left hooks and shooting in a damaging right that brought a flow of blood from Tendler's mouth. Both traded hard punches to the head in the second round and in the third Moran staggered Tendler with a right smash to the chin.

Taking the aggressive in the fourth round, Tendler opened a terrific assault that soon had Moran in distress. The Philadelphian battered his opponent about the ring in both the fourth and fifth rounds, opening cuts about Moran's mouth and nose with ripping right and left hooks. Moran came back strong, however, in the sixth round, after weathering a storm of blows to head and body, he swept Tendler almost off his feet with a furious two-fisted drive and opened a nasty cut over Lew's right eye with a jolting left smash.

Tendler missed a number of wild swings as both set a furious pace in the seventh round. Moran shook Lew with a left hook to the head in the eighth but toward the close of the round absorbed some terrific body punishment at the hands of the Philadelphian. Moran carried the fight to his opponent in the ninth and jolted Tendler with a smashing right to the chin.

Both fought at a terrific clip in the tenth round, blood streaming from cuts on their faces as they battled toe to toe. Tendler drove Moran about the ring in the eleventh with ripping lefts and rights to the body but Moran rallied toward the close and opened a fresh cut over Tendler's left eye. They continued their fast pace in the twelfth round, Moran shaking Tendler with several right swings after being jolted by the Philadelphian's southpaw punches.

Tendler had Moran hanging on in the thirteenth with a smashing attack to the body. The referee was forced to separate them when they failed to stop fighting at the end of the round.

Tendler administered terrific punishment to the southerner in the 14th rocking him with terrific blows to the head. Moran fought back gamely under Tendler's punishing onslaught.

Tendler tried hard for a knockout in the fifteenth but Moran managed to weather a rain of left hooks to the head. He caught Tendler flush on the chin several times with right swings.

GIBBONS FILES FORMAL CHALLENGE TO DEMPSEY

New York, Jan. 19.—Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight boxer, today filed with the New York state athletic commission a formal challenge, accompanied by the required forfeit of $2,500, for a world's heavyweight championship match with Jack Dempsey.

The fact that Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, already has posted a forfeit to bind a challenge for a match with Dempsey will not interfere with recognition of Gibbons' chances, according to William Muldoon, chairman of the commission.

Muldoon indicated that the St. Paul boxer might be regarded as too light for the champion. Gibbons weighs around 175 pounds at his best fighting weight, while Dempsey would enter the ring at least twenty pounds heavier, Mr. Muldoon declared.

ROWING STEWARDS IN DEADLOCK ON INCREASED DISTANCE QUESTION

New York, Jan. 19.—The board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association today fixed June 25 as the date for this year's regatta and indicated a desire to hold the event on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, but ended their meeting in a deadlock over the proposal to increase the distance of the varsity race from three to four four miles.

No official word as to the attitude of the stewards on the distance question was issued but it was announced that another conference would be held discussion and possible decision of in New York, February 15, for further the issue.

It was understood, however, that Columbia, whose representatives have advocated strongly increasing the distance to four miles, was supported today by Syracuse, while Cornell and Pennsylvania, the other members of the I. R. A., favored retention of the present three-mile race.

Selection of the location for the regatta was left to Morton G. Bogue, of Columbia, chairman of the stewards, with the understanding that if satisfactory arrangement of finances and other details can be made with the railroad and Poughkeepsie authorities the event will again be rowed on the Hudson.

The stewards, however, announced acceptance of an invitation extended by the chamber of commerce, of Geneva, N. Y., to inspect the Lake Seneca course which was offered as a site for this year races.

The stewards named Julian W. Curtiss, of Yale, as referee, and Elliott Farley, of Harvard, as official timekeeper for this year's regatta.

Bill Doak, the Cardinal pitcher, has made a success of his baseball finger glove. Nearly every big league player uses it. Cobb has every one of his infield, except at first base, using the Doak model glove. He says it is the greatest glove there is. Bill receives many a good sized check for his share of the royalty.

'A unique test for the University of Pennsylvania 'varsity basketball team to be put on in the near future will be the game against an All-McNichol brothers team. In the past the McNichols have had a great hand in establishing Penn's position in the court game.

The Pirates are conceded to have one of the finest outfielders in the majors, but the trio—Bigbee, Carey and Russell—cannot be said to have much of an edge on Moran fly chasers—Duncan, Roush and Burns—in fact the latter named combination appears to be every bit as good as the Buccaneers in general efficiency.

A letter received at the Manhattan Chess club from Havana brought the news that a son had been born there to Mr. and Mrs. Jose R. Capablanca the first week of the new year. The world's chess champion was married to Senorita Gloria Simoni of a prominent family in Camaguey, on Dec. 29, 1921.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CONGRESSMAN UPSHAW AT Y. M. C. A. ON SUNDAY

The Norwich Young Men's Christian Association will bring to the city tomorrow (Sunday) at 4 p. m. perhaps the most unique man in the American congress, in the person of William D. Upshaw. After spending seven years in bed as the result of a spinal injury received from falling from a wagon when a farmer boy he got up by dint of a powerful purpose—he calls it a purpose linked to God—and worked his way through college by the time he was 31. Beginning by selling a book of his poems and sketches, written, or chiefly dictated while he was on bed, he soon blossomed out as one of the most popular platform lecturers and entertainers in all the south. Converted to Christ in his boyhood and a devout believer "in old time religion" the crippled young orator became also a layman evangelist of marked success. When the tidal wave against the liquor traffic swept over Georgia, the pioneer prohibition state of the south, Upshaw, as editor of the Golden Age and platform debator, was found in the thick of the fight. His prominence in the Georgia victory brought him invitations for prohibition platform work widely over America. Although he had never been in politics for himself before, he was overwhelmingly elected to congress from the Atlanta district four years ago, defeating six well seasoned politicians. Two years later he carried four out of five counties, and in the last democratic primary he carried every ward in the city and every county in the district over the mayor of Atlanta. His three triumphant elections have been the political sensation of Georgia and the south.

In congress Upshaw is known as the champion of every form of moral and humanitarian legislation. The Georgia law maker uses his extra time and on Sundays in religious activities. A record crowd will doubtless hear the Georgia "orator on crutches" when he speaks on the Americanism That Will Save America.

Admission is strictly by ticket only and tickets can be secured free at the Y. M. C. A. and Engler's drug store. Doors open at 3 o'clock. Come early.

THE SENATE OIL PROBE SUSPENDED TILL MONDAY

Washington, Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Suspension by the senate of oil investigating committee of its examination of Harry F. Sinclair, pending his appearance Monday under senate supoena with books of the Mexa Corporation, prevented today a further clash between the oil man and chairman La Follette and tonight it appeared that the whole matter might be passed over without exercise of further forcible methods on the part of the committee.

Mr. Sinclair had been expected to take the stand today to testify as to operations of his various other companies an dthe convening of the committee found him on hand with his staff. Immediately the committee was called to order, however, Chairman La Follette read into the record a statement he had prepared reviewing the circumstances of yesterday's clash with Mr. Sinclair and concluding with the announcement that the committee had found it "advisable in the interest of orderly and proper procedure that Mr. Sinclair's testimony should in the future be taken under the compulsion of legal process and Mr. Sinclair's further examination is, therefore, suspended until that time (Monday)."

Chairman La Follette then invited any "volunteer witnesses" other than Mr. Sinclair to take the stand and J. W. Carnes, sales manager of the Sinclair Refining company, testified briefly on technical matters. During Mr. Carnes' testimony, Mr. Sinclair without a word left the committee room and soon after took a train for New York. His representatives said he would be back Monday morning and examination later of the subpoena issued by direction of Senator La Follette led to the belief that the information sought thereunder by the committee, would in the light of the statement made last night byy Mr. Sinclair be given without protest.

When Knighthood Was in Flower at the Broadway Tomorrow.

Who says women have not a sense of humor? They say "it takes a thief to catch a thief," and by the same token it takes a woman to catch a woman in the subtle little tricks which are used to outwit a man. That's why women who see the Paramount - Cosmopolitan production, When Knighthood Was in Flower, starring Marion Davies, will chuckle with enjoyment in certain scenes where the men are silent.

These feminine outbursts of merriment come at various times when Marion Davies, as Princess Mary Tudor, uses the strategy known to all the sisters of Eve in order to cajole her stubborn brother, King Henry VIII. Mary's adroit appeal to Henry's vanity when she wants him to release Charles Brandon, whom she loves; her clever trick of remaining in bed when the French ambassador calls and shocking King Henry by pretending she is about to jump out scantily clad—these and similar incidents unite the women of the audience in a common bond of understanding and amusement.

When Knighthood Was in Flower, which comes to the Broadway theatre tomorrow, is a great "woman picture." Not only are the costumes wonderful, but it tells one of the most magnificent love stories ever screened. From start to finish, there is a succession of beautiful and bewildering scenes, enlivened by a swift moving action that thrills every spectator.

The supporting cast is of stellar calibre. Lyn Harding, a celebrated English actor, is seen as Henry VIII, while Forrest Stanley, a popular leading man familiar to Paramount audiences, has the role of Charles Brandon. Pedro de Cordoba has the part of the Duke of Buckingham. The rich costumes are an important feature of this imposing picture creation.

MASS MEETING TO OPEN PALESTINE FUND CAMPAIGN

Plans and preparations have been completed for a grand mass meeting of Keren Hayesod contributors and members of the Zionist District of Norwich at which time Rabbi Dr. Joseph Silverman rabbi emeritus of the Temple Emanuel of New York city and Dr. Nathan Ratnoff, chairman of the physician's committee in connection with the Hebrew university in Palestine will be the principal speakers at the Community House at 8 p. m. sharp.

The distinguished visitors will be met at the New London depot by a delegation of Norwich and New London Zionists and conveyed to Norwich. The mass meeting will mark the opening gun in the campaign for the Keren Hayesod in Norwich to raise a quota of $18,000 which is urgently needed to help carry on the noble work of reclaiming Palestine.

Sunday, incidentally, will be Keren Hayesod Day throughout the state and in every principal city and town of Connecticut workers will be out collecting funds for the Keren Hayesod as a part of their Keren Hayesod drive. Dr. Silverman and Dr. Ratnoff were very much in demand to speak on Sunday in the other cities but they chose Norwich as the banner city of Connecticut and it is up to every Jew in Norwich and vicinity to be present at the Community House at 8 p. m. to welcome these distinguished Zionists.

The committee for the 1923 Keren Hayesod campaign for Norwich will compose Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, chairman, Rabbi B. Davidson, treasurer, M. I. Silverman, secretary, and the prominent Jews of Norwich.

THE RAILROAD INQUIRY.

The members of the legislature are not the only ones who have noticed that the railroads have been slipping up on their schedules. Also there has been some impediment to the service of the trolley lines and even the mail service has in some instances suffered interruptions.

But perhaps it will be a good thing for a legislative committee to get some first hand information concerning the trouble with the railroad service. It is always a good thing to get at the facts. Howlinx doesn't accomplish much whether it is justified or unjustified. There is always good reason for making sure before going ahead, and time and again when such a policy is followed the enlightenment received gives an entirely different complexion to the situation.

The railroads are suffering from bad fuel, and in that respect they are no different than many individuals.

The railroads are also suffering from the effects of the series of storms. And in that they are not alone.

The railroads are suffering from lack of motive power and that dates back over considerable period, but particularly to the shopmen's strike, which, if it will be remembered, was a strike not against the railroads but against an order of the railway labor board, a federal institution.

That strike made it necessary for the roads to reorganize their shop forces. They have been taking on new workmen and taking back former employes and it seems not improbable that they are in a position at this date to consider steadily improved shop production, even though the burden has been increased by the fuel situation and the storms.

The New Haven system in insisting upon a new shop force and policy is serving not only itself but the public. It is guarding against future unjustified strikes by those who are responsible for the present motive power situation. In the effort to have control over its repair work instead of returning it to the control of others the interests of the public are being served. Full light on the railroad situation bids fair to arouse more favorable sentiment for the roads.

PINCHOT'S START.

From the time that he threw his hat in the ring for the gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, Governor Pinchot has been attracting attention. He made a strong appeal to the people of that commonwealth by the policies he advocated and the platform he later stood on. It cost him some money to be elected, but there was no evidence that it was corruptly used. It is in fact necessary in these days of the primary for large sums to be used for publicity.

Governor Pinchot has set forth a programme in connection with his administration that is in accord with what his supporters expected of him. He is determined to end certain evils in the state and he tackles his job with full confidence that he will be successful.

In these days when economy is the watchword in all state governments he makes a hit when he declares that he will not accept the raise in salary which becomes effective for his office this year. There was nothing that called for this except his desire to impress upon the state the necessity of curbing extravagance. It was during his predecessor's term that the raise was voted. It could not apply to Governor Sproul but to his successor.

Governor Pinchot has gone before the legislature of that state with a programme of economy and greater efficiency. When he tells the state that he isn't going to claim the salary increase that he is entitled to he is bound to get much closer attention when he comes to setting forth his ideas in regard to other expenditures. Certainly he is setting an example concerning himself that the legislature may well be inspired to emulate when it comes to spending the money of the commonwealth. He has put himself on solid ground as he settles down to the task which he sought and to which he is thoroughly committed.

LARKIN'S PARDON.

It is quite in keeping with expectations that there should be protests from several directions against the action of the governor of New York in pardoning James Larkin, who was convicted of criminal anarchy, which conviction was sustained in the higher courts, and who was sentenced to five years to Sing Sing. Larkin, an alien and agitator, was advocating the overthrow of the government and the accomplishment of it through a series of strikes. He was a leader engaged not only in expressing his opinions but of putting them forth at a time when they were likely to do much harm. His was a leadership which, if followed, might easily have led to all kinds of violence as an accompaniment of the strikes. In his arrest and conviction there was imprisoned one of those moving spirits who too frequently escapes punishment for the things which they encourage others to do. Such leaders are invariably much more responsible than those who actually do the dirty work.

When Governor Smith indulges in such pardoning, and is reported by the one pardoned as committed to the pardoning of several more, it must come as a disturbing revelation to the people of his state, who will be at a loss to understand how the result of the recent election could be interpreted as endorsing such action.

Though he doesn't give that as his sole ground, Governor Smith refers to the minority decision in the court of appeals when the Larkin conviction was sustained. That, rather than the majority decision, seems, however, to have guided his action. He goes against the verdict of the courts and he implies that leniency ought to be shown in such instances. There is no doubt that his action will appeal to certain elements, but why an agitator of the type of Larkin engaged in the efforts he was should call for executive clemency already staggers many in his own state. It can hardly be considered an auspicious start.

THE GARDNER LAKE ROAD.

Presentation of a bill in the legislature doesn't necessarily insure its passage, but there will remain no doubt in the minds of those who have any knowledge of the situation over the need of favorable action on the act introduced by Representative Rogers of Salem, including in the trunk line system the Norwich and Essex turnpike.

This is the road that is depended upon in this vicinity to get to Gardner lake. It is that stretch of highway from the town macadam road ending near Lisfingwell and continuing through Montville, Bozrah, Salem and Lyme and thus putting this part of the state in direct touch with the Connecticut river and beyond. It would likewise connect with the Hartford-New London highway and be of immense benefit to that steadily growing colony at Gardner lake.

From the Norwich town line to Gardner lake the road has been in deplorable condition for a long time. There are periods of the year when it is not only worse than others but next to impassable if not dangerous. It is a stretch of road over which there is much travel throughout the year, and particularly in the summer time.

If the idea of the state highway system is to open up some of the sections of the state which have long been undeveloped, there is no better opportunity than is afforded in this proposed action. Neglect is apparent its entire length under present conditions so that many desiring to reach Salem, a distance of nine miles prefer for comfort and safety to travel by New London or Colchester, or about three times the necessary distance to reach their destination.

This is one of the old and much traveled turnpikes that deserves attention from the state highway department and every possible encouragement should be given to the Rogers bill from Norwich and the other towns that are necessarily interested.

TALKING THROUGH THE AIR.

In the scientific world there is no such thing as standing still. Experiments are constantly underway. Failure doesn't necessarily mean the end of them and certainly success only invites still greater perfection.

It was a remarkable accomplishment when the common telephone was shown to be something more than a dream. It was not so long after that that the idea of communicating through the air without wires was put forth and demonstrated. The radio for replacing the old style of telegraphy was soon followed by the experimenters talking through the air without wires. The radiophone is today getting widespread attention even though there are conditions which must be overcome.

And, yet while many of the seemingly mysterious things are being accomplished by wireless, there comes announcement to the effect that not solely the hearing of a spoken word across the Atlantic but a monologue which was carried on for three hours in New York was distinctly heard in England. This indicates what strides are being made and what possibilities are still undeveloped in connection with the use of radio. What it is all going to result in no one dares guess. There is much that remains to be done. There are defects that must be overcome and there are new devices that must be perfected before any general conversation can be carried on through the air without interference. But inasmuch as it is possible for several conversations to be held over the same wire at the same time the problem of keeping conversations through the air from becoming mixed may not be so difficult for the wizards. We marvel, but progress is to be expected.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

From all reports the north Atlantic coast is due for an inundation of foreign rum.

To judge by the coal commission's report there has been profiteering all along the line.

The man on the corner says: More than one of the 1923 good resolutions has gone flickering.

Some would like to know what has become of those wild geese that were observed flying north.

If heavy snow has any fertiliser value, or is a benefit to the soil, even the poor man ought to anticipate big crops in 1923.

The feeling of the recalled Yankees can be appreciated by the fellow who is away on a delightful vacation and doesn't want to return.

Whether that rum running fleet is off the New Jersey coast or not, the report serves to keep the prohibition question before the country.

If that big rum running fleet exists, it ought not to be long before the Jersey coast is well lit up, even though the vessels carry no lights.

Less would be heard of Armenia today if the allied nations had treated it right and without delay as this country did with the island of Yap.

Even though it is moving day for the American soldiers on the Rhine most everyone, even the homesick, knows how to sympathize with him.

The friends of the birds will take good care to see that they get enough food while the deep snow is on the ground to prevent them from starving.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Would it not be appropriate for the charming French healer now working this country to send back home the results of his labors here in some such form as follows: "Now this I say, on every day, in every way, while far away, I'm making hay for M. Coue." Such a letter as this would be very pleasing to dear Nancy (Nancy is the name of his home town, not the name of his home wife). This may be said lightly, but not disrespectfully, of the splendid enthusiast who would have us brush up our imagination, and doubtless it needs brushing up somewhat. If, by repeating a certain formula, we may save our old appendix from the surgeon's knife, is not this healer entitled to a few pounds of "hay" when, for cutting the pesky thing out, we should have to give a surgeon several hundred carloads of hay? If Coue-ism proves equivalent to cure-ism, his mission to our shores will be more important than his compatriot's—Clemenceau. To know how to cure ourselves is as essential as to know what is the matter with others.

If our mental attitude toward a snow storm is right, we may gain more than one lesson from it. Of course, it all depends on our willingness to learn from trivial things. The lesson I have in mind is the power of accumulated little things. For actual, not latent, power probably a snowflake with its delicate spangles is about as weak as anything imaginable. But when those snowflakes fall in numbers that make the war debts of the nations look like a ten-cent piece, we have quite another proposition. It is sheer numbers that make this snowflake hold up freight and passenger trains, paralyze the trolley system, eat big holes into city treasuries, and give to some of us faithful citizens who actually shovel off our walks permanent lumbago. Just fancy what would come to steam railroads, street railways and human vertebrae if there were enough snowflakes on demand to make an earthly deposit of three feet instead of one.

The natural world is full of illustrations of like character. A single barnacle is quite an insignificant affair, but it is this little barnacle plus that is big enough to slow down the mighty Mauretania. A few stray black ants that get into the good housewife's sugar bucket, while annoying, is not enough to bring on nervous prostration, but an army of the little creatures such as they have in equatorial Africa is enough to bring on a famine of continental proportions. The same idea applies to other departments of human life. Stealing a few coppers from his employer's till doesn't land a boy in Wethersfield, but keeping the thing up surely will, sooner or later. Doing a single thing, good or bad, while it may establish a reputation, does not form character, but continuance in either line will do so. Saving one hundred dollars out of one's earnings will not make one rich, but it is the only direction in which wealth will come.

President Harding's recall of the American army of occupation from the Rhine district may indicate our government's disapproval of the French scheme for forcing reparations. No sane and unprejudiced mind will deny that France has both a moral and legal right to demand payment for the injuries done. But there is room for honest doubt as to the wisest and most feasible way of going at it. It may be that Germany has not been converted to the extent of confessing the error of her ways, and hence the whole question hinges on her ability to pay according to the terms of the treaty of Versailles. It must be admitted that her loss of man power in the war was enormous; that she is now suffering from lack of producing capacity; that her pre-war commercial activity has been seriously crippled, and all her producing capacity is far below normal. The French occupation, being non-producing, may be a case of "killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

Nature and history sometimes furnish very strange analogies. The student of ancient history will vividly recall the old Roman patrician reclining at one of his feasts, gorging himself to the utmost with the rich viands which his wealth brought to him from the four quarters of the earth. Quite apart from history, we can see the American boy sliding down hill. But what connection is there between the two? Right here: The old Roman would stuff to the limit and then resort to means whereby the food would come back again to the top of the hill. The boy slides down hill and walks back, drawing his sled, and does it again and again. So does the Roman. After a short breathing spell, he begins to slide more food down hill, and metaphorically walks back again, drawing his sled. There is a difference. The boy goes down rapidly and walks back slowly; the Roman slides his food down slowly, and makes the return process as short as possible. As a sport for spectators the American boy "has it all over" his Roman colleague.

Any correct survey of world conditions as the old year closed will reveal a growing tendency in Europe to criticise Uncle Sam's attitude of non-intervention in old world affairs. It makes one's blood boil with indignation at the statements made in some foreign journals as to our joining in European intrigues. There is one kind of intervention that the people of this country have been engaged in so noble and humane that the little, scheming politicians of Europe are unable to take it in, and for which I have been unable to detect a single note of gratitude. American money in enormous amounts has been sent to feed the hungry millions whom Europe herself left to starvation. That is a sort of intervention quite beyond the understanding of political tricksters. And it is a kind of intervention that we propose to keep up. The United States is dead right in keeping her hands off of Europe's domestic problems.

The greatest service the United States can render humanity in these critical days is to say, kindly yet firmly, to Europe: "Not another dollar of American money will be sent across the Atlantic for war purposes." In the present state of chaos all the way from the Irish sea to the Dardanelles if any great banking firm in this country will hazard a loan to Europe in these unsettled days it is sheer kindness to hope that every dollar of it will be lost. It seems at present that the only thing that will bring the various foreign nations to their senses is abject poverty. They cannot fly at one another without money. This of course will bring about enforced peace, but enforced peace is better than no peace at all. Deeply wronged as France evidently has been, one cannot help feeling that she is now making a mess of it, and is not a moment nearer getting her reparations than before she assumed the aggressive. War never settles anything.

There is one way in which the United States can render a world service, and that is by strengthening the inner walls of her democracy. The greater her inherent strength the more pervasive her moral power. I will assume that no argument is required to show that society has the same claim to self-preservation that an individual has. The well-being of our country is to be thought of as well as the interests of the alien. We have the undoubted right to limit immigration to the physically, mentally and morally unfit. We have a right to say to all those who have ulcers on their souls as well as on their bodies "Keep out!" Have we not the same right to apply the literacy test upon foreigners coming into our country as we have to our own young men and women coming into our colleges? Why should it be easier to get into the country than into the college? We make our own people work hard to get into college. Why should those coming from abroad get into the country without any effort? The college wants the very best of those who knock at their doors, why should not the nation also? The stronger we are in our domestic relations, the greater will be our influence abroad.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

HELP FOR THE YEAR

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." Psalm 121.1. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. Psalms 121.2.

It seems that this psalm is one which we may well take for our encouragement and our strength during the coming year.

"My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth." That is a loftier glance than to "the hills that are round about Jerusalem;" beyond symbols, above the material, far in advance of everything creatural, however strong, however lofty, however firmly rooted—we must look there if we are to look to the place from which our true help comes. It is well when we can look to the hills, but it is needful that we should look to the heavens. And when aquestio ning soul can answer its own question, that is a soul that is at rest.

When a man asks when his help is to come from it is a weariness and a misery for him unless he can give the answer with that full-toned triumphant confidence, and say: "from the Lord which made heaven and earth," and then look in faith above all the material, up to the infinite Father, look in confidence and gladness to "the Lord" which made heaven and earth."

"Up to the hills?" No! that is too low, if we look only to the hills we are dwelling in the region of questions, but if we look up into the heavens we are dwelling in the region of affirmation and assurance, if we will wait patiently before God, and try in the midst of our troubles and conflicts and doubts to fix our thoughts and our hopes upon Him, there will presently be heard in our hearts a voice which is not our imaginations but is felt to be God's faithful word. And so the man that says: "My help cometh from the Lord," and then says: "Speak, Lord! Thy servant heareth!" will hear a still small voice whispering to him. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; He that keepeth thee will not slumber."

PHYSICAL DEFECTS DISCLOSED BY THE DRAFT

Surgeon General Merritte W. Ireland of the United States army has summarized for The Journal of the American Medical Association the results of examining more than 4,000,000 men for service in the World war. These results show the physical defects discovered, the areas which furnished men handicapped by the greatest number of physical defects, where the tallest and heaviest men came from and the contrasts between men drawn from urban and rural populations. There are many surprising bits of information contained in General Ireland's article; there is much that is illuminating; some of the statements would be puzzling except for the accompanying elucidations.

Approximately 400,000 men volunteered for the military service prior to the first call for the selective service men in September, 1917, says General Ireland. This number was, however, not sufficient to deplete materially the manhood of the country and, consequently, to modify the findings obtained from the study of the physical examinations of the selective service men.

After Dec. 18, 1917, the basic classification of all registrants was first as to their economic availability for military service. All who were found to be available at once were put in Class 1. The total number of these men of the first and second registrations and including all who went to camp prior to Dec. 15, 1917, was 3,764,000. Of this group, 550,000 were rejected by their local boards as physically unfit for all military service. Of those considered physically fit, amounting to approximately 3,200,000, more than 2,700,000 entrained for military camps.

Class 1 Men—The physical examination of these Class 1 men by the local and camp examining boards showed that 47 per cent. had a physical defect of sufficient importance to note on the reports of the examinations. It may be regarded as surprising that a larger number of defective men were not detected, probably there might have been if the examinations had not been necessarily hurried, owing to the military necessity.

Some of the defects that were reported were obviously of greater importance from a military standpoint than from that of the ordinary demands of civil life. Practically all were, however, of some importance. The report shows there are well defined areas where the people will show the physical characteristics of the original settlers.

Defects by States—The number of defective men varies by states from 64 per cent. in Rhode Island to 35 per cent. in Kansas. Rhode Island, the most urban of all states, whose population is largely engaged in manufacturing, stood at the top, largely because of the defective non-resident stock which has been drawn to that state. Kansas, on the other hand, is largely agricultural, and such of its population as is of foreign origin is of the more robust types. The percentage of the native born in Kansas is 65 per cent., and in Rhode Island 29.4 per cent.

The French-Canadian group had the highest number of defective men (55 per cent.) while that of the native whites of Scotch origin had the smallest (40 per cent.).

The cities furnished a larger percentage of defective men (51 per cent.) than the rural districts (41 per cent.).

Of all Class 1 men, 21 per cent. were found physically unfit for all military service, or, in other words, more than one young man in five was physically unfit to perform any type of military service either at home or abroad.

Not all of the conditions for which men were rejected were very serious handicaps for them in the economic competition in civil life. The majority of conditions were, however, of some importance even to such as followed occupations which do not require exertions. The more important causes of rejection were: Organic diseases of the heart, 11.5 per cent. of the total causes of rejections; tuberculosis, 9.3 per cent.; errors in refraction, 8.4 per cent.; underweight, 7.6 per cent.; mental deficiency, 4.5 per cent.; hernia, 4.3 per cent.; flat-foot, 3.6 per cent.; defective and deficient teeth, 3.2 per cent.; defective speech and hearing, 2.6 per cent.

Leading Defects—Of the large class of diseases, the defects of the bones and organs of locomotion ranked first, with 17.2 per cent. of the total causes of rejections; diseases of the heart and blood vessels, second, 15 per cent.; diseases of the eyes, third, 13.6 per cent.; and tuberculosis, fourth, 9.3 per cent.

Similar to the variation in the number of defective men by states, the number of men who were rejected varied materially according to the section of the country from which they were drawn. Thus, Rhode Island, which had the largest number of defectives, also had the largest number of men rejected. Forty-two per cent., or almost one-half of all between the ages of twenty-one and thirty who were examined from that state, were rejected, while from Wyoming only 13 per cent. were found to be physically unfit. Here again it was largely the character of the foreign population which had been drawn to Rhode Island, as a result of the character of the industries carried on in that state, though no doubt partly as the result of the industries themselves, which caused this high percentage of rejections.

More men from the cities were rejected (23 per cent.) than from the rural districts and small towns (30 per cent.), owing not only to the environmental conditions in the large cities, but also to the character of the foreign population congregated in them.

Defects and Diseases—In the study of the physical conditions of the selective service men, much space was devoted to the study of the defects or diseases noted, since it was the purpose of the study to determine the relative prevalence of the several kinds of defects and diseases in the various sections of the country. Considering then, the local number of defects rather than of defective men, we find that for each hundred men there were fifty-six defects noted. The excess of the defects over the defective men per hundred was nine; in other words, nine men out of each hundred had two defects which were of sufficient military importance to note.

A defect of some character was noted in 80 per cent. of all the men from Rhode Island, while those from Kansas had only a little over half this number (42 per cent.) The physique of the population of the various states varied even to as great an extent as the number of physical defects did. Rhode Island had the largest relative number of men who were below the required military height, the largest percentage of those below the required military weight for their height and also the largest percentage of those who were regarded as obese. In other words, the population, which was composed to a considerable extent of South Europeans and French-Canadians, ran to the extreme. The men from certain of the other states, and especially the north central and northwestern states, were much better proportioned.

The average height of stature of 1,000,000 men was 67.49 inches. The shortest men came from Rhode Island (66.4 inches), the tallest from Texas (68.4 inches). Considering the population groups, the tallest men came from the mountain area of North Carolina. These men were of Scotch descent and averaged 68.67 inches.

Average Weight 141.54 Pounds—The average weight for the United States was 141.54 pounds. The heaviest men were from South Dakota (164.96 pounds), and the lightest from Rhode Island (136.44 pounds). Considering the sections the lightest men were from the sections of Florida which had a large percentage of West Indians and Spanish (136.33 pounds). Of the total rejections, 7.6 per cent. were because of underweight, while a little less than 1 per cent. were from underheight, the latter being only a military defect and not an economic one.

The relation of weight to height is most important. Thus, among the men who were sent to the military camps and were rejected there on account of pulmonary tuberculosis, 82.6 per cent. were under the required weight for their stature. If greater attention could have been directed by the local boards to the relative weight, probably a large percentage of such cases would have been detected.

Among the population groups the greatest number of defects was noted for the French-Canadian (68.4 per cent.) and the least among the Mexicans (47.2 per cent.) closely followed by the native whites of Scotch origin (47.3 per cent.) In each hundred men from the urban districts there were sixty-one defects noted, and from the rural, fifty-three. Chicago (sixty-two) and Boston (sixty-nine) were above the average for the cities, while Philadelphia (sixty) and New York (sixty) were both below the averages.

Of the individual defects which were recorded most frequently in the men examined, the principal ones occurred in this order: Flatfoot, 11.7 per cent.; venereal diseases, 5.7 per cent.; hernia, 4 per cent.; refractive errors of the eye, 3.3 per cent.; organic diseases of the heart, 3.1 per cent.; under weight, 3.1 per cent.; tuberculosis, 2.5 per cent.; hypertrophied tonsils, 2.3 per cent.; defective teeth, 1.4 per cent.; mental deficiencies, 1.3 percent.

Wives of Famous Men

Mrs. Benjamin Disraeli.

Although he avowedly married for money, Benjamin Disraeli, Queen Victoria's brilliant prime minister, contracted one of the happiest marriages in all the history of matrimony. His wife was the widow of Wyndham Lewis, one of his friends. She was 15 years his senior and not at all good looking, but a woman of rare intelligence and understanding and she made an ideal wife for a statesman. In addition to these qualities she was possessed of a considerable income.

Mrs. Disraeli was her husband's confidante and adviser, the first to know of his defeats and victories, the first to be consulted about the knotty problems that came to him every day. She was the essence of good wifehood, she stood for everything the word helpmate means.

And, unlike so many men whose success is largely due to the untiring efforts and perfect understanding of their wives, Disraeli appreciated his mate. The happiest moment of his life was the one at which he was able to elevate her to the peerage. "Sybil," one of his best known books, was dedicated to her. In it he said:

"I would inscribe this work to one whose noble spirit and gentle nature ever prompt her to sympathize with the suffering, to one whose sweet voice has ever encouraged, and whose taste and judgment have ever guided its pages, the most severe of critics, but a perfect wife." What better tribute could any woman ask?

Their life together was as nearly perfect as any mortal life can be. No matter what great functions demanded his presence, Disraeli thought first of his wife. One instance of this occurred at the time Lord Beaconsfield defeated Gladstones' amendment to the reform bill. Some members of his party wished to give him a dinner at the Carlton club, but he declined, going home instead.

"Dizz came home to me," Lady Beaconsfield would say proudly, telling how he had eaten half the pie she had made for him. Her pride in her husband was inordinate. When an old lady she wore on her breast a large medallion which looked like a decoration but which was in reality a portrait of her husband in an oval frame. When she died her husband said: "For 30 years she has not given me a dull moment."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, U. S. A. retired, who has become fuel commissioner of New York state, is a famous engineering expert who has filled numerous posts, both federal and state, requiring administrative ability of the highest class. He first won international fame as administrator of the Panama Canal Zone, and engineer in charge of construction of the interoceanic canal, which, when built and first used was deemed one of the triumphs of man, and one of the proofs of the wisdom of intrusting the construction of vast national engineering enterprises to trained experts. For Colonel Goethals, as he was then, when selected by President Roosevelt for the supervisory task, had justified the expectations he aroused when a student at West Point, and had won fame in the national service as a successful engineer and builder of national works. It has been said of him that he is one of the most unreservedly admired men in the United States, because effectively doing maximum things with minimum of words.

Stories That Recall Others

Considerate.

Little Alice was on her way to Sunday school with her grandpa. She was tripping along ahead when a large dog bounded from a yard, anxious to play. Alice ran and grasped her grandpa's hand, when he assured her that the dog would not harm her.

"I know, grandpa," she replied, "but I—I just didn't want to step on him and hurt him."

Appearances Sometimes Lie.

Geneva, aged four, has a baby brother seven months old and is, therefore, "wise" as to the articles required to provide for all the needs and comforts of an infant.

She was in a store the other day when a woman, a stranger to both Geneva and her aunt, entered. The newcomer was nicely dressed and carried a commodious leather handbag, closed at the top by a drawstring.

Walking over to the woman, Geneva asked: "Have you a baby?"

"No," said the surprised woman.

"Then," asked the little girl, "why have you this?" laying her hand on the bag that the woman carried and which she thought ought to contain baby clothes.

"Fruit-a-tives" The Marvellous Fruit Medicine Cured After Specialists Failed.

Another "Fruit-a-tive" Triumph

Elba, New York.

"I suffered with Eczema in my face for five years. I tried several doctors, two of whom were specialists on Skin Diseases, and got no help whatever.

Last April I read an advertisement about Dr. E. N. Oberdorn of Dover, N. H., being completely relieved of a stubborn case of Eczema, similar to mine by the use of "Fruit-a-tives" and "Soothe-Salve."

On May 1st, I began using these fruit juice tablets and after two weeks I saw improvement. On June 1st, I began using "Soothe-Salve" and by the first of August, I was completely cured.

I can now work on the hottest days in summer and get my blood heated and the Eczema does not bother me."

RAY W. SPEED.

In all the history of medicine, there has never been another treatment for Eczema, Rashes and other skin diseases to compare with the peculiar action of fruit juices found in "Fruit-a-tives". This famous fruit medicine, used in connection with "Soothe-Salve" is the ideal combination to purify the blood, insure sound digestion, correct constipation; and soothe and heal the inflamed, itching skin.

RELATES STORY OF WORK AMONG FISHER FOLK OF NEWFOUNDLAND

An unusually interesting and attractive meeting of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon in the parlors of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish House, Mrs. Henry T. Arnold, president of the federation, opening the meeting with a short concentration service. The report of the annual meeting in December was read by the secretary, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, following which Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, gave a report of the treasury. Routine business being transacted, Mrs. Arnold made a number of announcements concerning a food sale to be held by the missions department early in February and an Eastern sale of utilities, cakes, etc., to be held the latter part of March.

An invitation, extended by Woman's Guild of the United church, was given to the federation to attend a meeting to be held in the Community house on the afternoon of Feb. 9th at which Mrs. Charlotte Austin Brown, principal of the Alice Freeman Palmer Memorial school for colored girls and boys at Sedalia, North Carolina, will speak and sing.

Miss Louise C. Howe, president of the Parish House department, then took charge of the meeting calling for the report of the December meeting, which was read by the secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar. Miss Howe announced that the February meeting of her department would be a patriotic one to be held on the evening of February 22, when Mrs. William B. Birge will give an interesting paper followed by tableaux. She also spoke of the plan of giving a Wayside Fair, the latter part of June.

Miss Howe then introduced Miss Eleanor Goodnow, who is spending some time in town and who gave a graphically interesting account of the work being accomplished among the fisher folk in Labrador and Newfoundland under the direction of Dr. Grenfell, telling particularly interesting stories of her own experiences during the past two summers as a volunteer teacher under Dr. Grenfell.

Miss Goodnow told of the depth of love and devotion Dr. Grenfell had in his work, of what he has already accomplished, and of his purpose to found a permanent work by the raising of a $1,000,000 endowment fund, $1,000,000 of which has already been raised in England and America by Dr. Grenfell, who is at present lecturing in the states.

She spoke interestingly of the exceptional field and earnestness shown by the nurses and doctors working in the various small hospitals and schools at Battle Harbor, Lewis Bay and Spotted Island, describing in fuller detail the man hospital at St. Anthony, where aside from the medical department, well organized industrial and health departments are doing excellent work. There also are found an orphanage and schools where much is accomplished with the children, especially in the summer month.

The fishermen and their large families are not of the Esquimo tribes, as many people seem to think, but are of good English stock, an appreciative, hospitable people eager for education. They are industrious, the men starting on their fishing trips in the early hours of the morning, while the women spend the whole day at constant work, spinning, sewing, gardening, berry-picking or making heavy socks and garments. Their recreation, though simple, is whole-hearted, the dancing of old-fashioned square dances and the singing of strange old ballads having a distinctly old English tinge.

Miss Goodnow's own particular post was at Bear Cove, White Bay, Newfoundland, where she first organized a school of 30 children, ranging in age from 5 to 20 years. The people of the settlement are engaged in fishing, lumbering and hunting, from which they earn barely enough to purchase their simple fare of team and bread, made of white flour. Miss Goodnow told of the annual visit Dr. Grenfell makes to each little town or settlement along the coast on the hospital ship "Strathcona" being eagerly anticipated and his actual arrival always bringing good cheer and much needed help, physically and materially to the fishermen and their families. There is always an urgent need for clothing, which although stored in large quantities on the "Strathcona" is still quite inadequate to meet the demands, the people bringing their supplies of potatoes, berries, etc., in exchange for the much needed wearing apparel. Through classes of mothers and children, much is being accomplished in nutritional work, Dr. Emerson's methods being used with much success. Industrial work is also being promoted, the women taking keen delight in the making of rugs which they trade for the necessities of life.

Miss Goodnow concluded in expressing her own faith in this appealing and appreciative people and her earnest desire that others might become more interested in them and their welfare, "that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

A rising vote of thanks was given Miss Goodnow after which tea was served, Mrs. Frank H. Pullen and Mrs. Frank W. Clapp pouring and the Misses Helen Clapp and Winifred Sweezey assisting. Mrs. Russell F. Smith and Miss Alice Coggswell were the committee in charge of refreshments.

FLETCHER POST MEETING FULL OF ENTHUSIASM

Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, held an enthusiastic meeting Friday evening in their rooms in the Stead building, Commander John A. Cuningham presiding. Several committees reported and from the reports it was shown that the post is steadily gaining in popularity. The entertainment committee reported progress on the proposed dance to be given under the auspices of the legion.

Roseland and its orchestra have been offered by its manager, Michael D'Atri, who is a member of this committee, and up to date the following have contributed to make this a big success: Plant-Cadden, Bliss, Macpherson's, Sellas Spa, Sellas Lunch, G. G. Engler, Wauregan hotel, Mara-Madden Co. and Roseland Corp.

William Anderson was appointed chairman of the employment committee. The post in appointing Mr. Anderson as chairman intends to keep in touch with the manufacturing plants in Norwich in view of watching out for vacancies whereby the members or other worthy men might find opportunity to secure permanent employmnet. This committee is not to work solely for ex-service men, but has been formed to furnish suitable men for positions that may open in local plants, and keep watch for vacancies that may come in the future.

The house committee reported that several changes are to be made at the legion headquarters. There will be some new interior decorating and the post is to secure a suitable sign to be placed outside the building. This sign will be large enough to be seen by passersby, thus notifying visiting legion men of the headquarters of the Norwich post.

Following the meeting the entertainment committee took charge and the legion trio played several popular numbers. The meeting closed with a social time during which refreshments of sandwiches, cake, doughnuts and coffee were served.

ORGANIZE TRI-COUNTY EGG MARKETING ORGANIZATION

Poultrymen in the three eastern counties of Connecticut, Tolland, Windham and New London, met at Willimantic on Thursday for an all day meeting to discuss marketing problems. The marketing specialist, Paul Mehl from the college, and Poultry Specialist R. E. Jones, were present at this meeting together with the three county agents from these respective counties, to discuss with the men the possibilities of organizing an Eastern Connecticut egg marketing association. F. L. Davis, county agent of Windham county, acted as chairman of the meeting and E. E. Tucker, county agent of Tolland county acted as secretary. Mr. Davis stated that the object of the meeting was to talk over marketing problems of common interest to the men in this section of Connecticut and called on Mr. Moore of Central Village. Mr. Moore, who owns 3,000 hens, stated that he believed the time had come for action on the part of the poultrymen. That he was primarily interested in production but that marketing problems were forever taking a great deal of his time. He called particular attention to the fact that the average Connecticut poultryman does not or cannot put out his eggs in such shape that the consumer recognizes them when they are bought. For his best grade of eggs Mr. Moore is putting out a specially made dozen carton.

Fred Kanahan, who was present from New London county, upon being called upon urged the men not to think too much of increased price simply because of the possibility of organization an association. The association would be primarily to stabilize and build up a market for Connecticut eggs. The eggs could be sold under a special brand name and would be candeled and graded by the organization so that no one else would be able to imitate with poorer grades what Connecticut poultrymen were doing. He felt that there was the possibilities but that like any business organization it would be necessary to start on a small scale and build as fast as the organization warranted. In the course of three or four years it would probably be possible for eggs put out through such an association to command a much better price in the market for the fancy grades than is now secured.

Professor R. E. Jones the poultry specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college pointed out the value of producing eggs at the right time so as to take advantage of the markets when eggs are highest in price. Professor Jones felt that there were big opportunities ahead for Connecticut men to get together and do something along marketing lines but that too much most not be expected at the outset. Paul Mehl, the marketing specialist, stated that a large number of letters had been sent out to the commercial poultrymen in eastern Connecticut asking them if they would be interested in getting together at a meeting to discuss marketing problems. He said that answers wer received from poultrymen representing over 25,000 birds. With this show of interest it was felt that a meeting should be called. Mr. Mehl outlined to the men general plans that had been worked out in other associations nad emphasized in particular the following points:

Any association will do well to employ a candler and grader so that all eggs turned in by the members of the association can be candled and graded according to the uniform method and when these eggs are sold to the public through retail channels if there is any trouble the retailer can always come back to the association with his complaint. If the association should employ a wholesalers to candle and grade the eggs there would be a possibility of other wholesalers inimitating the same thing with cheaper grades and injuring the business of the organization. Carrying the eggs through from the producer as direct as possible to the consumer would be the central idea of the organization.

A sales contract has also been found very important in Pacific Coast organizations. The men who join sign a contract to put all of his eggs produced through the association. Certain provisions are made, however, so that this contract can be worked on a reasonable basis. A man, for instance, may sell all the setting eggs he cares to outside of the association as these are not covered by the contract. He may not sell, however, without the permission and authority of the manager of the association any market eggs whatsoever. Several of the men present called attention to the fact that they had already very good markets for their eggs. Mr. Mehl stated that this had been worked out in other places by the manager of the association giving men authority to sell their eggs in the same way as they had been before but that a certain small fee should be turned over to the association to help cover overhead expenses and advertising. He pointed out that advertising campaigns carried on by such an organization would help everyone and this teach man in the association should bear his just share of this cost. In other words the sales contract would be drawn up on a reasonable basis, and just because a man had an especially good market at the present time would be no sign that he must give up this market because he joined the association. If a man wishes to come in the association may grant him, even though he signs to sell all his eggs through the association, the right to continue with his present market.

Mr. Mehl pointed out that the Providence Farmers' Exchange, a strong co-operative organization operated by farmers around Providence, would be glad to co-operate in this move and would be able to market the eggs of such an association. Providence Exchange has its central office in Providence and a branch office in Boston and through traveling salesmen are in touch with a large number of retail markets in eastern Connecticut, Rhode Island and southern Massachusetts. If suitable arrangements would be made with this organization it should prove a very good way for the egg association to dispose of their product.

After a short recess taken for dinner the men returned again and voted that an egg marketing association be organized. The men called on Mr. Mehl to suggest a plan for going ahead and the following plan was approved:

(1) That a nominating committee be elected from the floor which should bring in nominations for two committees. These committees to work out plans for the association. The first committee would have charge of the organization work and would see to getting the organization incorporated and make any plans necessary. (2) The committee on rules and grading would establish the grades to be used for members of the association and all rules governing the relationship between members and the organization.

The nominating committee consisting of Tom Moore of Central Village, Charles Brenn, of Scotland, A. E. Anthony of Mansfield and F. L. Kanahan of Lisbon was elected. They retired and finally brought in the committee: A. H. Benton of Andover, chairman; T. W. Moore, Central following report for the organization Village, E. N. Searles of Pomfret, A. E. Anthony of Mansfield and John Labelle of Killingly. For the grades and rules committee: F. L. Kanahan of Lisbon, chairman; C. A. Brenn of Scotland, Harold Clapp, Windham, Kingsley Brown, of Windham, Roy Goodrich of Canterbury. The committee's report was accepted by the meeting and A. H. Benton as chairman of the organization committee was appointed to take charge of the funds of the organization until the permanent association could be formed.

A general meeting will be held sometime within the next month at Willimantic at which an effort will be made to get out the large commercial poultrymen in the three counties to hear the report of the organization and grades and rules committees. At that time the sales contract will also be presented for the consideration of the poultrymen who join the organization.

STARTLED BY DOOR CLOSING, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Gilbert Declares Tanlac Completely Overcame Nervous Disorders of 2 Years Standing.

"Tanlac has given me so much strength and energy that I now do more work about the house in one day than I could in three days before," declared Mrs. J. E. Gilbert, of 378 George St., New Haven, Conn., recently.

"The past two years, I suffered so from nervousness that I was nearly frantic. The least thing, such as a door closing, startled and annoyed me, and I often suffered with splitting headaches. I could hardly sleep at night and when morning came I felt worn-out and miserable. My appetite left me, I was scarcely eating enough to keep going, and I became so weak and run-down that sometimes I would have to stop my work and lie down.

"I have only taken two bottles of Tanlac, and now, with my nerves calm and steady and the headaches gone, I am eating, sleeping and feeling fine. I know now that the great faith people have in Tanlac is every bit justified."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Over 35 million bottles sold.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS ENJOYS PRETTY MASQUERADE

A masquerade in the Wauregan house ball room Friday evening from 7.15 to 9 o'clock made a pretty evening event for the high school dancing class taught by Mrs. William Ballantyne Penfield. The programme for the first part of the two hours included the waltz, one-step, Paul Jones, fox trot, and dance of the wooden soldiers, while a cotillion made up the latter part. GOOD FINANCIAL YEAR FOR PARY CONGREGATIONAL

The annual meeting of the Park Congregational society was held Friday evening at 7.30 in the Osgood Memorial parish house with Chairman Frederick W. Cary presiding. Story who reported that the debt at the beginning of the past year had been wiped out and the year closed with an $800 balance on hand.

Two new members of the society committee were elected: H. A. Tirrell, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. John S. Blackmar, and Weston C. Abraham Scott of New London paid $10 fine and Robert Scott paid $15 fine for their part in the fight that took place at the end of the dance about 2 o'clock in the morning. Depena and two other men who were charged with breach of the peace, had their cases nolled.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

An effort was made in this column Friday morning to set forth that Andrew E. Meech had given some pairs of gloves to the members of the Captain Put Engine company and to specify as to the number of pairs. All went well with certain parts of the item. It so happened, however, that the item read "two pairs" in print, whereas Mr. Meech was so generous as to present two dozen pairs. Anxious that Mr. Meech have full credit for his generosity and that 22 firemen need not go cold-handed through the emulsion, The Bulletin hastens to make the correction.

Broadcasting the coming of a January thaw didn't bring any results worthy of special mention in Danielson Friday. The sublime faith of humanity in the weather bureau has been manifested Thursday on receipt of the forecast by a hundred digging out of gutters, clearing of drains and dusting off the old rubber boots for the arrival of the flood. Thursday night the stage appeared to be all set for the deluge. A strong wind from the south and overcast skies foretold the coming of a big storm that was to play havoc with the surplus of snow and ice that clutters up his part of the country. Something happened to upset the entire program during the night, and perhaps the weather bureau will later explain what it was, but there was no January thaw in operation on Friday, which was partly cloudy and otherwise marked by a bleak wind out of the northwest.

The advantage of the forecast seems to be that some gutter digging and drain cleaning long deferred has been accomplished against the time when the January thaw does arrive, possibly some time late in March.

Despite the bad travelling on Thursday, there was almost 100 per cent. attendance at the meeting of Killingly and Brooklyn teachers held at the Danielson school.

An interesting program was arranged by the teachers' committee and superintendent Farrin. The meeting opened with a demonstration lesson in history with pupils of grade 6, the subject being "The Feudal System" by Miss Grace Stanton. At the same time demonstration lessons were given for lower grade teachers by Miss Thelma Bruce with first grade pupils on the subject of "Physical exercises" and by Miss Edith Fuller with second grade pupils, the subject being "penmanship."

Miss Annie Page read a paper on "Educating home matters" and Miss Ruth Fiske on "The Montessouri System."

Superintendent Farrin took up routine matters connected with the school work and lectured on the "Socialized Recitation".

There was an attendance of Danielson Elks and their friends Friday evening at the annual concert and ball of Putnam lodge of Elks in Putnam. This annual event always attracts attendance from Danielson, where approximately 30 of the members of Putnam lodge are resident.

At the state armory Friday evening there was a large attendance at one of a series of dances being conducted during the winter months by the Service batery. On Friday evening the music was by Sullivan Brothers' orchestra of Milford, an organization that previously has been heard here with pleasure. The dance attracted many from the surrounding towns.

An evidence that the winter is advancing is the near approach of one of those periods that one can no more escape than the end of earthly life—the period of seeing the tax collector and fixing things up with him for another year. Now comes George A. Williams, personal tax collector, with his official notice that early February will bring the days for payment of these taxes. Mr. Williams is going to start in on February 5 at Goodyear and during the course of the month will make visitations to various communities in town to receive the money that will be due. The time limit for paying the personal tax, unless one is a holder of real property, is March 1, and fees and interest will be added after that date. Large numbers of women residents of Killingly are now numbered among the personal tax payers.

It is expected that next Sunday will be a red letter day at the Brooklyn Congregational Church. William Johnstone of Stamford, will speak at both the morning and evening services. Mr. Johnstone, known familiarly as "Bull" Johnstone is a convert of the McCauley Mission, New York City and a man of magnetic personality and with a wonderful message. The story of the service he rendered during the World War is of vital interest. His talks are especially attractive to men and boys and no man or boy in Brooklyn who can possibly get to the church should fail to be there next Sunday. Morning service at 10:45. Evening service at 6.30. Mr. Johnstone will speak in Danielson on Sunday afternoon.

By all who love peace and tranquility and happy relationship with all mankind it has been fondly hoped for months past that this section of Connecticut might be spared the experiences of many communities throughout the country where hooded bands of men have been operating and spreading terror, especially in southern states, but now comes the announcement that the pastor of a church at Moosup has received a written threat that his church is to be destroyed by fire. While there is a chance that this threat is an idle one, made merely to spread apprehension, it is, nevertheless, disconcerting, especially in view of the fact that the threat is represented as coming from an organization that has received much unfavorable publicity of late.

Friday evening the annual concert and ball of Putnam lodge of Elks in Union hall was an affair that proved a delight for the large number attending. This annual event proved this year to be no exception from the standard rule of being one of the finest social affairs of the year. Elks from all the jurisdictions of Putnam lodge, including Danielson, Webster and Southbridge, were in attendance and many other communities in this section were represented among the dancers. The hall was attractively decorated emblems of the order figuring prominently in the decorations. The proceeds of the annual ball are reserved by the Elks for doing bountiful charitable work. Each year at Christmas time the organization is particularly liberal, though of this the Elks say nothing as an organization and are very reticent about it as individuals. De Vito's orchestra furnished the music Friday evening.

Another pretty social affair on Friday evening was the Junior Prom at Putnam High school. This is the big social event of the winter season at the high school and ranks only second to the senior reception commencement week. As is usual, there was a very large attendance Friday evening, the majority of the student body being in attendance as well as guests of the class.

Announcement has been made that $50,000 in preferred stock of the Putnam Foundry and Machine company will be retired February 1 at 110, with accrued interest. The directors have voted to call in this stock and pay off the holders of it.

This is of particular interest at this time, as there has been more or less speculation for several months past over an alleged effort by some unidentified interest to gain a controlling interest in the company, which manufactures the famous Putnam heaters among a variety of products. The annual meeting was to have been held during the present week, but was postponed to a later date.

Whether or not the holding of the annual meeting will be the means of establishing whether such sales of stock as may have occurred during the past few months has placed control of the company in the hands of some individual or group continues to be a topic of conversation in local circles that gives interested attention to such matters.

It is indicated that the company has been very successful during the past few years. The industry is an old established one and its heaters are known throughout the country as among the very best manufactured. The concern has offices in Providence, Worcester and other New England cities.

There was a rumor a few weeks ago that interests closely identified with the American Radiator company were seeking to gain control of the stock, but this later was denied. Just before the close of the year an official of the Putnam company declared he was without information as to where the majority of the stock was then held or as to the identity of the holders of it.

Whatever the annual meeting may bring forth as of public interest, it is not likely that anything will develop not for the best interests of the concern and the city in which it is located.

Reviewing the work of the past year a statement issued from the office of the Windham County Farmers' association in this city shows a surprising amount of activity along a variety of lines and definite progress. Special stress is laid on what was accomplished in promoting the use of certified seed stock among growers of potatoes and comparing the results obtained by growers with results secured by other growers using uncertified seed. Demonstration areas of potatoes were planted on various farms in different towns in the county, certified seed being used. The average yield of the eleven certified strains used in these areas was, 62.6 bushels per acre. The experiment stations at Storrs verify the figures obtained in this county.

During 1923 fruit growers of the county were organized as the Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers' association. This association is made up of men who are specializing in fruit growing and is expected to have a far reaching effect on the industry of this county, which is noted for its splendid apples, peaches, pears and smaller fruits.

Other activities of the farmers' association in co-operation with the Connecticut Agricultural college have included pasture demonstrations, seven of which were held during 1922; live stock projects, in which two dairy clubs and six poultry clubs participated, work with bee clubs, vegetable clubs and poultry selection.

The farmers' association has accomplished so much for the farmers who have kept in close touch with its activities as to make a very strong place for itself in county affairs. Its work is being appreciated more and more as the years go by and many who scoffed when it was first organized are now numbered among the most enthusiastic members and supporters.

That January thaw that the weather bureau forecasted for southern New England was side-tracked before it reached this frozen in section, though even old weather sharps looked for a deluge late Thursday night, when a heavy southerly wind accompanied by heavily overcast skies seemed to foretell at least a temporary break in the hard seige of weather that has marked all of the month. Eaves started to drip and it seemed that rubber boots would be the most popular type of footwear for Friday—but Friday morning found the wind whipping out of the northwest, freezing temperature, excepting in the sun, and the thaw indefinitely postponed.

In the meantime Putnamites may continue to look at snow banks that are formidable barriers to getting off well beaten trails and to slide about on icy walks and streets.

That State Bank Commissioner John R. Byrne of this city has the courage of his convictions was demonstrated to the satisfaction of all present at a hearing on granting a charter for a proposed trust company in Hartford, at a hearing at the capitol this week. Commissioner Byrne appeared in opposition to the project, arousing thereby the ire of an attorney for the applicants for a charter. There was an exchange between the commissioner and the attorney, the attorney finally fleeing from the controversy. Later an apology was tendered Commissioner Byrne by interested parties who felt he had been unfairly aggrieved.

The state highway from Putnam to Danielson is very much like one's idea of the rocky road to Dublin. Traversing it in an automobile is anything but a pleasure. This is due to the fact that heavy traffic has cut into the snow and ice that remains on the road surface until riding over the road is very much like riding the bump the bumps. The roughness is chiefly due to chains on motor vehicle wheels cutting into the snow, subsequent traffic digging out holes. Two or three days of warm weather would relieve the condition by practically clearing the traveled surface of the highway.

At the meeting of the Norwich Mutual Assurance company held at the office of Henry Bill, Monday, Henry B. Tracy was re-elected treasurer, O. P. Wattles and George Sherman, directors.

Wednesday, January 15, 1873—A state paper carries the story that Hon. John T. Wait of Norwich has written a letter declining to be a candidate for the office of governor for this term. Hon. Mr. Wait would be the best candidate the republicans could put forward but with his withdrawal the party in the eastern part of the state will get behind Mr. Haven.

There are 1,007 children between 4 and 16 years old in the West Chelsea school district an increase of fifty-seven during the year.

The thaw continues and the streets are gradually going back to their normal state. There is still good sleighing but wheels are replacing runners on many local streets.

Senator William A. Buckingham has written that he concurs with his fellow citizens in the desire for a constitutional convention which will be fair to all parties and all the towns in the state.

Thursday, January 16, 1873—The largest ball of the season was given last evening by Eureka Lodge. The gallery and floor was crowded with spectators and there was an unusually large number of dancers. The Philharmonics gave some splendid music during the evening.

The luxurious apartments of the police were brilliantly lighted by one oil lamp last evening the gas being frozen in the pipes.

One local man who recently caught a seven pound pickerel claims the record for the season.

One of the old members of the Independence Hose, No. 6, disputes the record time of 18 minutes made by the Greeneville boys the other night. They claim that their record of 14 minutes from Thamesville to Batchelder's barn on East Broad street, is the best on record.

At New London they anchor the pest house in the middle of the river evidently intending to make it impossible for the disease to spread.

Friday, January 17, 1873—The enumeration of children between the ages of 4 and 16 in the Central School district shows an increase of 110 over last year. There are now 1613 children in that district, last year there being 1503.

The New London Northern road, which has for some time been managed as a division of the Vermont Central, will, after February 1st, be as formerly, an independent line.

The Y. M. C. A. of Westerly has a plan whereby they furnish stamps for all letters put into the Westerly postoffice not bearing the necessary stamp.

Buckley & Sharpley's minstrels had a crowded house last night, and gave a good performance. The company is one of the best travelling.

New rails are being laid on the New London Northern road between the local depot and Thamesville.

Norwich shows signs of becoming a law abiding place as the police records for the first 16 days in 1873 show but two cases that came before the police court.

In Norwich in 1872 according to the reports of David Young, town registrar there were 499 births, 225 marriages, and 497 deaths. The birth showed an increase of 21 over 1871, the marriages an increase of 16 and the deaths 110.

Saturday, January 18, 1873—The freshet, which had been expected for a week came yesterday without the disastrous effect that had been feared. About 11 o'clock the ice above the Greeneville dam gave way and in a short time the Shetucket was filled with great cakes of ice. Between the Laurel Hill bridge and the railroad bridge the gorge was firmest and the ice began to pile higher and higher the water backing up. Soon the water was on the bridge and the bridge over the river seemed in danger. Before the bridge was tested too long the current worked its way under the ice and soon great cakes were sucked down and in a moment the gorge above the bridge was broken. The river fell four feet in as many minutes. In the middle of the Thames the ice was piled fifteen feet high. The Yantic however had swept a clear path on the west of the river. At the fall the water was the highest in 20 years and the flashboard of the dam was carried away. Near the Richmond stove works the ice had torn up the tracks and destroyed the road bed and trains could get no further than Thamesville. On Franklin street the water backed up in the brook filling cellars. One man trying to rescue a horse had to wade in up to his neck to save the animal. There was considerable loss here because of the flow of water into cellars. By night the water was going down and the danger was past.

The army roster for the Norwich memorial is very complete, but it is difficult to learn the names of those who served in the navy.

After an absence of several weeks owing to the deep snow, the horse cars made their appearance yesterday. The streets are not fairly clean from snow.

A. S. Curtis of the West Side found a pansy in bloom in his garden yesterday.

LISBON

There was a small attendance at church Sunday because of bad traveling.

The two state roads through the town have been kept open by the highway department, making it easier for those who live on the crossroads to get about.

The milkmen at Lisbon station last Saturday morning had a topic of unusual interest to talk about while waiting for the train. One of the number discovered Venus near the moon and watched it as it came in conjunction and passed by.

Several people have reported finding dead game birds, several quail and a pheasant, that had evidently starved and frozen to death for lack of food. There were very few bayberries the past year. It has been observed years past that the birds had fed upon these when snow covered the ground.

Walter Corbett, a former Lisbon boy, is now located in Oklahoma and is superintendent of the largest concrete plant in the world.

Mrs. Joseph Bottomley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kendall, is spending the winter in Hialeah, a town about eight miles from Miami, Fla. She writes to friends here of the rapid growth the town has made since January, 1921. There are now four very nice residences, about 25 less expensive ones, and a large number of bungalows, a postoffice, motion picture studio, grocery store, meat market, drug store, dry goods store, printing office, zoo, shoe repair shop and schoolhouse, where Sunday services are also held. A hotel is under construction.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cole and two children, who have occupied the tenement at G. A. Kennedy's for nearly a year, have gone to New York, where Mr. Cole is to be employed. They will not move their household goods until later.

LEFFINGWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Coggeshall of Trading Cove were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Taylor.

Seven from Leffingwell attended the Odd Fellows' dance in Norwich Saturday evening.

Deacon J. C. Leffingwell is filling his icehouse this week with 12-inch ice.

Tuesday evening Mrs. N. E. Whiting was in charge of the bean supper. The menu consisted of baked beans, brown bread, rolls, coffee, pickles, cake and coffee. The Ladies' Aid realized about $10.

Several from Leffingwell attended the second concert of the Y. M. C. A. course in the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening.

Sunday morning worship at 11 o'clock; preaching by Rev. P. S. Collins; B. Y. P. U. at 7.30 o'clock. Mrs. Charles E. Ellis will be leader, and there will be a missionary topic.

LEBANON

George E. Briggs is teaching at the Village Hill school and Mrs. J. E. Burgess is teaching the Babcock Hill school.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruce were taken into the church by letter from the church in East Lyme.

Most men who go to church like a finished discourse.

You'll take a new delight in your phonograph

THERE are idle phonographs in thousands of homes, to-day, because of the noise of needle friction.

Thousands of sensitive music-lovers have never purchased phonographs because, for them, record surface sounds spoil the music.

Other thousands patiently endure the ever-present scratch and scrape and try to overlook it.

Columbia's already famous discovery of a new and unbelievably quiet surface material for records has opened up a new epoch in phonograph pleasure. Now you may buy records of the music you most delight in—the well-loved ballads, arias from the famous operas, the lilt and swing of dance music, songs of the violin, the surging harmonies of great orchestras — all noticeably free from objectionable surface sounds.

All of the Columbia Records out to-day are made with this wonderfully quiet and pleasing new surface.

As an example, we cite the latest song hit, "You Gave Me Your Heart." In this tenor solo, sung by Edwin Dale, there's sentiment and setting, tunefulness and tenderness in all their beauty, unmarred by distracting scratch or scrape. "A Picture Without a Frame," the selection on the other side, is equally attractive.

Tear out this list and take it to a Columbia Dealer. Listen to any or all of these Columbia New Process Records. You, too, will acclaim them the smoothest, most quiet, most musical records you have ever heard.

POETRY

THE DAY IS DONE.

The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of Night
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.

I see the lights of the village
Gleam through the rain and the mist,
And a feeling of sadness comes o'er me
That my soul cannot resist;

A feeling of sadness and longing,
That is not akin to pain,
And resembles sorrow only
As the mist resembles the rain.

Come, read to me some poem,
Some simple and heartfelt lay,
That shall soothe this restless feeling,
And banish the thoughts of day.

Not from the grand old masters,
Not from the bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Through the corridors of Time

For, like strains of martial music,
Their mighty thoughts suggest
Life's endless toil and endeavor;
And tonight I long for rest.

Read from some humbler poet,
Whose songs gushed from his heart,
As showers from the clouds of summer
Or tears from the eyelids start;

Who, through long days of labor,
And nights devoid of ease,
Still heard in his soul the music
Of wonderful melodies.

Such songs have power to quiet
The restless pulse of care
And come like the benediction
That follows after prayer.

Then read from the treasured volume
The poem of thy choice
And lend to the rhyme of the poet
The beauty of thy voice.

And the night shall be filled with music
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents, like the Arabs
And as silently steal away.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

MIRACLE COMPLETE.

"Nor had the smell of fire passed on them."—Daniel III. 27.

In fiery furnace heated seven times,
Full many a Shadrach walks untouched by flame
That round the fabric of the soul entwines,
Yet leaves thereon no ling'ring trace behind.
These in the faithfulness of God have known
A sevenfold compensation for their own

But friend, if e'er you've dared to play with fire,
Yet, by His boundless grace, not been consumed,
'Tis you who most will tune your thankful lyre
In praise for mercy's miracle complete—
When e'en the very savor of the fire
No longer clings unto your soul's desire
Elda M. Piero, in Sunday School Times.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Never ask your husband for money," counseled the Old Married Woman.

"I never have to," retorted the Young Bride, proudly. "Charley's such a darling he sleeps like a baby all night long."—Pittsburgh Leader.

"Did they treat you as a member of the family?"

"No, but they threatened to once, when I was behind with my room rent."—Farm Life.

"What is more helpless than a frail bark tossed about by the storms at sea?" mused the practical man.

"A fool man in the hands of a designing woman," growled the cynical man.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Madge—Did the skirt of your bathing suit shrink?

Marjorie—No, dear; but if it doesn't very soon I'm going to use the scissors on it.—New York Sun.

"You're a pretty sharp boy, Tommy."

"Well, I ought to be. Pa takes me into his room and strops me three or four times a week."—Boston Transcript.

An advertisement in the Times offers for sale a "State coach, until recently and for one hundred years in use by the Lord Chancellor; in perfect condition; 45 pound. Seldom do collectors get the chance of making such an addition to their—may we say?—bric-a-brac.—London, Times Weekly.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Elephants, mastodons and rhinoceroses ranged over practically all of what is now the United States, in the geological past.

On July 1, 1922, there were ninety-eight stations in the United States broadcasting weather forecasts and warnings daily by radio telephone.

All the blood in the human body, about fourteen pints, passes twice through the left ventricle of the heart and all around the body in a single minute.

On the upper Parana river which separates Paraguay from Argentina is a town called Posadas. "This," says a traveler, "is the last outpost of civilization on the Alto Parana face to face with primitive forest, wild Indians, the unexplored center of South America, and yet it is reached by a broad guage railroad, has a fine modern $500,000 hotel, three big department stores and the best hospital in northern Argentina. Round about are great mate plantations and old Jesuit ruins.

The most extravagant modern woman would have gasped at the clothes of Beatrice d'Este, the famous Italian princess, who was at the height of her career in Milan about the time that Columbus discovered America, says Isban Hemphill, in the Mentor Magazine. Big by costumes went with the prince on one of her diplomatic visits to Venice, and in addition to the pearls and diamonds that were embroidered on her clothing she wore "The Ear of Corn," a ruby valued at $400,000, and "The Worm" a decoration of three large diamonds and three large pearls valued at $240,000

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.
THE ROSE STILL GROWS BEYOND THE WALL.

Near shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light,
Watered and fed by morning dew,
Shedding its sweetness day and night.

As it grew and blossomed fair and tall,
Slowly rising to loftier height,
It came to a crevice in the wall,
Through which there shone a beam of light.

Onward it crept with added strength,
With never a thought of fear or pride,
It followed the light, through the crevice's length
And unfolded itself on the other side.

The light, the dew, the broadening view
Were found the same as they were before;
And it lost itself in beauties new,
Breathing its fragrance more and more.

Shall claim of death cause us to grieve,
And make our courage faint or fail?
Nay! let us faith and hope receive:
The rose still grows beyond the wall.

Scattering fragrance far and wide,
Just as it did in days of yore,
Just as it did on the other side,
Just as it will forever more.

BE KIND TO THE LOVED ONES AT HOME.

Be kind to thy father, for when thou was young
Who loved thee so fondly as he?
He caught the first accents that fell from thy tongue
And joined in thy innocent glee.

Be kind to thy father, for now he is old,
His locks intermingled with gray,
His footsteps are feeble, once fearless and bold—
Thy father is passing away.

Be kind to thy mother, for lo! on her brow
May traces of sorrow be seen.
Ah, well mayst thou cherish and comfort her now,
For loving and kind she hath been.

Remember thy mother, for you will she pray
As long as God giveth her breath,
With accents of kindness then cheer her lone way,
Even to the dark valley of death.

Be kind to thy sister, not many may know
The depth of true sisterly love,
The wealth of the ocean lies fathoms below
The surface that sparkles above.

Be kind to thy sister, wherever thou art,
The love of a sister shall be
An ornament purer and richer by far
Than pearls from the depths of the sea.

Be kind to thy brother, his heart will have dearth
If the smiles of thy love be withdrawn,
The flower of feeling will fade at the birth
If love and affection be gone,

Thy kindness shall bring to the many sweet hours
And blessings thy pathway shall crown,
Affection shall weave thee a garland of flowers
More precious than wealth and renown.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

WHITE CLOVER: Address received and letter forwarded.

SUGGESTIONS WORTH KNOWING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: First I thank a Social Corner member for the beautiful calendar I received. If not too late, I wish you all a Happy New Year.

I will send a few suggestions that I hope will prove helpful to you.

A few drops of oil of lavender scattered through a book case where the room is to be closed will save a library from becoming moldy in damp weather.

Eiderdown bed covers are apt to become hard after long use. Restore them to elasticity by hanging in the sun for a few hours.

Keep the wax coated boxes in which crackers are packed. Use instead of a little blocks of paraffine wax generally used for the flat irons.

Machine oil stains should be rubbed with soap and cold water as hot water makes the stains permanent.

Lamp chimneys rubbed with salt after washing gives them an added brilliancy.

The ravelings cut from new tablecloths before hemming are the best material that can be used in darning thin places in the old ones.

The contents of the inner vessel of a double boiler will cook much more rapidly if the water in the outer compartment is salted in proportion of a half cup of salt to two parts of water.

CATERING FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: The newlyweds may fancy that tiresome learning is done on the day they wed, but this is of course a mistake. They are starting on a new road, which cannot possibly be exhausted so far as knowledge is concerned. Is Martha a finished cook, a perfect laundry maid, an accomplished housekeeper, a brilliant hostess? It is scarcely likely she is all these. You will say, doubtless, that she has no need of all social and domestic accomplishments. Not has she at present, perhaps. Still she knows not how soon she may have. Besides which, one cannot direct properly unless one has been through all stages oneself. It might not be found uninteresting, too, were we to dip more deeply into domestic literature. Why not learn something of the history of household arts? Why not study our subjects from the beginning and on all sides? Methinks there are many of us who would find our housekeeping far more enjoyable did we take it thus seriously. And after all it is worth it. The proper direction of a home is quite as important as the conscientious practice of any profession or trade.

Take in many homes the subject of marketing is left very much to chance. There is a certain sum of money available. This is spent on the necessary weekly provisions, and is often found not nearly enough. Perhaps a little credit is incurred then, or the housewife goes without other articles until her next money supply is at hand.

Old hands at marketing learn valuable lessons in the school of experience. This is sometimes a very expensive form of education. The newlyweds who have not been through this experience course and are new to marketing are likely at first to think it rather a nice variety of shopping which may be unhazard.

Marketing should be looked upon as a kind of household science. It may be learned like any other science. It is an art, too, one that gives delight to the novice as she develops it.

The first great axiom is "Pay ready money for everything." I find this alone assures great economy in the household bills in the course of a year, for it really means that the payments for a large amount of interest has been avoided.

Financiers in higher lines than that of the home budget say that means a great deal. It does. The butcher or grocer usually charges less for the same article when he knows his money will be received at once.

Ready money to the trades means a great deal. In return he gives the customer the best value for it. New cocoas, teas and butter will be of the best, an indirect way of making the customers pay heavy interest on accounts overdue. The bad manager grumbles and the tradesman smiles. He says he "will see to it," and does once or twice and then goes on as before. He cannot exactly say it is on account of his credit, if he did he would lose a customer. A credit customer might be no less you might say, but as he gets full interest, often ten per cent, on his locked-up money, he does not wish to lose her. Each hundred dollars she spends gives him ten.

The second great axiom is, wants must be made to fit the purse. Her shopping list should be ready.

Her marketing book is the third rule. Armed with this she will not go far from her reckoning. She will not spend in one shop money destined for another.

HEALTH, HAPPINESS AND PROSPERITY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish you all a year of health, happiness and prosperity, with a large amount of each. I think of the sisters very often. I am a shut-in and do not venture out while snow and ice are here. When the pleasant springtime comes I enjoy it all the more.

Mollie Larkin: I am pleased to see your name in the Social Corner. Hope to hear from you often, as you can find many interesting articles with which to help all the Corner page.

SALOME.

WORRYING AND FRETTING COUNT FOR NOTHING.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I wish to thank the editor for my calendar and all the sisters who remembered me in any way. I just enjoyed your gifts, your cards, Christmas greetings, etc. I have tried to thank each one by card or letter. If I have missed anyone please accept my thanks. I received two gifts that I can't account for. One is a small package and one an envelope with a gift enclosed. The postmark was so dim I could only tell one letter, so I don't know whether it came from California or New Hampshire. In case it came from any of you please accept my thanks.

In some ways just now I feel more comfortable but am poorly. I hope not to get down sick and if I don't maybe I shall be better in the spring.

Now if not too late I will wish you all a happy New Year. Have any of you broken your new resolutions? We can all think of many things to do to make ourselves happier as well as those around us. An essential point is to be bright and cheerful despite our many troubles and not to tell them too often to make others despondent but permit them to be as happy as possible.

As sure as the sun shines, troubles, pains and heavy burdens have to be borne. Perhaps some have more than others, but if we look back and think things over carefully we will find that blessings have come to us also and we have a great deal to be thankful for. Bad as things are, we can see that they could have been worse.

Worrying and fretting never set things straight. On the other hand, they unfit us to rise above the difficulties that beset us, so let us live one day at a time and not worry about the morrow.

I reach out my hand to welcome the new sisters, and I hope that the sick ones are improving.

Now let us try to fill the Corner each week. We can if we half try, there are so many of us.

Best wishes to all.

DIANA.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Cornerites: Here I came for a little chat as I have been silent for a long time. I wish to thank a "Corner member" for pretty calendar received.

Dearies: I was very glad to see you are still among the living. Are you back again in Preston? I was very much grieved to hear of the death of Married and Happy, Grandma H and Blanche. I received a very pretty card from Blanche the day before she left our circle.

Balsam Fir: Was very much pleased to receive your Christmas greetings.

Delilah Deal: I, too, received one of those cute little pink umbrellas. They will know us when we go out on parade, won't they?

What has become of Jean? Has she been lost, strayed or stolen? I can't imagine, as I have not heard a word from her since Oct. 10. Maybe she has gone to New London to visit X Y Z.

I wonder how many of the sisters have been sleigh riding? I for one, have and expect to go again in a few days.

Hope all those who have been shut in will be able before long to once more enjoy a good health so as to be able to attend some of our meetings in the spring.

Here's wishing all a bright new year and all the blessings that go with it.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

WHAT TO DO WHEN SHY OF TEETH

Social Cornerites: Have been silent a long time, but have read our page each week and found something of interest in each letter.

Was surprised and grieved to read of Bachelor Girl's death. I had missed her letters, and wondered about it, but did not think she had "passed out." Now will some of the sisters who know her tell me if she was Grandma H's daughter?

Many thanks to Social Corner member for my dainty little calendar, and what I like for the calendar is just the sort I would have bought for myself.

E. M. B. C. P.: I think you were very brave to go out making calls New Year's. It was an awful day and I was thankful I could stay indoors, though there were numbers of people passing all day so others were not as afraid of wind and water as I was. I saw one man on the second street from us who was having a hard time. The wind was blowing a gale just then and the rain "coming down in streams" The man's umbrella had turned inside out and back again, and fell in wet folds on his head. After a moment of struggling he got his head free and had only taken a few steps when his hat blew off and rolled gaily along through mud and water the length of two or three blocks. The man was quite stout and could not run fast, but he caught up with his hat and went on his way."

Of course we all found that very funny, but I told my folks that the poor man had earned his New Year's refreshments if ever anyone did.

By the way I must tell you how I managed recently when we had a relative here who has not got any teeth just at present.

I used the food chopper for meats and when we had steamed clams, I picked clams out, cleaned them, then put them through the chopper, added to the broth, seasoned it well and had clams for dinner even if she couldn't "chew." She was found of nuts, dates and pop corn, so I put each of these through the chopper using the fine knife and she enjoyed them greatly. I spread some wafers with date paste and nut meats and then put another wafer on top and we liked them with our cup of tea in the afternoon.

I guess you will all be wishing I had kept silent awhile longer.

SPRINGTIME IN SUNNY CALIFORNIA

Dear Social Corner Friends: New Years greetings from sunny California. We are having three weeks of continuous sunny days and the most gorgeous sunsets with sky colored in rose, gray, pink and blue and an ocean of rose changing to purple and then to gray as twilight drops her curtain upon the scene and while we in California are enjoying this delightful springtime eastern friends write of a real winter in progress. However I am glad and seem to be cozy and warm in their comfortable houses with flowers to cheer and brighten the days.

The annual tournament of roses in Pasadena in New Year's day was a great success this year, as there had been no frost to mar the beauty of the flowers.

Two hundred and fifty thousand people attended the tournament and 50,000 witnessed the ball game between the University of Southern California and Pennsylvania state teams.

This ideal weather with the green fields and mountain sides and wealth of blooming flowers are all the tourists could wish and everyone is happy and making good resolutions for the new year.

Best wishes to all from CALIFORNIA POPPY.

CONSIDERS IT SOME WINTER

Dear Corner Friends: I wish to thank "a Social Corner member" for the very pretty calendar. I think we can all guess who's who and we appreciate the little remembrances sent to the different members.

I wish him and all the other friends a bright and prosperous new year.

Are you all snowed in? Some winter, I think. I have "flitted" to the city so, do not mind it so much.

I would like to join you at the social but guess I will wait till the good old summer time.

Trottie and Maine Lover: I called on Cousin Mary. She and Hubby are well.

Mary France: Are your nerves smoother out yet? It was enough to ruffle both temper and nerves.

Greeting and sympathy to all who have lost dear ones and to those who are ill from.

HULDY

DOING KIND DEEDS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It's a long time since I have written, but have read your letters each week. Glad to see new members coming in and to see the old members responding to the "call" for the old writers. Have been saddened to note the "passing out" of so many of our sisters in the last two years, but that is to be expected and it will be "our turn" one day.

Delilah Deal: I can sympathize with you as I have been ill for the last year. I can manage to do enough about the house to keep it decent, but can't do any heavy work. As there are only two of us to do for, I can manage by going slow.

I can't go up stairs or walk around much out of doors, but am thankful to be able to do what I can. I am lucky in having good neighbors.

One friend comes in every day, and on the days when I am worse than usual, (can't move about much) she brings me a cup of soup or bit of dainty food to tempt me to eat.

The relative who lives with me is away at her work all day. So the days would seem very long to me if there was nobody to come in.

The last two weeks has been at home sick and as I have been having a bad cold, we have had a very pleasant (?) time.

One of the stormy days last week a near neighbor came in and said she had an amaryllis with four blooms and as we could not go to see it she would bring it to us (and she did) and left it here for us to enjoy. We will take it home when the blossoms fade. We certainly have enjoyed the beautiful blooms and people who passed the house would stop and admire the pink blooms. The stalk which was in bloom was thirty inches high.

One neighbor values her lily very much as it was a gift to her. Even so she wanted us to have it while it was in its beauty, as she though it would cheer us.

What a different world this would be if each one of us could and did remember to do a kind act each day. We can always find some body who needs help. Perhaps only a kind word and a smile does more than we realize to cheer some one along the way.

Silent Partner: Your washing machine must be as good as the circus—keeps one wondering what it will do next. I think there must be some like it at the laundry. I know a woman who sent some cotton trousers to the laundry. When the washing came back she had one leg of a pair of thousers and never did know "who" got the other leg.

Then another woman sent a new (cotton) table cloth to the laundry and it changed into a larger half worn linen cloth, but she didn't complain as she hated a cotton table cloth. I have often wondered how the other woman felt when she received the cotton cloth. Probably she hated cotton table cloths, too. I guess most of us do.

Best wishes to editor and all members from

JACK'S WIFE.

OTHER ODDITIES OF THE PAST

Dear Social Corner Friends: Have been much interested in the letters recalling old "Fads and Fancies." One sister wrote about bracelets made of dimes. I had forgotten these, also the bangle-dime rings. I had a ring when I was a little girl and it seemed mighty fine to me then. The center was cut out of a new dime and the rim which was left made the ring, then the center smoothed and engraved with flowers on one side, each tiny flower set with a tiny stone, and then on the initials of the one who was to wear it. This was attached to the ring with one or two tiny rings and hung loose. As mine was for a birthday gift (July 4) the stones were red, white and blue. Some of the sisters surely remember the "horrible" rubber-neck hat pins. How our flappers would laugh if they should see these awful hat pins in their mother's hats today, and what would we have said twenty years ago if one of our girls had dressed as our flappers do now? One style of now-a-days is an improvement over the styles of fifteen or twenty years ago. That's the bobbed hair. To my way of thinking its "away ahead" of those awful messes of false hair the women used to pin on their heads. There was a wire frame covered with puffs and some of these frames were as big as a crow's nest. Thank goodness I had hair enough. I didn't need one of the "crow's nests" but I am ashamed now to remember that I wished I could wear one. I never will forget one time I was waiting for the car at Franklin square. It was a stormy Sunday morning with snow and the wind blowing a gale. It was in the days of large hats and I was wearing one which was a good target for the wind. Anyway the wind took my hat and carried it up over the telephone wires where it sailed around a few second and then plop, it fell out in the car tracks a stone's throw from where I stood. I ran out and captured it and laughed as long as any one else did and there were a number of people standing by. Believe me I was thankful that time I had my own hair on my head. I reckon if I had been wearing false hair and that had gone with my hat. I would not have laughed quite so much. My hat pins were lost that day, but my hat looked none the worse for its sail over Franklin square.

A REMINDER TO WRITE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been some time since I have written to the Corner but have been very busy over the holidays. Am not the only one I guess.

I wish to thank a Social Corner sister for a pretty calendar. It is very pretty and I shall have something to remind me to write more often during the year. We certainly have had plenty of snow and ice this winter, haven't we sisters? I wish all of the sisters a very happy new year.

HELP THOSE WE MEET

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I thought I would write my bit for the Corner and if it is only a little I hope it will help someone. I have often read in the Corner what good times the sisters have at their gatherings and often thought how I would like to have been there, but perhaps some time in the future I may have that pleasure.

Let us try to help everyone we come in contact with if it is only a good hearty handshak. Sometimes that goes a good way. Give some encouraging word if no more and it surely will make it easier to continue life's journey.

Let us all hope for better times and do the best we can to try and make them. I don't know but I have written too much, so will stop for this time.

Best wishes to all,

RURAL AUNTY

LOOKING FORWARD TO BEST YEAR

Editor and Corner Sisters: I will drop in and add my little bit to help start the new year right for the Corner page. Let us try and make this year the best yet and aid in making the Corner's greatest success by doing the duties which are required of us as Corner members. Let us all try and write bright cheery sunshine and helpful letters. May none of us have our names listed among the banquet hall members, for I don't think our editor likes to see our names in that column. So let us be workers and helpers with him for the success of the Corner. We cannot all write long letters; it is not expected of us. But the little and different ways and methods of doing things in helping each other, is what is asked of us through the Corner.

Now I want to thank Corner Member for the pretty calendar which I received. Am very pleased with it. Hope all who are sick and are shut in are gaining and will be able to be out with us soon.

Best wishes to all Corner sisters.

COMFORT AND CONSOLATION ON LONESOME DAYS.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Surely we are having the old fashioned New England winter weather and it reminds us of our younger days when we enjoyed sliding down hill on our sleds. Truly it is pleasant to recall some things that made us happy once. We do not all enjoy the snow these days, but as the seasons come we must take conditions as they are, for we have no part in the plans of Nature. It has always appealed to me as such foolishness for people to fret and complain on account of disagreeable weather conditions. Nothing is gained for they can not make the sun shine, or cause the snow or rain to cease. Certainly it is most annoying for others to hear about the terrible weather, either too cold or too intensely warm for endurance. Those conditions which are really unpleasant, whether outside, or indoors, we we cannot remedy, but we can make the best of it and with patience wait on the bridge till we find satisfactory changes.

Severe weather, and being obliged to stay in the house, means lonesomeness to many, and that state of mind leads to other tendencies. To be lonely, or to be homesick, is a heavy weight of sad thoughts, but with a little will power we may partially eliminate those conditions. There are many things companionable, if we but allow ourselves to accept that view of it. Take for instance some potted plants that you have growing in the window. Do they not appeal to you as an expression of cheerfulness? If so, then the developing blooms from out their silent life are worthy to be recognized as companions. Another expression of higher life, which shows activity, is the pet canary bird. Is not his sweet little song full of cheer?. We might imagine he was talking to us, in the only way that Nature has permitted him. And as we look and listen to the voice of that tiny life, incased in its delicate golden pumage, we may wonder in our thoughts, if the little songster is ever lonely, too, for he is but a prisoner in a gilded cage. However, he is our companion, and doing his bit to help relieve a lonesome hour. In most of our homes we harbor the four-footed pets, who have their freedom. They express to us just as we often feel, a desire for companionship. The cat or the dog will linger with us at all times. Weather conditions or otherwise do not count with them. It appeals to me, that if we observe, and consider these things so close at hand we may find comfort and a consolation on lonesome days. Not looking out the window to far beyond with vain wishes, or even allowing some scene of long ago to revive an unpleasant event. To be lonesome is not wholly confined to daylight, but often the long, wakeful hours of the night. From our chamber window we may look out, seemingly to a dark, lonesome world, but possibly we may catch the gleam of one bright light, which sends a friendly ray, regardless of its position. It matters not whether it is lamp in the cottage window or the more powerful electric light from a higher place. It is all the same—a consolation in lonely moments.

I wish to thank Social Corner members for a pretty little calendar.

Kitty Lou: Thank you very much for a New Year's card, bearing the best of good wishes to me. I appreciate your kindness.

JENNIE.

A GOOD RESOLUTION TO MODIFY CRITICISM.

Dear Corner Members: I realize my laxity in doing my bit to perpetuate this Social Corner page, but the pretty calendar received from A Social Corner Member aroused me to activity. The artistic merit and usefulness not alone proves its value but also the thoughtfulness of the giver, which is appreciated, and I thank you.

The letters continue full of interest, especially those of North Dakota and Cretia. I miss the letters from former writers, among them those from Persis' gifted pen, but as a stork has lately alighted at her door her time is used in a more worthy cause.

We shall all greatly miss dear Grandma H. Her face was always wreathed in smiles for everyone; she had such a cheerful, happy disposition she was the magnet at all gatherings, as she was so full of mirth and good humor. She was dearly loved by all who knew her, and our memory of her will be one we love to cherish. Our sympathy goes out to all the dear ones that mourn their loss.

Sometimes it occurs to us that we know not which way to turn or which course to take for fear of offense. Some are severely critical and nearly everyone is in a greater or less degree. It is a universal human failing that all cannot be pleased or suited, and someone has to submit to the inevitable. In whatever capacity one tries to be helpful or perform the task before them and do the best within their power, so far as they can determine, and then are censured or criticized by others, does it not seem like an unfair proposition? At the beginning of a new year this is a problem to think about. A resolution to modify criticism, to be more considerate of others' feelings, would not be amiss. As this is a common trait of us mortals, and won't be eliminated until the millenium, we may find some consolation, after having done what seemed to be the best, from a wise old Englishman whose motto was "Never explain; never retract; never apologize; get it done, and let them howl."

To the editor we are grateful for all favors received, for his patience and forebearance toward our mistakes and failures the past year, and for the year before us we hope to attain a high degree of success.

SNOWBOUND.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I wish to thank The Corner member who sent me such a lovely calendar.

At present I am snowbound. There is nearly three feet of snow on the level. There has been no mail for a week, although the roads have been opened.

Best wishes to all.

EARLY INFLUENCES AND GOOD MANNERS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: There can be no greater blessing, than to be born in the light of a cheerful, loving and happy home. It not only insures a happy childhood—if there be health and a good constitution—but it always makes sure a virtuous and happy manhood and a fresh, young heart in old age. I think it is every parent's foremost duty to try to make their children's childhood one of love and of childhood's proper joyousness; and I never see children destitute of them through the poverty, faulty temper or wrong notions of their parents without a deep heartache. Not that all the appliances which wealth can buy are necessary to the free and happy unfolding of childhood in body, mind or heart. Quite otherwise, God be thanked; but children must at least have love inside the house and fresh air and good companionship outside. Otherwise young life runs greater danger in the world of withering or growing stunted or sour, or wrong, or at best prematurely old and turned inward on itself. In speaking of good manners I will merely state that all, especially young folks, should be mannerly, both at home and abroad. But how to be so is the question now in view. Many boys and girls feel that they cannot behave themselves or conduct themselves properly in the presence of company. They are generally awkward, clownish and rough. They feel timid, doubtful and self-distrustful the very moment they are addressed by a stranger or appearing in company. There is but one way to get over this feeling and acquire easy and graceful manners and that is to do the best they can all the time at home as well as abroad. Good habits are not learned so much as acquired by habit. They continually grow upon us by use. You must be courteous, agreeable, civil, kind, gentlemanly and manly at home and then it will be a kind of second nature when you find yourself abroad. A coarse, rough manner at home easily begets a habit of roughness which we cannot lay off even when we go abroad thought we should try to do so. Note the experience while at college of young men who never tried to reform their character and rough ways ways, and the consequence is today they greatly rue it. All should try to be genteel now if they wish to render themselves agreeable. Hereafter the most polite and amiable persons we have ever known in company were those very ones who were most agreeable at home and during their youthful days. Therefore our homes, colleges and schools are the places for all the best things which we absolutely need through life. They are as it were the novitiates precious to our entering the world or society.

Thanks for card Bonnie, Calla Lily and Kitty Lou.

PAULA.

GOOD LUCK FOR NEW YEAR.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I hope you all enjoyed the past holidays. To those who lost dear ones at that time of the year I always think it brings back sad memories. We had death in the family just a few days before Christmas, so can sympathize with Blue Bell in the loss of her dear mother, and also her sister such a short time ago.

I have missed the meetings at the Buckingham as I have been away three meetings. Hope to be able to meet all the sisters next month.

I also miss so many old writers as I read the Corner page.

Crimson Rambler: Where are thou?

Expected to get to South Coventry to see Marigold and Betsy Bray before this. On account of sickness and death it had to be postponed. Hope you both are well. Also the boy "Patsy."

Had a card from Delilah Deal saying she was in poor health. Would the sisters when writing or sending her anything kindly send their pen-names, as without them it confuses her, and she is not able to find out who the sender is.

I have another nice lemon on my tree, and children passing to slide down hill are much pleased with it. It seems to be quite an attraction for both young and old. This is the third one that matured. It also has had many blossoms this winter. Being in the house I think causes the sets to blast, as it does not seem to have any small grain cases.

Bob White: Hope you will soon be able to solve that puzzle. I imagine you and Mr. Neelh will get it about the same time.

What a nice winter we are having. When the children go by in droves, to slide it makes me wish I were back in years to have the pleasure also. It has been much need sliding up our way for a number of weeks advantage has certainly been taken of it.

Wish you all good luck for the coming year.

NECIA.

SOME USES FOR LEMONS.

Dear Social Corner: It is some time since I have written. I am always sorry for those that write of being shut in by sickness for I know how it is. I have not been out doors but three times since Thanksgiving day. I want to thank all those that sent me cards Christmas. You can't imagine how nice it feels to be remembered so. Lately I received a plant in blossom from the Christian Endeavor society and you can't imagine how much cheer and comfort I get from it.

Mary France: I thank you for the pretty gift. I will add it to my collection and do as you say.

I will send in some uses for lemons.

If you feel "so tired" and your bones ache and you have a bad taste in your mouth squeeze lemon juice into fresh water enough to make a sour beverage and drink.

For Headache—If you have a throbbing headache drink the juice of one-half lemon in fresh water, and rub a slice of lemon over the brow and temples and the pain will soon go away.

For colds and coughs—Juice of two lemons, add tablespoon of granulated sugar, mix and take a teaspoon every half hour.

Best wishes to all

BRAVE.

NO OPERATION FOR HER

She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Escaped the Operation Doctor Advised Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. The doctor said my only relief was an operation. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and tried the Vegetable Compound and the Sanative Wash, and they surely did wonders for me. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Ed. Boehnlein, 1130 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.
